Discussion regarding the disposition of the extra eight dollars per month which old age pensioner inmates at the County Home received as a result of recent increase in pensions and addition of cost-of-living bonus, took up considerable time at the Friday morning session of county council. The matter was discussed quite thoroughly following the reading of the House of Refuge report by Chairman W. J. Tanner.

Tribute to the management of the Hastings County Home was paid by Mr. Tanner who stated that he had been one of a committee which made a tour of like homes in the province during the summer months. Only routine expenditures had been made during the year, although when it was seen coal would have to be burned at the institution this winter an iron fireman had been ordered. Owing to wartime restrictions, however, this had not yet been installed and doubtless would not now be installed until next summer when fires could be let out.

On opening discussion on the disposition of the increased pensions received by some of the home inmates, Mr. Tanner stated the Board of Management had tentatively decided on retaining $25 of the $28 old age pension now received, but that this arrangement had caused dissatisfaction. Many pensioners claimed they should receive a fair share of the increase.

The general feeling of the council was that as the increase in pension had been granted because of increase cost of living, inmates should actually have no claim on the money as the county paid all expenses. Reeve Charles Rush stated, however, that the committee appointed for the House of Refuge was competent to handle the situation and it would be bad business for the council to interfere. The matter was left in the hands of the committee to decide.

W. J. Davis of Maple Leaf brought out a recommendation before council asking that an additional ten dollars be paid as bounty on wolves killed within the county boundaries. He asserted that something must be done to encourage the destruction of wolves, which are causing much damage among sheep flocks in many of the townships. This feeling was seconded by Charles Rush who asserted that the sheep industry must be protected. The matter was left for the Ways and Means committee to decide as were recommendations for several grants brought out during the morning session.

Report of the Suburban Road Commission was read by Mr. Simeon Fox who indicated that to date only $3,138 of the estimated $4,500 expenditure for 1943, had been spent. The system had received adequate maintenance with the exception of weed cutting, while the principal work done was the excavation of an 1,100 drainage ditch.

A total of $11,900 had been expended by the county patriotic committee according to its chairman Reeve R. A. Elliott of Deloro. Funds had been available through the assessment of 3/4 mill which raised over $13,712. The committee had a balance of $1,800, he said.

Principal grants made by the committee during the year were $5,000 to the Red Cross, and one for $1,500 to the community war services fund during a recent campaign. Other grants included $200 to the Chinese Relief; $400 to Russian Relief; Blood Donor Clinic $500; Belleville Y.M.C.A. $800; Navy League $600, $200 to the Greek War Relief, and $200 each to the county Red Cross branches.

Also a grant of $500 had been made to the Second Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (Reserve), it being pointed out that this was not to establish a precedent and was not to be considered as a yearly grant.

The report of the Agricultural Advisory Council was given by Reeve David Mawson in view of the fact that the committee chairman, Reeve W. J. Davis, was occupying the warden's chair in the absence of Dr. Lumb. The report indicated there had been two meetings during the year and gave a detailed account of recent Toronto conferences. Grants made during the year were also noted.

A continuation of effort towards making farming more attractive and remunerative for those making it their life's vocation was urged, while a special vote of appreciation was extended to Mr. H. Lynn Fair, Agricultural representative, who had given freely of his time in assisting the committee in its various endeavors.

Blind Miner Builds Own Home

New Waterford, N. S., Dec. 10 — (CP) — Watchers hold their breath as Paddy Delaney makes his way over a high scaffold or crawls over the roof of the building he is putting up on this town's main street.

For Paddy, building his own home with a store attached, is blind. A miner all his life, he lost his sight a few years ago.

The structure, started about a month ago, now is nearing completion.

Bulgaria May Seek Way Out Before Germany Falls

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Renewed rumblings of tension and uncertainty in the Balkans — particularly in Bulgaria where cabinet shake-ups, including the post of foreign minister, appeared imminent — have led diplomats here to the conclusion that Germany's European satellites will seek a way out of the war before Germany falls.

Bulgarian Premier Debri Bojilov, reported in dispatches to Stockholm to be reshuffling his cabinet as the result of parliament's vote of no confidence, was believed ready to oust Foreign Minister Shishmanov and take over the post himself.

Previously, Bojilov was reported to have called home his envoys from Berlin, Moscow and Ankara for conferences on the new complications arising from the Teheran and Cairo conferences and the fear that Turkey may be ready for a more prominent part in the war.

Peace demonstrations, disturbances and arrests in Sofia and other parts of the country have been reported in dispatches to neutral capitals.

Famed U.S. Navy Flier Missing

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 10 —(AP)— United States Navy fighter pilot Lt.-Cmdr. Edward H. (Butch) O'Hara, dubbed by President Roosevelt one of the greatest combat fliers in American aviation history, is missing in action.

The St. Louis ace who won the Congressional medal of honor for blasting five Japanese bombers out of the sky lone-handed in the battle of the Coral Sea was reported by the Navy to have disappeared on a flight mission, probably somewhere in the South Pacific.

ATTACKED BY WILDCAT

Plaster Rock., N.B., Dec. 10 (CP) —Maurice LeBel, 16, knows what "fighting like a wildcat" means. He was attacked by one in woods near here. Without warning, the cat dropped on him from a tree and sprang again after being driven off by an axe. LeBel finally put the snarling wildcat to flight. His hands and face clawed and clothing torn, the dazed youth stumbled to a nearby house from where he was later taken to his own home.

Commission Believes Survey For City Sewage Disposal Project Should Be Made by Outside Engineer

The Belleville Post-War Planning Commission held their regular monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday night to report and discuss further development since the last meeting which was held on November 2nd. Members of the Commission present were, Mayor Harry Rollins, Ald.-elect Lorne McDougall, Ald. C. R. Clapp, Ald. "Twig" Woodley, chairman, Ald. R. A. Pringle, City Engineer C. Mott, and Messrs. J. Shortt, James Galloway and H. Ackerman.

It was decided by the Commission that immediate plans should be made to make a survey of the city's man-hole levels in connection with the sewage disposal project and that the city should employ an outside engineer to work in conjunction with the city engineer on this preliminary step. The city engineer reported that he was already going ahead with this work. "We cannot stand still," said Ald. C. R. Clapp, "we must improve the city, its parks, recreational facilities, improve our beaches and make the city an attractive place. It must be made attractive if we are going to hope to bring in industries to the city. Property would be worth a lot more if we were to go ahead, and I believe that we should ask the city council to employ Mr. Storey, the engineer who has been approached to make the survey.

Reports on Convention

Alderman-Elect Lorne McDougall, secretary, made a report to the Commission on the convention of Property Owners Association of Ontario held at Toronto November 16th. He said that the special speakers at the conference dealt in a very general way with subjects which were all in relation to the danger to property owners of socialistic tendencies which was developing. Mr. Bert Trestrail spoke on "Free Enterprise" and advocated providing recreational centres, organized travel at low cost and adequate housing by industry and municipalities. If industry kept the wage earner occupied in his leisure hours there would be no incentive to hand their money to foreign organizers in the hope of obtaining some of these benefits.

The Hon. George A. Drew spoke vigorously of the necessity of each individual doing his part to enlighten innocent people on the real objects of the C.C.F. He stated that they were definitely soft pedalling their basic program in communities where it best served their purpose to do so in the interest of vote catching. It was perfectly obvious, however, by listening to C.C.F. leaders across Canada that they intended to form a militant revolutionary government if the occasion was presented. One of their leaders had stated that it was not the intention of the C.C.F. to confiscate property from the present owners but, when they passed on, their property would revert to the government. The premier pointed out that a farmer who improved his land with the object of passing it on to his son could not do so under the C.C.F. program as outlined by their leaders. Mitchell Hepburn spoke briefly suggesting that it was necessary for those interested in private enterprise and private initiative to work together for a common cause. He submitted that it was his intention to support the present government in Ontario.

An address on Urban Post-War Planning was given by Geo. S. Mooney, Montreal, Director of Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities which was followed by a question period. Mr. McDougall read out the points brought up by Mr. Mooney at the Toronto convention which he said were equally applicable to Belleville in most of their problems.

Recommended Two Rinks

Mayor Rollins recommended that the Commission and the City Council do not take on too many projects at one time in case that all suffer rather than concentrating on a few important projects and doing them. A number of construction projects were discussed but nothing definite was decided with the exception of a plan to open two skating rinks in the city within the next few weeks. It was proposed that a recommendation go immediately to the city council on this project and that a skating-hockey rink be constructed on each of the two city playgrounds on the West and East Hills. City Engineer Mott reported that these two rinks —could be constructed at a cost of approximately $1,000. This amount would purchase the necessary lumber and cover the initial floodings and, in ensuing years the cost would be reduced to the mere cost of supervision and floodings. It was unanimously agreed that this project should be put into effect at once. The motion was moved by Mr. Joe Shortt and seconded by Ald. C. R. Clapp. The meeting was adjourned at 9.30.

CAR CRACKS POLE, THREE MEN FLEE

Police Find in Suspicious Car Large Assortment of Safe-Breaking Tools

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 10 —(CP)— Police chase of a suspicious car at 3.15 this morning ended when the car smashed off a large wooden Hydro pole at the base and the three occupants of the car fled to safety in the darkness through a hail of bullets.

Inside the stolen car police found a large assortment of safe-breaking tools.

Three youths jumped out of the car and ran across a front lawn at the Hydro sub-station at Erie and McDougall streets.

By this time Constables McLaughlin and Renaud were out of their car running towards the alley between McDougall Street and Mercer Avenue, down which the trio had disappeared. Shouting a warning first, the officers fired several rounds of bullets after the escaping men. The three youths kept on running and got away in the darkness.

5th Army Rips Gaping Hole In Nazi Winter Line

By DON WHITEHEAD
(Associated Press War Correspondent.)

With the 5th Army in Italy, Dec. 10. (AP)—American attacks which began two days ago north of Mignano have put the Anglo-American 5th Army in control of towering Mt. Samucro overlooking the town of San Vittore and broken the German hold on both sides of the main highway to Cassino.

Thus, after eight days of bitter fighting, Allied troops have ripped a gaping hole in the western end of the enemy's winter line.

In the cloud-buried heights of Mt. Camino south of the main road to Rome Allied troops fought the Germans hand-to-hand and captured the town of Rocca. This gave complete control of the entire Camino-Maggiore mountain pass which looms over Mignano.

The capture of the Camino, Maggiore and Samucro Heights— is one of the greatest achievements of the 5th Army.

Now the way is open for a smash toward Cassino.

Premier Drew Will Address Lords, Commons

London, Dec. 10. (CP Cable)— Premier George Drew of Ontario will address the combined Houses of Lords and Commons, convened by the Empire Parliamentary Association, on December 17, it was announced today.

The speech will be a climax to his busy visit to London where he is arranging for establishment of a new Ontario office.

This week the Premier has been closing a deal for the office site and he said the head of the office will be appointed shortly.

He conferred with the executive of the British Federation of Industries regarding possibilities of establishing British branch plants in Ontario.

The Premier also talked with several British Cabinet Ministers on Agricultural, trade and food questions related to Ontario's plan to stimulate the sale of Ontario agricultural products in the United Kingdom and Europe after the war.

Early next week he plans to visit Bomber Command of the R.A.F.

Saga of Sea Ends in Marriage

Cairo, Dec. 10—(CP)— An English nursing sister and Australian sailor—each of whom thought the other had drowned when a British hospital ship was sunk off Sicily—have been married in the tiny chapel of a military hospital in Egypt.

The bride, nursing sister Makepeace of Dover, England, had to be wheeled into the chapel for her marriage to third officer Irvine-Brown of Brisbane, Austrialia, because she suffered a broken leg when struck by a flying timber from the sinking ship while being lowered in a lifeboat.

Despite the injury, she kept afloat 90 minutes and was picked up by a cruiser. The next morning she was transferred to another hospital ship and reunited with Irvine-Brown.

Pilots See House Afire, Land Planes and One Flies for Extinguisher

Goldsboro, N.C., Dec. 10. (AP) Two pilots from Seymour Johnson air field here while flying saw flames spurting from the home of R. W. Pierce. They landed their planes nearby and began to fight the fire, but lacked water. Undaunted, one of the pilots flew back to his base for fire extinguishers. The house was saved except for damage to the roof.

STORAGE BATTERIES ARE ESSENTIAL WAR TOOLS

Today our most important job is supplying batteries for the Navy . . . the Army . . . the Air Force . . . the auxiliary forces and war industries. Without a dependable source of power, which in many instances only a storage battery can supply, the mechanized giants of our armed services would be useless—dead! Storage batteries are a vital part of "combined operations."

You can help make the available supply of civilian batteries go further by having your Exide Dealer, who is a battery expert, check your battery every 14 days with his scientific Exide Sure-Start equipment. He can help you get the most from your battery—make it last longer.

When you must buy a new battery make sure it's an Exide. In war as in peace where life is at stake—where battery power dare not fail, there you will find an Exide—the dependable battery.

Their Views Sane

Two leaders whose opinion and experience are held in highest regard by the Allied world have just commented on the course and length of the war, Prime Minister Churchill and Field Marshal Smuts. The former has been very careful never to plant too high hopes on the length of the conflict and even the other day he would only express himself by using the word "hope," but he did not prophesy when the end would come. On a visit to his old regiment, the Fourth Queen's Own Hussars in North Africa, Mr. Churchill went so far as to say that "the war is going well but we must not underrate the tenacity of the enemy who fights with his usual veteran skill and of course when he is beaten he will not have a good time of it, so he will be tenacious to the end.

"But I hope that in 1944 we shall bring him to bay. If that be so, England shall have escaped the greatest danger she has ever been through and will emerge into the greatest glory she has ever won." The Prime Minister did not mention Germany or Japan but he was presumably referring to Germany.

The great wisdom of Mr. Churchill has stood him and his country and the Allies in good stead, his experience is wide and deep. How much better that he should speak in this way! His leadership has been the source of inspiration which has seen Britain through from the darkest hours of the war to the breaking of the clouds and the signs of the reappearing sun of peace in the international firmament.

Field Marshal Smuts, one of the greatest men in the public eye today as soldier and statesman, often comments upon events in this greatest of all wars and his words are read everywhere for their sane attitude.

One of his comments upon the three recent historic parleys was that what the world does not know about the meetings is more important that what it was told. These meetings he called "the most significant conferences for one hundred years" and stated they far exceeded anticipation in the unanimity which was achieved.

When General Smuts refers to the possible length of the war and the nature of the fighting to precede victory, his words are accepted by great numbers of the people. He voiced the hope for victory by Christmas of next year but sees heavy fighting ahead.

One of his important utterances was that the Allied meetings had averted the danger that Britain, the United States and Russia might win the war without achieving the absolute co-operation necessary for winning the peace. "Everything is in order and is moving to the greatest conclusion for a century of centuries," he said.

Another utterance of his was that "the old world is dead and the significance of this war is that it is the first step to a new opportunity, in which the press must play an even greater part."

One of the august statesmen of the Empire and the World, Field Marshal Smuts sees with clear eye and vision that better world of international relations for which man is yearning.

The sanity of the viewpoint of such men as Churchill and Smuts is one of the greatest assets of the Allied Nations, it is a corrective to over-optimism and that complacency which can be the result of too great optimism. This sanity of view is a great factor in victory. Mr. Churchill and Marshal Smuts have given much for the Allied cause and have helped the people of the United Nations to see not only the victory but the effort, of which victory will be the consequence. Following Churchill and Smuts, the people do not go astray in their continuous effort for victory and security of peace.

Niagara Falls Vote Up

Niagara Falls Evening Review put on recently a vigorous campaign to get the voters to vote in large numbers in the civic elections on Monday. It pointed out that 62 per cent of the electors failed last year for one reason or another to register their preferences and called for a record turnout of voters this year.

On Tuesday, the day after the municipal election, the Review was able to state, "The voting was 47½ per cent, which is an increase over the 38 per cent recorded last year. It was believed that the wet weather kept many voters, particularly women, from the polls. The number of persons eligible to vote is 9,754, and those voting numbered 4,627.

"Taken altogether the vigorous campaign which has been conducted this year has created a great deal of interest in civic affairs."

So the effort to get a more representative vote of the voters in the city of Niagara Falls was successful.

Dodecanese

On of the minor worries of the hour is the correct way to pronounce Dodecanese Islands, comments a New York Times columnist. Any sound that will convey the general idea is good enough. A person may put the accent on the first syllable, making dode rhyme with pie a la mode and slide over the rest of the word. He has no occasion to blush before the conscientious pronouncer who has looked in the dictionary and found the accent on the second syllable, rhyming with deck. There may even be others who remember Peloponnesus and pronounce Dodecanese accordingly.

The case is not like the free-and-easy English spellings which mistaken persons have been known to recommend now and then. The words of the English language will be with us to the end, and it is better to have some agreement on the subject. But the Dodecanese Islands and Trapani and Perekop and even Dnieper and Wewak and Salamaua will retire, once the present agony is over, into the obscurity of peace and prosperity. or that matter, when you have people with three different opinions about how to pronounce a good English word like advertisement, accent on the first, second or third syllable, it is silly to take the Dodecanese Islands too much to heart.

Squirrels Impede War

American grey squirrels are seriously impeding Britain's war effort, C. D. Horney, of the Ministry of Agriculture, declared in London. He calls them "charming yet mischievous rogues," but that does not alter the fact that they are undercover agents of destruction. So great have become their depredations that a number of agricultural committees have been directed to take steps for their extermination. The American grey squirrel was imported at more than 30 points in England between 1889 and 1930, chiefly in Lon County, the Home Counties, Yorkshire, Cheshire, Staffordshire, and North Wales, and from these it has spread widely.

Honeymoon Plane Seen

Honeymoon planes, municipal air taxis and glider "trains" each carrying 52 holidays-makers at 200 miles an hour are being planned for after the war in Britain. At least 17 peacetime planes from giant airliners to two-seaters "runabouts" have already been designed, it is revealed in London. One firm is experimenting with an entirely new theory of powered flight discovered by a railway clerk and for the present kept secret. A holiday catering company is bidding for some of the huge Nissen hut camps built near airfields and is making tentative plans to convert them into holiday camps. The plan includes acquisition of the adjacent airfield and the running of glider-train services. The trains would consist of an "engine" — a 16-seater airliner — towing two 18-seater glider coaches, which would be unhooked to land at these airfield camps en route.

Britain's financial resources are all mobilized for war. War savings have yielded nearly $25,000,000,000 since 1939, and Britain's foreign assets have been absorbed to pay for essential imports. Investment at home is controlled, and totalled only about $15,000,000 in 1942, against a pre-war average of $840,000,000. Nearly $80,000,000 has been given to the Government in gifts, and over $235,000,000 in loans free of interest.

CHRISTMAS LIKES

I like to read the Christmas ads
  With Santa's smiling face displayed,
With what to get for growing lads
  And what for matron and for maid.

I like to ride the streets along
  And see the billboards hollygay,
With Santa, smiling at the throng,
  Suggesting gifts for Christmas Day.

I like those bits of morning mail
  Which many a helpful merchant sends
To tell the same old Christmas tale
  Of what to give particular friends.

I like the bonnet, cape and bell
  Of each Salvation Army lass
Which of the poor and needy tell
  To Christmas shoppers as thy pass.

I like to hear the church bells ring
  To call the shoppers in to pray,
In fact I'm fond of everything
  Which has to do with Christmas Day.

The County Councillors consider that uniforms for the officials at the county gaol are "excess baggage" and a motion prevailed in the council that should the Department of the Attorney General again send uniforms here they will be returned. The motion was made by S. B. Wright and seconded by Joseph Burns. The uniforms now here will be paid for by the county, but this will be the last time. Uniforms are not worn by the gaol officials here and the councillors say they are unnecessary.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Full justice should be done to the memory of Canada's pioneers. Their cheerfulness under adversity and courage in danger set an exampe for us who must also "fight the good fight."

Curious customs persisted is Canada until well on into the 19th century. Bishop Mountain (then Dr. George Mountain) gives an instance in the story of his travels through the land. He found that in a Williamsburg church in Upper Canada donations were collected in a bag [illegible] in the bag was a [illegible] ring in the ear of any church-goer who was asleep, or pretending to be asleep when the bag was passed around!

On this trip, which was undertaken in 1820, he wrote vividly about the highway from Brockville to Perth.... "All roads I have mentioned before were as turnpike and bowling green to this. Roots, racks, sticks, stumps, holes and bogs were its compound material." He described Kingston as "the largest town in Upper Canada—the greatest in trade."

When it rained in those days the children were ever so happy. Look at all the lovely mud, they said, and certainly there was enough in the streets for millions of mud pies! Back in 1833 few Canadian towns [illegible] sidewalks of any description. The mud often became so deep that it pulled off pedestrians' shoes. In desperation the settlers placed large flat rocks at strategic points and hopped from stone to stone in safety...much as Eliza did in her dramatic escape over the floating ice in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Waste Not, Want Not was a truism on which the colonists acted. It prompted an experiment in 1822 by thrifty persons who couldn't bear to see the great numbers of buffalo skins lying unclaimed on the western prairies. These careful souls spent thousands of dollars in an attempt to convert buffalo wool into cloth; but they were throwing their money away—the results were not satisfactory.

Benes in Russia To Sign Pact

London, Dec. 10 — (CP)—Edouard Benes, president of the Czecho-Slovak government in London, has arrived in Russia, presumably to sign a pact for which negotiations recently were concluded in London, Czech circles disclosed today.

It was expected here the agreement would have important repercussions on the post-war central European set-up by providing an opening for Poland to join in a territorial barricale against Germany's traditional urge to "drive to the east."

Some Denver Women Carry Hidden Weapons Against Marauders

Denver, Dec. 10 — (AP) — Denver women, says manager of safety Robert J. Kirschwing, are taking up arms against male marauders—albeit rather secretly.

He told in an interview of many telephone calls to police in recent days. Women, alarmed by stories of night-time attacks by men, sought permission to carry hidden weapons.

One said she had a tear-gas gun. Several told of concealing jackknives, pistols and other borrowed weapons.

And one, Kirschwing divulged, simply whetted her butterknife to a dagger-edge, and sheathed it in her stocking.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

Some people will not keep peacock feathers, in their homes because they consider them unlucky.

This superstition is probably of ancient origin.

The peafowl belongs to the pheasant family of birds and is native to the hill regions of India and Ceylon, where it is still found in the wild state.

Among certain castes in India the peafowl is protected as a sacred bird.

It was introduced into Europe at an early date and became sacred among both the Greeks and the Romans, being regarded as the favorite bird of Juno, Jupiter's wife and guardian of the female sex and patroness of happy marriages.

The ancients believed that Juno's anger was excited by plucking the peacock and that no suitors would call at a house where the feathers were kept.

But the superstition that associates peacock feathers with misfortune is supposed to be based on an even more ancient mythological tale. According to the myth, Jupiter fell in love with the beautiful Io, and to protect her from the wrath of his jealous wife he transformed her into a white heifer; whereupon Juno, who saw through the trick, persuaded her husband to give her the heifer, which she placed under the surveillance of Argus, a fabulous being with a hundred eyes, fifty of which remained open even when Argus was asleep.

Jupiter, feeling sorry for poor Io, sent Mercury to slay Argus and deliver her, a task that Mercury accomplished by winning the confidence of Argus with stories and lulling his hundred eyes to sleep with soothing tunes on a lute.

Juno, in memory of Argus, metamorphosed him into a peacock, her favorite bird, and transferred his eyes to its train, where they still form the beautifully colored disks.

From this story "Argus-eyed" acquired the meaning of jealously watchful, and the peacock's train became the emblem of the "evil eye."

It may be, however, that the superstition that peacock feathers are unlucky resulted from a taboo placed on peacocks by the pagan priests. Since these beautiful birds were kept about the temples and their train feathers would be sought by women, the priests, to protect the birds, may have encouraged the belief that no suitors would call at the home of a woman who had peacock feathers in her

It is well known that official reports along this line are exceedingly cautious. All in all, it may be that 300 would be a conservative calculation for the nine-month period. It would not seem impossibly high to suggest that the toll might have reached 350, even 400 .

The Allies' losses caused by submarines for March never have been disclosed officially, but it would be safe to guess that such sinkings had to be counted by the scores, for Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander of the German Navy, was able to keep about 300 undersea craft operating at all times. This is on the generally-accepted ratio of one-third in action, one-third in ports and the remainder in transit.

It is presumed that the Germans have been able to construct some 150 new submarines. But this has not restored the force to its normal strength because of the withdrawal of large numbers for refitting, to meet the challenge of enlarged Allied surface and air cover and new offensive devices.

With all these setbacks, it is doubted whether Doenitz now can keep as many U-boats as previously at battle positions on a regular basis. These, too, must be run by increasingly inexperienced crews.

In addition, the U-boat has been eased from the Nazi propaganda stream — in favor of "secret weapons," it appears. It has been reported reliably that German submarine construction has been deprived of its former top priority rating.

The joint statement of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt issued here and in Washington, said use of bases in the Azores, allowed by Portugal under an ancient treaty with Britain, contributed greatly to the month's success in the anti-submarine war.

They called this success "notable" because the Germans had exerted "great effort" and had employed long-range aircraft to spot convoys and aid in concentrating U-boats against them.

"In spite of this our escort and counter-attack has been effective," it was added.

Kitchen, Shed Bloomfield Home Gutted by Fire

Picton, Dec. 10—Fire gutted the large kitchen and woodshed at the home of S. Edgar Masten, Bloomfield, early Thursday morning. Most of the contents were removed and the flames were prevented from spreading to the main portion of the large house by a brick wall. Picton fire brigade and the R.A.F. fire truck responded to the call, water being pumped from a nearby creek. A large pile of wood was burned. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Walmsley, Mrs. T. Hucks, Mrs. E. S. Theaker and Miss Eleanor Holmes.

Home After Service

After a year's service overseas during which he saw action in Sicily and Italy as a naval commando, AB. Donald Kemsley has arrived back in America. He expects to spend Christmas with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kemsley.

Letters from local soldiers in Italy state they have received and put up ribbons of "The Africa Star." These have a sand background for a desert red stripe in the middle with dark and light blue stripes on either side for navy and air force.

Want Increased Price

Tomato growers of the district are seeking an increased price per ton for next season. It is pointed out that production costs have increased in regards to plants, trucking, labor, crates and fertilizers. Reports from districts in Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Durham, Northumberland counties, indicate that unless the price is increased, acreage will be cut as much as 33 per cent next year.

ISLAND OF NAURU

ese from the Huon Peninsula, potential jumping off place for the invasion of New Britain, have captured the important strong point of Wareo.

The triumph was achieved by Australians who thus blasted the enemy from their hub of supply and defence lines in the New Guinea jungles 12 miles northwest of coastal Finschhafen.

At the same time, Allied airmen struggled through bad weather to keep up their raids on New Britain, which already has felt the explosive effect of more than 1,300 tons of bombs in the past two weeks.

New Britain, 70 miles across the Vitiaz Straits from Allied forces on New Guinea, lies astride the sea lanes leading to the Philippines.

The capture of Wareo, announced today, permits the Allied forces in New Guinea to straighten their lines and continue their dogged fight to clear the Huon Peninsula for a possible New Britain invasion attempt.

Fareo is a steeply-sloped natural stronghold rising 1,000 feet from the jungle lowlands. Without stopping at Wareo, the Aussies pushed on northward and re-established contact with the retreating enemy. Other Allied forces moved northward along the coast from Bonga.

Snowball Hits Engineer Knocking Him Off Seat

Brockville, Dec. 10 — (CP) — A snowball yesterday tied up traffic for half an hour on the eastbound track of the Canadian National Railways main line here.

Soldiers in training were halted at a railway crossing while a freight train was pulling eastward up a long grade. A snowball, said to have been thrown by a soldier, struck the engineer, George Poirier of Brockville in the head, and he was stunned when knocked from his seat in the cab.

Railway officials reported to police that the train stalled on the grade and held up traffic moving toward Montreal for half an hour.

Partisans Take Town of Biograd After Hard Fight

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Hard-hitting Partisans of Marshal Josip Broz (Drug Tito) have captured the fortified town of Biograd, 15 miles southeast of the Croatian port of Zara and have clipped the Germans and their satellites for heavy losses in another thrust near Kremen in Serbia, a Yugoslav bulletin announced by radio today.

The communique admitted that the Partisans were still on the defensive in Bosnia, but claimed they have taken a heavy toll along the enemy's rail and supply lines in that province, killing more than 200 men in one action alone.

The German version of the fighting, as broadcast by the International Information Bureau, claimed the Nazis have occupied the town of Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, and were mopping up Partisan forces in Eastern Bosnia and Northern Croatia.

Another Nazi broadcast, this time from the Budapest radio, said the Germans had ordered a complete blackout for Zagreb, the croatian capital.

Tito's communique specifically detailed damage caused to strategic rail lines between Sarajevo and Doboj, from Tuzla to Zvornik and Kladanj and between Teslic and Doboj, in Eastern Bosnia.

MARAUDER OWL DEFIES TRAP, CHAIN

Galt, Dec. 10 — (CP) — A heavy steel trap, 18 inches of chain, four feet of wire and a two-foot stick failed to stop a marauding owl, blamed for recent disappearances of pet fowl in Victoria Park here. Not content merely to escape with the hardware, the giant owl swung into a dive-bomber attack on parks attendant Bob Stevenson before flying away.

GIBRALTAR EXPECTS VISIT FROM MARSHAL VOROSHILOV

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — The German-controlled Vichy radio, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters news agency, said today it had "learned from Gibraltar" that Soviet Marshal Klementi Y. Voroshilov was expected to visit Gibraltar in the near future. He later will go to Algiers and thence to the Italian front, the broadcast said. Voroshilov attended the Allied conference at Teheran with premier Stalin.

Voters Asked to Bring Records, Games, Books

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Persons voting in Toronto's New Year's Day municipal election again will be asked to bring gramophone records, games and books to the polling booths, it was announced last night. The sports service league and the citizens' committee for troops in training, sponsoring the drive, said 1,000,000 records are needed for members of the armed forces in Canada and overseas.

POWER DRIVE THROUGH ITALY!

by PETER STURSBERG

Peter Stursberg, of the CBC, was the first war correspondent to give the world a "sound picture" of the invasion of Europe. His broadcast of celebrations in the Sicilian town of Agira, after the Canadians took it, was heard throughout the British Empire and the United States.

Somewhere in Italy (by Cable)—War stories at best are hard to get. When a fast mechanized army is on the move, it is a job in itself to keep up with it. Fighting men must have priority, for theirs is the all-important job. Nevertheless, the newsmen, radio and press, have just got to make the grade somehow. Believe me it is no parade. It's an impressive sight to see hundreds of vehicles literally plowing their way to the front. Speeding through dust, rough country, bad roads, heat, noise and excitement. It is really a power drive that we're putting on. You almost have to wait till it's over to know what you've seen. I can tell you it was a great matter of pride to us, in our General Motors Oshawa-built utility truck, to be able to hold our own against all-comers. It was in a "Chevvy" that we brought back the world's first sound picture of fighting in Sicily. If the fellows back home who sweated to turn out these countless cars moving forward into tough engagements could only see the splendid product of their toil and skill fighting against rough conditions, they'd be just as proud as the lads who are in this scrap. We travelled for hundreds of miles over the rough, rocky roads of Sicily to the steep "Devil's Gap" of Italy. It is interesting to note that the song hit "Lily Marlene" was first recorded in our "Chevvy". But we nearly lost the truck and all when first we tried to record a close-up of "noise of battle". Our guns were going to pump forty thousand shells on a feature the Germans held, so we drove up steep brown hills where our batteries were parked in a dried-out stream. In the end the enemy was routed by our Infantry without a shell being fired and we were terribly disappointed with the loss of a fine recording. We weren't disappointed, however, with the breath-taking never-to-be-forgotten trip through Sicily and the toe of Italy in our trustworthy old "Chevvy".

• The main street of a town in Sicily, showing the infantry followed by mechanized equipment. Typical is the country in the background, with its rolling hills and the beautiful church, happily in good condition after the battle.

• Bulldozers came ashore right behind the landing parties and started levelling to form roads for the heavy trucks. Coming up behind the bulldozers from the beach is a long line of motor vehicles and in the distance can be seen the naval equipment and other boats.

● From Italy and Sicily, Peter Stursberg sends his eye-witness account of battle. Here, as in the other theatres of war, Canadian-built vehicles are doing their part in the fight for freedom. Men and women in the plants of General Motors of Canada feel a glow of pride as they hear of and see the results of their labour. From thousands of work benches here at General Motors, comes assurance that they will be kept rolling—'till Victory comes.

No Place Like Home

There is many a mighty river flowing onward to the sea,
With its waves a-flashing leaping in the wind,
But I know a little lakelet that is glorious company
And that brings a sense of solace to the mind.

There is many a road that wanders over mountains steep and high,
There are highways thronged with traffic night and day,
But a little road that dips and bends beneath a country sky
Has often lured my vagrant feet to stray.

There is many a princely mansion, there is many a stately hall,
Where towers and turrets in the sunshine gleam,
But a little country cottage is to me the best of all—
My little home of memories and dreams.

Hospitality Clubs Are Entertained At Mountain View

Featuring the soft and swing music of its "very own" station orchestra, the Drill Hall of Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School was the scene of a festive pre-Christmas occasion on Thursday night, when the Air Force personnel of the school entertained the girls of the Belleville Hospitality Club and St. Michael's Hospitality Club. The feeling that the Spirit of Yuletide was close approaching added warmth and gaiety to the atmosphere, and was ever present during the entire evening.

Hostesses for this excellently arranged affair were Mrs. M. Lyall, Miss Helen Fralick, Miss Alice Lazier and Miss Stewart Masson. A very capable and efficient Master of Ceremonies was found in the person of Sergeant Devine, who conducted several novelty dances which added to the fun of the "frolicers". Spot prizes were won by Miss Eleanor Johnson and LAC. Bob Collier and Miss Bertha O'Connor and LAC. John Stonehocker.

Flight Lieutenant E. J. Salter, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, in extending to everyone his warm wishes for the very merriest of Christmases and happiest of New Years, took the opportunity of expressing his thanks to the hostesses, to the girls of the hospitality clubs, to the lunch committee, to the orchestra and to all who contributed to the success of the evening.

Facial Grimaces Bring Lines

Leslie Brooks has a smooth lovely complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TIME DOES not ravage foreheads. Facial distortions, lifting the eyebrows, pulling the eyebrows together, are habits that put in tissue gullies. These are known as expression lines. But why express surprise at the cost of a creased forehead? Or frown when things go wrong? It is the woman with the calm nature who has the edge on facial pleatings.

There can be no sagging of forehead flesh; it is too close to the bone; it is a tight fit. If it loses its smooth surface it is because it is abused. Whenever you feel like glowering, don't do it. If angry passions rise, control them. They not only wreck facial loveliness, but they have a devastating effect upon the nervous system and the digestive motors.

Use Massage Cream.

Should it happen that forehead crinkles have crept upon you unawares, get a jar of heavy massage cream and iron the lines away. Group the four fingers of each hand, place them together in the centre of the forehead. As one group sweeps upward, the other sweeps down and both groups march from temple to temple.

To help erase frown lines; place the thumb at lower end, first finger at upper terminal. Hold the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb, lifting the flesh out of its grove. Finish with an ice friction.

Show a Smooth Forehead.

With the popularity of the pompadour, the smooth forehead is a necessity, if one is to make the good looks grade. It is surprising that the pulled back coiffure has flourished for so long a time. One sees bangs occasionally, usually on women who have worn them all their lives. They're piquant as all get out.

The Marry-Go-Round

Casual Reflections.

Alas, you spend half your life learning that there isn't any Santa Claus—and the other half wishing that you had all your foolish young illusions back!

Just now, the biggest problem for the unattached Lothario, is to make the girls fall for him and, at the same time, prevent one of them from landing him, before his furlough is up.

A girl is always making up her mind to give up sweets and go on a rigid diet, just as a man is always making up his mind to give up women and get married—SOME DAY. "Some day" is the "Manana".

A girl's love may be starved to death or frozen to death, but a man's love is nearly always chowed to death or talked to death.

Perhaps the reason why a girl keeps on asking a man to tell her that he loves her is because she has a subconscious conviction that if she can make him say it over often enough, he will come to believe it himself.

No bride really understands the man she has married until she has learned enough about his moods and digestion, to discover that his love is not necessarily dead just because his emotions seem to have gone into a coma.

How Gals Have Changed

"When lovely woman stoops to folly,
And finds too late that men betray"
She grabs her little automatic,
And "gets her man"—another way

Once jilted ladies pined with sorrow
And drenched in tears their grief and shame.
But, now, Don Juan, it's lead or law-suits.
Don't trifle with a modern dame!

The one thing that would make the girl of today blush, would be to have to confess that she has never been kissed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Money as Gifts to Service Men

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Three of my nephews, who are at a camp quite near our home, are coming to spend Christmas-Day with us (if all goes well with their plans!) They are all privates, and therefore don't have much spending money. My husband and I thought that perhaps it would be a good idea to give each of them a five-dollar bill, as well as the special presents we are planning to put on the Christmas tree for them. But it seems awkward (perhaps not even proper) to hand them this money. Have you a suggestion as to how we might make this gift more graceful?

Aunt Kate.

Money is certainly a great "desirable" on a soldier's Christmas list! Why not "dress up" the money-gift by enclosing it in one of the special gifts you're giving them? For example, in a bill-fold of military cloth, or even in a leather bill-fold stamped with the proper insignia, or in a money-belt, or give the money in a bill-fold and add a matching cigarette case or with a special message written on it. . . perhaps something like this "And here's a hint for you to buy something that will also say, 'Merry Christmas' to you!"

Announcing the New Baby.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—My husband is a sergeant in the Army. When we send out announcements of the birth of our baby, should the father's rank be put on these cards? For example, "Sgt. and Mrs. R. Smith announce. . . ."

2.—Is it proper to send these announcements to my husband's sisters and brothers?

N.M.

1.—If you and your husband especially wish to have the birth announcements worded in this formal way, the form you suggest is permissible. Recently I've seen several of this form with something-new-added. . . .the bright word "joyfully" before "announce. Like this:

Sergeant and Mrs. Robert Smith joyfully announce the birth of Jean December 1, 1943.

These may be engraved, printed, or written by hand on plain white cards. The spacing should be as suggested above, and the rank and first name should be written in full.

CARMEL Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Carmel Y.P.U. was held on December eighth, in the Carmel United Church. The meeting was opened with quiet music by Miss Hilda Howes. Rev. Trumpour led in prayer. Trumpour then took over the election of officers for the coming year. They are as follows:

President—Mr. Harold Howes.
Vice President—Mr. Earl Dafoe.
Secretary—Miss Ethel Fox.
Treasurer—Miss Marion Chambers.

Christian Mission—Miss Hilda Howes.
Christian Culture—Mr. James Fox.
Christian Citizenship—Mr. Douglas Shaw.

The War Today—
Hitler's Position Increasingly Grave Balkan Outlook Disturbs Satellites

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

There's a Chinese proverb that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount, which describes rather accurately Herr Hitler's increasingly dangerous effort to ride the untamable Balkans.

The Nazi all highest is in despair of keeping his seat, and he dare not let go, for fear of being torn to pieces. His position has become more and more grave with each passing hour since the Turks, in a manner of speaking, partook of honey and water in the Allied camp, thus making a traditional Balkan gesture of friendship which has further disturbed the Fuehrer's satellites.

Bulgaria, Germany's key ally on the peninsula, is reportedly veering further away from the Reich. Many people in Sofia, the capital, are said to expect their country to jump to the side of the United Nations if there's an Allied invasion of the Balkans with Turkish support.

Bulgaria Still at Peace With Russia.

Color is lent to this report by the fact that the Bulgarians, while theoretically at war with Britain and the United States, are still at peace with their fellow Slavs of Russia. This bond of race is strong. Indeed, another report has it that a Muscovite military mission is in the Bulgarian capital, and if that's true it speaks volumes.

If the Hitlerites lose their grip on the Balkans, this will uncover their southern flank facing the Red armies. Such a development would force the Germans to pull back their entire battle line in Russia until the right flank was west of the gateway into the Balkans. That would carry them at least to the line they occupied through the heart of Poland when Hitler knifed Russia in 1941.

Hitler Would Face Catastrophe.

If an Allied invasion of France should catch Hitler while he was in the midst of such a gigantic retreat, he would face catastrophe. It would quickly force him to his own forntiers, both east and west, for the final show-down. Such a situation might easily arise, the way things are moving now.

Brig.-Gen. Horace Sewell, British military expert, points out that the main object of German strategy is to keep the fighting as far away from the homeland as possible. That's why Hitler is pouring German lives so prodigally into the Russian war-mill — to delay retirement of his line as much as possible. That's why he now is straining to keep the Balkans in hand. That's why he has been clinging to his winter line through the mountains of Italy so doggedly.

BOMBER ATTACK

Berlin—Residential and commercial damage widespread. About 250,000 people fled the city early in September, in addition to an estimated 500,000 already temporarily living in the country outside the city.

Educational Requirements Of Prov. Discussed

The Army and Navy Veterans of Canada met for their monthly meeting in the Club Rooms in Memorial Hall on Thursday night at which time the members were addressed by Mayor Harry Rollins, who spoke on post-war planning and construction, and said that steps would be made in the council during 1944 that would fulfill many of the wishes of the citisens of Belleville. He stressed the importance of caution in spending the city's money, but that there was such a thing as too wise spending and too much caution, that does nothing but retard the progress of the city. He thanked all, who had supported him in the recent election and said that he was confident of the co-operation of the new council.

Speaks on Education

The principal speaker of the evening was Professor G. B. Langford of Toronto University, who spoke on the educational requirements of the province. He pointed out, that public school education in Ontario is anything but uniform throughout the province, that for years the system was the model for the other provinces of Canada, that Ontario was definitely setting the standard, but that conditions have changed and now other provinces, notably British Columbia, have taken the place of leadership. He said that every child is not given the same standard of education. In a city like Toronto, he said, the cost of educating a child for a year is $100.00. In many of the rural areas of Ontario the cost of educating a child for a year may be as low as $35.00. The great difference between $100 and $35.00 makes it obvious, that we have one educational standard for the cities and quite another for the country. Why should an educational handicap be placed on some of our children. Not only does it place them under a great handicap throughout life, but it often leaves them with a warped opinion of democracy and its much vaunted equality of opportunity. But not only are the children suffering, said Professor Langford, we are robbing the country of the advantage of their trained minds.

Inequalities Shown

Another inequality, said Professor Langford, is seen in the age at which children may stop attending school in Ontario. In the country a child can drop out, when he attains the ripe old age of 14 years, while in the cities he must continue until 16. I think, that we all understand the reasoning behind such a policy, but is it fair to the child to allow him to leave school after he has learned little more than the abc's and the multiplication tables? How about children, who quit school? Can we not by some means or other continue to train these children rather than let them be thrown on the labor market at such tender ages? If we want the best in the way of tradesmen we must train their minds as well as their muscles. Young boys and girls must be kept off the labor market until we have given them every possible advantage of mental and moral training. Then, not only will they be better at whatever job they undertake, but they will make better citizens and will lead fuller and more enjoyable lives.

Attendance Not Simple

"Inequality of opportunity is just as flagrant a fault in our High Schools and collegiates as it is elsewhere," said Professor Langford. Attendance at a high school is not as simple a matter for the country children as for city children. High schools are usually located in cities and towns and this means a long daily journey to and from school, or else the child must board in the town, an expense which many farmers cannot afford. The result is that many country children grow up in the understanding that attendance at a high school is beyond their means. A rather shocking state of affairs was disclosed by the army, when it was discovered, that in some rural areas 50 percent of the enlisted men have not passed high school entrance. In addition to these high schools and collegiates, most Ontario cities have technical high schools, where those students, who do not want to matriculate may receive special technical training, which fits them to take their places in the industrial and commercial life of the cities. But, he pointed out, there is no similar arrangement for the country boy or girl, who does not want to matriculate, but does want technical agricultural training. They should be given the opportunity of attending an agricultural high school. In Ontario today there are 56 technical or vocational high schools, but only 6 schools that specialize in agricultural training. For some unaccountable reason we have been educating the country child to take his or her place in the cities, but have done little to help them make the most of life in the country.

Repeating Process

During the last war, and for years after, one often used to hear it said that many of our potential leaders were left behind under the white crosses of France's battlefields. Today we are repeating the process and are burying the potential leaders of another generation. This is the inevitable price of war and we must be prepared to pay it, however, such a tragic loss makes it imperative, that we shall develop every potential leader in our coming generations. We must insure, that every young man and woman of intelligence and promise is educated to the limit of his and her ability. I have briefly outlined the outstanding faults in the organization and administration of the educational system in Ontario. I will not attempt to lay the blame for the present situation on any individual or any party, for we must be fair and honest. The existing condition has developed slowly over a period of years, and all political parties must share the responsibility in some degree. However, there is little, if anything, to be gained by looking backward for a scapegoat. Now that we realise the true situation, let us face forward and manfully tackle the problem.

Members were invited to ask questions of Professor Langford at the end of his talk and several took advantage of the opportunity. Several questions relating to the inequality of education he mentioned were brought out and answered by the speaker. The meeting adjourned at eleven-thirty after the professor had made a final reply to a question raised by a member. He said that there should be no change in the government of the country from the fundamental form of democracy until the men had returned from overseas, that they had left a democracy and should be entitled to return to a democracy and then, if they wanted it changed, let them have a voice in the matter.

Fans Attack Referee Maxwell After Katan and Watson Battle Full Hour to Draw Customers Think Arbiter Favored Katan Against Their Buddy, Watson

HANNIGAN PUT OUT

Pandemonium and bedlam broke at the Hume Arena last night when hundreds of irritated wrestling fans attacked Referee Bert Maxwell after "Whipper Billie" Watson and John Katan had wrestled a full hour to a draw in a British Empire heavyweight wrestling championship bout, that saw Watson retain his crown, but not before he was subject to the most unorthodox attack seen locally in grappling circles when even Maxwell seemed to favor the challenger.

Feelings ran high all during the title bout when a free-for-all fight broke out in the bull pen section of the Arena early, as patrons took sides, but the climax came when Referee Maxwell attempted to leave the ring after declaring a draw contest. Fans swarmed about and despite the efforts of police the Watson supporters attacked Maxwell in a body and administered a severe physical beating upon the arbiter before he was rescued and taken to the sanctity of his dressing room. However, several solid blows were landed on Maxwell's face and body and once he was knocked to the ground by irritated fans.

No Fall Registered

For sixty full minutes Katan and Watson battled it out without registering a fall, although on at least two occasions the ropes saved the Palermo villain when Watson had him well at his mercy with the appliance of his famed 'whipper hold'. Actually the final bell saved the challenger from defeat as Watson had him pinned when the sixty-minute gong sounded.

Katan opened strongly with unorthodox attacks on Watson and it was at this time that Referee Maxwell came into the picture as he failed to caution or halt Katan's illegal attacks with the result that fans were crowding the ring early in protest. On two occasions ringside fans attacked Katan physically and once the Palermo villain hit patrons as they ventured too close to the mat.

However, the tide of battle turned and Watson took the upper hand along about the 44 minute mark and had his challenger on the runway. Things became so bad Katan punched Maxwell and lo and behold if the referee didn't blame Watson. This naturally kindled the fans' irritated feelings to say the least. Katan tried a series of headlocks without success and Watson came back to throw Johnnie with a whip snap.

Katan Protects Maxwell

Palermo John became so disgusted with his lot that he sat in the corner on two occasions apparently wishing he was at home helping his wife wash the dishes, but Watson continued to be the aggressor until the end when it remained for Katan to have to protect Maxwell when the fans set upon him. All in all it was fun and next week Promoter Tunney hopes to give the fans real action with a "rough house" night.

Frankly Skipper Tunney could commence by getting a suitable opponent for "Hard-boiled" Hannigan, the rough Texan who kicked, choked and gouged both Referee Cliff Fox and his opponent THE CZAR, a behooded gent, until Fox finally disqualified Hannigan for his unorthodox ring tactics. Fox was the busiest man in the ring trying to pry Hannigan away from the masked one until his patience ran out and after "Hard-boiled" trussed up both his adversary and the referee, that was enough for Fox and the disqualification stood.

In the opening bout Mike Demitre and Pierre DeGlane staged a clean and rugged bout for 21 minutes before DeGlane won with a drop kick and press.

BUFFALO BISONS IN SECOND PLACE

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons moved into second place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League last night by defeating Providence Reds 5-3 for a third straight victory on home ice.

Art Giroux started the scoring for Reds at 4:20 in the first period, but their pace didn't last long. A minute later Eldred Kobussen tied the count for Buffalo. At 14:37 Maxie Bennett tallied to give Bisons the lead.

In the second period Dude Klein added another counter to the score for Bisons. Towards the end of the period winger Hec Pozzo scored unassisted for Reds.

Early in the third period Stan Kemp evened the count on a pass from Rolland Forget, but Providence slowed down for the remainder of the game. Fred Hunt scored on a pass from Maury Rimstad and a member of the Bisons' kid line—Walter Atanas—drove home the final goal several minutes later.

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP)—Winnipeg's well of hockey talent never seems to run dry and Manitoba officials now accept this miracle without surprise. For example, Winnipeg Rangers won the Canadian junior title last spring but enlistments and transfers left them with only three members of the title club, Bill Vickers, Joe Peterson and Ben Juzda. The three turned temperamental and wanted transfers to Winnipeg Monarchs, operating in the same league. Ordinarily loss of three such players would be a knock-out blow but Rangers took it in stride. President Art Chipman of Rangers said the club agreed to transfer of the three players "because obviously they wouldn't be much use to us if they're dissatisfied. Anyway we always seem to have replacements. The youngsters may not look good at the start of a season but by the play-offs competition and coaching have made good men out of them. Hockey players develop fast."

Western Counties Circuit Affiliates With the O.B.A.

(By The Canadian Press.)

Affiliation once more with the Ontario Baseball Association by the western counties circuit was announced last night at Chatham by President James Millman of the Western Association, the decision being the outcome of negotiations between several directors of his organization and W. J. Snyder of Hamilton, Secretary of the O.B.A. President Millman explained differences arose over the designation of zones for championship playdowns, the Western Counties Association having raised objection to what were considered unnecessary trips for post-schedule games without territorial arrangements for term entries.

The Chatham official stated there would be nothing to stop London from playing in the Inter County Baseball Association but, if London won the Inter County title it would have to meet other teams in the Western Ontario area before advancing into the O.B.A. playdowns. The same condition would apply, he said, to other clubs situated on the border line of western counties territory.

A three-horse spill in the eighth race at Charlestown, W. Va., yesterday resulted in the death of Joseph W. Pannell, apprentice jockey. His neck was broken when the boy was crushed under a pile-up. Two other riders, Ken Robertson and Vincent Bracciale, were slightly injured.

Brooklyn Crescents, new fourth member of the Eastern United States Hockey League, yesterday announced the signing of Tommy Dewar, late of the New York Rangers, as player-coach.

Bob Pastor, heavyweight contender now in the U.S. army, last night called off his scheduled 10-round bout with Gunnar Barlund, Finnish battler, at Denver, Colo., on the ground that he was not in proper fighting trim because of military duties.

President Hector Racine of Montreal Royals in the International Baseball League said last night Fresco Thompson would not be the team manager next season and nothing had been decided although he had seen a report Branch Rickey, Jr., might get the job.

Four Notre Dame and two Michigan players gained places on the 54th annual mythical all-American football team selected by Colliers Magazine, it was announced yesterday at New York. The backfield included Angelo Bertelli and Creighton Miller of the Irish, Robert Odell of Pennsylvania and William Daley of Michigan.

NATION'S RACING BETTING RECORDS ALL-TIME HIGH

Fifteen Tracks in U. S. Pass $710,779,432 Through the Mutuels

STATE REVENUE UP

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Nation's racing, which was being mourned as a casualty of war just a year ago, was a live enough "corpse" during 1943 to take a record-smashing financial ride into the stratosphere, with betting of nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Reports of the war-time dearth of racing were so greatly exaggerated as a matter of fact, that although four states were amputated from the scene during the year, and one other was cut to just a mere shadow of its former self, the 15 survivors kept the mutuel machines going with a grand total of $710,7799,432 in wages, compared to the $563,579,895 in 1942.

And with this ride on a dollar sign to new all-time highs—$147,199,537 more than the 1942 total—there was a corresponding boom in state revenue from the sport that New York Commissioner Herbert Bayard Swope says is also a big business. Spear-headed by New York's astonishing totals, the 15 operating states "cut in" for a fancy $32,534,480.30 in revenue from the turf. This bankroll was $7,847,102.59 more an the states' "end" in '42.

Although Illinois, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Michigan hit new "tops", and California came more than half-way back, to its gaudy pre-war days, the real gravy on the washed potatoes was provided by New York. "Two-Buck Bill," and his cousins, "Five-Buck" and "Ten-Buck" shoveled $284,635,711 in on the oat-burners during the 190-day Empire State season, not only skyrocketing some $110,000,000 over the 1942 total, but also netting the state's cash registers $19,050,692.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 10—(AP)— The directors of Madison Square Garden met in solemn session last week and decided not to purchase the Yankees . . . A lot of folks could decide that without holding a meeting as long as the price stands at $4,000,000 or so, but the garden directors' reason was that they didn't want to take on added problems of management at this time . . . Considering the garden record, it was a good idea. The arena's three big money makers are boxing, which failed to prosper from the time Tex Richard died until the promotion was "sublet" to Mike Jacobs; hockey, a sort of step-child handled by a virtually independent organization; and basketball, pet project of Ned Irish, who worked up to become active president on the strength of that game's success.

Wishing 'em Luke

While Luke Appling was busy winning the American League batting title for the White Sox last summer, he left a caretaker in charge of his Georgia farm . . . Along about midseason, the caretaker wrote asking what he should do about the neighborhood boys who persisted in invading his property to reach a favored fishing hole . . . Luke promptly wired back: "All right for kids to fish but don't let them know it. It would spoil their fun."

One-Minute Sports Page

Several Florida cities which never have entertained Major League Baseball clubs already are sending out feelers about getting them for Spring Training after the war . . . According to President Holcombe ward of the U. S. L. T. A., tennis has raised "no less than $10,000 and probably nearer $20,000" for the Red Cross through weekend tournament. . . Red Dutton estimates that at least 2,000,000 people listen to the Saturday night hockey broadcasts from Toronto . . . And probably all of them second-guess the referee.

Lose It

Two Scottish miners who had persistently lost money at the "dogs" decided it might be better policy to buy a greyhound.

They did so, but the hound was not filled with the proper spirit of urgency and repeatedly finished last.

Coming home one day, one of the owners said, "I think we'll throw the dug intae the Clyde."

"Naw," said his friend, "that's too cruel. We'll tak' aff the leash and run away from it!"

(Ain't it the truth.)

Commenting on our recent municipal election, Peterboro Sport Scribe Fred Craig has a lot of truth in the following comment: "Belleville electors had an opportunity at the municipal elections Monday to vote for two candidates for the council who are well known to Peterborough Central Ontario League baseball fans in the person of Harold Woodley, former league umpire, and Claude Tice who used to score for the Belleville club in its palmy days. Both were aspirants for the Belleville city council and Woodley who was an alderman last year was re-elected but Tice failed to make the grade. He ran on the strength of having reported the doings of the council for fifteen years but why a newspaper man who had watched the aldermen perform for that length of time ever wanted to be one will be a mystery to most members of the profession. However Belleville sportsmen lost a golden opportunity. If they had both Messrs. Woodley and Tice operating at once in the city council there would be nothing in the way of concessions to sport that would be denied. The rest of the boys would just naturally have to give the pair everything they wanted in self defence. They could run a two-man filibuster that would set a new record in that respect."

(Which hand?)

Credit Arthur Daly in the New York Times with the following:—"Frank Frisch missed the baseball meetings because he was on his way to the Aleutians to entertain the troops. But the Flash certainly was a topic of conversation, there being too many —tales about him to be forgotten easily. While the boys were chattering away, someone happened to mention that the funniest story of the year was the account of Umpire Beans Reardon's dawn pursuit of a thief on the train to St. Louis for the world series. That immediately brought to mind a remark Frisch made when he read the newspaper item of Beansie's exploit.

"Oh, boy!" chortled the Flash, "am I going to have fun with Beansie next season? The first time he thumbs me out of a game, I'm going to ask him—very politely, of course—'Pardon me, Beansie, but I'd like you to tell me one thing. Which hand are you using to toss me out, the one you hit the thief with or the one with which you held up your pajama pants?' "

The Reardon answer, when he hears that, will consist of equal parts of sulphur and vitriol. He will explode on the spot."

(Referee beaten up.)

Any person who tries to tell you Belleville wrestling fans don't take their favorite sport diversion seriously weren't at the Hume Arena last night when scores of patrons physically and pugnaciously attacked Refreee Bert Maxwell as he was leaving the ring after the main bout. Maxwell was punched and kicked around by an angry mob to sustain more physical punishment than any of the wrestlers of the night and sustained a cut lip and discolored optic as the result of the mellee. Actually Maxwell brought his troubles on his own shoulders for the manner in which he handled the main bout, when even Billie Watson was protesting. And it isn't too often "The Whip" squawks. However, the fans proved just how their feelings were and no doubt Maxwell will think twice before accepting another refereeing assignment in Belleville.

It was announced Promoter Tunney would be back with an all-star card to wind-up the season next Thursday. A popular bout would be to bring Hannigan (the three-minute hard-boiled egg) in against either big Earl McCready or Irish Jerry Monohan. At least it would be interesting.

(Remember when—)

Babe Dye, noted Canadian hockey and baseball player, was purchased by the Toronto Baseball club from Buffalo of the International League 18 years ago today. Like Goody Rosen and many other Toronto and Ontario baseball players Dye was never given a tumble by Toronto ball interests and had to make good south of the border. He also lead the N.H.L. —in scoring at one time, his deadly shot being one of the most accurate in the game.

(One-arm star)

Other sections may have their "Whizzer" Whites, but down in Oklahoma they swear by Ellis Jones of the Tulsa Hurricanes as a lineman. Jones is an outstanding gridiron player for two reasons—his capable performances and the fact that he overcame a handicap which would keep most youths out of football. A childhood accident resulted in an arm amputation at the shoulder, so Jones plays with only one arm. However, that one arm does double duty, for the Hurricane star is rated as an exceptional blocker and tackler, fast and rugged.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 249

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Leaping Lena system is the butt of many bridge jokes. It seems to remind you of cartoons about mountain goats jumping from crag to crag.

But the correct jump bids are not to be laughed at. Each kind of a jump has its serious purpose as a signal. And there is a clear difference between a one-jump and a double-jump.

Either a one-jump assist or a double-jump assist guarantees tricks enough to help make a game in that suit. But the one-jump shows greater sure trick strength.

An immediate one-jump assist not only promises tricks enough for a game in that suit. It also guarantees a holding of two sure tricks among those tricks.

On the other hand, an immediate double-jump assist promises only tricks enough to make a game. It denies having two sure tricks among those tricks.

What is the purpose of showing this difference? The one-jump admits the type of strength that could help make more than a game. The double-jump discourages partner from going beyond game.

Suppose your partner starts with an opening bid of one spade and you have this hand:

♠K 8 6 5 4 2
♥K 4
♦K 9 3
♣6 4

You have adequate support for spades and five tricks. With the five shown by your partner, you see ten tricks; enough for a game.

If you assist to two spades, it would not force partner to bid again. He might pass and your side would miss reaching a game.

If you one-jump assisted to three spades, you would guarantee two sure tricks with your five tricks. Partner might go beyond game.

But if your immediate response was a double-jump assist to four spades, partner could not be mistaken. He would know it was your limit.

Some players just jump to conclusions.

AT THE BELLE

George Formby

Fun, thrills and spills abound in George Formby's feature comedy "No Limit," one of two features now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Eric Portman and Ann Dvorak are united for the first time in RKO Radio's powerful drama "Squadron Leader X" the worthy co-feature attraction.

A colorful cartoon "Aristo Cat" completes the program.

Gracie Fields in "Holy Matrimony"

If you'd like to see a wild and Woolley-Fields day of fun and frolic—and who doesn't, these days—don't miss "Holy Matrimony," which is slated for the Belle Theatre this weekend.

For when he of the pointed beard and double-jointed tongue—Monty Woolley—gets together with that lovable lady of laughter and song—Gracie Fields—there's bound to be an uproar! And that's the way it is all through the new 20th Century-Fox comedy hit, according to advance reports.

As you might imagine from the title, Kid Cupid draws a bead on bewhiskered Monty, and before he knows it he's together with Gracie in a rose-covered cottage—with a laugh for every single shingle on the roof.

To Producer Nunnally Johnson goes the credit for much of the hilarity in the film, for in addition to the responsibility of filming the picture, he wrote the screen play from Arnold Bennett's famed "Buried Alive." And he made certain that the film was peopled by superior actors well known in Hollywood.

But perhaps the single most important factor in keeping the picture at the proper pitch is Gracie Fields, the famed English comedienne who brings to the screen much of the charm and buoyancy she exhibits in her nightly broadcasts. For those who haven't seen or heard her (as those who have will be the first to say) Gracie represents the finest kind of treat the screen can present. She is a perfect team-mate for Monty—and to say more would be superfluous.

The cast of the film is headed by gigantic Laird Cregar, and his verbal tussles with the irascible Woolley will bring chuckles to all. And in addition, there is a top-notch cast that includes Una O'Connor, Alan Mowbray, Melville Cooper and Franklin Pangborn—all among the top when it comes to getting laughs.

To John Stahl went the enviable job of directing "Holy Matrimony."

The veteran director has stacked the film with unusual situations and has maintained the hilarious pace throughout.

Paramount Canadian News, a colorfun cartoon "Night Life In the Army" and a timely and throughly entertaining screen miniature "Cargo Aboard" will be also exhibited. On Saturday matinee the fifth chapter of the "Batman" serial will be presented.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Frontier Fury"

Action, thrills, and pulse-pounding rhythms highlight Columbia's newest western drama, "Frontier Fury," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, Charles Starrett, America's foremost cowboy hero, is seen in the leading role.

"King of the Lumberjacks"

The added action thriller "King of The Lumberjacks" is your invitation to action, thrills, excitement, when they yell timber-r-r.

Tempers flare quickly and so does violence in a land of danger-filled forests and dangerous men. John Payne of musical fame has the leading role with Gloria Dickson and Stanley Fields.

A three stooges comedy entitled „Matrophony" and the 14th chapter of the thrilling serial "G-Men vs the Black Dragon" round out a big entertaining action bill.

"So Proudly We Hail"

Film fans are going to have a chance to feast their eyes on three of their favorite glamour girls simultaneously when Paramount's long-heralded "So Proudly We Hail" arrives next at the Capitol Theatre. Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake are co-starred in this truly moving picture about the romantic and heroic doings of a group of Army nurses who, side by side with their men, defended Bataan and Corregidor.

The presence of three such top-ranking feminine stars might suggest an absence of men in the film, but "So Proudly We Hail" has more than its quota of men and what's more, more than its quota of male virility and pulchritude in the persons of George Reeves and Sonny Tufts. Reeves a comparative unknown, and Tufts, a newcomer to the screen, give the kind of performances that critics say will immediately establish them as stars. According to those same critics, "So Proudly We Hail" is a picture not to be missed, so make a note of it.

AT THE BELLE — The lovable, laughable lady of a million hearts, Gracie Fields has a starring role opposite Monty Wooley, the gay blade with the rougish smile, in 20th. Century-Fox's hilarious new comedy "Holy Matrimony," featuring Laird Cregar, coming to the Belle this weekend.

Hospital Administrator Discusses Indigent Accounts Before C. Council

Question of indigent accounts at the Belleville General Hospital came up for discussion at county council on Thursday afternoon following the members being addressed by the hospital administrator Mr. Gordon Barclay. Following his talk Mr. Barclay presented to the council a number of old disputed accounts, the county share being slightly over $3,000.

"Regardless of what disposition is made of these accounts by the council, they are going to be closed this year," stated Mr. Barclay. "They are accounts receivable, which had been disputed prior to the time I became administrator and they will either have to be written off or paid."

Mr. Barclay assured councillors, that every effort was being made to collect outstanding hospital accounts before their being turned over to the county for payment and indicated that during the current year 257 suits were entered against persons owing accounts.

Forced to Sue

"I am convinced that suing these people is the only way to get them to pay, and until people realize that hospital bills must be paid, I intend to keep on suing", he stated. Mr. Barclay expressed his appreciation to the various council members for their co-operation regarding assistance in getting hospital accounts paid.

Digressing from indigent accounts, Mr. Barclay intimated to county council, that he fully expected before another year had elapsed some sort of a health insurance plan would be enacted, either federally or provincially. This would entail, he thought, a basic rate to be paid by every person entering the hospital, the rate being considerably more than that which is paid for indigent patients—$1.75 per day. The present indigent rate did not enable the hospital to make expenses, according to Mr. Barclay, and the difference had to be made up by persons occupying the more expensive rooms.

Nursing Home Saves Money.

The nursing home which had been established in Campbellford last spring for chronic hospital patients had proven very satisfactory according to the administrator. These chronic patients were being cared for at the rate of $1.25 per day, which was a saving for the county. Two chronic patients had recently been refused admission to the hospital, it being intimated such patients could not be admitted because of depleted hospital and nursing staffs.

Brief reference was made to the unfortunate condition which existed in the hospital last autumn when because of an outbreak of intestinal diarrhoea the maternity division of the hospital had to be closed for a period of 34 days. Following the clearing up of the trouble people had come back cautiously, but now everything was fine. The closing of the maternity division for the period had resulted in the hospital operating at a financial loss, however.

Mr. William Nickle, Reeve of Madoc, wanted to know if there was any regulation preventing indigent patients being admitted to the hospital, when their own country doctor had refused them. He indicated there should be some legislation preventing this.

"It all boils down to the one thing," returned Warden Lumb. "Should the medical health officer have the last say, or should he not."

Must Accept Referred Patients.

Mr. Barclay told councillors that if a medical practitioner says a person must go to the hospital he cannot be refused admission or the institution can be held responsible. "And in connection with indigent patients there is a great deal of work done by doctors for which they never receive any pay," he said. "It is against the law for any doctor to take pay for an indigent patient, and regulation permits the hospital charging the municipality only $1.75 for their care."

Appreciation to Mr. Barclay for his address to the council was expressed by William C. We[illegible] Reeve of Stirling, who moved a vote of thanks.

At the outset of the session councillors heard an appeal from Mr. Ed. McQuaid, employee of the local registry office, asking that a resolution be passed permitting the office surplus which ordinarily is turned over to the county to be paid back to the office to enable payment of a cost-of-living bonus. Considerable discussion was heard on the matter, the general opinion being the question was not for the council to decide as the Registry Office was a Provincial Government department. The matter was referred to the committee of the whole on ways and means.

C. H. Millard Says Judgment Defeats Purpose of Act

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) — C. H. Millard, chairman of the Canadian Committee of the Aluminum Workers of America (C.I.O.) in a statement last night concerning the decision of Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland in ordering certificates of the Employees' Council as collective bargaining agency at the Kingston, Ont., plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd., said the judgment defeats the purpose of the Ontario Collective Bargaining Act.

The statement said "the judge, expressing his opinion that the interests of the employees are well looked after by the Employees' Council, denies the rights of the employees to decide that question for themselves."

(In rendering judgment in Ontario Labor Court yesterday, Mr. Justice McFarland said he could not see what purpose would be served by a vote in the plant. The Aluminum Workers' Union had sought a vote.)

Legislation to Raise Wages of Non-Operating R.R. Workers, Clerks in U.S.

Washington, Dec. 10 — (AP) — Legislation to raise the pay of 1,100,000 railroad clerks and other non-operating workers in the United States went to the House of Representatives today, boosted along by an overwhelming Senate vote that amounted to a repudiation of the president's stabilization directors.

Headed by majority leader Barkley — whose office normally makes him the administration spokesman on the floor — the Senate voted 74 to four in favor of the eight-cent hourly wage hike late yesterday. If the House concurs the resolution will be sent to the president.

The vote came only two days after United States war mobilization director James F. Byrnes attacked the proposal as inflationary.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

The head was covered with tangled grey hair which fell untidily down both sides of the face. The nose was even redder than he had thought. Two cunning little eyes stared up at him.

"He ain't in", said an angry whine; and the nostrils of Sergeant Feathers were assailed by an alcoholic odor.

"You're Mr. Osborne's housekeeper?"

"Never mind who I am. He ain't in, I tell you".

She made a move to close the door, but Sergeant Feathers prevented her by shoving out a large, efficient, policeman's foot.

"If it's the gas", snapped the woman, "he said he'd settle next week".

"It isn't the gas".

"If it's taxes—"

It's not taxes either", growled Feathers, flashing his badge by opening his coat.

At that, she opened the door wider and came out with a smirk on her face.

"Oh", she said. "Oh! I thought you'd be comin' sooner or later. It's about the murder, or I miss my guess".

"Yes, it's about the murder. How did you know?"

"If I was a cop, and someone was croaked and Simon Osborne was in the neighborhood when it happened, I'd want to know what he was up to at the time".

"But he wasn't near Lakelawn at the time of the murder. He came back to New York that day by an early train".

"Says you".

"Well, didn't he?"

"I'll tell the world he didn't. At any rate, he didn't show his face here until Monday, which was two days later".

A wave of jubilation swept Sergeant Feathers. This was his first big chance and things were shaping well for him. If it should turn out that Simon Osborne were guilty, there would certainly be promotion in store for the clever officer who unmasked him.

"You're sure of that? He couldn't have returned without you knowing it?"

"Not a chance, young feller".

"He might have been in New York and not come home".

"Not him. Where would be get the money to sleep anywhere else for two nights? He's always broke. Take it from me, Monday morning was when he came home. I stepped out for a drink at eleven and ran into him".

"Your name, please?" said Feathers, producing a notebook.

"Cissy Glott".

"You'll hear more of this later, Miss Glott."

"Mrs. Glott", she corrected him sharply, and added: "You keep after him, young feller, he's the man you want".

"You sound as though you'd be glad if he were hung".

"I wouldn't shed no tears, you can bet your life on that. The fuss he makes if I take a drop of whisky for my rheumatism! Simon Osborne is one mean one, you can be sure! You can hang him and welcome!"

"Have you any idea when he'll be home?"

"He'll be home when the bars close, if he can walk. Goo' night!"

Sergeant Feathers walked away, determined to return later and interview Simon Osborne even if it meant missing his last train home, but when he rounded the corner into the next street he heard someone shouting: "Mr. Osborne! Hi! I want a word with you!"

Stopping short, Feathers turned and saw a hatless man run out of a cigar store and hurry after a middle-aged individual who was heading straight for a bar on the nearest corner. The middle-aged individual was apparently oblivious to the shouts, for he went on with a nonchalant air. When the man from the cigar store caught up with him and grabbed his arm, he looked round with a start and a broad smile creased his face.

"My dear fellow! This is a pleasant surprise. I've been meaning for days to drop in on you. How are you? And your wife? Don't tell me she's still got that old bronchial trouble?"

"Look here, Mr. Osborne!" said the exasperated storekeeper, "I want my money. It's over a year—"

"My dear fellow", replied Simon soothingly, "I'm terribly sorry. In strict confidence, as one of my old and valued friends, I'll tell you the candid truth—"

"You've been telling me the candid truth for twelve months and I still haven't got my money. I don't want any more of your stalling. Do I get my money or don't I?"

"You embarrass me", said Simon, shutting his eyes as though in pain.

"Never mind that. Do I—"

"I'll be frank with you", said Simon. "It's like this——"

The rest escaped Feathers, for Simon lowered his voice to a confidential whisper. The storekeeper reluctantly retraced his steps—having obtained no satisfaction—and his shameless debtor, with a bland and princely air, continued in the direction of the bar. Sergeant Feathers touched his shoulder as he reached out to open the door.

"Mr. Simon Osborne?"

Before replying, Simon eyed him from head to foot. Not to be outdone, Feathers returned the appraising glance.

Simon frowned. "You don't look like a process server", he said.

"I'm not. I'm a police sergeant".

"Some of my best friends are cops", said Simon cordially, shaking his hand warmly. "Charmed to meet you. I am about to drop into Rooney's for just a sifter. Won't you join me?"

Sergeant Feathers hesitated. He was an abstemious young man, almost a teetotaller, and he knew that it was not ethical for an officer to drink with a man he might later arrest. On the other hand, was it not likely that in the disarmingly cosy atmosphere of Rooney's Tavern, and under the influence of drink, Simon Osborne might let slip some vital information which at a more business-like interview he would not dream of divulging?

"Thanks", he said, "don't mind if I do".

They passed through the door of Rooney's together.

"Scotch for me", ordered Simon jovially. "What'll you have?"

A good start, thought Sergeant Feathers. He knew what Scotch could do. Under the influence of only two Scotches at a New Year's party some years before, he had kissed all the girls, insulted all the men, and insisted on telling his life story to everyone, whether they wanted to hear it or not. The more Scotches Simon Osborne drank, the better for a certain bright young officer's promotion!

"What'll you have"? repeated Simon. "Whisky? No? Then why not try a 'stinger'?"

"A 'stinger'?" said Feathers doubtfully. "What's that? Never heard of it".

"Oh, it's a sort of cocktail. Very pleasant, they tell me. Never touch it myself .Too mild for me".

A sort of cocktail. . .It sounded harmless enough. Women drank cocktails. Yes, Feathers decided, a 'stinger' would suit him admirably. He would spin it out, make it last a long, long time. He would need a clear head to steer Simon Osborne's unguarded tongue in the right direction when it had been lubricated by several Scotches.

While the bartender was pouring the drinks, Feathers took stock of his surroundings. They were in a small travern that radiated solid, old-fashioned comfort. The bartender had a rosy, round face and a way with bottles that was enchanting to watch.

"I've had a few words with your housekeeper", Feathers remarked casually, watching Simon's face out of the corner of his eye.

"Have you, indeed?" said Simon equably. "Drunken old sloven", he added, draining his drink at a gulp. "Two more, Mike", he said to the bartender. "You don't want to pay any attention to what he says young man. I never do. It's been my experience that you never get the truth out of habitual drunkards. It's a wonder the woman can speak at all. She drinks like nobody's business. Spends her whole life in a semi-coma.

"I went down to Lakelawn, leaving behind an almost full case of Scotch. Silly of me, knowing what she is, but I have to order it by the case, my boy; they won't supply single bottles on credit. Would you believe it?—when I returned there wasn't a drop left! She downed it all! Must have been blotto half the time".

"Drink up" my boy", he added, "you're fallin' behind".

Feathers looked down and saw three 'stingers' lined up in front of him. Knowing Simon, the bartender had filled the elderly man's glass as soon as it was emptied and each time he had shaken a 'stinger' for Sergeant Feathers. With the benevolent eyes of Simon upon him, Feathers gulped down one drink and took a cautious sip at another.

The door opened and several people came in at once. They all knew Simon and greeted him familiarly: "Hello, Gran'paw, How's every little thing?"

"Well, you old soak, you; still dodging the heebie-jeebies?"

"How's the bookie's friend? Lucky I didn't put my shirt on that nag in the fifth like you told me, or I'd be walking 'round in a barrel tonight!"

They crowded the far end of the bar and Simon turned toward them, exchanging backchat amiably.

Feathers felt out of it. He took another sip—a long one—from his second glass and tugged Simon's sleeve. Simon turned his head. "Yes, my boy?"

"Er. . . .what'll you have?" Feathers thundered.

The flow of banter ceased and all the faces at the end of the bar turned in the stranger's direction. Feathers felt disconcerted by this joint scrutiny, but the faces relaxed in smiles, and one or two of them thanked him warmly. He did not understand for what they were thanking him until the bartender arrayed half-a-dozen foaming glasses and a double Scotch in a line, and, looking pleasantly at Feathers, said that would be a dollar and ten cents, A little dazed by this general acceptance of his loud invitation to Simon, he paid and relapsed into silence.

"Moochers!" said a doleful voice in his ear. "Born moochers, all of 'em".

Feathers looked round and saw a lugubrious little man in a dusty derby hat standing at his elbow. He had come in a split second too late to avail himself of the Sergeant's unintentional hospitality.

"Free drinks, that's all they think of", said the newcomer sadly. "You can hardly take a deep breath without half of 'em saying "Thanks, I don't mind if I do'. Cadgers, that's what they are. I'm not like that, thank Heaven", he said, his gloomy eyes fixed steadily on Feather's face. "I believe in waiting till I'm asked".

They looked into each other's eyes. There was a long silence, then—

"What's yours?" asked Feathers weakly.

"Well, now, that's very kind of you. I'll have a shot of rye, since you're so kind as to invite me".

"Sam, my boy", said Simon genially, patting the Sergeant on the back. "I want you to meet some dear old pals of mine. Joe, Bill, George, Harry; meet my good friend Sam. And last but not least, Sam, my boy, allow me to present you to Miss Dolly Deane, one of the brightest ornaments of the vaudeville stage".

Dolly Deane was a large woman with a may-western expanse of bosom, a good-natured face, and a piled-up mass of hennaed hair. She squeezed Feather's hand and did bewildering things with her eyes.

"Don't pay no attention to Gran'paw", she said huskily. "It's been a few years since I was on the boards—although I can still kick with the best of them".

"And an enchanting kick it is, too", declared Simon. "You can take my word for that, Sam, my boy".

"Enough of that, now", responded Miss Deane coyly. "What are you drinking, Sam? It's my round".

"Not for me, thanks", said the Sergeant awkwardly. "I've still got a full one".

"Naughty! Naughty! Mustn't fall behind. Drink it up, dearie, and have one with Dolly. Down the hatch! That's right.

The party gravitated to a table at the rear and Feathers found himself seated in intimate proximity to Dolly Deane.

"Don't listen to a word he says, Dolly", cried Simon, from the other side of the table. "He's a heart breaker".

"Is that true?" asked Dolly, smuggling closer. "I'll bet it is. I'll bet you've a devil with the girls. Oh, you needn't tell me. I know. A man with a dimple in his chin is never to be trusted".

Feathers giggled. He took another drink from his glass, which he had emptied a moment before, but which was now miraculously full again.

"Well, it's a short life and a merry one", said Dolly comfortably. "If I were ten years younger I'd go for you myself".

She began whispering in his ear and Feathers shook with laughter. He couldn't hear a word she was saying, but it tickled. Three drinks later, Dolly read the Sergeant's hand, declaring herself shocked at what she saw there, and then he pretended to read hers, and warned her to beware of a tall man with a dimple in his chin. After another drink they frankly held hands and Dolly began to sing in a husky soprano.

"Hey!" protested Mike the bartender. "Pipe down, Dolly! You know the cop on the beat's got it in for the boss".

"Go on with you Mike, we're only having a bit of fun", she protested again breaking into a raucous torch song.

The stern face of the proprietor appeared at a rear door.

"That's enough of that. You're no canary. If you want to sing, go outside."

"Gawn, Sourpuss!" retorted Dolly, hiccoughing .

There was a burst of laughter and the face withdrew.

"Don't pay no attention to him, Dolly", said one of the men. "He's only the boss".

"What's the world coming to if we can't have a bit of a song when we're happy?" queried Dolly.

Feathers giggled again. This was fun. He liked it "'Nother lil' drink won't do us any harm", he chanted, burying his nose in his glass. He looked about him expansively and was grieved to find that the party was becoming subdued. It needed livening. Then he lifted up his wall-shaking voice in song.

Soon the proprietor'se face scowled at them once more.

"I won't speak to you again", he declared ominously.

Feathers wavered over to the bar and put his glass down after three perilous attempts.

"Drinsh all roun'," he mumbled.

"You've had enough", said the bartender good-naturedly. "I would not have any more, if I were you".

"He was her man", sang Feathers, in a wobbly tenor, "but he done her wrong . . ."

The proprietor appeared with his sleeves rolled up.

"I warned you", he said.

Feathers felt himself rushing forward under the propulsion of a large hand on his neck and soon he collided with a lamppost at the edge of the pavement outside. The door swung to behind him; he was left alone in the dark. He clenched his fists.

"Oh", he muttered, "Oh! So he wants to fight!"

Feathers staggered towards the tavern door, swinging his fists, but before he reached it, the fight drained out of him; he felt weak and tired. Wobbling to the lamppost, he wrapped both arms about it and was very sick.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop and he went in the hat store on the Avenue to get himself a new hat to surprise ma on account of her having been reminding him so long about needing one, and he went out of the store wearing the new one and carrying the old one in a bag, and after a while he said, I seem to be attracting quite a number of admiring glances, can it be possible that I'm even handsomer than usual in this new hat?

G wizzickers, pop, holey smokes, no wonder, I said. The man forgot to take the price tag off. There's a big ticket right in front marked $7. Good night, pop, take it off, I said, and pop said, Why should I? Am I a man who cringes at the dictates of public opinion? If I dont beat my wife it's because it's my nature not to, and not because I'm afraid her yells will shock the naybors. If I buy war bonds it's because I regard my country as my best friend and not because my conscience had taken advantage of modern science to attack me over the radio. So if there's a price ticket on my hat, let it stay there till I get good and ready to remove it, and public opinion be hanged, he said.

The result being people kept on looking, making me kind of embarrassed but not pop, and 2 beauty looking girls started to go passed, both dressed just a same way and having the same kind of yellow hair making them look like twins and proud of it, and they looked at pop and started to giggle, one saying, Some people apparently dont think they're funny enough looking by nature.

G, pop, you're blushing, I said, and pop said, Nonsense, what you see is a flush of righteous pride at my own philosophical self control, and now that I have with quiet amusement ignored a sufficient number of peering pedestrians, I will remove the price tag from my hat.

Which he did, proving people feel better when they make up their own reasons.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

JOHN HOLSEY
(Foxboro.)

Marmora, Dec. 10.—The death occurred in Nichols Hospital, Peterborough, on Friday, December 3rd, of John Holsey, a former highly esteemed resident of Marmora, in his 96th year. He first came to Marmora about thirty-five years ago.

The late Mr. Holsey was born in Hillerstone, Norfolk County, England, in 1847, where he learned his trade as a miller and became an expert when flour was ground with millstones. He was married to Elizabeth Patrick, also of Norfolk County, and a few years later with a small family came to Canada and settled at Glenora.

From Glenora, they moved to Woodrow's Corners and in 1881 moved to Consecon. They also resided at Stirling and Glen Miller for a time before coming to Marmora. At Glen Miller they lost most of their household effects in a very bad flood which swept through the Trent Valley at that time.

During the years Mr. Holsey lived in Marmora, he made many friends and was held in high esteem. He was a great reader and took a keen interest in world events. He was of a very friendly and kindly disposition.

After leaving Marmora, they moved to Tweed, where Mrs. Holsey predeceased him twenty years ago. At the age of 74 he retired from the milling business and had since lived with his daughters, Mrs. D. Longwell and Mrs. Joseph Wadell, of Foxboro. Most of his summers were spent in Marmora with his daughter, Mrs. Archie Jones. Another daughter, Mrs. Brooks (Violet), resides in Peterborough. One son lives in Trenton and another in the West.

The funeral was held on Monday, service being conducted in Comstock Burial Parlors, Peterborough, and interment was made in Stirling Cemetery.

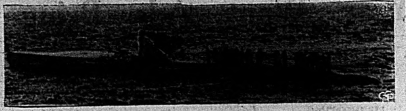
BRITISH GUNS SEND U-BOAT TO BOTTOM



Another U-boat, of Hitler's fast diminishing underseas craft, had the misfortune of being spotted by the British corvette, H.M.S. Starwort, and other British craft on the Atlantic recently. The Nazi sub was brought to the top by depth charges and then promptly sent to Davy Jones' locker by fire from the heavy guns. In the photo Nazi crewmen line the deck of the sub after she was brought up. A few minutes later they dove overboard to be picked up.

Washington Spotlight

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 10. (CP)—Almost frantic appeals have been issuing from important agencies of the United States government in the last month for conservation of paper, curtailment of its use and salvage of the used product.

Yet tons of good paper is poured out of government publicity agencies every day—and from publicity agencies for every organization that feels the need of public support and interest—in such volume that probably not one recipient in a thousand reads it all.

"The war needs for paper and paper board are greater than our present ability to produce", James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization, said recently.

He was talking of paper which goes into the manufacture of containers for ammunition, aircraft and parachute flares, rations, blood plasma, medicine and other vital front-line necessities.

Plants making these articles from waste paper are being forced to cease operations or work single shifts because the waste is not coming in.

One reason may be that many people in Washington at any rate, remembering last winter's fuel shortage and high prices for firewood, soak their old newspapers and roll them into tight logs which, when they have dried, serve the purpose of fireplace fuel.

In some basements these paper "logs" are piled like cordwood.

Canadian Embassy: Dial Dectaur 1011 and the operator still answers "Canadian Legation". The brass name-plate on 1746 Massachusetts Ave., has not been changed. This is because Leighton McCarthy, Canadian Minister who was promoted to an ambassadorship on Armistice Day, has not had an opportunity to present his credentials to President Roosevelt for reasons now known to all the world.

Keeping secrets: Ever since Nov. 12 it was known to Washington correspondents that F.D.R. was heading east for a meeting with Churchill, Stalin, et al, but they scarcely mentioned it even to each other. Elmer Davis, information chief here, has taken an awful drubbing because the news broke elsewhere. And Isolationists now are arguing that this proves the United States should keep out of European entanglements because in that Arena, they cannot even hold their own in their own game—publicity.

Canadians Enhance Their Prestige As Fighting Men

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — The year 1943 saw soldiers of Canada's overseas army take their place in the Allied battle line and campaign from summer to winter along dust-choked roads of Sicily and muddy mountain passes of Italy.

It has been a year of triumph for the 1st Canadian Infantry Division and the 1st Canadian Army Tank Brigade — two formations which sailed in the tremendous invasion armada which struck at Sicily in the dawn hours of July 10.

Those Canadians, joining the 8th Army and making a detour on the road to Berlin by first taking the road to Rome, proved their fighting ability beyond all question in bitter battle in central Sicily and up the spine of Italy. They proved, too, in the long grinds through the mountains that they had Spartan endurance and could meet the tests of heartbreaking campaigns.

The performance of these troops won the confidence and praise of veteran British soldiers and Americans who know the trials that faced formations going into the line for the first time after a long period of training. In the central Mediterranean theatre, Generals Dwight D. Eisenhower, Sir Harold Alexander and Sir Bernard Montgomery all had encouraging words for the Canadians. They liked them for the way they carried out their battle tasks.

Had Good Training

For Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton the performance of his Canadian formations provided abundant evidence that the training in England had been properly directed and carried out. Careful planning, shrewd forecasting and good leadership in this training found its reward in successes in hard battles like Leanforte, Agira and Nissoria and in overwhelmingly successful combined operations landings at Pachino and Reggio.

The Sicilian campaign gave a Canadian major-general, Guy Granville Simonds, his big opportunity and the commander of the "Red Patch" division emerged as one of the outstanding divisional leaders of the campaign.

The Canadian formations went through intensive training and preparations for the Sicilian campaign during the spring. Maj-Gen. Harry Salmon was commanding the division then and was to take it to the Mediterranean, but he was killed in an air crash while flying out to Algiers. Simonds succeeded him.

Large landing manoeuvres were carried out in Scotland during June in the final phase of training and in late June the expedition sailed with all its vehicles and equipment.

Massed off Sicily

Meanwhile an American infantry division, the 45th, sailed from New York for this long-range combined operation and British and American divisions were massing on the North African shore.

Several submarine attacks were the only thing that marred the voyage of the Canadians. On July 8-9 the various convoys met in the Tunis—Malta-Tripoli triangle and 2,500 ships and craft carrying the 8th and 7th armies got into position for the night run to Pachino peninsula and Gela.

From the start the Canadians had one success after another. For 30 days, from a practically-unopposed landing on July 10 until Aug. 7, they were constantly on the move, thrusting to Enna in central Sicily and then eastward to Mount Enna. They played the role the New Zealanders had in the desert — the "left hook" of the 8th Army.

Then, having made their valiant contribution to victory in Sicily, were taken out of the line to rest—and prepare for Italy. In the early morning of Sept. 3 the Canadians crossed the Messina straits, landing on beaches just north of Reggio. This was the invasion of Europe, achieved by the Canadian division and a British division with the support of 400 guns on the Sicilian shore.

The initial landing was a magnificent piece of deception which fooled the enemy completely. If the Germans had known there were only two divisions going in, they might have stayed in Calabria to fight.

Germans Pulled Out

There were two German divisions in the toe of Italy, but they pulled out rapidly ahead of the Canadian-British advance through the mountains. Demolitions covered the retreat and they got away to southern and central Italy practically intact.

As the two leading divisions of the 8th Army pushed northeast into Italy, the 5th British-American army landed at Salerno Bay. It was an unopposed landing and for days the decision hung in the balance. For a while it seemed the Germans would break through the bridgehead and throw the Allied force back into the sea. But the 8th Army was coming up fast. The 5th hung on determinedly and fought back yard by yard around Salerno Bay. Then the Canadians struck rapidly to Potenza, east of Salerno to relieve the 5th Army. British troops came up from Calabria too. Other British formations landed and pressed north from Taranto. Salerno Bay was saved and the 5th began its own advance to capture Naples.

The Canadians' part in this southern Italian campaign was considerable. They didn't fight any large actions but their skilful manoeuvre and rapid progress was a major consideration in the success of the operations in the south.

As the two armies slowly attacked north towards Rome, the Canadians remained in the central sector of the line, advancing through some of the worst terrain in Italy. They had become experienced front-line soldiers in six months' fighting.

Groups of Canadian officers and non-commissioned officers went out from England to serve attachments with the division and the tank brigade for experience. Others from the Mediterranean force returned to England to use their battle experience there.

Gained Experience

Prelude to Sicily and Italy for several hundred officers and non-commissioned officers was Tunisia. Last winter groups went to North Africa to serve with the 1st British Army and many saw hard fighting with the 78th Infantry Division and the 6th Armored Division which were in the line then. They gained valuable battle background.

During 1943 the major portion of the 1st Canadian Army remained in England, continuing its training, working out advanced military ideas and going through final adjustments before it campaigned. Army headquarters and Second Corps headquarters were built up. The army shared in the big manoeuvre in the spring and during the summer infantry and armored divisions speed up advanced training. One infantry division concentrated on combined operations and coastal assaults.

A number of staff changes were made during the year. When Simonds took over the 1st Division, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns was promoted from brigadier to command another infantry division. In August General McNaughton visited the Canadians in Sicily.

Pte. Doug May, of Kingston, was home over the weekend while settling up affairs in connection with his grocery business.

Elwood Haggerty of the R.C.A.F. and Mrs. Haggerty recently spent a few days with the former's mother.

Journalist Describes Scene in Leningrad, Nazi Shell Hits Train

Moscow, Dec. 10. (AP)—Nikolei Tikhonov, Leningrad's leading journalist, in a graphic story in the Army newspaper Red Star reminded his readers today that the northern city, although no longer an active front, is still the object of enemy shellfire and that people die there almost daily as a result of the war.

Tikhonov's article said in part:

"A loaded street car is struck by a large shell. Instantly it becomes a mass of blood, steel and wood splinters and smashed human bodies. Bodies are thrown all over the snowy cobblestones. Blood makes many pools until it is blotted up by the white snow. Here is a young girl prostrate with wide-open dead eyes. An aged worker with his neck almost torn off".

Christmas Bonuses Are Still Legal

OTTAWA, Dec. 10. (CP)—Christmas bonuses are still legal under the government's new wage control order—providing they do not exceed $25.

The order provides "no employer shall make any gratuitous payment or other gift of any kind whatsoever having a pecuniary value, other than a monetary Christmas gift not in excess of $25."

Employers who paid bonuses in excess of $25 prior to Nov. 15, 1941, may continue to do so, providing the current payment does not exceed the established bonus.

NORWEGIAN STUDENTS SENT TO CAMP SAYS NAZI-CENSORED MESSAGE

Stockholm, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Several hundred Norwegian students, arrested by Nazi occupation authorities Nov. 30 on charges of anti-German activity, sailed for Larvik, Norway, last night en route to German concentration camps, a Nazi-censored dispatch from Oslo said Thursday.

About 1,200 students and 20 professors were held originally for deportation, but Thursday's dispatch said it was not known exactly how many were aboard the vessels.

ALLIED AIRCRAFT ATTACK SOFIA IN FORCE
CANADIAN FORCES CAPTURE SAN LEONARDO

Bulgaria, Hungary Face a Showdown With Own Masses

Allies Drive Home Warning to Hitler's Balkan Satellites to Get Out of War

GREAT HAVOC WROUGHT

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 11 — (AP) — With a mighty air blow on Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, the Allies yesterday drove home a warning to Hitler's Balkan satellites to get out of the war amid mounting signs that the pro-Nazi Bulgarian and Hungarian governments faced a showdown with their own masses.

The heavy attack — the Sofia radio said waves of Allied planes dumped explosives for 105 minutes —came at the height of what appeared to be a Bulgarian government crisis. A few hours after the raid, it was announced that the parliament had recessed for a week, a move suggesting an attempt to stem growing demands for peace.

Causes Great Destruction.

The Sofia broadcast said the assault caused great destruction and killed many persons.

For the last two days, Dobri Bojilov, the pro-German Bulgarian Premier, has been trying to hold together his sagging regime after a vote of no confidence, and is taking over the foreign portfolio for himself after the minister resigned, it was said.

The Bulgars appeared to be caught in a whirling political and military mixup to which the country's relations with Russia, with whom she is not at war,-may be a key. In the opinion of foreign military experts the Bulgarian Army might oppose a Turkish invasion, but would be unreliable, even mutinous, if asked to fight the Russians.

Sofia in the past few days has gone to some lengths to publicize the fact that military attaches have been exchanged by Bulgaria and the Soviet Union.

Faces Growing Threat.

Dispatches from Stockholm, meanwhile, quoted persons familiar with Hungary as saying that satellite state has faced a growing threat of complete occupation by the Germans since the Teheran and Cairo conferences.

The Hungarian people and even the government were pictured as convinced that Germany had lost the war and that a "way out" for Hungary must be found soon. The most concrete evidence of that sentiment was said to be found in the co-operation of two parties — the Peasant, or small landowner, and the Social Democratic, representing the opinion of 85 to 90 per cent of the population. They are reported to be pressing hard for peace.

Reports of mounting tension in Rumania also continued to come in as that country faced the threat of the Red Army advancing in Southern Russia.

Members of the Bulgarian parliament, wrestling with an internal war nerves crisis a mile away from the principal railway target, were forced to abandon the session and seek cover, the broadcast went on.

Only two Allied planes were lost during yesterday's entire operations by Northwest Africa Air Force, a communique added.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Prices shifted over a narrow range in quiet trading today on the Toronto exchange and the close averaged about even with Friday's final level. Turnover was under 150,000 shares for the two-hour session.

Industrials posted a narrow margin of gains over losses. Bell Telephone and Brantford Cordage firmed a point.

Changes in the gold group were small. Gains of 2 to 5 cents came out for O'Brien, Pioneer, Sullivan, Kirkland Lake, Leitch, Perron and Wright-Hargreaves. Hollinger weakened 1-8 and McIntyre was up 3-4 to 58. Lake Shore added 1-4.

Waite-Amulet and Ventures were gainers in the base metal group against minor losses for Steep Rock and Sherritt.

War's No Fun Japanese Find

New York, Dec. 11 (CP).—Tokyo radio in a broadcast to Japanese areas today warned the Japanese people that "part of the enemy's aims of advancing against our mainland have been achieved" by striking toward the Marshall Islands and appealed for greater efforts on the home front to remedy a lack of planes and warships.

The broadcast, echoing the grave note in Premier Hideki Tojo's speech on Dec. 7, the anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, was recorded by United States government monitors.

The broadcast said the "war situation now is indeed grave for us" and appealed for patience and unity and a readiness to "sacrifice all" for the sake of victory.

"We cannot help but think," the broadcast said, "that our officers and men on the front lines are troubled many times for, though they have the spirit, it is regrettable that they are without weapons."

Citing "the enemy's abundance of material means, despite repeated defeat," the Tokyo radio said that "the battles in the south are now indeed battles against numerical strength" in places and warships. The broadcast admonished the Japanese people that "it is by no means a time for us to have our attention engrossed on the war results right before our eyes."

It added: "We must think of the future of the increasingly ghastly and bitter war situation without relaxing our spirit because of the greatness of the war results, and in order to make these war results more brilliant, we 100,000,000 people must exert our whole hearts and our whole efforts on increasing planes first of all, and then warships."

SEARCH FOR TABLETS

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 11 —(CP)— Det.-Cpl. R. L. Woodhouse of the R.C.M.P. revealed today that police in this district are searching for 400 heroin tablets stolen from the Essex County sanitorium.

Thefts of drugs have been on the increase in the past year due to their scarcity, it was indicated, and the quantity stolen from the sanitorium's dispensary would be worth about $1,000 if sold illegally.

RESUME ENGINE PRODUCTION

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 11 — (AP)— Production of aviation engines has been resumed at the five North Jersey plants of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, a company spokesman said today, after settlement of an unauthorized strike.

DECENTRALIZED GOV'T NEEDED SAYS J. BRACKEN

Leader of Progressive Conservatives Says Canada Also Needs "Rational Reforms"

HEARD IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, Dec. 11 — (CP) — John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, said in an address here last night that "national reforms" are needed in Canada, with decentralization of government, co-operation, expanded production and widening areas of trade.

Warning against "state socialism" he said that "if people are prepared to abandon themselves to the guidance of whomsoever promises most and demands least, they will sink into moral lethargy and be exploited by ruthless masters."

Mr. Bracken said that "state socialism" could not brook political opposition and that once in power it always moved swiftly towards dictatorship.

It was an "ironical paradox" that the Progressive Conservatives were striving to create a co-operative commonwealth, while most of those under the C.C.F. banner were advocating state socialism, and advocating it at a time "when 500,000 citizens of the British Empire have given their lives to destroy the horrible results which followed the creation of state socialism in Europe," said Mr. Bracken.

Speaking on the anniversary of his election as national leader at Winnipeg a year ago, Mr. Bracken said that the Progressive Conservative Party was not looking in the direction of dictatorship to raise the national income and bring a greater measure of security to the average home.

Wrong To Stir Up Hate.

His party believed it was wrong to stir up hate and discord and set class against class.

"We believe that the power of the state should be used to protect the weak against the strong," he said.

The alternatives to rational reforms as suggested by his party were "continued chaos, on the one hand, or regimentation on the other — chaos with its frustrations or regimentation with its deafening effect on the impulse to produce, its inevitable tendency towards dictatorship, and the certainty that all material increase will be skimmed off to nourish a growing bureaucracy."

Mr. Bracken said the government should be required to harmonize all the various community elements and fashion them into a co-operating society for the general betterment.

Labor should be fully organized, but if management were responsible for maximum employment, labor

RCA Officer, Wounded, Surrounded, Evacuates Troops, Crawls to Safety

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 8 — (Delayed —(CP Cable)—Bravery of a Canadian artillery officer who, although wounded and encircled by the Germans, evacuated his troops and then crawled 300 yards to safety, was cited tonight (Wednesday) by men of his battery as one of the individual highlights of their campaign in Italy.

Because he is a casualty, the officer's name cannot be disclosed until his next-of-kin is notified but fellow-gunners said: "He had more guts than all the rest of the Canadian Army put together."

L. Bdr. Ray Savage of Chatham, N.B., was with the captain who was attached to an infantry forward observation unit. Two other gunners on the same job have not yet returned to their unit although they are believed to be safe.

Enough Experiences to Last Lifetime

"This was a two-day job," said Savage as he summarized in five minutes enough hair-raising experiences to last a lifetime. "We were dug in the first night with some Seaforths and when we woke up the next morning we found ourselves 150 yards from the Germans.

"There was a steady advance during the day (Thursday) although we were under constant fire from shells and mortars. The Seaforths took 35 prisoners and killed seven Germans.

"We set up our observation post in a house that night and just got settled down when a guard told us the Jerries were coming. They made a perfect target in the moonlight. The guard told them to halt and they halted and closed up. All we had in the house were a Bren and a Tommy-gun and I emptied the Tommy-gun right into them.

"The captain told me to round up some more men. The first attempt I made to leave the house I was lighted up by a flare. I couldn't find any men so tried to get back, but there were a couple Jerries behind me and I went on.

"I heard someone running and got the thrill of my life when I found it was a Canadian. I joined up with some Seaforths and they told me the captain had been shot.

"That man had more guts than all the rest of the Canadian Army put together. Though wounded, he got all the men out before he got out himself.

"He crawled from the observation post to another house about 300 to 400 yards away and if he went the same way I did he must have had to cross open ground."

Despite his wounds the captain was evacuated safely and was reported recovering.

Five German U-Boats Destroyed, 3 Damaged In Attack on Convoy

London, Dec. 11 (CP).—Five German U-boats were destroyed and three others were damaged recently when a "strong concentration" of at least 20 of the underwater marauders sought to attack two valuable Allied convoys, the Admiralty and Air Ministry announced today.

The U-boats were prevented from "launching any concerted attack" and more than 99 per cent of the escorted ships reached port safely, the announcement said.

No fewer than 20 submarines were estimated to be in the vicinity of the convoys when the battle took place between the wolf pack and British naval forces and aircraft.

Mercury Sent Plunging Below Zero In Most Parts of the Province

Toronto, Dec. 11. (CP)—Strong winds and snow accompanied a sharp drop in temperature that sent the mercury plunging below zero today in most parts of Ontario.

About two inches of snow fell in northern areas, where the temperature plunged to 15 degrees below zero this morning at North Bay and Sudbury.

Indicative of the sharp drop was the official recording in Toronto, where the mercury plunged from a high yesterday of 40 degrees to a low of two degrees during the night.

At London temperatures tumbled 32 degrees last night to bring the first sample of real winter weather to the district. The temperature stood at eight degrees this morning.

The mercury was around nine below in Eastern Ontario.

One death attributed to the storm occurred in Hamilton when a man believed to be F. J. Anderson, 60, was instantly killed by a motorcar which failed to stop. No one witnessed the accident which occurred during the snowstorm and the man's body was found lying on the street.

Thirty planes from the R.C.A.F. station at Port Albert on the Lake Huron shore near Goderich were in the air when the wind came last night but all were believed to have landed safely at scattered points, including the Crumlin airport near London, and Centralia and Goderich.

Fishermen from eastern Lake Huron points were believed to have suffered a heavy loss in destruction of their nets and equipment.

The first real test of winter came to Galt on the wings of a gale of near blizzard proportions and the mercury dropped to four above. A blizzard also was developing around Kitchener where the temperature slid to two above for the lowest mark of the winter. There was a light snowfall.

Brantford and Woodstock reported light snowfalls with heavy winds at the latter point. Brockville experienced its initial winter blitz with strong north winds and a temperature of eight below with light, intermittent snow.

Bitter winds and a six-below temperature hit Kingston with light snow but an overnight blizzard which hit Stratford had blown out today.

ROOSEVELT GIVES DETAILED REPORT TO EISENHOWER

President Makes 48-Hour Stop-Over at Ancient Carthage

STRATEGY OUTLINED

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP) — President Roosevelt gave General Dwight D. Eisenhower a detailed, first-hand report on the Allies' newly completed victory strategy during a 48-hour stop-over at ancient Carthage on his trip home from Teheran and Cairo.

This was disclosed by the White House today in the latest of a series of dispatches from the presidential party belatedly telling of places Mr. Roosevelt visited on his historic journey.

General Eisenhower previously participated in some of the strategy discussions at Cairo but had not, however, joined in all the mapping of strategy, nor was he present at Teheran for the meeting with Marshal Stalin.

Major General E. Durno, former White House correspondent travelling with the president, reported in a dispatch released by the President's office here that "Mr. Roosevelt constructed a final and complete picture for Eisenhower at Carthage, apprising him of the myriad details agreed upon by the joint staff to make possible execution of the new overall strategy."

Durno laid stress at the outset upon the President's report to the General of "The grand Mediterranean strategy determined upon in collaboration with Prime Minister Churchill and the combined British-American staffs." An indication of further offensives in the Mediterranean area had come from Teheran in a communique reporting that Germany would be hit from the east, south and west.

Whether this will be under the direction of Gen. Eisenhower is not known.

The date of Mr. Roosevelt's visit to Carthage was not given. Dispatches from Valetta, Malta, yesterday disclosed he had visited that most-bombed island last Wednesday.

There was no comment here on London speculation that Mr. Roosevelt might visit the British capital.

Durno said the President and his party were travelling in three C-54 cargo planes protected by squadrons of fighter craft during the North Africa tour.

RED ARMY TROOPS RACE TO SLICE OFF DNIEPER BEND

Hammering Across Steppes Toward Krivoi Rog and Kirovograd

REVERSES AT KIEV

London, Dec. 11 (AP) — A German news agency broadcast today said Gen. Ivan Konev's 2nd. Ukrainian army has expanded its Cherkasy bridgehead in the great Dnieper bend and has driven into Cherkasy itself where "violent fighting is taking place in the town."

To the southeast, the Germans said, Soviet troops were making continuous attacks in heavy snowstorms in the area southwest of Kremenchug where the Soviets were hammering at the approaches of Krovoi Rog and Kirovograd.

Moscow admitted serious reverses, however, in the Kiev bulge 200 miles to the northwest, where massed German armor has driven Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces back to the area south of Malin, 30 miles east of Korozen and only 55 miles west of the great Ukrainian capital. German capture of Malin, on the Kiev-Korosten railway, would pose a difficult supply problem for Russian forces reported still fighting near Chernyakhov, 80 miles west of Kiev.

The fall of Znamenka, central rail junction for German supply in Dnieper bend, to the Konev's veterans after three days of man-killing fighting was announced last night. The Germans had dug their tanks into the ground and fought to the death, front dispatches reported.

Powerful Strongpoint.

In an order of the day, Premier Stalin described the city as "a powerful strongpoint" and "an important rail junction".

The Russians did not halt at Znamenka. Konev pushed one column on to take the town of Khirovka, junction of the Kirovograd and Smela rail lines a few miles to the northwest. Another column raced south and seized Chabanovka 50 miles north of Krivoi Rog, and Chechelevka, 10 miles further on.

Capture of Dolinovka, 20 miles still further south, would effectively outflank Krivoi Rog from the west.

The Red army advance was flowing inexorably along strategic rail lines and appeared to be threatening the entire German position in the Dnieper bend, where railways provide the only dependable supply routes.

R.A.F. MOSQUITOS ATTACK TARGETS IN W. GERMANY

Raids Follow Daylight Forays Against Enemy Transport Facilities in In N. W. Germany

ONLY TWO PLANES LOST

London, Dec. 11 (CP). — R.A.F. Mosquitos attacked objectives in Western Germany last night and returned without loss, an Air Ministry communique announced today.

The procession of bombers crossing the Straits of Dover last night followed daylight attacks by low-flying Mosquito bombers against enemy transport facilities in northwest Germany, during which two of the Mosquitos were lost.

Nazi planes, meanwhile, carried out a small attack against southeast England and a bomb dropped on the outskirts of London injured three people. R.A.F. and R.C.A.F night fighters shot down four of the raiders.

Three of these fell to P.O. R. D. Schultz, a lanky young pilot from Bashaw, Alta., whose night-fighting Mosquito plane was so badly damaged in the combats he had to make an emergency landing at a strange airfield.

The Mosquito attacks were directed yesterday against troops, railways, junctions, trains, barges, tugboats, trucks and planes. One pilot sent a shower of bombs into a column of German soldiers marching in double file and some of the Nazis he said, were blown 20 feet into the air. Earlier in the day coastal command planes destroyed a big Junkers-88 off the coast of Norway.

Resumption of the air offensive after days of poor weather came as the air ministry disclosed that aircraft production has reached such a level that plane losses, even at the exaggerated rate claimed by the Germans, would not halt the bombing offensive.

GUARD USES BELT TO ATTACK BULL

Chester, England —(CP)— Pte. G. Griffiths' Home Guard training came in handy when an infuriated bull charged down a side street here, endangering a number of children playing on the sidewalk. He stood his ground and attacked the bull with his belt, diverting its attention and enabling the children to escape. He was gored during the battle and had to be taken to the hospital.

New Hospital in England Will Treat Badly Burned and Injured Airmen

(Flt. Lt. Jack Calder, former Canadian Press Staff Writer, now an observer with the R.C.A.F., was seriously injured about the face and in one knee some time ago in an air crash. His injuries were treated at the plastic surgery and jaw injuries centre of the Queen Victoria Hospital at East Grinstead, Sussex. He has written this story now that the cure is almost complete.)

By Flt. Lt. Jack Calder, R.C.A.F.

East Grinstead, Sussex, Dec. 11. (CP)—The medical orderly swung the wheelchair down the drive and out towards the street. It was my first venture from ward three and as we moved from the shadows of the hospital buildings, I realized that circumstances can make even a wheelchair ride exciting—though it would require a strong imagination indeed to relate it to flying.

We had gone only a few yards and I was absorbing the warm sunlight when the orderly stopped and pointed to the field on our right

"That's where the Canadian wing is going to be", he said.

"Canadian wing?" I asked.

"Sure" he said.

Then I heard for the first time of plans for a hospital unit which will bring to badly burned and injured Canadian airmen the finest treatment that the miracles of modern surgery can offer.

It is to be a wing to the Queen Victoria Hospital at East Grinstead—an institution supported by voluntary contributions—in which many men of the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. already have been spared the tragedy of having to go through the remainder of life terribly scarred or maimed. It is being constructed at the same time, at the instigation of Air Marshal Harold Edwards, C.B., as a memorial of the people of the Dominion to all Canadian airmen who will have died in this war.

The potential value and reasons for the choice of site will not be obvious immediately to anyone unacquainted with some of the advances in plastic surgery achieved in this war.

A great majority of the servicemen who have come here, many of them all the way from the fronts in the Middle East have returned to active duty. None has gone away hopeless.

Before I was flown to the hospital its leading surgeons were flown 300 miles to make me fit to be transferred after six weeks here (the surgeons say I am a "freak" patient, while I attribute the swiftness of the healing to the surgeons) I felt more like an interested observer who had limped in than some one who owed his health to the miracle-workers of East Grinstead.

A main reason for centering the Canadian wing here, besides the fact it will grow side by side with the best British developments in plastic surgery, is the fact that the town has adopted the convalescence of men with scarred faces and injured limbs as an expected part of every-day life.

The cinemas, dance-halls and sporting facilities of the town and district are thrown open to them.

Fighting Reaches New Pitch on 8th Army's Coast Front

Second Bridgehead Established Over Moro River Despite Heavy Opposition

5TH ADVANCES

(By NOLAND NORGAARD)
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Algiers, Dec. 11 (AP) — Fighting reached a new pitch on the 8th. Army's front in Eastern Italy today but Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops, now spearheaded by the Canadians, captured the town of San Leonardo on the north side of the Moro River.

The daily communique said fierce fighting is in progress south of Ortona, a port four miles northwest of San Leonardo on the road to the important port of Pescara. The Germans threw tanks and infantry into a steady series of counter-attacks.

The communique also said "a second bridgehead had been established over the Moro River despite considerable opposition."

(The communique's reference to a "second bridgehead" was not immediately clarified. Allied headquarters dispatches last Tuesday said 8th. Army armor had crossed the Moro and reported yesterday that Canadian troops, driving up the Adriatic coast, has established a bridgehead, apparently the second thrust across this river. Today's communique seemed to indicate that Gen. Montgomery's men had been thrown back after first crossing the stream.)

Troops Slug Forward

Slugging forward through the mountains west of Filigmano in a drive on Cassino from the east, Lt. Gen. Mark Clark's 5th. Army troops have lunged forward one mile and gained an important height, headquarters announced.

Other 5th. Army troops driving for Cassino from the south from the Mignano area fought a fierce battle for the fortified village of San Pietro, seven miles southeast of Cassino and at the foot of the mountains previously gained.

Italian troops, fulfilling Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's promise that they would join the Allies in the drive to oust the Nazis from Italy, were thrown back by the Germans in their first engagement on the 5th. Army front. The Italians had advanced into the foothills north of Mignano, but they lost the ground to a counter attack by units of the Herman Goering armored division.

The new bridgehead across the Moro River was in the vicinity of Frisa, 4 1-2 miles inland from the Adriatic and was firmly secured at dawn yesterday after an all-night attack.

The Germans, in their furious counter-attack, made a vain effort to pinch out both the bridgeheads to give their engineers time to prepare new and deeper fortifications behind the river. One of these counter-thrusts was described at headquarters as a particularly heavy blow in the coastal region, but it succeeded only in slowing Gen. Montgomery's plodding advance.

British and German tanks were reported to have engaged in a crashing duel at Orsogna, key inland town on the road to Chieti. British tanks heavily shelled the Germans in the town, which has changed hands twice within a week, and the enemy tanks poured back a brisk fire.

The enemy stubbornly resisted the 5th Army in its battle toward the high ground west of Filignano and also made two separate counter-attacks to the south during a battle for ridges near San Pietro. They were aimed primarily at the new Allied positions on Monte Samucro, two miles north of the main road to Cassino and Rome, but both were driven back.

Italians Fight with Allies

Gen. Clark's headquarters reported that the Germans constructed strong pill boxes and many barbed wire entanglements around San Pietro and in many areas laid mortar and artillery fire against the newly won American and British positions.

The Italians, fighting in the same area alongside Americans, were beaten back by units of the Hermann Goering Division of German troops which had been brought back into the front lines.

(A Berlin broadcast said, "The attempt made by the Americans to send Badoglio troops into action results in part of these demoralized men going over to the German lines immediately while the rest fought without any energy.)

Allied fighters and fighter-bombers were out again in full strength to support the ground fighting.

FINNS DEBATE WAR TACTICS

Helsinki, Finland, Dec. 11 (AP)— A prolonged and heated debate in the Finnish parliament last night over the country's foreign policy brought an assertion from Chairman Vaino Voionmaa of the Foreign Affairs Committee that Finland was fighting only a "defensive war".

He made the statement in reply to criticism from certain circles which declared Finland should try to expand into East Karelia. Voionmaa also discussed peace possibilities and Yrjoe Schildt, Farmers Party Leader, commented that "not even the food situation compels us to partake in the war".

Government leaders have argued that Finland is dependent on Germany for food.

ELECTRIC SIGNS LOOSENED BY GALE

Friday night's sudden gale which scurried leaves and drove a light snow down streets in blizzard-like fashioned failed to have the usual reaction at the firehall, it was revealed this morning. As might have been expected not a single call was received during the gale as the result of chimney fires.

Firemen did not get through the night without being called out, however. The high gale loosened a couple of electric signs on Front Street, one at the corner of Front and Campbell and the other at Bill Cook's Cigar Store, and firemen were called to make things safe. One other call was on Friday afternoon to 27 Boswell Street where furnace pipes at the residence of Mr. Young got ablaze. No damage was reported by firemen.

This morning the official temperature at the pump house was three degrees below zero while unofficial reading about the as far as six degrees below for the as fa ras six degrees below for the coldest morning of the current season.

George B. Smith, H.E.P.C. Supt., Dies at Home

George B. Smith, electrical engineer and Superintendent of Eastern Division of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, died at his home, 75 Chatham Street, on Friday afternoon after an illness of about two weeks' duration.

To many friends in Belleville and elsewhere the death of Mr. Smith will bring much regret. He was well known to many citizens and was highly esteemed. In his profession as an electrical engineer he ranked high and by his associates in the service of the Ontario Hydro Commission he was held in high regard.

The late George Barnett Smith, who was in his 68th. year, was born in Wolverhampton, England, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith. For some time he resided in Montreal and Toronto and thirty-three years ago he came to live in Belleville. In religion he was a member of the Church of England and attended Christ Church. M.

Surviving him are three sons, Mr. Cedric M. Smith, Chatham, Ontario; Mr. Barnett J. Smith, Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, and Lieut. J. Oliver Smith, now serving with the 8th. army in Italy; one sister, Mrs. Fred Macklin, Kitchener, Ontario.

Davis of Maple Leaf was re-appointed president of the Hastings county Federation of Agriculture when the organization met in its annual meeting in Shire Hall during the recent session of county council. Discussion on the municipal canvass regarding feeling of residents toward levying on the tax rate to raise money for the operation of the federation was heard during the meeting as was a report of the recent Swine Producers convention in Toronto.

Other officers appointed to head the county federation for the coming year included Charles Rush of Stoco as 1st vice president; Seldon Homan of Corbyville as second vice president and Col. Roscoe Vanderwater as secretary treasurer. Directors appointed were Irwin McCoy, Marmora; Wilfred Spencer, Springbrook; Ronald Longwell, Frank Tummon and Allan Finkle of Foxboro.

Canvass of all the municipalities in the county regarding the levying on the tax rate for money to operate the federation have now either been completed or are planned, it was revealed at the meeting. Frank Woods, Sidney township assessor, stated that 30 canvassers have been working in the 19 school sections of the township.

Activities of the county Swine producers' association were discussed, it being decided to hold two meetings during the coming year, with the provincial president, Mr. McGinnis and the secretary, Mr. Bishop being scheduled to speak. Mr. Ernest Tummon gave a report of the Swine Producers convention held in Toronto. He, with George Thompson, Roy Bateman and William Sutherland were delegates to the meeting.

Bert Trestrail Discusses Significant Political Developments in Canada Before Combined City Service Clubs

Kiwanis, Rotary and Kinsmen Given Talk on Socialistic Trend in Canada

BERT TRESTRAIL, Toronto, who gave address here on Friday night.

"Individual Enterprise", was the subject of Mr. Bert Trestrail's talk to the combined dinner of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen Clubs of Belleville. "The time is coming soon when there is going to have to be a decision made one way or the other", said Mr. Trestrail as the highlight of his speech. "This decision is most important and will develop into a hard fight between that which has been and that which is proposed, the old line parties and the socialistic party. It is of major importance that we all be educated to know the difference between them and what socialism really means.

New Plans Developing.

Mr. Trestrail, as the originator of the "Payrolls Savings Plan" in the 2nd Victory Loan, has spoken to thousands of workers throughout the Dominion as well as the employers and businessmen and, in the course of hundreds of individual conversatioins, was permitted an insight into the opinions of both sides of the labor situation. "Although the new system of economics has not been completely established", Mr. Trestrail said, "the working plans are there and are being put into effect daily. It is known that there are intentions and worthwhile plans intended for the employee, and it is known by all concerned that these plans and these benefits are ultimately going to be given to these employees, therefore, I have advocated that this be bundled into a 'package' and given totally at one time.

The occasion of Mr. Trestrail's speech was the annual three-way meeting of the Belleville Service Clubs in the main dining room of the Hotel Quinte when the Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen Clubs of the city join in a luncheon to hear some prominent speaker and create a spirit of co-operation amongst the three organizations in their civic activities. The Kiwanis Club was the host to the two other clubs with Kiwanian President Bruce Lattimer as chairman. The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Jack Deacon and welcomed to the meeting by Kiwanian Jack McVeigh. A cheque for $50 was presented to the Kinsmen Club by President Bruce Lattimer on behalf of the Kiwanis as a contribution toward the Kinsmen Fag Fund. The cheque was accepted by Kinsmen Matt Currie who expressed the appreciation of his Club for the donation.

Payroll Savings

Mr. Bert Trestrail, an interesting and humorous speaker, put the three groups of businessmen at their ease by telling a number of anecdotes of a humorous nature before entering into the main topic of his talk. He said that the origination of his plan for payrolls savings was met with skepticism but that it proved itself on its very soundness and skepticism gave way to whole-hearted approval and incorporation. It was not the employees who were so much in doubt as to the feasibility of the plan as the employers, he said. There are now 280 firms in Toronto who have instituted this plan and are donating $500,000 a year to war charities and home front service. The employees have control of this money from the plan, he said.

At Cross-Roads

"We are coming to a time when we are at a cross-roads," said Mr. Trestrail. "In the next Federal election the result of our decision will decide our destiny politically, economically and socially for generations. It evolves upon us who have studied the situation to inform those who have been misled and to do everything within our power to point out the fallacies of any change in the present system of democracy which would hinder, in fact, retard progress for years to come. I believe that Canada is the greatest country in the world and has the greatest potentialities for expansion, and this opportunity must not be denied we who are living in Canada and vitally interested in its future. Straight economical thinking and planning and the correct attitude toward the relationship between employer and employee will effect this.

Must be Alert to Danger

For years businessmen have been more or less afraid to say anything about this condition, but the time has come when we must stand up and count those for it and those against it, the same as the various 'Isms' counted those for and against them. We must be alert to this danger which is creeping up on us. There are two combinations ranging from straight anarchism and communism who are, I believe, sincere, and on the other side the old school tie and die-hards, the 'dollar dynasty.' This old order is gone. There can be no denial that it has its faults, but now we must play the other fellow's game if we would protect the freedom and rights which we have struggled to attain for ourselves. By ourselves I mean both employer and employee."

Ballot Would Mean Nothing

"There is no doubt in the minds of those opposed to democracy," said Mr. Trestrail, "they know where they are going, and there is no doubt in their minds. It is up to us to be just as determined." Mr. Trestrail referred to proposed plans to do away with the banks, take over industries from a centralized point of government. If this were done the ballot would mean nothing, and it would be impossible to remove them from power once they were in. Assuming that it was, and they were put out, the unscrambling of the five years they ask for would be chaos. It could not be done. The people, if they understood, would decide what Canada should do and that is what should be one. We cannot overestimate knowlege and underestimate intelligence. The people will make intelligent decisions if given the chance to make it. There is too much time spent sharing but little spent each day trying to pass knowledge on to others who need it."

"We know we are going to give labor advantages but instead of giving a little at a time, the ultimate benefits should be given without unnecessary delay. All that labor actually asks is a decent living wage and a reasonable chance of employment." Mr. Trestrail concluded his talk in this vein and urged that everyone should talk to everyone else and help them to understand the risk and danger in their present thinking.

Ted Follwell, Kinsmen, replied to the speaker and passed on the appreciation of the three clubs for his talk. The meeting dissolved immediately following a short speech of appreciation from the chairman, Kiwanis president, Bruce Lattimer.

Small Attendance On City Market

Old Jack Frost intervened to keep attendance on the local produce market at a very low ebb on Saturday with only the occasional vendor being in evidence on the outside market. Attendance on the inside market was lower than usual.

Eggs firmed very slightly from last week's quotation with top grade bringing 56 cents the dozen, mediums 54 and pullets 52 cents the dozen. Fowl was quite freely offered with chicken being quoted at from 35 to 37 cents the pound. Ducks sold up to $2.75 each, the price being approximately 40 cents the pound.

Christmas trees were offered on the market for the first time this season with the one vendor asking from 25 cents to $1 each for his assortment of spruce and balsams.

One or two vendors offered apples in closed trucks on the outside market with best grade of Spies, Delicious and McIntosh selling at the usual three dollars per bushel. Spies and Talman Sweets sold on the inside market at 60 and 50 cents the six-quart basket.

There were no vegetable vendors on the market, although one offered sauerkraut at 15 cents the quart. Young pigs were a totally minus quantity.

Graduation Is Not An End to Education But a Milestone Says Dr. Seeley in Address At B.C.I. Commencement Exercises

"Graduation is not an end to your education but it is merely a milestone," said the Very Rev. Dr. R. S. K. Seeley, M.A., D.D., Dean of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, in his address to the graduating classes on the occasion of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School Commencement Exercises in the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday night.

The Exercises were divided into two parts—the presentation of intermediate diplomas and prizes in the afternoon, and secondary diplomas and prizes in the evening. Chairman for the afternoon session was Mr. R. R. Stiver, chairman of the Advisory Committee, Board of Education and for the evening, Mr. W. J. Harrison, chairman of the Board of Education. The Rev. J. G Hornsby, Minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation in the afternoon, and the Rev. Dr. A. J. W. Myers, Minister of Tabernacle United Church, in the evening.

In introducing Dr. Seeley to the assemblage, Dr. Myers said that Dr. Seeley was a son of a clergyman in England, and he had followed in his father's footsteps. He graduated from Cambridge University and came to Winnipeg, Manitoba as director of St. John's College. He soon decided to go east, and is now the Dean of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario.

Education Broadens Mind

In his further advice to the graduates, Dr. Seeley told them that they went to school and college, not only to acquire knowledge but also to cultivate character. In school there is a gradual unfolding of new horizons, a discovery of new ideas and a clash of minds with minds. There, the boys and girls will be taught to live as independent human beings. The aims of education, he went on to say, are to broaden the mind, to create an independent judgment, to create a social sense and to create ideals of service. The academic studies introduce a sense of perspective to the student. Education, said Dr. Seeley, reminds one that he had ideals to look up to and to look forward to. Does one not create a greater sense of security when one becomes aware of his or her heritage in thought, custom and tradition, and does one not face the world with new assurance because one is an heir of so beautiful a realm? "We should be proud of the past and ambitious for the future and we must remember that we are constantly brought face to face with now situations throughout life which require agile minds."

Training for Leadership.

The student is taught never to rely on second hand judgment, and a liberal education is a sure training for leadership and initiative. Other education takes place outside of the school curriculum—student activities which are thought democratic in character promote the education of the student. The student office adds to the competency of the student, to his self assurance and sense of enterprise, just as do the newspapers of the school, the debating classes, the dramatics, the music and the athletics

"To you graduates, I say you must now give a showing as to what you have learned during the past years in school. Within the next ten or fifteen years, a new world is coming into being, and you will be the ones who will be in the middle of that game. Do not ever forget that you have gotten out of school just what you have put into it. Co-operation and comradeship are essential in moulding the world. Your task is a tremendous one, but if you are successful, a real lasting civilization will be built."

During both the afternoon and evening sessions, the Glee Club of the school, directed by Mr. G. N. Maybee, L.C.C.M., rendered several delightful and appropriate vocal selections, which showed the fine musical training the students are enjoying under the leadership of Mr. Maybee.

Bank of Montreal Celebrates 100th Anniversary

Belleville Bank One Of First Opened In Upper Canada

Lumbering Was Main Industry in Early Days

MR. T. H. DREDGE, present manager of the Bank of Montreal branch in the city.

One hundred years ago, Belleville's first bank was established. This was the Bank of Montreal—Canada's oldest banking institution—which, founded in Montreal in 1817, this month completes 126 years of service to the Canadian people. Its Belleville office was one of the first opened in Upper Canada and its founding was a great boon to the people and business of the community.

Such an anniversary recalls the early days in the history of Belleville when the bank's first office was a small red-brick, one-storey, one-roomed building on the north side of Victoria Avenue, a little way from Front Street corner, then the business centre of the community. Some two or three years later, the bank moved to the west side of Front Street immediately south of a large hotel called the "Anglo-American."

Moved in 1857.

In 1857, the bank moved to a stone building on the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue (then Hotel Street), where business was carried on for over 65 years. In 1922, the former Merchants Bank of Canada was amalgamated with the Bank of Montreal and the businesses of the two banks were merged in the office of the former bank at Front and Bridge Streets.

When the bank established here the Victorian era was just commencing; the young queen had been on the throne but six years, and few persons at that time could foresee the magnitude of an epoch the like of which Canada, the Empire and even the world had never known before.

Belleville at that time was a small town with a population of little over 3,000—the buildings were for the most part of wooden construction and the sidewalks were unpaved, being comprised largely of sawdust, the condition of which can be imagined in wet weather. The principal industry was lumbering which at one time kept eight mills busy. Activity continued in this industry until 1890, when it declined owing to a lack of supply of timber.

New Industries.

It was then manifest that new industries would be required to revitalize the district and successful efforts were made to attract new enterprises to the town. Important lock factories were founded which are now considered to be the most important in Canada. Also, American industries were persuaded to establish in Belleville, and since 1921, about eight have located in the district.

Coincident with the city's industrial development, the Grand Trunk Railway, on which the first train was run through Belleville on October 27, 1856, now the Canadian National, made the city one of their chief divisional points. The importance of this development is apparent when it is realized that a large part of the population today is comprised of railway employees and their families.

Since the establishment of the bank here 100 years ago, its faith in the future of Belleville has been continuously justified, and today, Belleville's large industrial enterprises, modern schools and colleges and far-sighted civic planning—as exemplified by the unbroken record of meeting all bond and interest payments, and the establishment of parks and supervised playgrounds—all demonstrate the quality of the City's administration and augur well for its continued progress.

Twelve Managers.

A long line of successful banking men have had charge of the office during the past century. The branch was opened by G. Benjamin, who was followed in a short time by Philip Ham. Other managers have been: Quentin MacNider, 1847-66, Wm. R. Dean, 1866-70, Robert Richardson, 1870-96, R. J. B. Crombie, 1896-1901, A. G. Parker, 1901-05, Robert Tannahill, 1906-24, H. A. Tofield, 1924-25, G. A. C. Weir, 1925-35, R. T. W. Lewers, 1935-38 and the present manager, T. H. Dredge, who was appointed in 1938.

History of the Parent Bank.

It was on November 3, 1817, when pioneer Canadians were doing practically all their business by barter, that the Bank of Montreal—the first permanent bank in British North America—opened its doors for business in a modest little rented office in St. Paul Street, Montreal, with the formidable capital of $250,000.

Trading in the Canadian colonies in the early 1800's was carried on under great handicaps, and it was, in fact, to ameliorate the exceedingly chaotic and primitive conditions under which the business men of that day had to conduct their financial affairs that the bank was established.

At the time Canada, of course, had no currency of its own. The colonies were much too poor to afford such a luxury, and not only American, British and French, but Spanish and Portuguese money was in circulation. Naturally, the ratios of exchange into colonial money of account were subject to frequent variations. As a consequence, domestic trade was carried on principally by barter and international business was on a very unstable basis.

Founded in Montreal.

Founded by nine English and Scottish merchants of Montreal, the bank set about the business of giving some semblance of organization to the financial life of the country, and its first task was the issue of paper currency—that is, the bank's own bills in small denominations—and, later, copper coins. Specimens of this currency—which was in reality the first Canadian money—are preserved in the bank's museum in Montreal.

Not only did the bank provide a medium of exchange such as had hitherto been lacking, but it nursed along the early enterprises of the country, and straightened out the difficulties of interurban, interprovincial and international trading.

One of the most important facfactors contributing to this achievement was the policy, adopted by the bank's directors at the inception of setting up branches and agencies at strategic points in the colony. For instance, two weeks after the founding of the institution in Montreal, the directors opened an agency at Quebec City, which six months later became known as an "Office of Discount and Deposit." In the following month agents were appointed at Kingston, which was then important as a garrison town, and York, as Toronto was then known, which, with a population of 1,000, was an outpost for lumbering and the fur trade—industries which formed the only basis for the export business of the country.

And so it was everywhere throughout the country; as conditions demanded the bank planted its branches for facilitating the agricultural development of the country, its manufacturing industries, and its general commerce.

Pioneering Spirit.

Since those pioneering days when the bank's officers travelled from branch to branch, "at first safe opportunity" as old records say, to this modern era when the institution sends its representatives out to the frontiers by airplane to open branches in the mining country, the history of the Bank of Montreal copiously demonstrates that the pioneering spirit of Canada's earliest bankers has motivated the conduct of their successors from one generation to the next.

Today the bank has more than 450 branches throughout Canada and Newfoundland, with its own offices in London, New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The size of its capital and reserves at $76,000,000 today stands in sharp contrast with the corresponding figure of more than a century ago, when the bank began business with $250,000. Perhaps a more graphic indication of the bank's growth and the assistance it has rendered toward the development of the country is the fact that today it has over a million deposit accounts—about one in every four in the Dominion.

Bank's Special War-Time Services.

Under the stress of present day war conditions, the institution with its resources, its 127 years' experience and its nationwide system of branches, is playing its part in the nation's war effort, just as it did 25 years ago. In hundreds of communities great and small, the bank is working with Canadian industry and agriculture by furnishing credit and the many essential banking and financial services. Further, it is aiding the government by promoting victory loan campaigns, by the sale of war savings stamps and certificates and in other war activities.

County Council to Pay Bonus Of $10 on Wolves Along With Bounty Given by Gov't

Members of Hastings county council voted to pay a bounty of ten dollars on wolves shot within the county boundaries, when they convened at their final session Friday afternoon. The bounty will be in addition to that paid by the provincial government.

Decision to pay the bounty on wolves shot in the county was arrived at following a discussion in which it was revealed by some of the northern reeves, that timber wolves were quite prevalent; that they were killing off deer and doing considerable damage to sheep flocks. Reeve Charles Rush told the council, that something must be done to give sheep raisers protection against the wolves.

Council also voted to assume the maintenance of the Sidney township bridge leading to Anderson's Island over a channel in the Trent River. The roads and bridges committee had recommended to council, that the county take the bridge over. It will require some repairs to make the bridge safe for travel, it was stated by County Engineer Larry Langlois, the lowest estimate given being approximately $2,500.

Voted to Sell Land

Also pertaining to roads the council voted to sell to the Department of Highways a small piece of land bordering the Faulkner Highway in Tudor township, which is required to revise the highway. Council agreed to sell the land at a nominal sum of $1 per acre providing the title to the property rested with the county. Under special orders members voted to petition the Department of Highways to take over St. Lawrence Street in Madoc as part of the highways system. This is the connecting link of No. 7 Highway through Madoc village.

Following a recommendation passed in the morning agreeing with the action of the House of a Refuge committee in retaining $25 of the $28 received by old age pensioner inmates, council recommended that the rate for inmates at the home, who paid their own way be increased from five to six dollars per week.

Reeve West Opposes

Reeve West of Madoc objected to the original motion which called for the rate being increased to seven dollars per week. "I have no objection to the rate being increased, but I think seven dollars is out of proportion," he said. "After all the House of Refuge was built to take care of the old people and I don't like to think, that it is being operated with the view of returning a profit."

"The point to be considered is that the rate should be raised only to the equivalent of that realized from the old age pensioner inmates," stated Reeve R. A. Elliott of Deloro. "I suggest six dollars instead of seven."

A few pointed questions were answered in council when Reeve A. A. Harvie of Mayo township asked council for a $500 grant to the Mayo two-room school. The school in question is in a school board area.

"I always understood, that the expense of operating a school in a school board area was less than that in the school section system." stated Reeve West of Stirling. "Just what are your school tax rates in Mayo."

Grant is Passed

Reeve Harvie answered that despite the township had been turned into a school board area the expense of operating their schools still was a hardship on the township taxpayers.

"As far as I can see it is not a matter of dollars and cents, the education of our children is the first consideration", stated Reeve J. L. Churcher in support of Mr. Harvie's request for the grant. "And I am not setting up any precedent in moving for Mr. Harvie's motion." Following the discussion the grant for the Mayo school was passed and one of a like amount for the Dungannon two-room school recently constructed on the recommendation of the school inspector.

The usual grants of $50 to each of the northern townships for snow removal purposes were given, while it was voted the Chamber of Commerce membership fee of twenty dollars be paid.

Auditors appointed to audit the county books for 1943 were Mr. Stillman C. Gay of Foxboro and E. C. Townsend of Holloway, the salary to be $100 each.

The official thanks of the council to Warden Dr. S. S. Lumb for his efficiency in conducting the business of the Warden's chair during the year was expressed in a motion by Mr. James Nickle of Madoc township. In reply Warden Lumb expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of the council members and of the county officials.

"It has certainly been a pleasure acting as your Warden during the year," stated Warden Lumb. "I have enjoyed working with you; you have conducted your various offices with dignity and with all seriousness. I wish you the compliments of the season.

Rehabilitation of Members Of Armed Forces Discussed By County Council Committee

An extensive program to assist in the rehabilitation of members of the armed forces in the post-war period was discussed by members of the Hastings County Council post-war planning committee as they met during the county council session just completed. Members of the committee include chairmen of all the county committees together with the warden, Reeve R. A. Elliott and with Reeve John A. Bell as chairman.

Development of Hydro electric power within the county and its distribution on a more wide scale to county rural residents was seen by Reeve W. C. West of Stirling as an important phase of rehabilitation work, while he also advocated a program of forest preservation. Dr. Lumb indicated there was a great need for reforestation.

Improvement to the county bridge system, many of which will need extensive repairs or rebuilding was suggested by Reeve J. A. Nickle, chairman of Roads and Bridges, while John Bell thought that government aid for roads leading to promising mineral deposits would have great advantages. It was suggested by Mr. Elliott, however, that such ore should be government assayed before too much was undertaken along this line.

Development of the county as a permanent tourist attraction was suggested by Mr. David Mawson, who also indicated that government aid should be given toward obtaining markets for products in the northern part of the county. Reeve Elliott indicated that efforts should be made toward the establishment of permanent employment and suggested the development of new industries within the county.

No action was taken as a result of the discussion, the meeting being held as an endeavour to line up a program for the incoming committeemen to follow during the forthcoming year.

The War Today—
Thinks Hitler's Defeat Will Recede All-Out Offensive Against Japan

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

What can we expect in the way of an Allied offensive against the Japanese in the Burma theatre?

That question is troubling many people, and a newspaper editor has asked me to give an answer. The way he puts it on behalf of subscribers is:: "What's holding up Mountbatten?" His reference of course is to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in southeast Asia.

Lord Louis's appointment last August led a lot of folk on both sides of the Atlantic to assume that this meant quick action, and one suspects that perhaps he would have been happier if announcement of his new post had been withheld for a time. The fact was that while Mountbatten's command meant action all right, it didn't presage anything in the immediate future except intensive preparation for offensive operations.

As a matter of cold fact, I personally can't see how there can be an all-out offensive against Japan before Hitler surrenders. The Allies, well armed as they are, just haven't sufficient equipment to conduct wholesale amphibious operations against both Germany and Japan at the same moment.

Such big-scale attacks call for a vast collection of aircraft, warships and landing barges. Moreover, troops and mountains of supplies have to be moved by water, not a short distance but thousands of miles, many of them filled with danger.

At best it would be some months after an operation in the Burma area was decided upon before it could be carried out. However, despite these perhaps spirit-dampening observations, we can have the satisfaction of knowing that a lot of preliminary operations against the Japanese can and will be undertaken before the grand assault takes place.

The ground has dried out sufficiently since the cessation of the Monsoon rains so that infantry attacks could be staged, and one would think that the near future might see things beginning to pop. Meantime, however, the Allies also are getting set for big assaults in the European theatre, and this means that the Asiatic offensive must be restricted until equipment can be released from the west.

CUT WAR CONSTRUCTION

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP) — New construction expenditures in the continental United States are expected to drop from an estimated $7,400,000,000 in 1943 to approximately $4,200,000,000 in 1944. Labor Secretary Frances Perkins reported today. The decline is expected largely in public construction.

WITHOUT ONION 5c EXTRA

New York, Dec. 11 (AP) — The customer ordered chicken chow mein—without onions. The meal was satisfactory. The check read: "Chow mein—75 cents. No onions—5 cents. Total—80 cents.' Asked to explain, the Chinese waiter said: "With onion easy, without onion chef get mixed up, so five cents more without onion."

THROUGH 100 YEARS OF PEACE AND WAR

Belleville AND THE Bank of Montreal

HAVE GROWN UP TOGETHER

On every business day for a century, Belleville people and the Bank of Montreal have done business together.

BELLEVILLE of 1843 was still but a pioneer settlement when it gave welcome to the Bank of Montreal, which is Canada's oldest bank and Belleville's oldest bank. Here began the first permanent banking office in the community, and its long record has been unbroken.

Just as the Belleville office has worked hand in hand with the people of this community through all the ups and downs of 100 years, so the Bank as a whole—now in its 127th year of active and uninterrupted service — has aided and shared in the growth of Canada, from a few struggling colonies to a great Dominion — the third greatest trading nation of the world.

Pioneers together — Belleville and the Bank of Montreal — each has contributed to the development of Ontario and of Canada as a whole. Today, in this time of war, Canadians naturally look for a continuance of the pioneering spirit underlying this development.

U. S. Tribute to Malta

President Roosevelt's presentation on behalf of the American people of an illuminated scroll to the valiant dwellers on the stout island of Malta, was more than a gesture, it was the proof of the sincere admiration of a freedom-loving people for others who had lived up to the highest standard in the midst of heavy bombardments and raids for many months. This scroll is to be cast in bronze and placed in Valetta Square.

Mr. Roosevelt's words, "valorous service far above and beyond the call of duty" touch the very core of the strength of Malta in her days of trial and his prophecy that "Malta's bright glory of human fortitude and courage will be read by posterity with wonder and gratitude through all ages," will come true, because as he said, "what was done in this island maintains all the highest traditions of gallant men and women who from the beginning of time have lived and died to preserve civilization for all mankind."

Malta fought the good fight and is the admiration of the world. She and her defenders are a part of living history. She defied the terrorism of the enemy and her spirit triumphed. The courage of Malta's defenders and their high spirit are proof to the world that the principle of liberty and civilization will never die for it makes men and women brave unto great achievements. In their greatest hour they stood stout and true and helped to guarantee the permanence through all time of the principle of liberty.

To the people of Malta came a great duty as the war swung into the Mediterranean and at duty's call they defended the bastion which upheld the Allied power in the Inland Sea. Nature and fate destined Malta to play a supreme role in the greatest of wars for freedom.

Chinese Score Again

In China the war goes on with that steadiness on the part of the patient Chinese which has earned them praise everywhere. Before Germany launched her blitzkrieg, Japan began her aggression against China but China has fought steadily on. A few days ago the Japanese took Changteh and now China has retaken the city with the aid of American airmen.

The world looks forward to the day when China will have her reward for the brave manner in which she has upheld her own honor and the honor of nations that love and cherish liberty. Under the declaration of the Conference of Cairo, held a few days ago, Japan is to be stripped of her stolen Empire and China is to receive back her provinces taken by the Japanese over a period of years. China has earned an honorable place in the company of United Nations.

11 More Shopping Days

With eleven shopping days left before Christmas, and the weather during the past two days, the stores along Front Street have been swamped with shoppers seeking gifts of all descriptions. The druggists report a pre-Christmas season rush heavier than that of the same period a year ago, with buying starting two weeks ahead of last year. Wartime restrictions and the scarcity of certain types of merchandise will not daunt the shopper who wants to make this Christmas as merry as possible for family and friends and, although the gifts are not what they were pre-war, there is a fairly good variety to select from, which should gladden the hearts of the recipients on the morning of the Twenty-Fifth. It was a surprise to see children's sleds in one window completely minus any metal, even the runners are made of wood in the manner of toboggans. Apparently it took a war-time emergency to discover that steel runners on sleighs are not vital to the proficiency of their operation.

Christmas comes but once a year, and not even a war can dampen the spirits of free Canadians. There is a joyousness felt in the hearts that is the spirit which is winning this war; the thought that even those of our own who are not having such a glorious time, or even a very happy time in Italy and other part of the world where the war is being waged, would not want us to be otherwise. Londoners went through a bombing on Christmas Day; they celebrated in exactly the same way they had always celebrated and, although some of them died that day and night, the others carried on; for that is the sort of stuff that takes a war in its stride and wins it.

Early Mailing

As Christmas approaches citizens are asked to mail their Yuletide boxes early so as to prevent a congestion of parcels, cards and letters in the last days. Mail addressed to points in British Columbia should be sent by Dec. 15, to Alberta, Saskatchewan Dec. 16, Manitoba and Maritimes Dec. 17, Ontario and Quebec Dec. 18, and for local delivery before Dec. 20.

The Post Office is one of the busiest places in every community at the Christmas season with the mail greatly increased over any other time of the year. To make it possible for the staff to handle this mail, early posting is urged upon everyone. By early buying and early mailing, givers of gifts and senders of letters and cards are able to do themselves a good turn as well as helping the postal staffs everywhere to expedite the mail to its destination in time.

Fortunes in China

A profit of $450,000 a month from the sale of a cheap, essential product, netting only a penny on each item and with only one person in ten buying the product, will be possible in the post-war world—in China.

Such are the potentialities in the Orient, according to H. S. Kahm, in a survey of new business frontiers reported in Forbes Magazine. The needs of 450 million customers in China will cover "everything from can openers to locomotives," Kahm says, and not the least of these customers will be Chinese businessmen who are now planning to take over some of Japan's Asiatic markets for cheap merchandise.

There will be other opportunities, in helping China develop a modern transportation system, industries, agriculture and education, not to mention opportunities for capital investments.

The advice to businessmen is to get in on the ground floor of "what is certain to be one of the biggest industrial growths in the history of the world." And Kahm adds, "Americans, according to Chinese officials, will definitely be permitted to own and operate businesses in post-war China."

A Yorkshire Inn

(Leeds Yorkshire Post)

Early this year Canadian airmen were posted to a spot near a picturesque Yorkshire village with old-world green, Maypole, duck pond and homely inn. They found their way in due course to the inn, where the landlady was interested to hear them talking wistfully of corn-on-the-cob and other delicacies of their home towns. She bought some maize seeds, planted them in the garden behind the inn, and eventually gathered and cooked the genuine cobs for the delighted Canadians.

This is just one of the many stories the Canadian airmen tell about the inn where they enjoy the warmth of Yorkshire hospitality when off duty. Many of them, drafted away, come back to spend their leave in the village—and the inn. It is a home-away-from-home to them.

Silk From Egg Whites

Silk-like threads are spun from egg whites reclaimed from cast-off shells of dehydrating and freezing plants by Dr. Harold P. Lundgren at the Department of Agriculture western regional laboratory, Albany, Calif. Protein is extracted, forced through spinnerettes, processed in a fixing bath and dried. Threads show "reasonable tensile strength" when dry but are less satisfactory when wet.—(Business Week.)

Monument Erected To Biggest Cheese

A monument now honors the world's biggest cheese.

A life-size production of this mammoth cheese was recently unveiled at Perth, Ontario, where it was produced half-a-century ago. Six feet high, twenty-eight feet around, and weighing eleven tons, the cheese was exhibited at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893 and was later sold to an English caterer.

The idea of producing this mammoth cheese originated with the Dominion Department of Agriculture which supervised its manufacture. This began when the entire output of twelve Lanark County cheese factories for two whole days was emptied into a press made of steel boiler plates. But even then a further day's output from three of the contributing factories was required to fill up the casing. In all, more than two hundred thousand pounds of milk went into the making of this tremendous cheese.

All winter long it ripened in a corner of a freight shed from which it was later loaded on a flat car. This car was the chief feature of a special train which pulled out of Perth to the music of a brass band and attracted crowds to every station along the railway. Fame such as this is rarely bestowed on anyone—and even more rarely on a cheese. But there was more to come . . .

Not until it had crashed through the floor, did its Chicago exhibitors realize the importance of giving this cheese adequate display space. This accident and the recovery of the cheese—still intact—were not lacking in publicity value. For half a year Chicago crowds gaped their astonishment at the colossal cheddar. In this they were no different from the cheese lovers of Perth and those of London. For London was the final resting place of the cheese.

There, English children — and grownups, too—followed in its train as, mounted high on a special truck, the 22 thousand-pound monster was drawn by six strong dray horses from dock to warehouse. With great ceremony it was cut and sampled in the presence of international celebrities who praised it eloquently—or as eloquently as a man can who has his mouth full of cheese.

Canadian dairy farmers and cheesemakers beamed with delight at the success of their biggest publicity stunt. Nor was the Dominion Department of Agriculture excessively reticent in using this publicity to increase its marketing of cheese in Britain.

So it was that those old-timers of '93 helped to build Canada's reputation for producing incomparable cheese, a reputation which is responsible for Britain's eager demand today. It is really in honor of these men that the monument has been erected at Perth.

Why, Oh Why?

A flock of crows fed in a field,
The day was clear and bright,
And everything was peaceful there,
With not a foe in sight.

Yet every crow upon that field
Would stand erect and still
Between each mouthful, ere he bent
His head to use his bill.

And posted in a nearby tree
As high as he could perch,
A wise old sentry scanned the earth
His senses keen, alert.

In nearby woods a deer stood poised
On slender, nimble feet,
Then slowly, silently, advanced
Towards her swamp retreat.

How cautiously she made her way!
What care to sniff the breeze.
And at the slightest wisp of sound
How quick that deer would freeze!

And in the creek below the hill
A beaver dam, just built,
And on its peak a beaver sleek
Watched woods, and shore, and silt.

A breaking twig—and in a flash
That beaver hurtled down;
A mighty slap, you hear a splash,
And every beaver gone.

And men, oh yes, and women too,
Just how do they shape up
In this "Eternal Vigilance
The Price of Safety" stuff?

They rush to work at headlong speed
To catch a minute lost,
And scatter, scare and raise your hair
Regardless of the cost.

They climb old ladders, minus rungs,
And hammer mushroomed tools;
Then grind without their goggles on,
And sit on broken stools.

They mix their waste with broken glass
To grace the garbage can,
And pour crude oil upon the walk
Expressly laid for man.

They smoke the pipe of peace, forsooth,
In buildings primed with gas,
And trip beningly down an aisle
That's labelled "Do Not Pass."

They jump a fence to save ten feet;
Some land upon their toes,
While others not so fortunate
Land somewhere on their nose.

They leave the guards off high-speed jigs
The while they oil the gears,
And then they wonder why in heck
They lose their precious ears.

And ere the quitting whistle blows
With frantic haste they rush
Across the tracks marked "Dangerous,"
To catch a loaded bus.

While anxiously their loved ones wait
To share their daily bread;
Oh foolish man, be wise, Don't Rush
Where Angels Fear To Tread!

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

"How is your flax growing?" was a favourite question in the old days. The harvest was always uncertain—no wonder everyone was interested and every family watched its crop with eagle eyes. If all went well there'd be plenty of linsey (flax and wool) dresses and men's linen shirts. There'd be enough for other necessaries, too, such as ropes to be used in hauling, and harness for the horses.

Superseding the hand-loom, the power-loom began the manufacture of woolen goods in 1837. Thereafter the Canadian housewife did not worry if her quota of home-made wools fell below average. Gradually her spinning wheel and loom became idle; finally they were stored in the attic. Mill-made fabrics pleased her more than home-spuns; they brought new beauty to her wardrobe and more leisure for herself. She could devote long-hours formerly spent in the "weaving of cloth-to dressmaking and dress-trimming . . . and even take time off to do a little reading without thinking she was committing the sin of slothfulness.

From this time on fashions grew more frivolous. . . especially the hats. Even fashion-writers made scathing remarks about the bonnets in vogue during the 70's. The New Dominion Monthly of February, 1874, remarked. "As to bonnets I would rather say nothing about them, but it is impossible to pass them by in silence. They are more and more like head-dresses, poised, and not always straight, on the top of the high hair, and resembling the castellated towers of feudal castles. The bonnets of the present time are small edifices, two or three stories in height, composed of flat layers of ruches of crepe or tulle. Between the stories are placed flowers or ribbon bows, and the whole is surmounted by a plume or some sort. They are most always of the same color as the dress, for matching is more than ever the fashion."

Tito's Partisans Being Pressed By German Forces

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) red-starred Partisans are being pressed by superior German forces throughout eastern Bosnia in Yugoslavia, an army of liberation communique broadcast by radio said today.

Farther west in Bosnia Broz was using calvary to bolster his land forces and in one engagement they killed 20 Germans and wounded 33 others."

In northwestern Croatia on the Delnice-Vodice road, Yugoslavs ambushed a column of Germans killing 30 more.

A competent informant in London said the German high command was reaching into its first line reserve pool to strengthen its Yugoslav offensive. These replacements were coming from Bavaria, it was stated, and represent some of the ablest units in the German army.

Associated press dispatches from Cairo said a reliable non-Yugoslav source there estimated that Partisans were occupying the attention of as many German divisions as the 5th and 8th armies in Italy.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The cubit was an ancient linear measure the length of which is believed to have been somewhere between 18 and 21 inches.

The most quoted stanza in Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "Rime of the Ancient Mariner" is often misquoted. The exact words are:

> Water, water everywhere,
> And all the boards did shrink;
> Water, water everywhere;
> Nor any drop to drink.

Many misquote the last line, "And not a drop to drink."

On February 16, 1807, Senator John Quincy Adams, Massachusetts, called on President Thomas Jefferson at the White House. Under that date he wrote in his famous diary:

"The President was less cheerful in his manners than usual, but told some of his customary startling stories, among the rest, he said that before he went from Virginia to France he had some pears sewed up in two bags, and that when he returned six years afterwards he found them in a perfect state of preservation, self-candied."

In ancient times the name Red Sea was applied not only to the Arabian Gulf but also the Persian Gulf and all the sea south of western Asia.

The saying, "Paddle your own canoe," was current already more than a century ago. Frederick Marryat quoted it in his "Settlers in Canada," published in 1840.

Many people have the impression that Benjamin Franklin was a Quaker. This impression existed already in Franklin's own day and was owing to the circumstances that he lived in Philadelphia and the fact that he affected a quaint simplicity in dress, manners and speech.

Only two angels are named in the King James version of the Bible. They are Gabriel and Michael.

"Counterpane" is an old name for a bed cover. "Pane" in this term is an altered form of "point" and refers to the fact that originally counterpanes were stitched or woven in squares or figures.

Oberlin College, founded at Oberlin, Ohio, in 1833, was the first co-educational college in America. It first conferred degrees on women in 1841. Oberlin was also the first college in the United States to admit Negroes.

"Labor," pronounced "la-BORE," is the name of a land measure in Mexico and Texas. The plural of the term is "labores," pronounced "la-BORE-as." A labor is 174 acres.

Newsletter From Home

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas, though mail subscriptions are still allowed. To overcome this regulation, The Ontario Intelligencer prints the news of the week in letter form. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends who are in distant parts of Canada and overseas.

The major portion of the local news during this week has been the re-election of Mayor Harry Rollins, electing four new councilmen and a new Commissioner of Public Utilities. The electors of the city went to the polls on Monday in a sleet, rain and snow storm and returned Mayor Rollins to office for a second year by a vast majority. It will be recalled by any who were in Belleville on election day in 1942, that Mayor Rollins won the race but with only a small majority of 20 votes. This year he took the lead early in the day and maintained it throughout, coming out on top with 548 votes to spare. His opponent, as in the 1942 election, was Glencoe E. Thompson, three times Mayor of the city in previous years. The new Hydro Commissioner is Ald. F. Russell Wotten, who defeated Geo. A. Reid with a large majority, and the City Council for 1944 will be comprised of Frank Follwell, Harry J. Clarke, Lorne McDougall, "Twig" Woodley, Harold Armstrong, Ormonde Butler, William Harvey, Jack Trudeau, Charles Hyde, Fred Chamberlain, John Allin, Newton Wilbur, C. R. Clapp and Bob Pringle. The new councillors are Lorne McDougall, Jack Trudeau, Newton Wilbur and William Harvey. The outstanding platforms of the Council-elect and the Mayor are fairly well co-ordinated, including post-war planning, rehabilitation of ex-servicemen, civic betterment and the proposed esplanade. They're in now and all that can be done is wait.

If receiving letters is a morale builder for members of the Canadian Armed Forces overseas, Pilot Officer Ralph Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell, 8th Concession Sidney Township, should really be in the highest of spirits. Now stationed in England, PO. Campbell, within one week recently, received over 80 letters from relatives and friends in Canada. Granted that many other servicemen may be a trifle envious of the letters received by the Sidney flier ...but there was one catch in his apparent good fortune. He had been without news from home for almost two months when the letters caught up with him during a brief stay in hospital.

The outcome of a meeting of the O.H.A. in the Hume Arena, with a representation from Belleville, Stirling and Trenton, brought forth little satisfaction in the discussion of the junior puck situation in the Bay of Quinte area. The reason appeared to be that there has been no district O.H.A. convener appointed as yet. In Belleville the Arena Juniors were represented and Reliance A.C. definitely moved into the picture. In the meantime their is talk of other organizations seeking the sponsorship of junior hockey clubs in Belleville, but what puzzles those holding the reins is, is there sufficient available material for more than two junior clubs in the city. In a city the size of Kingston, some 35,000 people, they have but one civilian junior hockey team. Junior hockey will provide the bulk of puck entertainment at the Arena this winter. After all, junior and juvenile hockey players are being featured in all categories from the N. H. L. down to the 17-year-old class, so, if the kids are good enough for the upper brackets across Canada, should Belleville be any exception?

Minister of Highways, George Doucett announced recently that motor vehicle markers for 1944 will be available early in January, when stamps will be issued to be affixed to the lower left corner of the windshield. The stamps are to be issued in lieu of plates, manufacture of which is prevented by wartime restrictions. This will effect a saving of 200 tons of steel, Mr. Doucett stated.

Candidates for Mayor, Hydro Commission, Council and Board of Education were guests of the Wharf Street Debating Club on a night prior to the election. They gave a review of their stewardship, while the prospective candidates for these offices solicited the support of this enterprising and live organization.

As usual, good natured banter flowed and some of the speakers were ribbed by the audience, but it was all in fun and the club is to be congratulated on the fine time had. A telegram was read during the meeting after the secretary had collected the membership fees from important personages, one in particular drawing hearty applause, and which read: "Thanks for the use of the club for our last secret conference", signed, Winston, Franklin, Joseph. For the first time a number of ladies were present. Many will recall that these meetings are known locally as "Bun Feeds."

Proof that shipments of cigarettes are getting through to local boys interned as prisoners of war in Germany was indicated here this week upon the receipt of a card from Sgt. D. J. Dall. A fire, stated to have started in an open part of an adjoining implement shed completely destroyed the Sidney township town hall at Wallbridge early Monday morning, together with implement shed and causing unestimated damage to township road equipment contained therein. Discovery of the fire was made by Don Patrick of Frankford in the early hour after midnight.

A story worth repeating is that of a man in Salt Lake City who, when fined $20 by a traffic court judge, sputtered and crumpled a $20 bill and threw it at the clerk's feet. The clerk calmly wrote a receipt, crumpled it, tossed it towards the man. Both stooped simultaneously to pick up their papers.

Despite the prevalence of 'flu and common colds among residents of all ages in the city, the inconvenience of much sniffling and coughing is not generally great enough to send those afflicted to the hospital, it was revealed by officials of that institution. The situation is designated by Dr. G. S. Cronk, medical health officer, as being a mild type of 'flu which has failed to attain the seriousness of the epidemics reported in many other centres.

The Government has instituted another reduction in "beverage" consumption which went into effect on December 1st, making it more difficult than ever to create any enthusiasm at parties. This evidently was not the case when the police were called to a house on Station Street to silence a disturbance in an upstairs apartment. Investigations revealed that a belated party was in progress in an upstairs apartment with the result that dancing being carried on was making the dishes bounce about in the apartment below. The occupants were warned to curtail their exuberance.

Christmas Shopping Across Canada At Record Levels Despite Shortages

Rush Starting Nearly Two Weeks Earlier Than Usual

(By SCOTT YOUNG, CANADIAN PRESS STAFF WRITER)

Canadians have bounced back from the rigors of shopping for overseas parcels into the even more hectic competition of buying Christmas presents for their Canadian relatives and friends, and the second great buying spree of the year is in progress across Canada now.

A country-wide survey by The Canadian Press showed today that this year's Christmas shopping really started late in October to catch the deadline on overseas parcels. Then there was a lull until about two weeks ago.

Buying Starting Early.

Dealers said that Canadians are buying for Christmas this year from 10 days to two weeks earlier than usual. But they admit it has nothing to do with the selling tactics of previous years, when Canadians were met on every side by exhortations to "do your Christmas shopping early." This year Canadians don't have to be persuaded. They want to get there early, before everything is gone.

There are many shortages in goods usually popular as gifts, but the shortages differ with each region. Metal toys are off the market almost everywhere, of course, and among other gifts for children even the sleighs have wooden runners and the wagons wooden wheels. Some clothing is scarce, and in Vancouver, for instance, the people who have been handing out shirts and socks to their friends for years will have to find substitutes. Those two articles are practically unobtainable there.

As in all other Canadian shopping centres, the customers are accepting substitutes with reasonably good grace when they can't get what they want.

Dealers in Edmonton and Calgary look for a slackening of trade just before Christmas, because of the heavy buying now.

Luxury Buying in Winnipeg.

The Christmas rush is reported even greater than last year, in Winnipeg. Heavy luxury buying is reported, and in addition to the demand through regular retail channels newspaper want ads indicate there also is a heavy trade in second-hand goods.

Similar conditions are reported from Port Arthur and Fort William and in Toronto the large department stores and smaller retailers report the shopping rush started early, and is continuing.

Purchases are up from 12 to 15 per cent in Ottawa, with some gift lines in short supply. Merchants are hoping to clear out their shelves during this Christmas rush, to be ready for new stock when it becomes available.

Stores in Montreal are handling one of the biggest rushes in history and are handicapped by short staffs because of influenza. Supplies generally are good.

There is a great similarity in reports from smaller Ontario cities—heavy demand, short stocks, and early buying. An even greater crush probably is about to start in Galt, too, because a Christmas Savings Club put cheques for a total of $155,000 into the mail Thursday for members who have been saving all year to pay for their Christmas buying.

Fair Stock Supply.

Toys are reported in good supply in Kingston, but another delight of the children—hard candy—is hard to get. North Bay stores report reasonably good stocks, with a firm demand, and similar conditions exist in London, Brantford, Belleville, Cornwall, St. Catharines, Kitchener, and Peterborough. Fears that shelves would be empty by Christmas week were expressed by retailers in Stratford and Guelph. Hamilton reports Christmas business 25 per cent heavier than usual, with the possibility an alltime record will be set. Some goods were reported extremely scarce in Brockville—with one large dealer saying he had been unable to find any rayon hose for his stocks for six weeks, and another reporting that he had on hand only a single suit of men's pyjamas, usually a popular gift.

Gift buying is reported more practical this year in New Brunswick, with a tendency to better quality, and not so much attention paid to prices.

Store hours have been cut in most Nova Scotia stores, a move tending to create larger shopping crowds during the open hours. Luggage, men's furnishing and sports goods are quite scarce, with jewelry, fountain pens and records in good suply. In Prince Edward Island one jeweler said that his Christmas rush "started so long ago I've forgotten when" and it appears possible stocks will be exhausted by Christmas.

Roosevelt Approves Father Draft Bill

Washington, Dec. 11 —(AP)— President Roosevelt has approved the father draft bill, designed to delay induction into the armed services of men who were fathers before the United States entered the war.

The action was announced by the White House yesterday. The place at which Mr. Roosevelt acted was not disclosed.

The President had been urged by War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt to veto the legislation. The President's approval raised a question as to whether McNutt would resign his position.

The legislation removes from McNutt authority over administration of the selective service system.

The authority, vested in Maj.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the Selective Service director, came under McNutt's directives previously.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henry Observe Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary

Residents of Marmora for Past 14 Years, They Farmed for 45 Years in Monteagle

Marmora.—Residents of Marmora for the past fourteen years, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henry quietly celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding at their home here on Monday. Mr. Henry is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Henry of Monteagle Township, and in January will celebrate his ninetieth birthday. Mrs. Henry, some years his junior, is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Castle Hawley, pioneer settlers in Bancroft. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Henry's parents on December 6, 1883, the officiating minister, being the late Rev. Mr. Scamble, Presbyterian minister at Detlor.

Following their marriage, they farmed in Monteagle Township for about forty-five years. There were scarcely any farms for miles in those days, nothing but bush. In addition to deer, the presence of wolves, bears and wildcats was frequently noted. There were very few young people in the district.

Mrs. Henry's parents were of Canadian stock, while Mr. Henry's father came to Canada from Sligo, Ireland, and his mother was born in Canada of American parents. They have one son, Seymour Henry of Marmora, who with his wife and members of his family, quietly spent the day with them.

Discussion on the subject was deferred until the next meeting. Pamphlets on Health received from Geo. S. White, M.P., were also passed around at the meeting. Twenty-five dollars was voted to the Library Board. The program consisted of community singing of Christmas carols, a reading on Christmas customs in various lands and the rendition of two carols by Mrs. P. Gray. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Brady and will take the form of Grandmother's Night.

Meeting of St. Andrew's W.A.

CGIT Christmas Vesper Service To Be Held Here

The Annual Christmas Vesper Service held by Canadian Girls in Training emphasizes the truly national character of this program of Christian Education for teen-age girls within the Protestant churches of the Dominion. From the rugged shores of Cape Breton to the mountain slopes of northern British Columbia, in Ontario and Quebec, on the prairies, in rural communities, in towns and villages and metropolitan centres, wherever there are C.G.I.T. groups, this beautiful service of worship will be used. Sponsored by the National Girls' Work Board it is designed to (a) provide an opportunity for girls to share in a worship experience using a candle-lighting ceremony especially prepared for the occasion (b) to support the Canadian Girl in Training Movement through making possible the work of a National Secretary. Offerings taken at the service are the only source of support for the National Girls' Work Board.

Not only do these offerings make possible the services of Miss Muriel Jacobson, M.A., who for the past three years has been providing skilled and experienced leadership to the movement, but under her supervision are published materials that are of practical assistance to leaders.

Oversight of the whole movement which now numbers about 40,000 girls is given to the National Girls' Work Board and Provincial Girls' Work Boards. Their secretaries and denominational secretaries direct the planning of programs and other work. The ideal C.G.I.T. group is the Sunday School class meeting in the mid-week, and the purpose of the movement is the development of Christian character through vital connection with the whole life of the church.

The Christian Vesper Service has grown into a tradition the significance of which increases with familiarity and the experience of worship shared.

Parents, friends, and all who are interested in teen-age girls are invited to share in this service.

Belleville Girl Appreciates Parcel

The Briarstone Club has received a letter from a Belleville nurse, Dorothy Osborne, thanking the members for the treats received from the Club. The letter follows:

No. 12 Canadian General Hospital
Canadian Army Overseas
November 13, 1943.

Dear friends of the Briarstone Club:

A million thanks for the lovely parcel which I have received from you. It was full of everything I like. For instance I had just been wishing for sardines on toast when the parcel arrived with the sardines. Needless to say I opened a tin right away. The chocolates are lovely and a luxury over here. The cheese and cake have also been sampled.

I was also thinking of writing home for some stationery and here it was in the parcel too. I can't understand how you knew just what I wanted, but you did it.

Besides the excitement of receiving all these good things it's sure great to know the folks back home are thinking of you.

May I take this opportunity of wishing you a very merry Christmas and may every day in 1944 be a happy one for each of you.

Thanking you again for the parcel, May God bless you all.

FIND SHOPPING MORE INVITING

London, Dec. 11. (CP)— Little by little knick-knacks that mean a lot to a woman's life, are appearing in London shops. Face tissues, hairpins and shampoo powders, are obtainable for those lucky to get there first.

Store linen departments have produced attractive crash-linen table mat sets which sell for about $2.00, and there are pastel-tinted sets of linen sheets and pillow cases selling for $30. Pastel pillow cases are approximately $2:50.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP) — GREEN GROWS THE PARSLEY—OH! — At least we hope it does for Nutrition Service tells us that a pot of parsley, flourishing on the kitchen window sill, is a veritable vitamin mine.

Families are sometimes funny about eating something they regard as decoration and a sprig of vitamins on a plate doesn't do anyone any good. However, turn the decoration into an ingredient by chopping it finely as the French do and sprinkling it over vegetables just before serving and it is accepted without comment.

JAM-JAMS—Here's a recipe from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture testing kitchen which you'll want to clip and keep handy for holiday entertaining. You'll like the Jam-Jams because the recipe makes about six dozen delicious cookies without undue strain on rationed ingredients:

½ cup mild flavored fat; 1 egg; 3¼ cups pastry flour or 3 cups all-purpose flour; ¼ teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ cup sour milk; ½ cup thick jam.

Cream the fat with the sugar thoroughly. Beat the egg and add, beating well. Mix and sift the flour with baking soda and baking powder. Add to the fat, sugar and egg mixture alternately with the milk. Chill dough thoroughly. Roll out ⅛ inch thick and cut in two-inch rounds using a doughnut cutter for half the rounds.

Put together in pairs with the jam between and showing through the hole in the top round. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit for about 20 minutes.

PRECIOUS VITAMINS AND MINERALS — Appearance and flavor can be preserved during the cooking of fresh vegetables by using a little water, as short cooking time as possible. Green color can be retained by cooking quickly in an uncovered pot, rather than by using soda which, although it retains green color, destroys some vitamins.

"TAKES TO WATER LIKE A DUCK" — is a simile that might apply to most cottons but not to all rayons. The wise woman reads her labels and if washing is definitely discouraged, she'll use the dry cleaning on her rayons. But there are any number of smooth weaves, the kind used in undies, blouses and sport clothes that wash easily and beautifully. Moreover, white rayon is superior to white silk in that it will remain white no matter how often it is washed.

Use plenty of mild soap suds, don't scrimp on the rinsing and no soaking. Roll in a Turkish towel and dry away from the radiator and your rayons will be kept fresh looking and new.

MOVING DAY
FOR THE AIR FORCE
ONE OF A SERIES OF 'ACTION PICTURES' WITH CANADA'S MECHANIZED ARMY

WHEN ALLIED INVASION FORCES STRIKE at enemy shores, servicing commandos of the air force are among the first units ashore. With the help of the Engineers they level captured airfields which have been plowed by the enemy with furrows two feet deep. Rugged Canadian-built trucks fill up bomb craters with tons of rock, and rush in fuel, oil, supplies and maintenance equipment from the bridgehead.

In an incredibly short time after the start of the invasion, fighter planes are operating close behind the front lines, thus increasing their fighting range and saving tons of precious fuel.

• • •

It is a source of great satisfaction to the men who make Ford military vehicles to know that these vehicles are playing an important part in air warfare in many parts of the world. Directly or indirectly, they serve the squadrons which carry the bombing offensive to the heart of Germany, as well as the fighter squadrons which play such an important part in every great offensive.

"In this war of men and machines, the lives of many men can be saved by the dependability and efficiency of machines. It is our job to see that not a single part of any Ford vehicle shall fail our sons and brothers in the critical hour of battle."

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

In recent dispatches from overseas the name of the Royal Canadian Navy corvette "Snowberry" received honorable mention for exploits of losses inflicted on the U-boats in the Bay of Biscay.

Incidentally the corvette "Snowberry" is the adopted ship of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. of which Mrs. B. C. Donnan is regent. Naturally the members of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. are exceedingly proud of the members of the crew of the ship they have adopted for their gallant work in ridding the seas of wolf-pack U-boats.

The Reward.

Walking around the barracks, the colonel noticed a long queue of men waiting outside the stables. Each held a lump of sugar.

"I'm glad to see you love animals so much," he remarked to one recruit. "I suppose the horse you're giving the sugar to is the pet of the regiment?"

"Not 'arf, sir," replied the recruit. "He's the one what kicked the sergeant."

Christmas greetings were received from Pte. W. B. "Bert" Royle, Canadian Postal Corps overseas, addressed to the Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer this week. Bert wishes to convey the season's greetings to all and sends his thanks for smokes received.

* * *

True unit spirit, that feeling of fellowship to a point of purpose, was exemplified when all ranks of the First Battalion Argyll Light Infantry (R) were present at an evening of social function staged entirely for the benefit of all ranks beneath that of a sergeant. The troopers and corporals had everything their own way Tuesday night and it was surely a gala affair. The officers and senior N.C.O.'s were merely onlookers and took care of all details to assure the other ranks of a good time.

Moving pictures, bingo and even a wrestling match preceded a chicken shoot in the shooting gallery, prizes were only won by ranks below a sergeant. Cigarettes were given the bingo winners, while the principals in the wrestling bout were Sgt. Jack Murphy and Cpl. Saunders, who made life rather miserable for Referee Garnett Hart. The show was a knockout.

* * *

Came the big event—the luncheon and entertainment in the Lecture Room with R.S.M. Herb Willerton acting as master-of-ceremonies and keeping things in a high pitch.

Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, personally explained to the troops that such social functions could be anticipated in the future. "The money is yours as it comes from the profits of the men's canteen, so let your hair down and have a lot of fun tonight," urged the C.O., who instituted the idea.

* * *

However, the major part of the credit was given to the girls of the C.W.S.F., who have conducted the men's canteen with financial success of late. They also catered to the men Tuesday night and added much to the picture. Community singing was enjoyed, but when the A. & T. staff loosened up for vocal renditions the boys thought it was time for other diversions.

"Danny Boy" Smith with his electric guitar and tricks of magic was the principal entertainer of the evening, while Tpr. Harold Carruthers made an ideal song leader with Lieut. W. Jackson at the piano. Yes, boys it was a gala night and the local reserve lads can look forward to more such social gatherings that bring all ranks in closer harmony and understanding.

* * *

The results of the chicken shoot, conducted by Lieut. Doug. Kalbfleisch, unit training officer, were exceedingly good. In order to make the contest fair for all ranks the shoot was conducted under the "mystery target" system, which merely means the rifleman shoots at a hidden bull's eye on his target. The system proved amusing as well as one of skill to endeavour ranging their shots.

The winners of the shoot were:

Headquarters' Staff — Cpl. Henley, Cpl. Hammond and Tpr. Frost.

"A" Squadron — Tprs. Hart, Post, McDonald, Willshire, Chambers and Cpls. Pershick, DeRushie and Archer.

"B" Squadron — Tprs. O'Brien, Smith, Griffin, Lloyd, Lindenberg, Cpl. Yateman and L/Cpl. Londsbury.

"C" Squadron — Tprs. Ferguson, Miller, Walker, Phillips, Potter and Shapely.

Easy.

"Thank you, madam," said counsel at the end of a long cross-examination. "I hope I have not troubled you unduly with all those questions."

"Not at all," replied the witness. "I have two small children at home."

Monday evening saw the annual installation of officers for the Garrison Sergeants' Mess at the Armouries. The turnout of senior N.C.O.'s wasn't as encouraging as had been anticipated but, regardless, the induction was conducted with all the conventional pomp and ceremony due newly-elected officers. Retiring President S.S.M. Jeffery opened the meeting and then turned the induction program over to R.S.M. Herb Willerton, who acted as installing officer.

The officers installed included S.S.M. Alec Lacey, president; S.S.M. Ted Schwab, vice president; R.Q.M.S. Hall, treasurer; S.S.M. D. Flindall, secretary; Sgts. Goodman and Pryke, executive, and S.S.M. Harden, Tice and Bell to Mess Committee.

After induction, President Alec Lacey informed the Mess that the new Mess officers were about to inaugurate a roll call for Mess meetings, "thus we can keep a record of attendance and give due credit for regular attendance where it is due," stated President Lacey.

Sqd. Sgts. Charlie Tice and Walt Harden reported a "slippery time" while driving a pair of 800-weights to Kingston for service repairs early in the week, while S.S.M. Holmes has learned to drive "sideways" after skithering hither and yon from Belleville to Wallbridge and back the other night.

* * *

"Meatless days? Explain that more fully, but in the meantime pass the hot dogs," quoth Sgt. Sammie Goodman during an eating session in the Lecture Room the other night.

* * *

Promotions and qualifications were posted on Part 2 orders for the Argylls Thursday night. In the matter of promotions Cpls. H. DeRushie, H. W. Casey and G. Spencer were advanced to acting sergeants.

Qualifications in the officers' ranks saw four names posted following examinations at Peterborough some time ago. Those qualifying were Lieut. J. E. Dixon to the rank of captain, while Lieuts. O. A. Lloyd, D. F. Osborne and C. H. Richardson qualified as full lieutenants.

A lengthy list qualified to the rank of a full sergeant and included K. Cosens, J. Murphy, H. Pitton, C. Matthews, R. C. Pryke, E. R. Hoare, W. B. Lattimer, Sam Goodman, C. H. Burley, C. H. Woods, D. H. Brown, H. DeRushie, H. W. Casey and G. Spencer.

Captain K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry, reported back for duty yesterday after a short period of illness at his home in Madoc.

* * *

Lieut. D. W. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wilson, 27 Foster Ave., was promoted to the rank of captain in England last week, according to a letter received by his wife, Mrs. D. W. Wilson, 133 Ann Street.

Captain Wilson enlisted and went overseas with the 13th Canadian General Hospital unit as paymaster, but was later transferred to the 1st Canadian Lines of Communication Signals where he received his promotion.

* * *

Demonstrating their aptitude in range shooting the members of the C.W.S.F. rang up some tidy scores during their Wednesday evening "chicken shoot" at the Armouries' shooting gallery. Under the direction of Lieut. Kalbfleisch, Argyll training officer, a mystery shoot was conducted. The C.W.S.F. lassies fired at a blank target behind which the bull's eye was hidden. The contest created amusement and the "bucks in the rear ranks" showed up their superior officers by taking the major honors.

The winners were Sgt. Walden, Cpls. Barragar and Page and L/Cpl. Spencer. Eight privates carried off chickens they being Ptes. Wright, Grout, Tice, Pate, Beckwith, Semark and Spry.

* * *

Four members of the 34th Battery, R.C.A., were struck off the Battery strength recently as the quartette went into active service. Gnr. J. S. Webster enlisted in the R.C.N., Gnr. L. Bedell went to the R.C.A.F., while Gnrs. C. Daverick and R. N. McGill stuck to the artillery by joining the R.C.A. for active service. Here again the value of reserve army training materially assisted the boys when they moved into the combat services.

* * *

A Matter of Taste.

During his tour of the kitchen the sergeant tasted a fruit pie.

"What kind of pie is this?" he snapped, after swallowing the mouthful with an effort.

New York, Dec. 11. (AP)—Bob Kurland, a seven-foot youngster who plays basketball for Oklahoma A. and M., may be the unwitting instrument of a change in the court rules. . . Pointing the finger at Kurland and other oversize "goal tenders" (probably because he couldn't reach Bob's head), Coach Bruce Drake of Oklahoma says he has decided to join Dr. Frog Allen's campaign to place the baskets 12 feet above the floor instead of 10. . . .This Dept. couldn't say whether that would be a cure-all for basket-ball ills, but we figure it would be a better game if all those big boys didn't get so close together that you can't see the individuals for the crowd.

One Man Teams

In a Florida High School grid game this fall, Buddy Horton, St. Petersburg back, threw a pass that was batted into the air by a plant city linesman. . . As the ball bounced off another player's back, Buddy rushed in and caught it for a four-yard gain. . .The same thing happened to Derald Lebew of Oklahoma agianst Missouri but when the ball was knocked back toward him, Lebow caught it, tried to run and was thrown for a three-yard loss. . . .apparently Derald was derailed.

Shorts and Shells

National League ball players hit only 432 home runs during the 1943 season, the lowest total since 1920. . . .That may explain the hopeful reports that a livelier ball will be used next summer. . . After Lieut. Jack McQueeny, former Holy Cross footballer, lost the use of his right arm in a parachute jumping accident, doctors at Atlanta's Lawson General Hospital advised him to take up discus throwing to strengthen his left arm. Now he tosses the disc 170 feet consistently and several times has surpassed Ensign Hugh Cannon's world record of 174 feet, 10 1-8 inches. . . Word from Cincinnati is that Leo Durocher received a "don't do it again" warning from National League President Ford Frick because he told his runners to try stealing bases in the season's final game so the Reds wouldn't have a chance for a new double play record.

Stuck Again.

As Arch (Chicago Tribune) Ward tells it, after Dick Todd of the Iowa Seahawks had a great day against Notre Dame and busted his jaw trying to stop the Irish, he was named "player of the day" on a radio program. . . The prize, duly forwarded to Todd, was a carton of chewing gum.

Montreal Royals Must Take Up Services of Player Or Lose Him

By the Canadian Press

President Frank Sargent of the C. A. H. A. has ruled if Montreal Royals do not take up the services of Joe Shack, forward, before a time limit today, the player would automatically become the property of Ottawa Commandos, it was announced by the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night. Both teams had claimed the puck-chaser and the dispute had been referred to the Canadian Association for decision.

In the Winnipeg Services Senior Hockey League last night, R. C. A. F. Bombers moved into a first-place tie with Winnipeg Army by administering an 8-6 defeat to the soldiers in overtime, despite the showing of Pte. Edgar Laprade, formerly of Port Arthur, with three goals for Army to lead the scoring.

Eddie Hanyzewski, right-hander of the Chicago Cubs, reported for induction into the U. S. Army at Indianapolis yesterday. He pitched for Milwaukee Brewers in the American Association prior to last season.

Bob Montgomery, former lightweight champion, has been discharged from a Philadelphia hospital after recovering from jaw trouble. Promoter Herman Taylor announced yesterday Montgomery would be able to fight late in January but would require several bouts before meeting champion Beau Jack again.

Jockey Matthew Quinn yesterday told the Maryland Racing Commission at Baltimore he had offered a bribe to Joseph Pannell to hold back a horse at Marlboro Nov. 27. The commission reserved decision because Pannell had been killed in a spill on the Charles Town track on Thursday.

Boston Olympics have lost only one of 14 games in the Eastern United States Hockey League this season. The only team to take their measure thus far, New York Rovers, bowed to the league leaders last night at Boston Gardens 5-2 and the "score" was wiped out.

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP)—Reinstatement of six Buffalo Bisons professional hockey players to amateur ranks and transfer of three of the six to Brantford Lions in the junior O.H.A. caused quite a fuss on some sport pages. These were charges that such wholesale reinstatements were making a joke of the amateur definition and that the transfer deadline, Dec. 1, was being disregarded.

W. A. Hewitt, O.H.A. Secretary, explained the situation. The players signed by Eddie Shore's Buffalo team, given a trial, then released and reinstated were three north Ontario boys, R. Powell, N. Evenshen and V. Jones, and three Saskatchewan juniors, P. Waldner, E. Kobussen and Alfred Turner.

Hewitt says Brantford Lions had lost five players through enlistments, four from last year's team and one, named Fitzpatrick, who started this season. For these men they were entitled to military replacements without regard to transfer deadlines and they were granted transfers for the Sudbury boys, Powell and Evenshen, and for Turner.

Hewitt said Kobussen and Waldner played with Buffalo since their reinstatement and therefore must still be regarded as professionals.

Whereabouts of Jones is not known to Hewitt but he is not transferred to Brantford.

Rebound:

Most determined defence of the National Hockey League's new gag law came from Montreal. And its first effects are felt in Montreal. Canadiens players were mighty peeved because linesman Bill Cleary called back two goals they scored in Boston Sunday when they suffered their first defeat of the season 5-4. But the $1,000 maximum fine for criticism of officials toned down the static. For example the Montreal Herald report said: "Coach (Dick) Irvin...said 'I'm not criticizing anybody. I can't afford to under the new rule'...But off the record he emitted several shrill and vitriolic bursts. So did the players ..."

Incidentally:

Boston Gardens can't sell standing room any more because of civic by-laws which clips about 3,000 off maximum attendance ... FO. Bob Hazel, in a letter home, reports he met FO. Tony Golab at an RCAF base in Italy for the first time since they played together in the Ottawa Roughriders backfield in 1940.

O'CONNOR, LACH OF THE CANADIENS DOWN WITH FLU

Two of Irwin's Brightest Stars Will Not be Able to Play Against Leafs

BLAKE INJURED

By the Canadian Press

Reports from Montreal this week that a surplus of manpower was causing Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens to stay awake nights can be discarded today. Dick may still have the quantity, but he's not so sure about quality.

Two of the brightest stars in the cast which has coasted to 11 victories, three ties and only one loss in 15 National Hockey League games this season have been Buddy O'Connor, the 28-year-old centre who has drawn Irvin's praise as the greatest player in the game today, and Elmer Lach. Victims of influenza, neither will be in the lineup tonight when Canadiens visit Maple Leaf Gardens for their third clash of the season against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Toe Blake, team captain and another key player, will be operating under the handicap of an injured arm if he plays at all.

Loss of O'Connor and Lach, plus the probable absence of Blake, forced Irvin to call upon Tod Campeau to centre Gerry Heffernan and Fernand Majeau on what has been, to date, one of the sharpest scoring units in the league. Campeau, graduate of Montreal Junior ranks, has been playing with Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior League.

Leafs, showing greater offensive power in recent stars, will be seeking revenge for the 7-2 defeat they suffered last time the two clubs met on Toronto ice. Canadiens defeated Leafs 5-2 at Montreal in the other meeting.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—An undreamed of luxury in these days of strict rationing came about when clothing coupons donated by supporters enabled mediocre Southport of the Football League North to equip the entire team with new sweaters, shorts and stockings. Even new towels were provided.

It happened after ominous signs of wear began to appear in the playing kit. The coffers were empty, as far as clothing coupons were concerned. With permission of the Board of Trade, the club appealed for a gift of 200 coupons.

The total was reached and passed. One man sent the club nine coupons with the explanation. "I can wait but the team can't." That's a pretty big gesture since a year's allotment is only 48. A suit of clothes, for instance takes 26. Gifts in kind came too. One athletic club sent along complete sets of new shorts and stockings.

So Southport, by no means the best team in Britain, can at least claim to be the best-dressed.

The soccer clothing position became so acute that the Football Association of England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales appealed to the Board of Trade for a supplementary coupon issue.

Now the club will receive 40,000 coupons among them. When that's divided among the scores of clubs, however it won't amount to much. Only limited replacements will be effected.

An ardent supporter, who sent coupons to Arsenal Gunners, in answer to a public appeal by them, said he had two small sons christened David Jack and Alex James—a tribute to the Gunners' stars of a decade ago.

Manager George Allison, thanking him for the gift, wrote: "You have done us and our old players a great honor. Maybe the boys will one day wear the Arsenal jersey."

Gunner Petty Officer Charles White, one of the best known footballers in the Royal Navy, has been reported killed in action. He was one of the bearers at the funeral of King George V.

White, who played centre-half for England against Wales in an amateur International in 1933-34, died at his post while returning the fire of enemy aircraft which attacked his ship.

Sammy Reynolds, Wolverhampton, took a decision from Jolting Joe Curran of Liverpool and immediately challenged Jackie Paterson of Glasgow to a bout for the Scot's world flyweight championship.

Curran, fighting in his home town was disqualified for a low blow in the seventh round and many of the crowd of 7,000 dashed to the ringside to dispute the referee's decision. It took several minutes to clear the mob.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Twisted

An absent-minded woman had insisted upon being operated on for appendicitis. Some time after her recovery she turned up at the consulting-room and asked the doctor if he would mind telling her what he had found in her appendix.

"Well," said the doctor, "I may as well admit to you that yours was the most extraordinary case I have ever handled. I never found anything like it in an appendix before. You will hardly believe it, but I found several small, hard seeds."

"Oh!" said the woman. "That accounts for our having no sweet peas this year. I must have sown the pills."

(To join forces?).

There's a movement afoot to join the puck forces of Stirling and Marmora to ice one strong junior O.H.A. club, according to Doug Patterson of last year's good Bomber team. If amalgamated the team will be known as the Combines and will play their home games at Stirling.

Doug says Wally Hilton, former Belleville and Western University football star, has been proposed as the coach of the team. Marmora will toss in their Trumble-Cousins-Goodchild line to alternate with the Stirling trio of Patterson-Bastedo and Utman. Incidentally Ralph "Wimpy" Vandervoort, who starred with Stirling last season, is trying out with Staffords in the Toronto senior Mercantile hockey loop while a student at University of Toronto.

Down in Kingston Max Jackson is casting covetous eyes on the Quinte district junior O.H.A. set-up in hopes of gaining entrance for his Kingston Victoria juniors. "What, with all this gasoline rationing and travel restrictions?"

(Gone are the days.)

Senior hockey is flourishing and riding on the crest of the wave today. However, offe night a week for hockey doesn't seem to appease the puck patrons in the Limestone City and now Scribe Bill Walshe is wondering what became of the old George Van Horne Memorial series. That would be easy for Ken Soden to answer.

At any rate here's how Scribe Walshe views the situation in Kingston: "Kingston's once popular city league for the George Van Horne Trophy seems doomed to minor interest for the duration, or until travel restrictions are raised and out-of-town teams can revive old rivalries. Teams from distant communities, like Brockville, Trenton and Belleville, made the city circuit outstanding before the war but interest faded with only Kingston teams competing. Inter-city rivalry is essential for success in Kingston sports.

Last winter the city series was a financial flop with the Garrison team, packed by senior stars, too strong for the rest of the league and as a result there were often as many on the sub benches as in the paid pews. There was a time when the city league packed the Jock Harty Arena, in fact one of the biggest crowds ever jammed in the rink was for a city final between two outside teams."

Lefty Gomez still tells this one about his early days with the Yankees:

He had filled the bases with none out and called Tony Lazzeri to the pitchers' mound for advice. Tony told him he got himself into the mess and that he could pitch himself out of it.

Lefty pulled out of trouble with some great clutch pitching. Next day he was amazed when he picked up the papers and saw pictures of his conference with Lazzeri, headed: "Veteran tells kid pitcher how to get out of trouble."

(Remember when—)

Joe Louis, for his record-breaking reign of boxing, two years ago today, was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Award as the man who did most for the sport in 1941. The Boxing Writers' Association of New York voted the trophy by acclamation for the first time in the four years it was awarded. Yea, and unless the war soon ends Louis is liable to die champion.

(He dood it.)

Promoter Frank Tunney announced he intended to wind up his current wrestling season here with a show something different. "Belleville fans, who desire action will definitely see it next Thursday night, as I'm lining up the greatest collection of ring ruffians yet for climax," reported Marse Tunney today.

(Remembered Lou.)

The kids haven't forgotten Lou Gehrig. Students at the High School of Commerce in New York City, where the late Yankee iron man matriculated, launched a drive, last week, to buy an ambulance to be sent overseas and name it the "Spirit of Lou Gehrig."

The students got the drive off to a flying start, November 17, by collecting $552 and pledging $1,200, of the $2,000 goal at a rally at which Mrs. Eleanor Gehrig, widow of the former ball player, spoke.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 350

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Don't jump out of your skin to tell your partner what you have in bridge. Use the hop, skip and a jump signals. They are much more revealing.

Jump signals come in three types. They are one-jumps, double-jumps, and triple-jumps (or higher.) It seems like a paradox, but the higher the jump, the weaker a hand it shows.

If the jump is unusually high, it makes a further exchange of information between partners almost prohibitive. Therefore, it is a signal that asks partner to shut up.

The lowest possible jump is a one-jump. That gives the most leeway for and invites the most information. Therefore, it guarantees the most strength; enough to protect a liberal exchange of dope.

Between the lowest and the highest jumps is the double-jump. That permits some information, if necessary. But not after the pair has reached a game contract.

Generally speaking, a one-jump shows strength; a double-jump shows length and mild strength; a triple-jump (or higher) shows length only.

More specifically, a one-jump shows enough tricks for game with two sure tricks; a double-jump shows good support or a long suit without two sure tricks; a triple-jump shows a long suit or long support without any strength in high cards.

Suppose your partner starts with an opening bid of one diamond and you have this hand:

♠Q 10 9 8 7 6 5 4
♥9 4
♦8 4
♣7

Your hand does not contain a normal response to a bid of one. Yet, there is a good chance that you can make a game in spades with what partner must hold for his opening bid.

Make an unusually high jump to four spades at once. That will tell your partner to shut up. But I warn you. With some players, even a muzzle and a gag are not enough to do that.

"Holy Matrimony"

Fun and laughter abound in "Holy Matrimony", the hilarious new 20th Century-Fox picture now on the Belle theatre screen. Starring bewhiskered Monty Woolly and amiable Gracie Fields, the picture is aimed at your funny-bone—and it scores a direct hit.

Together in a rose-covered cottage, the gay blade, with the roguish tongue and lovable, laughable lady of laughter and song make a grand entertainment combination. Monty and Gracie pitch wit and woo throughout every foot of the film—and the result is a new interpretation of marriage—"Holy Matrimony" becomes howling merriment!

Based on Arnold Bennett's best seller, "Buried Alive," the story casts Monty as a leading British artist who adopts the name—and life—of his recently deceased butler. To his amazement, his butler has applied to a matrimonial agency for a bride—and the bride is none other than effervescent Gracie Fields.

And from then on the picture tees off with laugh after laugh. Monty finds that despite his years as a celibate, marriage is more fun than he imagined. His painting continues, and his happily married state is pure bliss—until it is endangered by the discovery of his true identity.

The climax of the comedy is a hilarious court-room scene which attempts to establish the true name of artist Woolley. To divulge the details would be to spoil your fun—but this scene ranks with the funniest ever brought to the screen.

The supporting cast assembled by Producer Johnson, who also wrote the excellent screen play, is topnotch. Included are Laird Cregar, Una O'Connor, Alan Mowbray, Melville Cooper and Franklin Pangborn.

John Etahl directed the picture with a sure touch for laughs. The happiest idea to hit Hollywood in a long time, its a wild and Woolley "Fields" day of fun!

The Paramount Canadian News, a colorfun cartoon "Nite Light in the Army," and an entertaining RKO Radio miniature "Carto Aboard," will also be exhibited. Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Get Going"

Small town girls with big-town ideas in wartime Washington furnish the hilarity and excitement in Universal's action-comedy "Get Going" opening tonight at the McCarthy Theatre. Comical romantic happenings behind the scenes of the world's busiest city are said to be effectively enacted in this new fun film which features Robert Paige, Grace McDonald and Vera Vague.

Miss McDonald regarded one of Hollywood's most likely candidates for immediate stardom, is seen as the Vermont beauty who goes to work for Uncle Sam in the capital. There she discovers that the most practical way to be entertained, is to be investigated. Pretending to be a spy, the young schemer is feted on a lavish scale until the hoax leads her into a nest of real enemy agents.

Rescue is thrilling: Robert Paige portrays a personel director and he is the one who stages the thrilling rescue which brings the story to its surprising conclusion. Miss Vague has the role of typical war worker and others in the cast include Walter Catlett, Lois Collier, Maureen Cannon and Milburn Stone.

Three special musical numbers are presented in the picture. Miss Cannon sings "Got Love" and "Hold That Line" and Lillian Cornell renders "Siboney." H. J. Salter was the musical director.

"Get Going" an original screen play by Warren Wilson, was directed by Jean Varbrough, George Robinson handled the photography and the film was made under the associate producership of Will Cowan.

"His Girl Friday"

Heralded as a timely romantic comedy with a newspaper background, Columbia's "His Girl Friday," comes to the McCarthy theatre starting today. The story covers a newspaper yarn—the year's wildest, wittiest whirlwind of a love battle, outrageously racy-sparkling-gay.

The two competitive newspaper reporters, played by Rosalind Russell and Cary Grant, make this story alive with quips and back-talk that really sizzles.

Directed by Howard Hawks and based on the play by Ben Hecht and Charles McArthur. Screen play by Charles Lederer,. The supporting cast includes such players as Ralph Bellamy and Gene Lockart and numerous other stars.

We wish to again call your attention to the British Associated News which makes it's first appearance on the screen at this theatre. These are actually scenes from Europe shown to you within a few days of their being filmed. It is not possible for us to always know the faces you are going to see, but there is always the possibility of you seeing a friend or loved one.

AT THE CAPITOL

"So Proudly We Hail"

Film fans of Belleville will be happy to learn that Paramount's great romantic drama, the Mark Sandrich production, "So Proudly We Hail," is due to arrive next at the Capitol Theatre with its star-spangled cast headed by Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake.

According to the movie grapevine, "So Proudly We Hail" is of Academy Award calibre, and with such names as those mentioned above connected with it, the report is undoubtedly no exaggeration. There are a good many other names not so well known now, which will become distinguished as a result of their owners' work in the film—names like George Reeve, who plays Claudette Colbert's romantic interest; Sonny Tufts, a screen newcomer, cast opopsite Paulette Goddard; Barbara Britton, Mary Servoss, Ted Hecht, Walter Abel, already distinguished for his many past successes, according to reports, does some of his best work in the picture.

"So Proudly We Hail" tells the amazing experiences of a handful of Army nurses, their romances, their heroisms while under fire at Bataan and Corregidor, and their eventual thrilling escape. It is said to surpass anything yet made in its dramatic and emotional appeal to men and women alike, and in its exceptional entertainment values. So mark it as a film to see in your date book.

"Lady Bodyguard"

There's a million dollar romance due next at the Capitol Theatre—and we mean just that!

The picture is Paramount's comedy thriller, "Lady Bodyguard," starring Eddie Albert, Anne Shirley and an insurance policy worth just exactly a cool million simoleons if Eddie, who's cast as an aviation test pilot, happens to come down too fast.

"Lady Bodyguard" has been hailed as one of the season's swiftest comedies and, with a cast that includes Raymond Walburn, Roger Pryor, Maude Eburne, Edward Brophy and a dozen other top-flight Hollywood players, plus the direction of William Clemens, it couldn't be anything else. Sol C. Siegel is the producer.

The Canadian Universal news completes the big program.

Italian Troops Go Into Action With 5th Army

Algiers, Dec. 11 (AP). — Italian troops, in fulfilment of Marshal Badoglio's promise that they would join the fight to oust the Nazis from Italy have gone into action against the Germans in the Allied 5th Army's sector of the Italian front.

The official announcement, disclosing that the Italians had moved into the line, did not reveal details of their formation, but presumably they are serving with their own commander under Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark.

A delayed dispatch from the front said the Italians — veterans who fought in Russia, Albania and France—moved into position on one of the toughest sectors of the front, their first objective being bald, rocky heights on which the enemy was strongly dug in.

The dispatch said they brought with them their own artillery and ammunition, tents, medical supplies, hospitals, ordnance units, engineers and other equipment.

The troops were identified as Northern Italians, the dispatch quoting an Italian captain as saying "they will fight to get back to their homes and families. They have much to fight for." He also declared that "we know the world will be watching us. It is a chance to redeem ourselves."

The Germans were recently accused by the Badoglio government of shooting Italian soldiers captured in Albania and on the island of Leros. It remains to be seen whether they will treat Italians captured on the Italian front as prisoners of war or as traitors to Mussolini's puppet government.

Pro-Axis Italian units, the Germans have said, are fighting on their side of the front.

DECENTRALIZED

must be responsible for maximum production.

Mr. Bracken said that when the Progressive Conservative convention was held last year, the Liberal party in power at Ottawa had ruled unchallenged for so long that it had lost its vigor "and was loaded down with commitments, obligations, and out-worn traditions like an old ship encrusted with barnacles."

In addition, a "clamorous political movement" had grown up, willing to take power into its hands and destroy the good as well as the bad to which society had fallen heir.

Power Very Dangerous.

Mr. Bracken said that wherever revolutionary methods had placed the state in control the standard of living had dropped and freedom had disappeared. Neither communism nor industrialism had succeeded in giving the Russian people as high a standard of living on the average as the lowest-paid section of the people of Britain.

The spending power of government in Canada should be used not only to build public works and provide social services but also to supplement private enterprise when investment began to dwindle.

Efficiency would be aided if administrative functions were decentralized, said Mr. Bracken.

"There can hardly be a person within sound of my voice who has not had personal experience of the confusion and waste of time which has followed the creation of the great bureaucracy in Ottawa."

The possession of power by a highly-centralized authority was "very dangerous", since the will to power was more sinister than the demand for profit.

Socialism Not Answer.

If the people of Canada chose to buy security at the price of liberty they would lose not only liberty but the opportunity to achieve the high standards of living which was possible only if all the talents, vigor, experience and powers of leadership among the people were given the widest possible scope.

Canada desired an expanding economy, with an increasing national income and a just distribution of production, with a minimum loss of liberty. The dominion had a reservoir of potential wealth of brains and experience, technical knowledge and power of leadership, labor and resources which remained to be tapped.

"But there is not yet enough capital equipment to make every man's work yield the best possible results considering the resources at his disposal," Mr. Bracken continued.

"And socialism is not the answer."

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Indications are beginning to appear that the men who helped the government organize Canadian industry for war production are getting itchy feet and thinking of getting back to their peacetime jobs.

A couple of the key men in munitions minister Howe's department resigned just recently — E. P. Taylor of Toronto, deputy to munitions minister Howe on the Joint Production Board, and Henry Borden of Toronto, co-ordinator of controls.

The slackening-off of war production would seem to show the major task of reorganizing production for war has been completed.

Better news from the war fronts and official prediction the war in Europe may end in 1944 bring closer the challenge of post-war reconstruction and arranging for production of civilian goods. Many executives feel they've got a big job to do in their own companies and that the demand here isn't now so great.

Place cards: Appointment of Ray Atherton as United States Ambassador here has drawn some little attention to an oddity of the official table of precedence in Canada.

Mr. Atherton's name is third on the list; but the name of Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner, is 36th. It works out this way:—

First, of course, is the Governor-General, and then Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Immediately after the Prime Minister, by "courtesy," come "minister of foreign powers" and Mr. Atherton, as Ottawa's only ambassador, heads that group. Behind him come 13 ministers.

Mr. MacDonald doesn't represent a foreign power so loses out. He follows the 19 members of the cabinet. Officials questioned on the subject seem agreed something ought to be done about it.

Bloodless campaign: When a number of civic officials were here for an appearance before the Commons Reconstruction Committee, Mayor A. C. Ross of Sherbrooke, Que., got a rise out of Mayor John W. Fry of Edmonton.

Mayor Fry had told of the great influx of Americans who had a part of northwest developments like the Alaska highway.

"Yes," said Mayor Ross, "the Americans claim Edmonton is the only city they've taken in this war without firing a shot."

The Edmontonian could only shake his head vigorously and mumble some denial.

Crosses Atlantic Four Years Without Sighting Nazi Sub

Capt. Dean's Ship at Last Torpedoed But No One Lost

Montreal, Dec. 11 —(AP)— After four years of Atlantic crossings without sighting a submarine, Capt. Arthur Dean of London, England, has been torpedoed—but he believes the Germans paid a terrific price for the attack that cost him his ship.

Here today on his way to join another ship, Capt. Dean said he had made 16 round-trips across the Atlantic before his ship was hit in the stern. Although she sank quickly, nobody was lost.

Capt. Dean said today he believed the Royal Canadian Navy ships bagged four submarines after his ship was sunk. Only the one ship in the convoy was sunk, and that after she had dropped behind her station because of engine trouble.

Air Resistance Disappears Over New Britain

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 11 — (AP) — Air resistance has completely disappeared over New Britain and appears to be waning in the Marshalls, two vital Japanese Pacific outposts threatened with invasion.

These significant development appeared in reports on the latest blows by the United States 5th and 7th Army Airforces against those two widely-separated bases in the southwest and central Pacific.

As on other raids over a period of two weeks, during which more than 1,300 tons of bombs have been dropped, Allied headquarters in announcing today a new raid on New Britain made no mention of any enemy interception.

Medium bombers methodically spilled 46 tons of explosives for the 11th straight day in the Cape Gloucester area which is separated by only 80 miles of water from Allied troops on New Guinea to the southwest.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, in a Pearl Harbor press release yesterday, told of raids by heavy bombers on Jaluit and Mili in the Marshalls Wednesday. Little interference was noted.

ROMMEL IN DENMARK

New York, Dec. 11 — (AP) — A Danish broadcast recorded today by U. S. government monitors said German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had left Copenhagen after an inspection of Nazi coastal fortifications in Denmark.

Rommel, who is commander-in-chief of German forces in the Balkans, had been in Denmark for nearly a week.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, saying to ma, was that the telephone?

No, but I sincerely wish it would ring, ma said. I'm expecting to hear from Maud Hews to find out if the Wensday afternoon bridge game is on or off, she said, and pop said, But for Peet sake I'm expecting a very important call.

Well so am I for land sakes, ma said. If that bridge game has been called off it will affect the whole course of Wensday afternoon for 8 women. Dont you call that important- she said, and pop said, It's immaterial what I'd call it if I really had to call it under oath, but I'm expecting a long distance call with hundreds of dollars hanging in the ballance, and I'd just as soon not have the telephone line busy and buzzing with Wensday bridge just when the operator tries to put my call through.

Oh, all right, I'll give Maud a quick ring and tell her to hold the news if she gets it, ma said.

Which she started to do, and I said, Well G winnickers, pop, how about the important call I'm expecting. Good night, pop, holey smokes, just while you're having your long distance call Puds Simkins is libel to be trying to call me to tell me whether his mother gave him permission for us fellows to give him a surprise —party on his birthday, and then I'm suppose to call up all the other fellows and leave them know. G roozalem, pop, there's only 2 days left to get it up and arrange everything, so you can see how important it is, I said.

Yee gods, I'll give you a half hour's leave of absence to transact the entire business in person, and when I say a half an hour I mean 45 minutes at the very most, do you understand? pop said.

Which by that time I was almost out the front door feeling lucky.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

The next Feathers knew was when he awoke at high noon with a blinding headache. He was lying in his underwear on a frowsy bed in an unfamiliar room. His clothes were jumbled together on a chair beside the bed. He sat up with a groan and stared about him wildly.

The door opened and in came Simon.

"Well, young man, how are you this morning?"

"Where am I?" Feathers demanded.

"In my spare bedroom. Don't you remember? I brought you home last night".

Feathers groaned again and buried his head in his hands. "Drink this", said Simon, holding under his nose a glass containing a reddish fluid. The soul-shaken young man pushed it away but Simon insisted.

When the Sergeant dressed he found that his notebook, which contained his summary of the Osborne Murder Case investigation, was in a different pocket to that in which he habitually kept it. He took it out and looked suspicously at Simon.

"Funny thing", said Simon pleasantly, "but I can never get to sleep without reading in bed for a while. Last night I was nearly stumped. There wasn't a thing to read in the house—except your notebook. And very interesting reading it made, too. I had no idea there was so much in the Osborne Murder Case that hadn't found its way into the papers. And I'd never before known that Mrs. Glott's first name is Cissy. Cissy! My boy, I ask you!"

Simon sat on the bed and eyed Feathers benignly.

"By the way, what did she tell you? You haven't entered it in the book and I'd rather like to know".

"She said you didn't return to New York until the Monday following the murder", exploded Feathers.

"Her error", smiled Simon. "I didn't come home until Monday, but I was in New York on Saturday evening".

"You didn't leave Lakelawn by train or bus."

"True. You see my boy, I left Lakelawn in a state of pecuniary embarrassment. Bluntly, I didn't have the fare. I could not touch my cousin, for he had just lost his job. But for a kindly motorist who gave me a lift to New York, I should have been forced to walk, a thought that makes on shudder!"

"Where did you spend Saturday and Sunday nights?"

"That's rather a delicate question, my boy. If you press me, I must admit that it—it affects the status of a lady. A very charming lady. You had the pleasure of meeting her last night".

"You mean— You don't mean that red-headed—"

"The same, my boy, the same. In any other circumstances, wild horses would not have forced the admission from me, but when the law insists—You need not take my word for it. You can ask the lady yourself, although the question, I admit, would be rather awkward. Still, I have no doubt she would be delighted to meet you again. She took a particular fancy to you last night. Remember? I can locate her for you—"

Feathers shuddered. On the whole, he decided, he preferred to accept Simon's word, unsatisfactory though it was.

"What's the name of that stuff I was drinking last night?"

"You want to know what to ask for next time, eh?"

"No!" groaned Feathers bitterly. "I want to know what to avoid".

"—And quite a gentleman, too", remarked Mrs. Hedges reflectively. "If you ask me—"

Her husband glowered at her over the top of his paper.

"If you ask me, it'd pay you to mind your own business for a change. Paid his rent in advance, didn't he?"

"I never said he didn't".

"Paid well, too".

"So what?"

"So what are you complainin' about? You've no quarrel with him as a roomer, so why not be content to mind your own business?"

Mr. Hedges took refuge behind his paper.

"But it ain't natural," mused his spouse, "that young man spendin' all day in his room, walkin' up and down, wearin' out the carpet and arguin' with hisself like a madman. And why come to the shore for a holiday and then only go out after dark? He's a mystery, that young man is. Calls himself George Harrison—but all his things are marked, E. F. as plain as can be".

"One of these days he's going to catch you rummagin' among his belongin's. Then you'll catch it".

They heard footsteps descending the stairs and a hush fell on the kitchen. The footsteps passed through the hall overhead. The front door slammed. Mrs. Hedges listened to the swift tread on the pavement outside until it passed out of earshot, then she rose.

"I'm going next door to have a word with Mrs. Pearcey".

Mrs. Hedges's neighbor led her into a musty-smelling parlor, apologizing as she did so.

"My old man's in the kitchen and you know what he's like when I'm chattin' with another lady. He can't stand gossip".

"I wonder you put up with his nonsense, Flo. If he was mine, I'd—"

"Oh, it don't hurt me to humor him. You remember me telling you, Gladys, that I was sure I'd seen your young man roomer's face before? Well, I took a notion this afternoon and went through some newspapers in the cellar and what do you think I found?"

"I'm sure I can't imagine".

Raising one of the cushions which were placed at prim angles on the sofa, Mrs. Pearcey produced a folded newspaper which had been hidden under it.

"If there's a reward I'll expect you to bear in mind who gave you the tip."

"You know me, Flo. What is it? Let's see."

Mrs. Pearcey flattened the paper on a table and pointed to a picture on the front page. Her neighbor bent over and stared at it.

"And all his things are marked E. F., plain as print!" she breathed.

That night when the roomer returned he was met on the steps by a detective who flashed a light on his face. Another policemen came across the street and stood impassively behind the young man.

"You are Edward Fleming?" asked the first.

The young man looked from one dark, forbidding shape to the other.

"Yes", he admitted.

"You'll have to come along with us".

"And if I refuse?"

"That would be too bad; we'd take you anyway".

"On what charge?"

"On suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Octavia Osborne at Lakelawn". . .

Later on a police car rushed Ted Fleming to a Bradbury where he was lodged in a detention room at police headquarters. Early the following morning his father came to see him. Lawyer Fleming wore a long face as he looked at his son with mingled affection and anxiety.

"Well my boy, this is a terrible business!"

"I know, Dad", said Ted nervously, running his fingers through his tousled hair. "But it isn't as bad as it looks, I swear!"

"I hope not; I must sincerely hope not".

Mr. Fleming placed hat, gloves and brief-case on the iron bed; then paced up and down the narrow cell. He sighed.

"You've given your mother and me an exceedingly trying time. Whatever you were up aganst, running away was the worst thing you could do. However—Let me hear the whole story".

When the story was told, Mr. Fleming took off his spectacles and polished them vigorously. He put them on again.

"Thank heaven, it's no worse!" he said, patting his son's shoulder. "I can't tell you what I had feared. Now we are going upstairs to see the Sheriff and I want you to tell him exactly what you've told me. No—on second thought, let me do the talking, as far as possible".

He sighed again, glancing oddly at Ted over the top of his spectacles.

"Your mother's a masterful woman, a very masterful woman. I've let her have her own way, more or less; I'm afraid I lacked the necessary stamina to stand up to her, In my case it's worked out fairly well on the whole, but if you let her run your life she'll almost certainly make a mess of it. Have a little gumption, my boy! Oh, well, it's your own affair".

He rapped on the door; a constable came to let them out and conduct them upstairs. Sheriff Black was waiting for them in an office. Mr. Fleming greeted both officials pleasantly. Ted looked sheepish.

"'The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse'," quoted the lawyer, dropping into a chair and hitching up the knees of his trousers. "When you've heard my son's story, gentlemen, I think you'll agree that he's behaved like a fool—but not a criminal".

"We'll reserve judgment on that point, Mr. Fleming", said Black noncommittally, "until we've heard the story".

He looked searchingly at Ted.

"Well, young man?"

Ted cleared his throat, glancing uneasily at his father.

"The suggestion that my son should leave for Washington the day following the murder", said the lawyer smoothly, "originally emanated from his mother. You don't know my wife, Sheriff? Well, to be perfectly frank, Mrs. Fleming has a habit of having her own way. She is a fond mother, perhaps overfond, entirely devoted to Ted, who is our only son. We first heard of the murder late in the afternoon on which it was committed and, at dinner that evening, Ted announced that he intended to marry the eldest Osborne girl. His mother was horrified. Ted and Dorothy Obsorne had always been the best of friends, but my wife had no idea that the attachment was warmer than friendship. She declared that the marriage could not be considered for a moment in view of the scandal in which the girl's whole family had suddenly become involved.

"Ted put up a fight, but I think I said—did I not?—that his mother has a habit of having her own way. Against my better judgment, I permitted myself to be enlisted on her side and we coerced Ted by every means in our power. After a heated discussion which lasted well into the night, Ted reluctantly agreed to go away for a few months. His understanding was that, by the time he returned, the scandal would have blown over and the marriage would then be more feasible. His mother's intention was to put a stop to the affair for good while he was gone.

"The following day, Sunday, my son left for Washington. On the train he thought over the whole situation and decided that, in yielding to his parents, he was being unfair to the girl he loved. He decided to take the next train home but, when it came to the point, he found that he could not do that. His mother had put it to him, that unless he broke with Miss Osborne for the time being at least, he would be estranged from us for good. Quite naturally, he felt that this was a prospect not lightly to be faced.

"He could not make up his mind what to do. His parents and his future—or the girl he loved? No easy choice, gentlemen. There was a train leaving for the shore resort where he was apprehended last night, and, on a sudden whim, he took it. He wanted time to think, to make up his mind in peace".

"You stayed there for over a week, although you knew we were looking for you?" said Inspector Burrows sharply, scowling at Ted.

"I knew so little about the murder—and it was vital for me to settle my own problem—"

"You've put us to considerable trouble and expense, young man", growled the Inspector. "And made the case against you a lot blacker than it was".

"Come, Inspector", said Mr. Fleming blandly, "you won't go as far as to say that there's a case against him? Isn't that putting it rather strongly?"

"Well, he was seen approaching the Osborne house in a suspicious manner half an hour before the murder was discovered, carrying in his hand the silk scarf with which the murder was committed. If those facts don't constitute a pretty stiff case against him", grunted Burrows, "I'll eat my shoes, nails and all!"

"Yes, I did go to the house about three that afternoon", Ted admitted, "but to say that my manner was suspicious is silly. I may have been a little nervous. You see, I was going to ask Mr. Osborne for permission to marry his daughter; and at a time like that a fellow naturally feels—"

"Quite", agreed Sheriff Black, "but if you went to see Mr. Osborne I should have thought your obvious course would be to ring the front doorbell and ask for him".

"But I knew I'd probably find him in the garden".

"And did you?"

"No, he wasn't there".

"So you entered the house through the living room windows", murmured Inspector Burrows casually—a little too casually.

Ted sared. "You're quite wrong. I didn't enter the house at all. I meant to go in that way; in fact, I was on the point of doing so, when I noticed the old lady sitting there and changed my mind".

"What about the scarf?" Burrows demanded fiercely. "You were carrying it when you approached the house; half an hour later, it was knotted tightly about the old lady's neck!"

The young man turned pale.

"I don't know how it got there. Dorothy came over to my house to play tennis shortly after lunch but she went home in a short while, with a headache. She left the scarf on a seat beside the court, and, when I went over to see her father, I took it with me with the intention of returning it".

"What did you do with it?"

"When I turned away from the living room windows, I decided to go home and come back to see Mr. Osborne later. As I walked past the side of the house, I noticed that a window which opens into the hall was ajar. I put my hand through and tossed the scarf onto a chair."

There was some further questioning, after which the Flemings were permitted to depart, but Ted was cautioned that he must not attempt to leave the neighborhood again without permission from the police. When father and son had gone, Sheriff Black looked at Burrows with raised eyebrows.

"Well?"

"I think he's lying, Sheriff. Trying to protect his prospective father-in-law. There was more on his mind the week he was away than the problem of defying his parents, or he'd have reached a decision sooner. I really think he met Stephen Osborne in the garden and gave him the scarf to return to Dorothy. . . ."

En route to Lakelawn after leaving police headquarters, Ted drove his father's car, in his burning impatience keeping the speedometer needle quivering between the sixty and seventy marks. At his parents' house, he brought the big car to a sudden halt.

"You'd better come in for a minute, Ted", said Mr. Fleming quietly. "Your mother will want to see with her own eyes that you're all right."

"I'll be home later," Ted replied, driving off soon after his father left the car. Soon Ted was standing on the doorstep of Stephen Osborne's house, furiously ringing the bell.

The door opened and Hannah Gale's face appeared in the aperture. Dour and forbidding, it was the face with which she had greeted most callers of late; and few of them had been sufficiently bold to attempt to enter. Her expression relaxed at sight of young Fleming. She almost beamed.

"Master Ted! Well, I am pleased to see you. This will be a big load off Miss Dorothy's mind. Come in, come in! I'll tell her you're here".

"Thanks, Hannah. You're swell!"

To Hannah's mind the occasion called for something more dramatic than a formal announcement of a caller. She went to the foot of the stairs and in a stentorian voice bellowed:

"Miss Dorothy! It's Mister Fleming! Mister Edward Fleming's here, Miss Dorothy!"

A door opened on the upper landing and Dorothy came running downstairs.

"Ted! Then you're all right? The police have let you go? I was so afraid when your father let us know last night that they'd found you".

"I'm all right, darling. They let me go this morning after I'd answered a few questions".

"Oh, I'm so glad!"

Hannah discreetly withdrew and Ted made a move to take Dorothy into his arms, but she drew back and the joyous light died out of her eyes. In an altered tone, she said:

Germans Remove Library From Noted Monastery

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 11 (AP) —With Allied armies firmly astride Mignano Pass, the Swiss Telegraph Agency reported today that the library and archives of the famous monastery of the Benedictine Order had been removed from Mt. Cassino for the first time in more than 10 centuries.

(German broadcasts said the German Herman Goering armored division had "recovered" the treasures from Mt. Cassino Monastery, atop a peak just northwest of Cassino, and "ceremoniously handed them over to Papal authorities.")

The Rome dispatch said the archives had been deposited in subterranean chambers of the Chateau Sant' Angelo, which are connected with the Vatican by an underground passage. Sixty thousand volumes and records were removed from the monastery's library, which is the property of the Italian state, it was said.

'Bluff' to Screen Other Operations

Stockholm, Dec. 11 — (AP)—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported today that some Nazi military circles describe British and United States speculation on a Balkan offensive as "a bluff" to screen other proposed operations.

They were quoted as holding that Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin at Teheran dropped the Balkan plan because of transport difficulties and had decided to concentrate on simultaneous east-west attacks. The correspondent said the Red Army now had fresh troops ready.

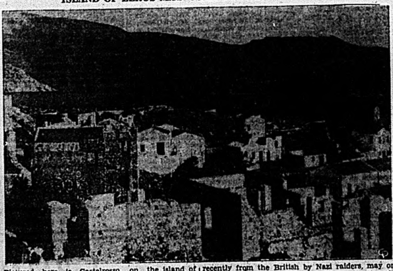
ISLAND OF LEROS MAY COME INTO NEWS AGAIN



Pictured here is Castelrosso, on the island of Leros, with the Turkish coast behind. This little island with the islands of Cos and Samos, recaptured recently from the British by Nazi raiders, may once again come into the news, with Turkey in the Allied camp.

Producing the Drug Penicillin

By William Holt

(BBC Press Service)

London (by Mail) — I've just visited the strangest war plant I've ever seen. It's a sort of huge laboratory where mould is being grown. Everybody knows what mould it, mouldy bread, mouldy cheese—you've all seen it at some time or other—that greenish growth which appears on food if it's left long enough exposed to the air in a damp place. You get rid of it, throw it away in disgust. Well, at that place where I've been, a staff of experts—doctors and scientists—and a troop of war workers are cultivating mould, coaxing it, feeding it on whatever it likes best, keeping it warm, protecting it from harm, treating it with the most loving care like an honored guest.

They're growing it in bottles—round flat bottles like Dutch cheese about a foot wide, specially made for the job. The mould grows on top of a nutrient broth containing sugar and salts. It's not just any old mould which they're cultivating, but a specially selected strain of Penicillium Notatum Westling. The mould is being grown not for itself but for what it excretes into the broth. The mould itself is thrown away afterwards and from the broth is extracted the drug penicillin, the safest and most powerful drug yet known in the treatment of infections by bacteria or germs. On the battlefield penicillin is invaluable in combatting the dreaded gas gangrene which is always liable to occur in battle wounds. In clinical experiments, civilians have been cured of various deadly diseases when everything else has failed. The effect on patients suffering from chronic bone infections has been almost miraculous. After lying months or even years in hospital, they've been able to get up and walk out in a few weeks. It has been used successfully against blood poisoning, pneumonia, meningitis.

The story of the discovery of penicillin—a discovery which may prove to be the most important in the history of medicine—is a most romantic one. To go back to the beginning we must go back to 1929. The real hero of the story is a little spore of mould which came in through an open window of St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, London, England, uninvited, and found its way into a culture dish in which Professor Flemming, the hospital bacteriologist, was growing some staphylococcus—that's the bacterium which causes boils, carbuncles, chronic bone infections and sometimes fatal blood poisoning. Settling down on the culture medium it began to grow. Rather an unhealthy place to settle in and bring up a family, you'd think. But the mould, as it grew, excreted something which was deadly to the bacteria and kept them at a respectable distance. Between the colony of millions of growing bacteria which appeared as a sort of milky film on the glass, and the growing speck of green mould, appeared a clear halo. Fortunately for mankind, Professor Flemming was a very observant man. When he noticed this halo he became intensely interested. Something strange was happening here. Something in the mould, or produced by the mould, was either killing the bacteria or stopping it from growing. He reached for a platinum wire loop, sterilized it red hot in the flame of his Bunsen burner, took a sample of the mould and set it to grow in nutrient broth in a test tube. As it grew, the mould produced in the broth a substance which the professor named "penicillin," after the name of the mould, which had been identified as Penicillium Notatum. Experiments on test plates proved that this substance prevented the growth of certain bacteria.

• •

That's the end of Chapter One—of how the little spore met Professor Flemming. Chapter Two introduces two new characters. (I'm going to imitate the rapid motion film in telling the rest of the story so that I shall have time to tell it and at the same time tell you about the big new laboratories.)

We jump ten years. Although Professor Flemming had suggested it, it was not then appreciated that it might be possible to disinfect the blood stream itself without harming the patient. For one thing, there were other substances in the broth which were poisonous and it was exceedingly difficult to separate the penicillin from the poisons, so it was used mainly for separating unaffected bacteria from a mixed culture on a plate.

However, in 1940, Professor Florey and Dr. Chain at Oxford determined to try to isolate penicillin and purify it. Assisted by a team of chemists, bacteriologists, experimental workers and clinicians — after a year of hard and almost heartbreaking experiments — they triumphed. A yellow powder was produced — pure penicillin.

• •

Many of you will have heard by now the dramatic story of the first successful experiments with this new drug — of how patients at death's door, after every other means had failed, were snatched from death by penicillin; of how unbelievably difficult penicillin is to produce; of how Professor Florey and Dr. Heatley—who had been mainly responsible for developing the technique of extraction for penicillin—flew to America with some of the mould, to appeal for help there in producing this priceless drug. Britain at that time was in the middle of the Blitz, fighting alone in the world. No British chemical firm was able to take on that moment large scale production of penicillin. The yield of the mould was so small that enormous quantities of it had to be grown to provide enough for one case alone. In one case supplies of the drug ran out in the middle of a treatment and the patient, who showed every sign of recovery, died before any more of the drug was ready.

The story of the discovery of penicillin is going round the world. But up to the present, nothing has been published about the British production of penicillin which has now, already reached a considerable scale.

That plant I visited recently is only one of a number of plants. More plants are being rushed up as fast as they can be designed and equipped. Culture flasks are being turned out in hundreds of thousands and all the complicated plant needed for the process is being fabricated. In a few months British producers will be growing this mould literally by the acre.

The laboratory I visited recently is tackling the job on factory scale. I saw huge wooden racks of bottles—walked down avenues of them—each flask containing nutrient broth, the colour of treacle, on top of which the mould was growing. In one department girls in white overalls were decanting the liquid containing the precious drug and despatching it to the laboratory where the penicillin is extracted, purified and concentrated. Other girls were washing flasks and sterilizing them ready for starting a new culture of mould.

It was a curious place. If you were dropped there by parachute and asked to guess where you were you'd certainly be puzzled. All those flat, round flasks, with spouts stopped up with wads of cotton wool, and the strange substance growing in them, rows and rows of them, tiers and tiers on top of each other, look so mysterious. And the white clad scientific workers moving among them. It's like a scene from a story by H. G. Wells.

First of all the spores are cultivated in test tubes which lie in wooden racks at a slant, with agar agar inside—a culture jelly made from seaweed, which feeds them. All these spores have come from the master-culture of Dr. Flemming. They've descended from that little spore which came in through his laboratory window. That mould which was flown over to America in 1941 had descended from it too. A tiny spore of a mould which has existed through the ages. A British scientist who has made a life study of the chemistry of moulds once remarked, when looking at his unique collection of moulds "I don't know what the Lord made them for!" That was before that little spore of Penicillium Notatum Westling was wafted in through the window at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, to revolutionize medical science.

The cultivation spores are scraped from the test tubes, melted with the agar agar into a solution and sprayed into the flasks of nutrient broth with an ordinary hand paint sprayer under air pressure. Within a matter of hours visible signs of mould begin to appear on the surface of broth and in ten days or so a thick grey felt has formed all over the liquid surface in the flask. The incubating rooms are kept at a certain temperature and the air is circulated by huge fans which rotate slowly below the ceiling. The cotton wool at the same time allow the growing mould to breathe.

When the liquid has been decanted the felt remains behind. Girls fish it out of the flasks and it's thrown away. Theres' a smell in the air where they are working which reminds you of mushrooms. The recovered liquid has the color of stout.

While I was there I was shown a tiny glass ampoule containing about a half a thimbleful of yellow powder. This is how penicillin is sent out for use on patients. The ampoule is shaped something like a double hour glass. You break off the top and pour in sterilized water and inject the solution.

• •

But there is still a tragic side to this wonderful story of penicillin. In spite of all the efforts which are being made on this side of the Atlantic—in the United States and in Canada—supplies of the drug are hopelessly inadequate. What there is of it is being reserved for the Forces and for further clinical experiments. And a certain amount is being spared for chemical research. So long as it has to be produced as it is now, from mould, the chances of penicillin being used universally in routine treatment appear to be nil. Research teams are at work trying to discover its chemical composition in the hope that sooner or later it will be possible to make penicillin synthetically in unlimited quantity. The Ministry of Supply has set up a committee to bring their experts together.

This tragic and as yet unbridgeable gap between the production of penicillin and the crying need for it gives a touch of sadness to the picture I have in my mind of Professor Flemming. I met him the other day. I went to see him in his room at St. Mary's Hospital and he showed me the original culture plate with that halo around the growth of that little spore which came in through the window. He fished out from his waistcoat pocket a sample of the mould which he has cultivated on a piece of paper and put between glass—two old spectacle lenses fastened together with gummed tape around the edges. He carries it about with him. "I'll make a culture for you," he said. He reached for a wire loop, sterilized it, took a spot of the mould and made me a culture in a test tube while I was there. Then he lit his cigarette on his Bunsen burner and sitting there, before his bench, which was covered with bottle and test tube and culture plates, he looked at me with his quiet grey eyes and said, "the trouble about this publicity is that suffering men and women are wanting this penicillin. When they hear of it their hopes are raised and then when they realize that they can't get it their hopes are dashed again."

The fight for the production of penicillin goes on. The little spore has done what it can, and so has Professor Flemming. Others are now joining in the battle for penicillin, the little yellow weapon against death.

U. S. Marine Writer on Tarawa Describes Death, Agony in Battle

This eye-witness account of the attack on Tarawa was written by Master Tech Sgt. Jim G. Lucas, Tulsa, Okla., the first United States Marine Corps combat correspondent to land on that little Gilbert Island.

Tarawa, Nov. 23 (Delayed) — Five minutes ago we wrested this strategic Gilbert Island outpost and its air strip from the Japanese who seized it from a few missionaries and natives in 1942.

It has been the bitterest, costliest, most sustained fighting on any Pacific front. It has cost us the lives of hundreds of marines. (Official reports listed 1,026 Americans killed.) But we have wiped out a force of 4,000 Imperial Japanese marines — we expected to find only 2,000, most dead.

Before we started it was great fun. We grinned and chortled. We said, "There won't be a Jap alive when we get ashore."

That was the plan. Naval and air bombardment was to all but destroy the island. The few living Japs were to be so shell shocked there would be no opposition.

As dawn broke, Tarawa was enveloped in smoke and flame. Japanese gun emplacements—eight inchers—continued to reply. Our battleships looked like sullen bullbogs as they ignored them and continued to pound the shore.

At dawn, our planes came in. We could see them disappear into the smoke and flame. We could hear the sputter of their machine-guns. We could see the debris raised by their bombs. It was wonderful.

But something suddenly appeared to have gone wrong. We learned "H hour" had been delayed 31, then 45 minutes. The pounding continued. There was little doubt there were still living, and fighting Japs on the island.

Our assault waves were ready to hit the beach. We were in the second wave. Without warning, an eight-inch shell hit and exploded 10 yards off our side. We dived behind a hatch, laughing as we came out. A second shell hit five yards off, killing a sailor and spraying our deck with shrapnel. We steamed out of range.

Fifteen minutes later, we climbed into our tank lighter, sharing it with many other marines, a truck and a trailer.

"We have landed against heavy opposition," came the first word from shore. "Casualties severe."

It came over our radio as we moved in. We looked grimly at each other.

As we pulled toward the beach, we were met with enemy shell fire. A boat on our starboard side received a direct hit. Five men were killed. We pulled alongside and dragged in the survivors. There was no chance to salvage their equipment. Swiftly we moved out of range.

A control boat roared by a naval officer screaming at us to "stay back" until we received word it was safe to go in. That was 10.30 a.m.

At 1 p.m. we started in again, moving toward the pier which appeared undamaged. We were stopped by machine-gun fire.

At 3 p.m. we tried again. Shells tore the water on all sides. Two more boats went down, and more marines died. We backed out again, unable to pick up the survivors. Many of them swam to us, and were later moved back to their transports. Many of the wounded drowned.

The sun was punishing. There was no shade. We broke out our rations and nibbled at them.

At dusk our battleships and cruisers opened up a terrific anti-aircraft barrage. There was only one answer—Japanese planes.

"Prepare to go over the side," a lieutenant said quietly. "They'd strafe us if they get through."

We inflated our lifebelts and waited. They never got through. We were glad. We'd seen two sharks just before dusk.

At midnight, the control boat appeared out of the darkness. We were to try again.

We inched toward the dock, partially wrecked by our own shelling. The hulk of a Japanese merchantman loomed to the right. Two direct hits from our destroyers had put it out of action. On the lookout for snipers, we covered it with our machine-guns.

When we reached the dock snipers in the wrecked ship opened up, but they were firing over our heads. We climbed on the rocks and more snipers fired. We hit the deck. We moved down the docks ten feet. Japs on the beach began throwing mortars our way. We hit the deck again.

The last 75 yards of the pier was white coral grit. There was a brilliant moon—at home I would have called it beautiful. We swore at it viciously. We were perfect targets.

Screams of Agony

Crouched, we sprinted down the pier, silhouetted against the coral. Snipers opened up, and six men fell, screaming in agony. We lay like logs.

"We can't stay here," someore said up the line, "they'll shell hell out of us and we'll all be gone."

"Advance slowly. Five feet between each man. They won't get us all that way."

We started. Three more marines fell, and we hit the ground. Inch by inch we moved up. Each 10 yards cost us the lives of more marines. Finally we were within 15 yards of the beach. Ahead were shadows.

On the beach, the fire was still hot. We ducked behind the wreckage of a Japanese steam roller, which appeared to be between us and the enemy. I found a shovel and began frantically to dig. Within five minutes, we had our first foxhole on Tarawa. It turned out to be the safest spot on the island.

There we spent the night.

At dawn, we found our position precarious. Our own men were on the left of us, the Japs not more than 50 yards on the right. We were in no-man's land.

At 6 a.m. a fight began over our foxhole. Scores of bullets nicked off the big steam roller, while we burrowed deeper.

Shortly before noon, the Japs were driven back, and we came out of hiding.

I left my foxhole at noon, went 100 yards, and returned at 6 p.m. It was that tough.

The night was hellish. More men came in and more were killed on the pier.

We awoke to one of the strangest sights in history. We needed replacements badly. Men were being landed 500 yards from shore in the surf at low tide and were wading in past enemy machine gun emplacements. Many men fell before they reached shore. In the afternoon Marines were still staggering ashore, carrying the limp forms of buddies between them.

Snipers Dangerous

The heaviest fire came from a Jap snipers' nest in the beached enemy merchant ship. Assault waves were held up while our dive-bombers went to work on it, dropping high explosives in its hulk.

Shortly before noon, the Japs opened up with mortars. One landed near enough to deafen me for two days. A marine who occupied the foxhole next to ours was killed by shrapnel. We dug deeper.

By now, however, the Japs were being forced steadily back. We were able to move about. Snipers continued, but we ignored them. On the third day, the heaviest fighting took part in a cleared space around the air strip. One of our tanks lumbered into the clearing. A Jap broke from the bush and tried to throw a grenade in its tracks. He was shot down.

From this point on our advance was rapid. Following our advancing troops, I came upon one position we had held less than five minutes and counted 27 Japanese who had committed suicide by strapping their feet to the triggers of their rifles, placing the muzzle in their chests and pulling the trigger with a kick.

During the night, the Japs made a final desperate bayonet charge but were repulsed.

And this morning, the island was secured.

CUBAN FREIGHTER SUNK BY ENEMY SUBMARINE

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 11 —(AP)—An enemy submarine torpedoed and sunk the Cuban freighter Libertad off the United States east coast last week, killing seven crewmen and leaving 18 missing of the ship's complement of 43, the Navy disclosed yesterday. Survivors arrived here Thursday.

Merchant Ship Sunk in Sweep

London, Dec. 11 —(CP)— British light naval forces, making an offensive sweep off the coast of Holland near Ijmuiden early yesterday, probably sank one of four merchant ships in an enemy convoy escorted by German motor torpedo boats and fast gunboats, the Admiralty announced.

Torpedo hits were scored from close range, and when last seen the vessel was down by the stern and survivors were being picked up by the escort vessels, the announcement said.

The British ships suffered neither damage nor casaulties.

EXPECTS WIRELESSED MESSAGES BETWEEN WAR PRISONERS, FRIENDS

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 11 —(CP) —The Australian Prisoners of War Relatives Association expects that before the end of the year wirelessed messages may be exchanged between prisoners of war and their relatives.

The arrangement will be through the offices of the Vatican and its representatives in Australia and Japan, the Association's secretary said.

If the exchange can be worked out, he said, it will also apply to prisoners held in Europe as well as in the Far East, and messages from Axis prisoners in Allied hands will also be allowed.

Complicated Labor Vote To Be Taken

Sudbury, Dec. 10 — (CP)—Final arrangements now are being made here for what Ontario labor court officials regard as the most complicated labor vote ever taken in the Dominion and possibly on the North American continent.

The vote involves the approximately 10,000 employees of the manifold operations of the International Nickel Company in this bustling industrial area and will be taken next Friday under order of the labor court.

It arises from an application of the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of America (C.I.O.) for recognition as collective bargaining agency for the company's employees and an intervention submitted by an independent union — the United Copper and Nickel Workers.

While the vote is not the largest labor vote ever to be held in Canada — more persons were involved in collective bargaining votes at the Ford Motor Company plant in Windsor and the John Inglis plant in Toronto — it is regarded as the most complicated because of the extent of the company's operations.

There are 33 polling subdivisions, two of them 75 road miles apart. The most distant is a poll at Lawson Quarry, 59 miles from Copper Cliff, heart of the company's operations.

ALLIED RAIDS PUSH BULGARIA NEARER REVOLT

RUSSIANS OPEN OFFENSIVE IN KIEV BULGE

East-West-South Knockout Blows Are Coming Soon

Germans Seek To Bolster Balkans, Fearful of Invasion Thrust

BULGARIA WAVERING

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 13 — (AP) — A peace or war crisis, inspired in part by fear of an expected Allied invasion of the Balkans, was shaking Bulgaria to her foundations today amid some indications the world has little more time to wait for the promised east-west-south knockout blows against Hitler.

The next 100 days "will be as important in the history of the world as the 100 days before Waterloo," declared Lord Strabolgi, chief labor whip in the House of Lords, in a speech yesterday at Luton. "Then Napoleon met his fate and Hitler will meet his if we act bravely and swiftly."

Bulgaria, first in defeat in the 1918 debacle of the Germanic powers, again is treading a similar path, and continental reports told of the dispatch of more German troops there.

Reluctant to Break

Reluctant to break with Germany but anxious to continue her traditional friendship with Russia, this key central Balkan kingdom is wobbling precariously under the impact of both Allied and Nazi propaganda as well as the more direct menace of Hitler bayonets and further and still heavier loads of Allied aerial bombs.

"Bulgaria as a Nazi power is reaching the end of her tether," wrote the London Times diplomatic correspondent, who formerly was stationed in Sofia, the Bulgarian capital.

Like Bulgaria, Hitler's other vassals in Southeastern Europe—Hungary and Rumania — also are wavering, while in Yugoslavia Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), his own position strengthened by the recent formation of a rump government in opposition to the Royalist government-in-exile, dramatically appealed to his scattered Partisan followers yesterday to rise up everywhere and wage desperate battle against a major German drive to crush them.

Rumanians Restive

The Rumanians, restive under their own losses and territorial sacrifices, are watching the Russians approaching ever nearer their border with the same thought as Bulgaria and Hungary: how to quit the German cause.

Berlin has dispatched Hans Neubacher, Balkan problem specialist, on a mystery mission to Budapest amid reports of one Hungarian cabinet meeting after another. Tension was said to be spreading thru the country after the Hungarian peace party distributed pamphlets urging resistance to the war effort.

Although obviously concerned with their Balkan position and doing everything possible to strengthen it, German military experts are represented as expecting the biggest Allied blow from the west.

With that in mind, they are said to have shifted Marshal Erwin Rommel, now touring Norway, from the Italian-Balkan command and put him in the western driver's seat.

But even before any new landings, the Nazis undoubtedly will have new worries over the "24-hour, 360-degree bombing" of Germany and her satellites which Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Commander of the U.S. Army Air Forces, predicts is "about ready to start."

Bomb Day and Night

He told correspondents in Italy yesterday, "The R.A.F. will bomb every city in Germany by night and we will by day."

Backed by German arms, the puppet Bulgarian government is fighting growing revolt from the worried, pro-Russian population.

Reports persisted of the resignation of the Bulgarian foreign Minister, Georgi Shishmanov.

His position, if he still is in office, was made even more of a headache through Russian recognition of Tito's newly-proclaimed Yugoslav government — reported by the Turkish radio but not yet confirmed Moscow.

This recognition, if true, would serve notice on Sofia that the Krem-

Her husband, a lieutenant in the Italian navy, was killed when the Nazis destroyed the battleship Roma.

Nakina 28 Below Coldest Spot In Ontario

Toronto, Dec. 13—(CP)—All Ontario shivered under frigid temperatures over the weekend with southwestern and Niagara points most fortunate. Snow fell at some centres.

Coldest spot in the province was Nakina with 28 below—three degrees colder than the mark of 25 below at White River. At Parry Sound and Port Arthur, it was 15 below.

Ottawa citizens shivered in a cold wind that sent the mercury nine degrees below zero. It also was nine below in Sault Ste. Marie.

In the Toronto area the thermometer fell from 39 degrees yesterday to one degree above this morning. London temperature was eight above and Windsor seven borough, 11 below; Kingston, two above.

Other cold points were: Peterbelow and Oshawa, six below.

Allied 'Lame-Duck' Trick Failed To Lure Nazi Warships Into Battle

By ALFRED WALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Aboard a battleship Somewhere in the Atlantic, Aug. 6 — (Delayed by Censorship) — (AP) — Hundreds of miles away in icy Arctic waters the British Home Fleet, bolstered by a strong United States task force, including some of the world's most powerful battleships, played a vital role in the Allied invasion of Sicily.

This task force made three daring diversionary sweeps against the coast of Norway, one of them an invasion feint with a fake convoy just two days before the Sicily landings.

The German air force refused battle during all these operations although five Nazi reconnaisance seaplanes were shot down and two damaged.

On the first occasion the British and American warships drove far north of the Arctic Circle and tried a "lame-duck" trick in a fruitless attempt to draw the German battleship Tirpitz and other German surface units into battle.

I watched the first of two Norwegian invasion feints from the bridge of the British Home Fleet Flagship, the battleship Duke of York, flying the flag of Admiral Sir Bruce A. Fraser, Commander-in-Chief, who personally directed the operations.

Working together as one fleet, the Royal Navy and the United States Navy units demonstrated they were able to operate in complete harmony, just as the British and American armies have done in North Africa and Sicily.

Besides the actual offensive operations, the Britons and Americans carried out numerous realistic battle exercises.

In one operation a fake convoy consisting of trawlers, landing craft and miscellaneous vessels was sent sailing eastward from the north of Britain as if heading for a landing on the Norwegian coast. Fifteen miles south was the battle force led by the Duke of York.

Forty miles north a cruiser force headed in the same direction. Four hundred miles further north a light force of cruisers and destroyers was making a similar feint simultaneously.

The operation was planned to have the Germans sight us moving eastward and get the idea an attack was being made.

All the forces were believed sighted during the day. We even broke radio silence to make sure the Germans knew we were there. As a final nosethumbing gesture the whole company "made smoke" for many

BRITAIN'S FLEET OF MOSQUITOS BOMBS GERMANY

Third Successive Night Of Lightning Attacks On Targets in Western Reich

ONE BOMBER MISSING

By W. W. HERCHER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 13. (AP)— Strong forces of American heavy bombers thundered through concentrations of enemy fighter planes and flak today in a new daylight assault on one of the most heavily-bombed regions of the world—northwest Germany.

Specific targets were not immediately named in the 8th Air Force announcement, but some of most important cities in the Reich line in the northwest territory, including battered Hamburg, Wilhelmshafen, Bremen and Emden.

It was over Emden Saturday that the German air force sacrificed 138 of its fighters in a futile attempt to block the big American bombers from a pulverizing assault on the city.

Britain's tireless fleet of Mosquito bombers penetrated Germany for the third successive night last night for a series of lightning attacks on targets in the western Reich.

The ascending scale of operations by these swift, all-wood raiders — alarming city after city in their sweeping course—is similar to the light bombing program which preceded the last group of heavy attacks on half-devastated Berlin.

The Mosquitos went to work during the day Friday with low-level attacks in northwestern Germany, returning that night and again Saturday night when they ranged over western Germany.

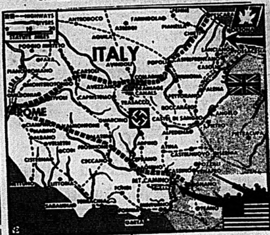
An Air Ministry communique said one of the twin-engined bombers is missing from last night's operations.

The foray followed a similar operation by the Mosquitos Saturday night in which a number of unidentified targets were attacked, and a sweep by Canadian-manned Mosquitos over France by daylight yesterday in which a twin-engined Heinkel-111 was shot down and another damaged over Bourges-Avord airfield. FO. J. R. S. Johnson of St. Thomas, Ont, and Flt. Lt. Bob Kipp of Kamloops, B.C., were the victors in these air duels.

Beaufighters of the coastal command also shot down three Nazi planes over the Bay of Biscay in yesterday's operations in which two Allied aircraft were lost.

These stabs were in the wake of a heavy bomber blow at Emden by daylight Saturday when 138 Nazi fighters were shot out of the sky. Seventeen bombers and three fighters were lost by the United States airmen.

CANADIANS SPEARHEAD OF EIGHTH



Canadians in a swift and secret move have smashed a path through the German defences beyond the Moro river, Italy, and are forcing the enemy to give ground. Assigned the important task of being the spearhead of Montgomery's 8th Army, the Canadians are now driving up the Adriatic coast as indicated by a dark arrow in the Central Press Canadian map above. The Fifth Army on the west coast is also smashing holes in the German "winter line," as the second arrow shows.

JAPANESE GRAND FLEET DECLINES ACTION WITH U.S.

Battleships of U. S. Assist in Shelling of Nauru on December 8th

BORNEO BOMBED

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 13 — (AP) — The American Navy's invitation to the Japanese Grand Fleet to come out and fight bore a postscript today written by United States battleships which participated in the attack on Nauru Island, west of the Gilberts.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday that the fleet's big boys added their steel to the deluge which carrier planes and surface craft poured onto Nauru Dec. 8.

Nauru, Japanese air base and phosphate producing centre, is about 450 statute miles east and slightly south of the Gilbert Islands.

After the Tarawa-Makin successes in the Gilberts, Tokyo radio said the United States invasion constituted a threat to the Japanese-held Marshalls and "presages a real decisive battle of the fleets."

Since then, the Marshalls have been hit repeatedly by United States planes.

The attacks on the Marshalls and Nauru, the last one emphasized by presence of the battleships, was in line with Nimitz remark after the Gilbert fightings that "we shall continue constant pressure on the Japs."

Delighted to have them Come

To Tokyo's vague talk about a "decisive battle of the fleet," United States Navy Secretary Frank Knox remarked that if the Japanese had brought their "whole fleet from Truk out there we would have been delighted to have them come."

Heavy bombers in the South Pacific made 2,600 and 2,400-mile roundtrips from Australia to Borneo and Celebes Island, respectively, Friday to destroy oil refineries and storage tanks at Balikpapan, on the southeast coast of Borneo, and wharves at Makassar, big port on the southwest coast of Celebes Island. It was the third raid on Balikpapan and the fifth on Makassar.

The Allied communique today made the first reference to Australian cavalry fighting on New Guinea. The horsemen and infantry met the Japanese in sharp clashes in the Ramu River valley Saturday.

Australian infantry, tanks and artillery overcame stiff opposition to advance one mile up the Huon Peninsula coast to the Sowi River, the enemy was driven from prepared positions in precipitous Tunom River valley, leaving more than 100 dead.

CANADIANS SEIZE HEIGHTS NEAR TOWN OF ORTONA

Heavy Fighting Rages Along 15-Mile Sector; Nazis Mass 3 Divisions in Line

6,000 ENEMY PRISONERS

By NORLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Dec. 13 (AP)—Cracking a portion of the new 15-mile-long Adriatic line on which the Germans have massed three divisions, the British 8th Army with Canadian troops in the lead has captured elevated ground overlooking the seacoast town of Ortona—anchor of enemy defences guarding roads to both Pescara and Chieti.

Official advices today reported fierce fighting along the entire sector, extending from Ortona, which is three miles north of the Moro River, through Orsogna to Guardiagrele on the slopes of the Maiella mountains which tower up to 8,000 feet, 15 miles in from the sea.

The new limited gains by Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's warriors, which included widening of two more river bridgeheads, came in the face of strong enemy counter-attacks in that sector while a lull prevailed on the 5th Army front.

Headquarters announced meanwhile that a total of 6,000 German prisoners have been taken by the 5th and 8th armies since the first landings in Italy.

Canadians, who previously punched out the first bridgehead over the Moro river by driving up the Adriatic coast through strong enemy fortifications, rammed through to the high ground overlooking Ortona.

Farther inland, other 8th Army units fought their way to positions dominating the lateral road from Ortona to Orsogna and from these heights were able to prevent the Germans from using the highway.

German Command Alarmed

Alarmed over the progress of the 8th Army toward Pescara, the German command massed three divisions, plus other smaller units in their line. These divisions were the 90th armored grenadiers along the coast, the 26th armored division in the centre in the vicinity of Orsogna, and the 65th infantry farther inland toward Guardiagrele. Highly-trained Alpine units also were helping hold the mountain positions inland.

HOWE OUTLINES NINE OBJECTIVES FOR AFTER WAR

Says Canada Should Avoid Post-War Planning Based on Public Works, Dole

CAN AVOID DEPRESSION

Toronto, Dec. 13 —(CP)— Munitions Minister Howe called on Canadians today to avoid post-war planning based on public works and the dole and set forth as his alternative nine objectives aimed at making this nation of 12,000,000 persons "the happiest people on God's green earth."

"If we can preserve the spirit of the past four years, I am convinced that Canada is capable of doing anything that it will undertake to do," the 57-year-old engineer who has planned the Dominion's war production said in a speech prepared for delivery to Toronto Canadian Club.

Suggests Objectives.

These are his nine suggested objectives:

1. Raise the Canadian standard of living, an aim which would mean "jobs of the right kind."
2. Apply wartime inventions to peacetime use, requiring expansion of research organizations.
3. Obtain for Canada a place in civil and international aviation comparable with the place it now holds in military aviation.
4. Provide a merchant marine worthy of the Dominion's export position.
5. Rebuild and expand the mining industry.
6. Make the forest industries a permanent source of wealth by reforestation.
7. Recapture old markets abroad and open up new ones.
8. Rebuild marketing and distribution systems at home.
9. "Let's build our post-war plans not on the narrow base of public works and the dole but rather on the broad base of private industry, agriculture and our forests, mines and fisheries.

"Let us continue that close partnership of government, industry, the producer and the worker that has built the Canada of today, and use it to build a Canada of tomorrow."

Much planning Outdated.

"With our post-war planners thinking in terms of public works and a government dole, is it any wonder that the advocates of Socialism are finding many disciples?" Mr. Howe asked.

"Since the early days of the war, professional apostles of discontent have been abroad in the land, in increasing numbers."

He mentioned specifically "advocates of the Socialist State," "the

Canada Holds Strategic Position On Air-Travel Map Says Howe

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP) — The helicopter as the airborne counterpart of the automobile for short-distance flying...the flying wing and jet-propulsion engine revolutionizing air transport as we know it...this was the picture presented to Toronto Canadian Club today by Munitions Minister Howe—"looking three or four years into the future."

The man who directs civil aviation for the government said Canada holds a strategic position on the air-travel map and that an aggressive post-war aviation policy can provide an occupation for the pilots, radio electricians and airplane mechanics who now are on active service.

He said franchises for new air routes in Canada are being held open for Canadians now carrying the air war to the enemy.

Mr. Howe spoke of production in Canadian plants of Lancaster bombers, De Havilland Mosquitos, Catalina Flying Boats, Curtiss Helldivers and the Noorduyn Norseman, each in the top rank of its type.

"Our designers now are planning conversions to civilian transport types, in the hope of being ready for the post-war demand," he said.

Fourth in Air Power

"Today we are probably the third, and certainly the fourth, in air power among the Allied nations. Our strategic location will command consideration from other countries, as will our prestige in military aviation."

Trans-Canada Air Lines has experienced spectacular development, Mr. Howe said, but "we know that the limited service now being given is wholly inadequate to meet travel requirements." Canadian Pacific Airlines, formed two years ago, had a similar experience.

A glance at a globe or an air map showed that every direct air route between North America and Europe or Asia crossed Canadian territory, said Mr. Howe. The end of the war would find Canada with the groundwork for a giant airport system based on some 200 modern airports. The job was not finished.

"Other airports must be built to serve centres of population that have not had a part in our air training plan. Radio beams must be provided for new transportation services. Our airport building must be enlarged and modernized.

"To obtain for Canada a place in civil and international aviation, comparable with the place it now holds in military aviation, is an objective that captures the imagination."

Regain Initiative After 4 Weeks Of Defensive Fighting

Industrial Town Of Kirovograd Also Threatened With Encirclement

CAPTURE CHIGIRIN

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP)—Regaining the initiative in the Kiev bulge after four weeks of heavy defensive fighting, the Red Army was attacking fiercely today south and southwest of Malin, 55 miles west of the Ukrainian capital, after wresting several points from the Germans yesterday in the first major turn of the battle in this sector.

Further south, Soviet forces captured Chigirin at the northern end of the Kremenchug bridgehead and took eight more populated places in their drive for the industrial town of Kirovograd inside the Dnieper bend. A Russian communique said mobile detachments had cut the road running to Chigirin from the southwest, threatening the Germans with encirclement.

Ready For Eventualities.

The Red Army appeared to have concentrated sufficient forces inside the Kiev salient to overcome any new threat by the Germans, whose powerful mechanised thrusts had pushed the Russians steadily back in the Zhitomir and Korosten sectors.

(The German communique yesterday barely mentioned fighting in the Kiev salient asserting merely that "our troops stormed numerous localities" in the area of Zhitomir and Korosten.)

Engineers of the first Ukrainian front were given much of the credit for blunting the powerful tank-supported German drive. An officer just returned from the Kiev sector said that wherever the Germans managed to push forward a few kilometres they found themselves confronted with new Soviet defence lines set up by the engineers. Superior Russian artillery, which destroyed hundreds of tanks, also has played a vital role.

Stubborn Resistance.

The Russian drive for Kirovograd, which now is in danger of encirclement, was resisted stubbornly by the Germans in one area yesterday, but they were finally forced to retreat in disorder after they were hit from the flank by Red infantry and tanks, the Soviet communique said.

The 2nd Ukrainian Army of Gen. Ivan S. Konev now is midway between Kirovograd and the railway junction of Dolinovka. One force is moving toward Kirovograd from the southeast while another is pushing down upon Dolinovka from the northwest. The entire core of communications in this area is thus threatened.

HONORED BY KING

The British Empire Medal has been presented to Mrs. Margaret Gordon, Sea Cliff, Long Island, N.Y., for "exceptional qualities of fortitude and endurance." She lived for 52 days in an open lifeboat after the vessel on which she was travelling had been sunk by an enemy submarine. A number of men who were in the boat with her died before surviving castaways were rescued.

Czechs, Russians Sign Mutual Assistance Pact

Moscow, Dec. 13—(AP)—A mutual assistance pact designed to establish close post-war co-operation between the Soviet Union and Czecho-Slovakia has been signed by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Czech Ambassador Zdenek Fierlinger.

The ceremony took place yesterday in the Kremlin. The text of the 20-year agreement is expected to be made public Tuesday.

A major implication of the pact was that it brought the two states into direct collaboration, in opposition to the principle of a federation of small eastern European countries—to which the Russians have frequently voiced objection. British and United States representatives had no direct part in the negotiations of the pact, but it was believed they had been informed of the contents of the document and had approved.

It was understood that the Soviet Union desired a similar accord with Poland, pre-war neighbor of both the Soviet Union and Czecho-Slovakia, although relations between the Poles and Russians now are broken.

TO ENSHRINE NAMES

London, Dec. 13 — (CP) — The names of 375 R.A.F. pilots — some of them Canadians — who died in the Battle of Britain — the men whose sacrifice prompted Prime Minister Churchill to say "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few" —are to be enshrined in Westminster Abbey after the war.

Plans already have been made, it was disclosed, to place a roll inscribed with the names in the Henry VII Chapel.

WEAVER AND BILOW ARRAIGNED IN COURT

Roy Weaver, Belleville, and Lloyd Bilow appeared in Kingston police court Friday charged with the theft of automobiles and also assaulting a police officer. When arraigned before Magistrate J. B. Garvin, Weaver pleaded guilty as charged, while Bilow entered a plea of not guilty. The charges arose out of the recent running gun battle between police and two men in a stolen motor car during which time Constable M. A. McNairn, of the R.C.M.P., was wounded when shot in the hand during an exchange of gun fire north of the city limits here.

Weaver and Bilow also faced charges of car theft and breaking and entering when arraigned in Kingston. They were remanded for sentence. Provincial Police here stated Bilow would be brought to Belleville for trial on the assaulting a police officer count at a later date. Provincial Constable J. J. Hatch entered the local charges.

PROVINCIAL HYDRO OFFICES CLOSED

Paying tribute to the late Mr. G. B. Smith, Chatham Street, district supervisor of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, the Belleville offices at 257 Pinnacle Street are closed today. Mr. Smith died Friday afternoon following a lengthy illness. The funeral service will be held this evening with interment to take place on Tuesday at Galt.

BELLEVILLE BRAKEMAN INJURED AT KINGSTON

Suffering a bruised side and ankle when he was brushed off the top of a box car near the Kingston railway yards, Mr. Harry Quinsey, 371 Coleman Street, Belleville, was admitted to the Kingston hospital on Saturday. Mr. Quinsey works as a brakeman out of Belleville with the Canadian National Railways and was brushed off the box car when he misjudged clearance as the car was passing a building. According to officials at the Belleville yard Mr. Quinsey was not seriously injured.

AIRMAN HIT ON HEAD BY PLANE PROPELLER

Coming in close contact with the propeller of a bomber plane at the Mountain View School of Bombing and Gunnery, Sergeant Jeffery sustained a compound fracture of the skull and is unconscious in the Belleville General Hospital. Dr. G. H. Stobie is in attendance on the injured man.

R.C.A.F. ground crews were warming up a large bomber plane when Sergt. Jeffery is believed to have walked around the wing tip and directly into the propeller. The force of the blow knocked the man several feet and resulted in a deep gash in the side of the head. The accident occurred on Saturday and the sergeant was still unconscious and in a reported serious condition Monday noon.

FIVE CASES BEER STOLEN FROM BOX CAR

Thieves broke and entered a C. P. R. boxcar situated on a railway siding off George St. and stole five cases of beer sometime early Saturday morning. The boxcar containing a shipment of lager and ale was spotted in Belleville for delivery to the local Brewers' Warehouse. However, before the car could be unloaded thieves gained entrance by breaking the security lock. Mr. Allen, the local C.P.R. freight agent informed police. Thomas Harris, proprietor of the warehouse, added he was surprised there hadn't been more of the beverage removed.

THREE CHIMNEY FIRES SATURDAY

Investigation of chimney trouble has been the order of the day for members of the local fire department for the past several days, if calls answered are any criterion of activities. Following a series of such alarms last week, firemen were called to investigate chimneys on three occasions Saturday.

The first was for a chimney fire on Great St. James Street during the afternoon, while in the evening sparks rolling from St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall, now occupied by the Ontario School for the Deaf, caused a second run during the evening. Friday evening's heavy gale blew several bricks off the chimney at the residence of Mrs. Anderson on East Moira. The bricks lodged in the chimney part way down with the result that the draft of the stove was cut off and smoke filled the rooms. The fire department was called to locate the trouble with the result that the bricks were discovered in the chimney.

Three Motor Car Accidents Satur.

Three motor accidents occurred on city streets Saturday, one being the work of an alleged hit-and-run driver. Early Saturday evening R. McInroy, 78 Station St., heard what sounded like a collision between two cars outside his home.

Hastening outside, Mr. McInroy found his suspicions were well founded for a hit-and-run motorist had struck his parked automobile from the rear, causing an estimated $85 damage. The driver of the vehicle proceeded westerly at a fast rate of speed and disappeared in the darkness. Eye witnesses later told police that the fleeing vehicle was a large black sedan containing three young boys.

When Alva McAlister, Shannonville, halted his motor car at the intersection of Victoria and Bleecker Avenues on Saturday afternoon his auto was struck in the rear by a motor car from behind driven by James Hambly, 1097 Broadview Ave., in Toronto. Mr. McAlister halted to observe the stop street and also to allow a woman to cross the street. The matter of damages was amicably settled, police reported.

Saturday evening a truck being driven over the main four-corner intersection downtown by Donald Downey, 287 Bleecker Ave., collided with the rear of a motor car driven by Ernest Motter, R.R. No. 3 Belleville. Police investigated and found both vehicles were proceeding in the same direction, with the truck on the lefthand side of the car. When the truck made a lefthand turn the rear rack merely scraped the left rear of the car.

Bay and River Now Frozen Over

Old King Winter with his seasonal coat of mail closed in with a vengeance on the waters of the Bay of Quinte over the weekend and Monday morning a glimmering sheet of ice presented itself to the eye as far as distance could be scanned down the bay. Actually the bay froze over Friday night when the thermometer dropped to three below zero, while the cold weather of the past two nights has added to the thickness of the ice, and if the present weather continues soon the rattle of skates and iceboats will be the order of the day.

Although the bay was frozen over during the past two or three days, the Moira River has been rather fickle in behaviour and has been frozen across as far north as the fire hall on several occasions this autumn. A drop in temperature would serve to freeze the river over one night and then moderating weather a break-up the next day and the river would run free. Low temperatures of the past three days have caused it to be frozen solidly.

At that the weather behaviour over the weekend was rather fickle. Friday night thermometers dropped to a reported 12 to 14 degrees below zero in the district to the north of the city with an official high of 23.8 degrees being recorded for Saturday. On Sunday the mercury rose to a comparatively balmy 40.2 and at midnight had dropped 38 points to two above. The coldest on Sunday night was officially 3.8 below, but again thermometers in the city and to the district north recorded a much lower figure.

POLICE BLOTTER

City jolice recovered a bicycle, that had been left abandoned in the vicinity of the White Rose service station, early today. This brings the number of abandoned bicycles now at the police station to five.

With the exception of a pair of inebriates, who fell into the clutches of the law Saturday, the cell block at the police station remained tranquil and without inmates over the weekend.

Fender Damage

Fender damage resulted when a hit-and-run driver's motor car grazed the fender of an automobile driven by C. Chambers, 97 West Bridge Street, the latter complained to police. The collision accurred at the intersection of Bridge and Front Street early Saturday evening. The driver of the vehicle at fault continued his journey without enquiring as to the seriousness of the impact.

111 Bridges on County List Engineer Tells County Council

Only Five of These Bridges Are of Wooden Construction

76 BRIDGES A-1

Due to deletions in the road system through roads being taken over by the Department of Highways, there are now 85 less bridges maintained by the County of Hastings than back in 1883, members of County Council, were told during their fall session by Larry Langlois, County Road Engineer. Total number of bridges now on the county list was 111, he said.

The above figures were contained in a report of a county bridge survey conducted by the engineer during the past summer on request of the Department of Highways with view of determining bridges needing repairs or replacement, the work to tie in with a proposed post-war rehabilitation plan.

Reflecting the modernistic trend in road construction was the fact that of the 111 county bridges lists only five were of timber construction. There are 42 steel structures and 54 concrete bridges on the county lists. All are of ten or twelve foot span or greater.

Class one county bridges included those on existing county roads, of which there were 76. County bridges falling in Class Two numbered ten and were either on township or county boundary roads, while in Class Three there were 26 bridges, which were altogether on township roads, but taken over by the county for some reason.

While there were very obvious reasons for bridges in classes one and two being on the county system, it was pointed out that for the most part those in class three were bridges of a fair length with their maintenance being more than the townships in which they are situated caring to assume. Of the 25 bridges in this class 21 had a length of from 66 to 500 feet. The longest bridge in the county, that over the Trent River at Glen Miller, fell in this class being slightly over 500 feet in length.

Of the 35 bridges not on county roads (i.e. bridges in Classes One and Two), 22 are steel bridges, 11 concrete and two timber structures.

No estimate was attempted of the approximate investment tied up in the county bridge system, but it was the belief of the engineer that if only the 86 bridges, which are 20 feet or more in length and capable of carrying present day loads were replaced it would cost in the neighborhood of $867,000.

A great many other structures than the 111 bridges now on the county road system have, however been built by the county, it was pointed out. These are on roads, which have now ceased to become county highways through their being assumed by the Department of Highways, or for other reasons. It was pointed out that when a county road reverts to the township for maintenance, all bridges, and culverts also automatically and legally revert to the township.

Real 'Bridge Problem'.

As the result of the great length of the county, together with the fact, that there are two large rivers (the Moira and the Trent) and several smaller rivers such as the Salmon, Crowe, Black and Skoot, together with numerous streams Hastings was termed as having a real "Bridge problem". This problem was classed as greater than in any other county in Eastern Ontario.

Citing one instance of Hastings "bridge problem", Mr. Langlois stated, that there were 21 county bridges over the Moira River, this not including those crossing the river on King's Highways. These bridges are nearly all of considerable size, there total length being 3,250 feet. This sidelight served to emphasize the investment and the importance of the bridge problem in Hastings.

Carry County Plates.

The report listed five county bridges as "doubtful" responsibilities of the county. These bridges "may be, or probably are" county structures but were not included on the list of county bridges in By-law 951 (passed in 1927) nor amendments thereto. Three of these bridges carry the usual bronze county name plates, showing they were erected by the county, and according to township officials and reeves always have been county structures.

The five doubtful bridges listed by Mr. Langlois are as follows—Mather's Bridge, on the boundary between Thurlow and Tyendinaga; Mink Creek Bridge, between Hastings and Peterborough counties; Hunt's Bridge, on Concession Seven, Tyendinaga township; Kerr's Bridge Concession Three, Hungerford township, and a 100 foot timber structure over Deer River near the boundary of Wollaston, Lake and Chandos townships.

Two Need Replacement.

As the survey of the county bridge system was made mainly to obtain facts as to their condition and possible need of replacement, Mr. Langlois listed two bridges on the county system which should be replaced as soon as possible. These were a 22 ft., span near Sulphide and a 12 ft., span near Marlbank. There were also miscellaneous repairs awaiting attention, such as broken handrails, patching of concrete footings and piers; plank guide rails, approach fills and replacement of timber stringers with steel I-beams. Repairs were estimated to cost around $30,000.

In addition to the two small items, there was the major problem of replacing entirely bridges not adequate to carry 15-ton loads and others which are too narrow for safety.

PO. H. L. Bradden Believed Killed On August 16th

Previously reported as missing last August following aerial operations over enemy territory, Pilot Officer Harry Leo Bradden of this city is now believed to have been killed in action, according to word received from R.C.A.F. headquarters by his sister, Miss Eileen Bradden, College St. According to the information a report had been received through the International Red Cross stating German information indicated he had lost his life on August 16th, and was buried in a municipal cemetery at Hesdin, France.

He enlisted early in the war and trained as a pilot prior to his remustering as an air gunner. He graduated from Mountain View and had been on operations for many months prior to his being reported missing. He received his commission on July 6th.

self-appointed Labor agitator," and persons who told the farmer he is the "forgotten man." A section of the daily press was "adding to the prevailing pessimism."

"Strangely enough I do not find any trace of pessimism among manufacturers when they are discussing the future of their own business. They all seem to be well aware that a period of prosperity has followed every war in history, and they seem to expect a period of prosperity after this war."

When business men were asked about the time required to change plants for manufacture of peacetime goods their "usual answer" was that "If I will release floor space and the manpower and raw materials, production of peacetime goods in their factories will commence next month."

Inflation Prevented

He had heard the viewpoint that there must be a depression immediately after this war, for the reason that a period of depression followed the last war. But Canada had succeeded in avoiding in this war many of the calamities of the last war.

"Since we have prevented uncontrolled inflation, we will not be required to go through deflation, which was the cause of the 1921 depression.

"Provision has already been made against a drop in the price of agricultural commodities in the immediate post-war years.

"We are being asked to contract for our normal output of lumber for a considerable period after the war at present-day prices."

Mr. Howe said Canadians must stop thinking in terms of "making jobs." To last and give satisfaction a job must exist for the purpose of getting something done.

"When the war ends, 700,000 or 800,000 men and women now in the armed services will be looking for something to do.

"We owe them a big, confident Canada that knows how to keep its people employed. We owe them opportunity, adventure, a new challenge to their energies and their minds.

"Canada, above any country in the world, should be able to fulfil this obligation."

Through their war on the side of Germany, the Slavic-minded Bulgarians always have pinned their hope of salvation — if necessary — on the Russians. Russia and Bulgaria are not at war with each other although each is on the opposite side in the world's warring camps.

Ministers Tour Provinces

Bulgarian cabinet ministers made weekend tours of the provinces presumably to obtain the opinion of the population on the question of continuing the alliance with Germany or to quiet their obvious fears.

A Hungarian radio broadcast, heard here, said virtually all the ministers were out of these trips and they covered the country nearly from one end to the other.

The radio inferentially denied reports that Premier Dorbi Bojilov had resigned by saying he received several callers Saturday, among them the Fascist Italian Charge D'Affaires and a rumanian trade delegation.

The Brazzaville (French) radio quoted Ankara reports that the Germans were building new airdromes and communication lines throughout Bulgaria.

Naval and air authorities were amazed at the German air force's unwillingness to challenge these bold forays. The Allied units had penetrated with impunity into easy bomber and dive-bomber range. They had begged for a fight—but none was forthcoming.

IN MEMORIAM

HAWLEY — In loving memory of husband and father, Myron W. Hawley, who departed this life, December 13, 1941.

As we loved him, so we miss him,
In our memory, he is dear,
Loved, remembered, thought of always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said goodbye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said: "Come."
Sleep on, dear father, your work is done,
You are gone where those who loved you,
Will meet you one by one.

TYLER'S REVOLT THEME OF NOVEL

Seeds of British Love of Freedom Found in 14th Century Uprising

(By CHARLES BRUCE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP) — A book has been written about the 14th. Century in which chain-mail, basinet and gorget take second place to the ideas, emotions, hopes and beliefs of the men who wore them.

Most popular tales about the late medieval period seem to have had their source in the costume-lofts of Hollywood. In Forges of Freedom (Macmillan) Franklin Davey Dowell of Toronto, has broken with the tradition. His panoply is undoubtedly correct, but simply for the sake of authenticity, never as an end in itself. The story is in what happens in the minds and hearts of people, and its translation into action. This is a story that never ends but is summed up from time to time when accumlated emotion find sudden expression in energy. The summing up of which Mr. MacDowell writes is the Wat Tyler rebellion.

The text is this: "It is not generally known that six centuries ago thousands of English men and women lived the lives of hunted things because they had conceived the idea of individual freedom and the equality of men. It may be submitted that where the German people tamely bent their heads to the Nazi yoke in 1933, the Anglo-Saxon people rose in arms against a similar yoke in 1381."

Mr. McDowell has adapted what is known of the history of that day, mainly from the ballads, and constructed an absorbing story around the refusal of peasants and craftsmen to be made slaves of the state. It is romantic realism.

Fight for Freedom

It is the story—interwoven with the personal stories of his characters—of the peasant fight against the Grossers and the court nobles, and the hard position of the honest and forthright knights and lords whose hearts were with their peasantry; but against the licence and chicanery that marred the cause when power came momentarily into hands that didn't know how to use it.

In other words it is the story of human nature and its halting progress. For instance we have Ralph Littlefriar, a peasant leader, saying at last: "I forgot my men could be strong only as men are strong, in the folly of their own ways," and implicitly admitting by planning to join with the evil Knight of the Popinjay, that what he wanted most was personal power.

Some of the best talking in the book is done by Sir John de Redeware, who hated the Grossers and court nobles as vehemently as did the peasants. He had a prescient word for Littlefriar: "I should not think too little of him. No man is so deadly as when he thinks himself to be the cause of a change, rather than a worker to bring it about." And even in that day, he was able to say: "We are all common men, Darris, if we but knew it."

Mr. McDowell has not hurried pas tthe gallows and whipping post. Nor has he forgotten to keep his people always human. We see Lady Mary de Rose—a fine girl, but proud—sulkily setting two allied knights against each other because her pride was hurt. There are a hundred incidents that call up the thought: "That's the way it must have happened."

Red Cross Nurse Honored by King

London, Dec. 13 (CP). — A gentle gray-haired Red Cross nurse, Mrs. Edith Bennet McLean—who has braved gunfire and undergone imprisonment in a German prison ship and concentration camp has been cited by the King for her courage.

Mrs. McLean was aboard a British passenger ship in the Indian Ocean when it was attacked by a German armed raider and its captain mortally wounded.

The nurse, who saw service in the last war, dashed to the ship's bridge and took up her post at the captain's side. While shells exploded around her she applied a tourniquet to his shattered legs. Just before the captain died in a lifeboat, he instructed her to tear up his secret papers, which she did, in defiance of their Nazi captors.

With the rest of the ship's company who survived the attack she spent nearly three months as prisoners on a tanker which was tender to a German pocket battleship, believed to be the Admiral Scheer. Later they were transferred via Bordeaux to a German prison camp, and repatriated this spring.

Moore, of Bancroft, having suffered an acute attack of appendicitis, was operated upon in the Red Cross Hospital, Bancroft, Wednesday morning by Dr. S. Y. Walsh of Peterboro, assisted by Dr. O. W. Anderson, the family physician, of Bancroft.

Members of Bancroft Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 482, held a bridge and euchre party Wednesday evening, entertaining members of the Eastern Star and friends. A very pleasant evening was spent in cards after which a dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge. Winners of the bridge were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davy. Winners of euchre were Mrs. I. Severin and Mr. Reginald Wiggins.

The following were elected: Mrs. Harry Hall, president; Mrs. J. Duncan, first vice-president; Mrs. Floyd Huffman, second vice-president; Mrs. Don Parks, secretary; Mrs. Gerald Brooks, treasurer. Several members were prevented from being present thru' illness. Mrs. George Fox, Mrs. A. Harris and Mrs. D. Harns were guests at the meeting. Mrs. G Fox and Mrs. F. Distilleries Allowed To Make Some Beverage Alcohol for Civilians

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP).—Canadian distilleries now are being allowed to make beverage alcohol in "driblets" for civilian consumption after more than a year of operation under a wartime industrial alcohol program aimed at taking their entire supply, it was confirmed today in government circles.

While Munitions Minister Howe told The Canadian Press he could not confirm that civilian production on a small scale has been resumed, other sources said such output has begun.

Mr. Howe himself said it is "quite possible".

Canada has dealt with the beverage-alcohol production question "as a supply matter, not as a temperance matter," the munitions minister said.

"We required a large amount of industrial alcohol and the chemicals controller ordered the distilleries to make it.

"We drew up a schedule which we thought would require the entire production capacity of the distilleries. So far the distilleries have been supplying industrial alcohol up to the figure set forth in the schedule ,and I think they will do the same this month.

No Law Against It.

"If they have been able to make some potable liquor in addition, there is no law against it.

"In the case of some distilleries they had a few old-fashioned units that were not able to produce industrial alcohol. They probably were making some potable liquor in these units all along."

Under a dominion government war order effective Nov. 1, 1942 the equipment and facilities of distilleries had to be used only in the production of distilled spirits, and these spirits could not be produced or used for beverage purposes.

There has been no official indication that this order banning production of beverage alcohol has been withdrawn. Presumably permission to resume output of potable spirits on a small scale has been approved by the chemicals controller whose office is in Montreal.

Statement Declined.

Officials declined a detailed statement on how much production is being permitted.

Some months ago suggestion was made that distilleries, which had been contracting on alcohol for war production, might be permitted a day or two each month on which they could make spirits.

It was understood permission to make small quantities of spirits was given only after it was demonstrated that more than enough alcohol was being produced to meet war requirements and that no phase of the war program would be affected by distilleries turning briefly to their former civilian production.

Canadians Engaged In Heavy Fighting

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 8th Army in Italy, Dec. 8 (Delayed)—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops, engaged in the heaviest fighting since they landed on the toe of Italy from invasion barges three months ago, are battling to expand their foothold on a strongly-defended river line.

From positions on the soft, green slopes dominating the river, the Germans putting up stronger resistance than the Canadians have encountered at any time in the Italian campaign. The enemy's determination to hold the line was shown by the strength of his artillery and employment of aircraft which must operate against overwhelming odds. Too, the German troops are the best the Canadians have fought.

Troops from central and western Canada who broke into the German defences yesterday (Tuesday) and held their ground were followed across today by other central Canadian units which went forward under a heavy artillery barrage which forced the Germans under cover.

Partisans Rally To Tito's Appeal

London, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Rallying to an appeal by Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) to smash new powerful Nazi thrusts in Yugoslavia, Partisan forces have hurled back strong German attacks in Bosnia and Croatia, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, the Free XLP radio announced today.

In his appeal yesterday Tito said the attacking Germans were reinforced with formations of Ustachis and Chetniks, Bulgarian units, Albanian Quislings and a motley formation composed of fighters from Nazi-occupied countries.

Today's communique said only small-scale action was taking place in other parts of the country.

Previously, they were allowed only army issue luggage—kit bag and haversack — and crushed clothing was a major difficulty.

Fermented Apples Intoxicate Flock of Robins

Mountain Lakes, N.Y., Dec. 13—(CP)—Investigations of a poet, Arthur Stringer, has led to the unearthing of a crab-apple speakeasy, a bark-cloaked bootlegger and a bunch of intoxicated robins.

It happened when Stringer noticed that the robins about his place were not going south this year—instead they were hanging around the crab-apple tree in his front yard and pecking away at the fruit on it.

What really led to the investigation, however, was the effect the fruit had on the birds. They acted, in fact, oddly like birds with a bun on.

This so perplexed Stringer he passed one of his apples over to a chemist friend. And the verdict was that the apples had frozen, then thawed and fermented to make a form of applejack.

With the hard cider to fortify them the robins felt no need to seek warmer climates. Then, the other day, a snow storm forced them to slip disconsolately off to the sunny south, taking their hangovers with them.

Pace of War Speeds Up

How the pace of the war has been speeded up and how much more heavily the blows are falling on the enemy is clear enough from reports of the last few days. They tell the Admiralty story of the successes of British warships and planes in sinking five German submarines and damaging three others in a two-day battle in the North Atlantic when the U-boat pack was prepared for an attack on a convoy. This reveals a story of the superiority of the British arms against the Hun sea wolves. The Allied bag was a major portion of the enemy submarine concentration. This was a double victory, a convoy was saved and eight U-boats destroyed or damaged.

Near Kiev bulge is being fought the greatest battle since Stalingrad and there is a body of opinion that this battle will possibly have more serious effects for the Germans than even the battle of Stalingrad.

More trouble for the Axis has been timed with the raids on the German Reich and on Sofia.

Canadian troops figured in another advance on the Adriatic and the British under Montgomery have established another bridgehead.

These are but a few events which showed the increased tempo of the Allied blows against Germany on land, on sea and in the air. In every one of them the Germans are the losers.

So the war sweeps on against the cornered Germans, prisoners within Hitler's so-called "fortress of Europe," within which are those overrun peoples who will be the thorn in the side of the aggressors as the Allies from east, south and west break through over the defences of Hitler's empire of aggression.

Momentum of the struggle will gain as time passes, event after event showing that the end of the tyrant and aggressor is defeat and death.

Cost of Feeding

On the basis of prices that prevailed in 1935-36, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians have figured the cost of rearing a child from birth to the age of 18 when the head of the family makes $2,500 a year. After allowing for the amount of food consumed at different stages of growth it is concluded that for the first two years the cost is slightly less than $80 a year for a boy and almost $155 for a girl. From birth to the age of 18 a boy consumes about $2,360 worth of food and a girl $2,180.

Weather's Changes

Winter weather was ushered in with a storm and with one fell swoop it has lost any opportunity it had of equalling a record set in these parts a number of years ago when the winter, passed without the mercury dipping down to or under zero. Friday night's and Saturday morning's gale was a surprise to everyone. But the quick recovery which the temperature made on Saturday afternoon and evening back to more familiar levels for this year and also on Sunday looked like an augury for mild weather. But again wind and cold returned.

There is one benefit in colder weather and that is the effect on the outbreak of the mild type of "flu" now striking in many parts of Ontario. The wet and damp weather of the autumn and early winter was not conducive to the more rugged health, according to doctors and it is blamed for the type of influenza which has come into almost every community. It is not of the virulent type which hit the world in the autumn of 1918, the last year of the First World War, when so many people in every part of the globe succumbed to its ravages. The acute period of the present "flu" is short, rarely longer than three days but recovery is protracted often with a nasty irritable cough predominating. According to medical men everywhere the best treatment is to go to bed and stay there until recovery. Dr. Jackson, M.O.H. of Toronto, says that it is a moot question what the infection really is as it has not been classified with any type of influenza bacteriologically or otherwise. It leaves no serious complications though infants affected have developed diarrhoea and there have been cases of throat and ear infection reported.

If the mercury has to dip to lower levels to clear up this outbreak which is not an epidemic, everyone will agree to have the mercury go lower.

But most people look on colder weather anyway at this time of the year as timely and so, come cold weather or mild, everyone will be fairly well satisfied.

Those who recently read the column "Looking Backwards" in the twenty years ago section saw the record there of unusually mild weather with the bay open, golfers playing on the courses and everything indicating a mild season. In fact weather is one of the most interesting matters of experience to humans and animals alike.

Divining Rod

The dowsing or divining rod has been a subject of controversy for many centuries, comments a New York Times columnist. It is surrounded with superstition and folklore. The professional dowser has his vehement defenders and his articulate scoffers. In most rural communities there is one person who has a reputation as a "water finder." Many farmers who pretend to laugh at the divining rod make a dicker with the dowser—and agree to pay if water be found.

The divining rod was so well known in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries that writers commented upon it. In the same century that saw the Pinta, the Nina and Santa Maria cross the Atlantic miners were using the dowsing rod to locate certain minerals in various localities in Europe. Scientists have studied the phenomenon and at least one has publicly said that the rod bends downward "without voluntary deception on the part of the dowser."

Anyone who has observed the process knows its fascination. One may scoff; but he must wonder. To watch a man walk back and forth over the ground and then to see the forked branch of witch hazel, willow, apple or beech turn irresistibly downward is to glimpse a bit of the supernatural—if one believes in dowsing.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, "the best dowsers have generally been more or less illiterate men, engaged in some humble occupation." Perhaps men in "humble" occupations are closer to the spirit of Mother Earth. At any rate, the dowser helps find water for man and his animals. Whether we believe in his powers or not, he is part of our rural folklore.

Tailor-Made Hospital

(Australian News Letter)

Instead of cutting down the trees to make way for the building, the Allied Works Council, which is building Queensland's largest hospital for the U.S. forces, is shaping it, where necessary, to "fit" the trees.

Roof eaves which would strike tree trunks are being cut away to guarantee that all buildings get the maximum benefit of available shade. In other parts, wards and buildings have been built in position to allow the trees to cover them.

Layout of the buildings has also been staggered to catch every breeze.

Consisting of 211 buildings, the hospital, which is nearing completion, will cost about £250,000. In December cattle grazed on the 102 acres it now occupies.

It was a British officer of the Indian Medical Service, Surgeon-Major Ronald Ross, who discovered, forty-five years ago, that malaria is carried by the mosquito. Since that time much important work on malaria control has been done in India. A semi-official Indian Research Fund Association, founded in 1911, supports the Malaria Institute of India, whose work is internationally recognized. A special grant from the Government of India has been devoted to intensive control schemes carried on for a period of years in restricted areas to test the methods evolved by the Malaria Institute. As in many other fields, war has speeded up the processes of peace-time, but the success of the present anti-malarial measures is due largely to the long years of research in India before the war.

HIS CHRISTMAS

His Christmas went a month ago
Unto a place we may not know,
Where cannons roar and rifles flame,
Upon a ship we may not name.

His Christmas parcel, cut to size,
Had neither pudding, fruit nor pies,
But was by regulation stripped
To gifts which could be safely shipped.

Yet, we had snuggled in between
A gift, more to be sensed than seen:
The love which set all eyes ablaze
And marked his happier Christmas days.

And when the bells ring out at eve,
And the Lord's supper we receive,
We'll kneel together and in prayer
Share Christmas with him over there.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 13th., 1923

The extraordinary mildness of the present season recalls some reminiscences and experiences of the past, including the sail on the bay to Massassaga Point where a picnic was held Christmas Day, 1879. A large number of people attended the picnic and enjoyed the boat trip to and from the point. Up to last year Mayor-elect W. C. Mikel and Mr. Robert Bogle held the record for late out of doors bathing, it being reported that they celebrated St. Andrew's Day, November 30th., by taking a plunge into the bay off Zwick's Island, but their record has been broken by Col. W. N. Ponton who took a dip in Lake Ontario while at his cottage near Consecon on Sunday last, December 9th. The late J. W. Johnson also had a November record for bathing in the bay.

30 YEARS AGO.

DECEMBER 13th., 1913

Colonel, the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, addressed the members of the Belleville Men's Canadian Club at a banquet held at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

How would you like to carry a hundred-weight of flour on your back for fifteen miles through a bush? This feat of endurance was accomplished by many of the early Canadian settlers and no compliments expected, either. The flour was often in a wooden barrel. The barrel made the load more difficult to "tote" but was a prized object and well worth the extra trouble.

Here's the reason why barrels as we know them were so much sought after by the colonists. "Store" barrels were as a rule available only to lucky folks who lived in or near the hamlets. Most barrels were home-made. The settlers lugged home the hollow trunks of trees from the forests, and from these fashioned barrels. Into the barrels went pork, venison and squirrel salted down for winter eating.

Frequently log cabins were raised around broad stumps of trees. At mealtimes the stump became a table with the addition of a smooth slab of wood. Hollowed out by carving or burning, the stump metamorphosed into a hand-mill for grinding corn and wheat. Those were the days when every house was surrounded by a little clearing burnt black as coal. You see, the trees were cut down and a bonfire made of their stumps and the grass and underbrush were equally charred.

The harrows, like almost all the implements, were made of wood. They were shaped a V so that they could pass easily between stumps. The teeth were slanted back to enable the harrows to slide over three roots.

Canadians Always Fight Well Says Gen. Montgomery

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 11 — (Delayed) — (CP) — Asking Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British 8th Army, about the fighting qualities of the Canadians who lead the Army's advance up the Adriatic coastal side of Italy is almost an unnecessary question.

"There is no need to ask how the Canadians are fighting because they always fight well," he told correspondents at Canadian headquarters today (Saturday) during a visit to the front. The wiry general appeared satisfied with the battle's progress but the only other thing he would say to the correspondents was to ask "When in the war going to end?"

Meantime the Canadians deepened their Moro river bridgehead despite fierce German resistance and neared the coastal town of Ortona, about eight miles southeast of the important port of Pescara.

They had passed San Leonardo, four miles south of Ortona, after anchoring their positions on each side of the town. Two days ago (Thursday) the Germans counter-attacked and forced them to withdraw from a position directly east of San Leonardo but the position now has been fully restored.

Today, Western Canada troops advanced to within a short distance of an important road junction north of San Leonardo while men of an eastern unit, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, moved north along the coastal road to Ortona. The Hasty-Petes found their march much easier than the Westerners who met stiff German opposition.

Engineers Build Corduroy Road Under Shell Fire

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 10 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Canadian engineers, working under unceasing fire from artillery, mortars and small arms, built a 300-yard corduroy road across the Moro river near the Adriatic enabling tanks to cross to the northern side of the stream to support Canadian infantrymen. The Canadians suffered no fatal casualties.

For hours night and day the sappers, commanded by Maj. R. B. Fraser of Toronto and Montreal, worked without rest doing a job which the commanding officer said could not have been better had it been on a training site instead of a battlefield.

In addition to building the road, the Engineers cleaned out a German machine-gun post, swept mines and tended the wounds of their own and infantry casualties. They also captured or passed back to rear positions 17 German prisoners.

Platoon Commanders included Lieut. P. R. V. Carr-Harris of Kingston, Ont. and Lieut. E. T. Galway of Toronto.

Building the road was not the end of the job because it had to be maintained and improved. Fraser's company still is doing its share but is getting help from other sappers including platoon commander Lieut. John Burgoin, Chatham, Ont.

The company included: Cpl. Fred Belton, Kitchener, Ont.; Sprs. John Dubeau, Moose Creek, Ont., Allan Paton, Noranda, Que., Emile Lortie, Ansonville, Ont., Joe Osler, Sudbury, Ont., Desmond White, Perth, Ont., A. W. Aisto, Haileybury.

The War Today— Military, Political Developments In Balkans Are Significant

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Among the most dramatic situations — and I believe one of the most important — thus far recorded in an active weekend rests in the politico-military events in the explosive Balkans.

That theatre not only is of military moment to the Allies, but there we have under way significant political developments which will mean much to the post-war world.

Three thrones — those of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece — are rocking like small boats in a hurricane. The governments of Rumania and Hungary also are being lashed by the storm.

Yugoslav Crisis of Vast Importance

The Yugoslav crisis is of vast importance, and this revolves around the colorful leadership of Marshal Josip — "Tito," they call him— commander of the Partisan guerilla forces, which are made up of peasants and hardy mountain folk.

As the cards now lie, Tito is going to have a major role in smashing the Hitlerite forces in the Balkan peninsula. But that's likely to be only part of his mission. Looking ahead through the smoke of battle, I think we shall find him influencing the political future of his own country and consequently of the rest of the Balkans.

Many of Tito's followers wear the badges of Communism and salute with the clenched fist. They are opposed to the government of youthful King Peter, and recently Tito has proclaimed a Partisan government. The Turkish radio says Moscow has recognized this government, though Moscow hasn't confirmed this.

200,000 in Tito's Army

Tito started his resistance against the Germans with a handful of crudely-armed men and boys. Under his leadership this force grew until he has 200,000 or more — a motley crowd wearing divers uniforms, or ordinary garb.

So well has the Marshal done that we have the extraordinary development of the Anglo-American Allies throwing the most of their military support to him, although they had been backing King Peter's government in Cairo and his little army in the field under his Minister of War, Gen. Mihailovich. This is a doubly interesting situation, inasmuch as the two armies are at loggerheads and have even had armed clashes.

SPEED OF SHIPS

Reckoning the speed of ships in knots is a survival of the earliest practical method of ascertaining the speed of vessels.

The knot is a unit of speed equivalent to one nautical mile an hour. When a ship goes eight nautical miles an hour her speed is said to be eight knots.

Originally the speed of a ship was determined by casting out a logline with a triangular piece of wood weighted with lead attached to the end to keep it upright and to retard its passage through the water. When the line was permitted to pass freely from a reel on board the ship the weighted piece of wood remained stationary for all practical purposes. The line itself was divided into sections, called knots because they were marked by pieces of cord worked in between the strands of the line.

The distance between these "knots" bore the same ratio to a nautical mile as 28 seconds does to an hour (3,600 seconds); that is, they were 47 feet three inches apart. A nautical or geographical mile is one-sixtieth of a degree on the earth's equator, or about 6,080 feet. Therefore the number of knots that ran off the reel in 28 seconds by a sandglass showed with fair accuracy the number of nautical miles the vessel was travelling an hour.

Six nautical miles are equal to about seven English statute miles, so a ship travelling twelve knots is actually travelling at the rate of almost 14 statute miles an hour.

Strictly speaking, the knot is not a unit of distance, and it is loose usage to employ the term as a synonym of "nautical mile." It is a unit of speed, and instead of saying a ship is travelling eight knots an hour, we should say simply that it is travelling eight knots.

Although knot as a unit of speed is still used, the old method of measuring the speed of vessels has been superseded almost entirely by automatic logs which register on dials.

There is no etymological relation between the words "knot" and "nautical," as many suppose. The former is derived from Anglo-Saxon "cnotta," meaning knot in the sense of intertwined cord, while the latter comes to us through Latin from the Greek "nautikos," an adjective formed from "naus," ship.

British Girls' Legs Warmer, This Winter

London, Dec. 13 (CP) — Many British women who bravely faced last winter with bare legs will wear stockings this year, due to the recently lowered coupon value.

This year three coupons will buy two pairs of semi-fashioned stockings. Last year, two coupons bought one pair. It still takes three coupons to buy one pair of the finer, full-fashioned stockings, but English women have become attached to the more sturdy, less glamorous mesh tubes.

Stylists over here say that although wartime stockings may not do anything for a girl's legs, they are actually longer wearing and of better quality than peacetime legwear.

The Marry-Go-Round

TIPS FOR ROMEOS

Love-making is one of the fine arts. But, alas, the artists are few and the artisans are many!

Few men are born Great Lovers. Yet, every man seems to think that he can win the amateur championship, these days, without even studying the rudiments of the game. The modern Romeo talks a lot about his technique; but his practical demonstration is not always up to the broadcast.

I am thinking, at this moment, of a certain radio program, on which six young servicemen (bless their hearts!) are given a chance to compete for a blind date with a glamour-girl. Some of them have been pretty smooth; but I have yet to hear one star the Girl, in his selling-talk.

Still, I am tuning in each week, hoping to hear some inspired Romeo or Casanova begin with, "Say, Beautiful, I'm the luckiest man in the world, to have a chance for a date with YOU!" That line is far more effective than any selling-talk he might give her, extolling his own good points.

The average man would give his right hand or his best set of golf-clubs to have an irresistible way and a fool-proof system with women. Yet, the late George Ade gave the formula for it, in two sentences. "Star HER. Fill her with self-admiration — and what slops over will be yours!"

Of course, the seasoned woman-charmer, who really has his heart in his work, studied each girl at least as much as he studies his looking-glass. This takes TIME—but so does all art. Whereas the so-called "wolf" seems to have a stock "line" and a standardized method of approach, which he thinks will be effective with any girl, no matter what her type.

However, "wolves" stand very little chance, these days, besides the genuine, he-man type, that war and the uniform have made popular. Every man has his mission in life; and there is something to be said for the girl-charmer, whose only mission was to put a brief glamor of romance into the lives of a lot of women. It was worth something to a girl to be made love to artistically and romantically, even if she knew the love-making was ersatz. But all that is past, with the passing of the wolf.

Nevertheless, the modern Romeo could learn much from the old-fashioned lover. And a little ardent but restrained devotion would be manna from Heaven to many a girl.

The charm of the old-fashioned lover was that he knew WOMEN, and understood them. He could say more with a look, a gesture, an unfinished sentence than a modern Romeo can say with his smoothest selling-talk.

He was so convincing, that he almost convinced himself that the girl he happened to be kissing was "the only girl in the world!" That's the point. To be effective and convincing, a man's love-making must have at least one per cent LOVE in it! He must convince himself of his sincerity!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party For a Serviceman's Bride.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

In September my daughter went to the training base to marry the young man she had been engaged to for some time. Now she has written me that she expects to come home within two or three months, and I would love to give her a party of some sort to make up for the home wedding we had planned if her fiance could have gotten a leave to come here.

I'd like to begin planning this party now. But I don't know just what sort of an affair to call it, and I don't know what kind of invitation to send. Will you give me your help, please?

R. A.

In your invitations why not write just the words that came to your pen when you wrote to me. . . ."give her a party?" "Party" is a friendly, festive word, more appropriate for the gathering-of-friends you are planning than the word "reception". However, if as your plans become more definite, you decide on a particular kind of party. . .for example, a tea-party, cocktail party, buffet supper. . . then you can say this in your invitations.

If you want to go a bit formal in your invitations, say for a tea-party on Sunday afternoon, you may properly write the invitations on visiting-cards or on the inside pages of Informals. Like this:

In honor of Mrs. John Soldier
Tea
Sunday, January 30,
Four to seven

But what I think you'd like better, and what I advise you to do is to write your "motherly" invitations on the white, doublesheeted notepaper on which you wrote to me. Somewhat like this:

Dear Kay:

Sally is coming home next week! (I can't write that wonderful news without an exclamation point!) I want to give her a welcoming-home party, and have with us the dear friends who would have been with us if we could have had the home wedding we had planned to have. So I hope you and Bob will come in to have a cup of tea and a reunion with us on Sunday, January 30th., around four o'clock. Do say we can expect you.

Cordially,

Boy-and-Girl Gifts.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Is it proper for a boy and girl to give each other gifts of jewelry. But when a girl and young man are not engaged they should exchange only gifts of an impersonal kind, gifts which can be made "personal" by thoughtfulness and imagination. And even so, the girl should let the man take the initiative in gift-giving.

Christmas Tip.

If you're going to give a "practical" gift to a child, give the packaging an 'extra added attraction". To the package tie a candy cane, or a glistening box of sweets, or a little toy or game or a small box of child's letter-paper, or a Christmas tree decoration, or a small basket filled with slim striped candies, or a string of small, bright-colored tinkling bells.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Have War-Time Cities Waved Good bye to Decent Manners?

Don't expect too much of casual, war-time acquaintances. The young man you meet every morning in the bus, or juggling a tray next to you at the cafeteria, is really not pledged to knight errantry. So please don't get your feelings hurt if he short-changes you in matters of courtesy.

Here's one girl's experience:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have a government job live in a boarding-house, am fairly comfortable—though lonesome. At the same table sat a young man fairly good-looking, rather bumptious, glad to interpret world happenings to the rest of the boarders.

"From the time we began passing the salt and peper to each other he asked me to go out with him—go anywhere—to a movie, a concert, a night-club or to one of the hotels to dance. He claimed to be dying with lonesomeness, had never met anyone worthwhile in the city until he met me. His government job wasn't big enough for him. Felt he wasn't winning the war and would like to go home.

"My grandfather was a missionary, and I thought to make something of the bumptious young man. He didn't impress me as romantic timber, but I thought I'd like to civilize him a little, and leave him for another girl.

"I agreed to go out with him Dutch treat, and he raised no objections. As we waited in the lobby of a very crowded movie, he began flirting with a couple of tough-looking babes. Before we got in, he excused himself, went over, spoke to them and told me he was bringing over two friends to sit with us. They confided he had just picked them up, thought it funny to have one man among three.

"When the show was over, the party decided to go off and have drinks. To the delight of all three I declined the invitation got away from them in the crowd and went home alone. I just want to ask if this sort of thing is usual in war-time.

E. J. P."

It seems to me such behaviour as you describe would be objectionable in the social life of the Cannibal Islands. The young man was evidently unacquainted with the decencies of life. You were not to blame in any way, and while I hate to moralize, it's not well to expect too much of wartime casual acquaintances.

Shock Treatment for Psychoses Found Valuable

Shock treatment of mental disturbances has been in use for about eight years. Today we know that this type of treatment was restored to normal many thousands of persons who would otherwise still be hopeless mental defectives.

There is a certain group of mental disorders known as psychoses. These disorders include schizophrenia or dementia praecox, a condition in which the patient is said to have a split personality, and to suffer from delusions.

In the past, many of these cases were considered almost hopeless. There was no method of treatment which seemed to do them a great deal of good. For the most part they were treated in institutions, over a period of many years' time. But few of them were ever able to return to normal life. However, since 1935, new forms of treatment for these conditions have been presented, particularly the shock therapy.

Doctor Franklin G. Ebaugh, of the University of Colorado, has made a survey of about 70,000 patients who were treated over a six-year period with various forms of shock treatment. The shock may be brought about in three ways: first, byt the use of insulin; second, with the drug called metrazol; and third, with electricity.

When shock is produced, the patient becomes unconscious. Before using insulin, the patient is first carefully examined to make sure that the treatment will not be especially dangerous to him. If he is suffering from high blood pressure, heart disease, tuberculosis, or trouble with the liver, kidneys, or pancreas, the treatment cannot be used.

The treatment is given each day before breakfast, the amount of insulin being gradually increased until the patient becomes unconscious as a result of the lowering of the blood sugar. Three or four hours later the attack is ended by giving a sugar solution known as glucose—by mouth, if possible, otherwise the sugar is injected into the vein. It is best to give the glucose solution gradually, so as to slowly restore the patient to consciousness.

Metrazol is especially useful in those mental disorders which are accompanied by depression and exhaustion. The metrazol is given by injection into a vein. Within from five to fifteen seconds after it is injected a convulsion occurs. The patient must be carefully guarded during the attack to make sure that no injury occurs to the muscles of the back and spine. This treatment is usually given twice a week for about four weeks. If improvement occurs, it is generally noticed after about the fourth treatment.

The electric shock treatment is given by applying electrodes to the temples. As a result of the electric shock the patient faints, much as he would were he having an epileptic attack. The unconsciousness lasts for about forty-five seconds. While there is some danger from this method of treatment, it produces excellent results in many persons afflicted with the types of mental disorders which formerly were considered almost hopeless.

Fashion Flashes

BY-THE-FIRESIDE fashions get prettier all the time. A new fireside fashion consists of a long, very flared tunic of purple wool, worn with black velvet slacks and a blouse of Irish lace.

NO MATTER how many smart cloth coats take the fashion spotlight, it is the fine fur coat that is the star. A beautiful new coat is of Persian lamb with mink cuffs finishing the easy sleeves that are very belled at the wrist. Mink collar and revers on the slim, wrap-around coat.

WHIMSY marks several of the beautiful prints ready for late winter wear. Our favorite is a pale gray silk crepe with a print of tiny, furry, gray-brown squirrels sniffing little yellow and green flowers.

FOOL THE FUEL situation and laugh at wintry blasts outdoors with the aid of a warm fur vest. The best model we have seen is a slim, trim number of hair seal, with sleeves of hand-knit beige woollen. Grand with slacks or under a coat.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY WARTIME FOOD HINTS

by Martha Logan

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

Corned Beef and Cabbage

Jiggs' favourite meal is tops from a nutritional point of view

If there's one dish all men go for, it's Corned Beef and Cabbage. And it's a fine nourishing meal into the bargain!

To Cook Corned Beef and Cabbage

Ask your butcher for a suitable piece from the brisket, rump or plate. Cover with boiling water and simmer (do not boil) until tender—for a 5 lb. piece allow 3½ hours. Add cabbage cut in sections 20 minutes before cooking is complete. Serve dumplings as extender. Cook enough to serve once hot, once cold and once as sizzling, savoury corned beef hash.

Got your copy of "Meat Complete" yet? No? Then send 10¢ for Martha Logan's famous hand book of meat cookery to Swift Canadian Co. Limited, Dept. OA48, Toronto.

Corn your own Beef

If your butcher doesn't have corned beef, you may like to pickle a piece from the round, or brisket yourself. Here is an easy way:

The Pickle

2 quarts cold water
½ lb. salt
½ cup (packed) brown sugar
⅛ oz. salt peter

Boil together for ten minutes, skimming frequently. Strain into an earthen-ware crock. As soon as the pickle is cold, put in your meat and leave it for 10 days. If the pickle does not cover the meat, turn it once a day.

MEAT is material of war

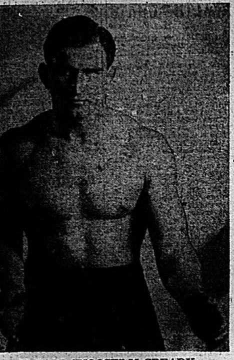
THE ONLY EXCEPTION



IS EARL "MOOSE" McCREADY

When Promoter Frank Tunney lined up his final wrestling show for the Hume Arena on Thursday night, with one exception he gathered together the most unorthodox gang of muscle-benders in the business. The one exception, however, is Big Earl McCready, the Moose of Aurora, who meets "Hard-Boiled" Hannigan, a ring ruffian of the first water.

Marse Tunney announced today there would be two main bouts Thursday night. First "Irish Jerry" Monahan will battle it out with "Jack the Ripper" Reeder, as tough and rough a ring hombre as comes to Canada. Next will be the second main attraction between Hannigan and McCready and this bout was arranged especially for local fans, who took exception to Hannigan's ring tactics of late. No doubt McCready's supernatural strength will take care of any of Hannigan's dirty work. Then efforts to get a suitable bad man to meet Al (The Bunny) Dunlop will round out "villains'" night at the local palace de sport on Thursday night. Rangers Win First N.H.L. Tilt in Sixteen Starts This Season Defeating Boston 6-4

Montreal Scores First Victory for Road Team Since November 21st

LEAFS SPLIT

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Unlike last season when their rags-to-riches act provided some of the National Hockey League's best theatre, Boston Bruins were building up to burlesque billing today as "straight men" in ending two of the league's most tedious streaks.

Bruins descended to the role of foil a week ago Sunday when they shaded Montreal Canadiens 5-4 to halt Montreal's undefeated sequence at 14 games. Last night, Boston was "in the middle" again, losing 6-4 as New York Rangers startled 15,369 indulgent home fans with their first triumph in 16 starts.

Third-period goals by Ott Heller, Ossie Aubuchon and Chuck Scherza powered Rangers to the victory, highlight of weekend combat which saw league standings remain unchanged after five games drew cumulative paid attendance of 64,460. Four teams saw action twice and all broke even, the two winning teams Saturday taking the short end Sunday while Saturday's vanquished won their Sabbath engagements.

Toronto Maple Leafs caught Canadiens with their ranks thinned by influenza and injury, winning 4-2 Saturday as 17-year-old Ted Kennedy streaked for two goals and helped set up another. He or his linemates, Mel Hill and George Boothman, figured in every Toronto goal.

Herb Cain High Scorer

At Boston Saturday Herb Cain collected two goals in Bruins' 9-6 verdict over Rangers, stretching his season's total to 17 for the league high in that department. Buzz Boll and Art Jackson followed suit with two apiece.

It looked like a repeat dose at New York Sunday when Bep Guidolin and Bill Cowley shot Bruins into a two-goal lead, but Rangers kept nibbling at that margin until finally they entered the third period on even terms, 3-3. Heller, Aubuchon and Scherza then fired the decisive goals before Cowley got his second for Bruins.

Scherza crashed into a goal upright in the third period and was taken to hospital, where it was announced a rupture was possible although no bones were broken.

Leafs, who gained sole possession of second place Saturday, dropped back into a second-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks by losing 3-2 at Chicago Sunday. A goal by Cully Dahlstrom midway through the 3rd period broke up a tensely-waged duel and gave Hawks their seventh straight victory on home ice.

Canadiens regained their nine-point margin over the field by conquering Detroit Red Wings 5-1 Sunday. The decision fashioned largely on two-goal efforts by Ray Getliffe and Leo Lamoureux, marked the first victory for a road team since Nov. 21.

SINGLE SENIOR LOOP OPERATING IN QUEBEC PROV.

Also Only One Junior League Whose Winner is Eligible for Memorial Cup

ACES ON TOP

Montreal, Dec. 13—(CP)—Quebec province will have to draw its Allan Cup contender from a single senior loop this season, and the same thing will apply for its Memorial Cup bid despite an upsurge in junior hockey this season.

The only senior circuit in operation is the Quebec Senior Hockey League at present a four-team loop after it had been successively cut from six and then five teams. Several intermediate or unaffiliated senior loops are in operation but they will be making no bid for provincial honors.

The Q.S.H.L. hit tough going at the start, when Montreal Army and then Cornwall Army dropped out because of player losses. The four remaining teams appear to have settled down to the second revision of their schedule now, despite occasional rumors that the league might be further cut before the end of the season.

Quebec Aces lead with five wins and a draw in their first six games. Montreal Air Force has been hard hit by injuries and player losses and is two games behind Aces. Ottawa Commandos are third, a game behind Air Force and Montreal Royals are fourth.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has adopted "A" and "B" ratings for its junior teams this season and the Montreal Junior Amateur Hockey Association is the only loop drawing "A" rating and therefore the loop that will declare a Memorial Cup contestant.

Royals have jumped away to a fast start in the "A" series and on their showing to-date are considered the team most likely to seek the Memorial Cup for Quebec. Their present 13 points give them a five-point margin on Canadiens, with Concordia and the winless Verdun squad trailing.

FRONTENAC ARMY COASTS TO 5-3 WIN OVER NAVY

Kingston Gains Sole Possession of Second Place by Victory

TISDALE STARS

By The Canadian Press

Scoring four times in the first five minutes of the contest at Kingston Saturday night, Frontenac Army coasted to a 5-3 win over Toronto Navy in the only scheduled game of the Senior O.H.A. of the evening. The win gave the Limestone City soldiers sole possession of second position in the league standing with a record of six victories and three losses, two points behind Hamilton Majors and four points ahead of St. Catharines.

Tisdale led off in the scoring for Kingston 30 seconds after the opening and, after Doran had whizzed No. 2 past goalie Red Gilbert, notched another a minute later to give him top honors of the set-to with two goals. Corrigan and Foster scored for Kingston, following Joe Klukay's initial tally for the Tars. All of this scoring came in the first six minutes of the encounter to provide Frontenacs with a 5-1 margin.

There was no more scoring until the third stanza when Art Thomson and Scotty Mair each found the target for the Gobs.

HERSHEY BEARS LEAD AMERICAN LOOP BY POINT

Bow to Providence 4-3 and Draw With Capitals Over Weekend

BARONS SECOND

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears today remained atop the American Hockey League with a one-point margin after bowing to Providence Reds 4-3 last night and pulling a 1-1 draw out of Saturday night's encounter with Indianapolis Capitals.

In second place with a total of 24 points were the Cleveland Barons—leaders of the western section —who had a more successful weekend. Saturday night they whipped Providence Reds 5-1 and last night they tied Buffalo Bisons 1-1.

Bisons gained the weekend's only shutout by blanking Pittsburgh Hornets 4-0 Saturday night. But Hornets came through with a 5-3 victory over Capitals last night.

Indianapolis defenceman Roy Glover scored the first goal at Hershey Saturday night and Peggy O'Neill evened the count.

In last night's game at Providence, the Reds had a 3-1 lead over Hershey at the end of the second period. George Patterson scored Bears' second goal early in the third, only to have Gabby Sherwood retaliate less than a minute later. At 6:03 Gaston Gauthier tallied for Hershey, but after that repeated attempts to score were foiled by the determined Reds

Scores Three Goals

Centre Les Cunningham scored three goals and assisted in another one as Cleveland Barons trimmed Reds 5-1 Saturday night. Cleveland led all the way and was ahead 3-0 at the end of the second. Dock Adolph knocked in the other two goals while Reds' only counter was collected by Bill Whittet.

In the Bison-Hornet encounter at Pittsburgh Saturday night right winger. Maxie Bennett tallied twice for Buffalo, while Frank Beisler and Eldred Kobussen collected the other two counters.

Last night Bisons' Bob Dill got their lone goal in their 1-1 tie with Barons. Les Cunningham tied the score on a pass from Pete Bessone.

Big Victor Lynn, 16-year-old defenceman collected two goals in 16 seconds late in the game to give Indianapolis their 5-3 victory over Hornets last night.

Count Fleet Awarded Horse Of the Year Crown by Experts

(By The Canadian Press)

The horse of the year is Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Fleet, according to a vote announced Saturday at New York by a number of track correspondents handicappers and turf columnists. Selection was based on a record of wins in all six starts during the season.

The annual poll, conducted by the daily Racing Form and the Morning Telegraph, resulted in the choice of George D. Widener's Platter as the best two-year-old, with Brownell Combs' Durazna being favored as the best juvenile filly. Widener's Stefanita secured the vote as the outstanding three-year-old filly while the honors for handicap horse were divided between Lou Tufano's Market Wise and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Devil Diver. The pick of the steeplechasers was considered to be Harold Talbott's Brother Jones. Count Fleet, of course, carried the vote for the best three-year-old colt as well as that for the best all-round performer.

Founder of the Star Class in sailing races and commodore of the International Star Class Yacht Racing Association, George A Corry, 80, died at Port Washington, L.I., after a long illness. He built the first boat of the type in 1911.

As a result of the deportation of Oslo University students from Norway by the Nazis, Sweden Saturday broke athletic relations with Germany by terminating sport competitions with that country "as long as the war lasts."

Connie Mack announced Saturday Al Simmons, veteran outfielder, was slated to the Philadelphia Athletics next spring for the third time under an offer which gives him the role of player-coach. Simmons was recently released by the Boston Red Sox.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP)—There's a move afoot to give Canadian professional boxing more centralized government. Lionel Conacher, chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, wrote to Charlie Jones, head of the Vancouver Boxing Commission, suggesting the coast organization might wish to affiliate with the Canadian Boxing Federation, which governs eastern boxing. Jones, it is reported, expressed interest and Conacher has forwarded details of the negotiations to Frank Hogan, Montreal, chairman of the C.B.F.

A Western Canada Federation with headquarters at Edmonton controls western boxing and for a time relations between it and the C.B.F. were strained — to put it mildly. I'm assured by Elmer Ferguson, secretary of the C.B.F., that nothing but affection and kind words passes now between eastern and western organizations. Perhaps the time is ripe for a wedding.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara reports Quebec Senior Hockey League attendance is declining in Montreal and the executives are worrying...Before the First Great War Phil Taylor and Norm Falkner were speed-skating and barrel-jumping rivals in Saskatoon. They went to war and Falkner returned without a leg. Taylor became one of the most internationally-famous trick skaters, his daughter, Megan, is one of the great woman figure skaters. Falkner became a one-legged skater featured at United States rinks but now skates only for recreation. Taylor, visiting Toronto with a touring ice troupe, and Falkner were reunited for a visit last week..... What do professional girl athletes do in the off season? Mixed Up:

Johnny Mahaffy was a professional hockey player with Montreal Canadiens until he joined the army. As a soldier he was automatically an amateur again so he played for Montreal Royals. Then he got his army discharge and found that he could no longer play for Royals because, as a civilian, he was still Canadiens property. He could have become an amateur if all N.H.L. clubs had waived on him and the C.A.H.A. had okayed him. But New York Rangers wanted him so he's a professional. Fun, isn't it?

On Wednesday evening Group 2 in the junior "B" section of the O.H.A. will convene at the Hume Arena, S. R. Burrows, O.H.A. executive member, announced today. Mr. Burrows will act as convener and a schedule will be drawn.

Although there has been much speculation as to the number of junior hockey teams entering into group No. 2 no doubt the number will not exceed four, despite rumors indicating more teams were anxious to sponsor junior hockey in the Bay of Quinte area. At present it looks very much like Trenton Juniors, Stirling - Marmora "Combines", Belleville Juniors and Fl. "Buff" Horton's Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers. No official word has been heard from Tweed, while we gave the explanation of the Stirling-Marmora set-up last week. However, the above four clubs make a compact loop that should give hockey lovers some little diversion before spring.

(Process takes time.)

H. G. Salsinger, Detroit's internationally known sports columnist, has been peering at the line and wondering at just what age a hockey player reaches his peak. He says the experts have told him that it takes from seven to eight years to bring a hockey player along to his top form.

He recalls that Ebbie Goodfellow, one of Detroit's immortals, was 32 years old and had finished his twelfth season of professional hockey when he was voted the Hart Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the National Hockey League.

This brings him to a consideration of the Barry-Lewis-Aurie line, which won world's championship honors for Detroit in the '30's. They had all been in the league for years before winning recognition as top performers. Larry Aurie reached his peak in his eighth season and Marty Barry in his ninth.

Looking around at some of the other clubs, he notes that Bill Cowley didn't reach the top until his seventh season, and was in his ninth when he broke his own record for assists. He is amazed by Dit Clapper. . . as who isn't? Clapper has been on top a long, long time. The Bruins captain was a standout in his fourth professional season.

The Detroit sports sage says he has been told that defencemen develop faster than forwards but Jack Stewart, former Red Wing now with Don Penniston's Alouettes, didn't hit his peak until he had been around seven years and Ott Heller, the Rangers' veteran, was only acknowledged to be a standout rearguard in his eighth N.H.L. season.

Gathering together practically all the ring villains at his disposal, Promoter Frank Tunney now says he'll have two main bouts for Thursday night's gala finale of the muscle-bending business at the Hume Arena. He's got McCready matched with Hannigan by popular demand of the fans, the other main attraction brings "Irish Jerry" Monahan against "Jack the Ripper" Reeder and another villain, Al Dunlop in one of the preliminaries.

Professional wrestling has moved into the No. 1 sport of sport in Belleville. In 1943 Promoter Tunney's circus played at the Hume Arena in nine of the 12 months of the year. They started late in April and now have attracted their largest crowds in the coolness of December. Every week for nearly nine months continued shows is the record Tunney and his boys have established in Belleville.

(Remember when—)

The Montreal Wanderers were one of Canada's outstanding hockey teams. It was just 39 years ago today that several oldtime greats—including Jack Marshall and Dickie Boon—signed Wanderer contracts and turned out to practice for the 1904-'05 season. The Wanderers went by the boards as have the Montreal Maroons, but Les Canadiens continue to roll, like old man river.

(Quebec makes bid.)

Quaint and picturesque Quebec Quebec City, scene of one Roosevelt-Churchill meeting, wants to be host to the forty-third annual convention of the National Baseball Association in 1944.

J. Emile Dion, assistant to the president of the Quebec Athletics club has renewed a request to have the annual meeting in the Canadian city next year. Writing President W. G. Bramham, Dion urges consideration of the invitation.

Quebec has made two previous applications for the convention.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley, Bruins' veteran centre, remained atop the National Hockey League scoring list after collecting six points in two weekend games. Herb Cain, another Boston player, moved into second place, previously held by Canadiens' Buddy O'Connor who was inactive over the weekend as a result of illness.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 251

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxhead has the makings of a dictator. His brains stick out of his head so far, he uses them to lock horns with his bridge partners.

One of his favorite stunts is to reach out into territory where he does not belong. Just because he knows an unusually high jump is sometimes permissible, he takes advantage of it at all times.

Against weak opponents, he often gets away with it without much, if any, loss. At such times, he takes credit for his brilliance. When it does not work, he blames partner for not understanding him.

Suppose his partner starts with an opening bid of one spade and Akoolap has this hand:

♠A 9 6 4 3
♥6 3
♣9 6 4

His hand contains exactly three tricks; one for the ace of spades, one for the queen of diamonds, and one for the short card in hearts. With two high cards among them, he has a responding bid.

He knows enough to follow T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. He has no biddable suit for a takeout. But he has adequate support for an assist in spades. So, he assists.

With only three tricks, he has just enough for one raise. No more. His response should be two spades. But do you think Akoolap would answer with two spades in a case like that? Not that baby.

His wonderful spade support looks too good for a normal raise. So, he makes a jump to three spades or four spades. It is whole hog or nothing with that bird.

If partner has no more than five tricks promised by a one bid opening, they are sunk. If a game is made, it is only because partner had more than he had promised to date.

Extra trumps do not make more tricks than your hand counts. It is the number of tricks, not the extra trumps that help to make a contract.

I hope you always remember that.

AT THE CAPITOL

"So Proudly We Hail"

They were married in a tunnel on Corregidor, they honeymooned in a foxhole, with Jap guns barking in the not-far-enough distance. Every moment was precious, because in the morning he was leaving on a dangerous assignment.

That wedding and that honeymoon will be remembered by film fans along with other famous, heart-stirring movie moments. The principals are Claudette Colbert and George Reeves and their romantic story is told in Paramount's epic drama of the nurses on Bataan, "So Proudly We Hail," now at the Capitol theatre.

All of Claudette's and Reeves' love scenes take place in strange places and without the comforts of a parlor or even a park bench. But they are tops in entertainment and romantic thrills from the first meeting on board the ship taking the pair to the Philippines, to the foxhole honeymoon everyone is talking about.

Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake are co-starred with Claudette. Miss Goddard has the role of a light-hearted glamour girl and her romance with Marine Sonny Tufts provides many of the laughs in the picture, although it has an undercurrent of pathos. Tufts makes his movie debut in the film.

Among the many other fine performers are Barbara Britton and Walter Abel.

"Lady Bodyguard"

A dead Eddie Albert is a good Eddie Albert, according to Maude Eburne, Edward Brophy and Raymond Walburn, the terrific trio introduced by Paramount in "Lady Bodyguard," the comedy thriller due tonight as the added first run attraction at the Capitol theatre; The lady in the title role—and Eddie's co-star—is blonde Anne Shirley.

Just to get things straight at the beginning, Eddie is a test pilot who gets insured for a cool million dollars as a publicity stunt. He names the unholy three, Eburne, Brophy and Walburn, as beneficiaries. How these ingrates try to make a corpus delicti out of Eddie and how the lovely Miss Shirley, as an executive of the insurance company, protects him against all harm (that's where the "bodyguard" comes in) and, of course, falls in love with him, is the two-way fulcrum for this fast, furious and funny picture.

The Canadian Universal News completes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Texas To Tokyo"

Transporting a complete motion picture company and cast, with all the necessary equipment, halfway across the continent in wartime to photograph a patriotic film, recently confronted Hollywood movie-makers with some complex problems.

The solutions were found, however after the eventual arrival of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, College Station, Texas, of Walter Wanger's "Texas to Tokyo" cast and crew. There, were recorded in sound and on celluloid for posterity, A. & M.'s heroic contribution to the United Nations' war effort by giving to the armed forces more than 6,500 excellently trained officers, including sixteen generals, now fighting on battlefields around the world.

"Texas to Tokyo" which comes next to the McCarthy Theatre is the long-waited Universal picture announced as the first cinema chronicle of youth in command.

When the final roll was called on the campus, those who answered "here" included Anne Gwynne, a native Texan from San Antonio, Martha O'Driscoll, who was A. & M.'s Vanity Fair Beauty for 1937, Richard Quine, Noah Beer&y, Jr., Harry Davenport, Edgar Barrier, William Frawley, and thirty-five other members of the cast, mostly playing cadets.

"Tahiti Honey", the second first-run hit at the McCarthy Theatre starting next is a story of "Eleven Brooklyn Bombshells", a band led by handsome happy-go-lucky Mickey Monroe, played by Dennis O'Keefe, who are stranded in Tahiti at the time of the fall of France. Suzette "Suzie" Durand, (Simone Simon), a young and beautiful French-American girl, singer in a night club, is consumed with a desire to go to the United States.

Things go from bad to worse with the Brooklyn Bombshells and they are faced with the necessity of either taking a femme singer into their group or starving. Heretofore they have regarded girl singers as bad luck, however, it seems that their only salvation is to take Suzie into the band, but the boys insist that she be dropped as soon as they can get a boat back to the States.

Universal's latest news of the world completes the program.

Now closing is Gary Grant and Rosalind Russell in "His Girl Friday" with second feature "Get Going".

AT THE BELLE

"Holy Matrimony"

Laughs abound in "Holy Matrimony" the hilarious new 20th Century-Fox comedy which stars Monty Woolley and Gracie Fields, is now closing at the Belle Theatre. Both stars in their own right, Gracie and Monty have made laugh-getting their business, and with the aid of a top-notch script prepared by Producer Nunnally Johnson, they are "mowing 'em in the aisles!"

Laird Cregar heads the featured cast of the picture with Una O'Connor, Alan Mowbray, Melville Cooper and Franklin Pangborn. John Stahl directed "Holy Matrimony" which is based on a novel by Arnold Bennett.

The Paramount Canadian News, a colorfun cartoon "Night Light in the Army" and an entertaining RKO Screen Miniature "Cargo Aboard" complete the program.

"The Common Touch" Entertaining

Musical drama of a wealthy young man who combines business, pleasure and curiosity. It also establishes the first motion picture appearance of the famous concert pianist Mark Bambourg and Sandy MacPherson, England's leading theatre organist, apart from the huge cast. Likewise it brings to the theatre the beautiful background music of the London Symphony Orchestra together with the appearance of Carroll Gibbons and his orchestra in a lavish cabaret display and many musical interludes and also introducing the new song hit of England "Cubanoca." The film has feminine interest and appeal centred in a pair of good-lookers who play a considerable part in the development of plot. The production is another feature in the cap of Director John Baxter who will assuredly win approval among every class of audience.

"The Common Touch" gives to young Geoffrey Hibbert a role that will long be outstanding. While young in years, he has been in motion pictures for a considerable time and now definitely establishes himself in "The Common Touch" as a number-one leading star, and with the support of Greta Gynt and Joyce Howard, excellently maintains the star appeal of the production. "The Common Touch" comes next to the Belle Theatre.

"The Adventures of a Rookie"

A new comedy team Wally Brown and Alan Carney, makes its debut in RKO Radio's laughter-filled film, "The Adventures of a Rookie," the added laugh feature.

Successful as theatre and night-club entertainers, Brown and Carney had never been paired until the film brought them together.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Dec. 13 (Special)—A very delightful R.C.A.F. Auxiliary tea was held at the residence of two of its members, Mrs. Clancy and Mrs. Perry, 27 Marmora Street, when more than a hundred wives, mothers and sisters of airforce lads home and abroad were entertained by the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Louis Lowenstein was convener of the tea and assisting her receiving the many guests were Mrs. Bell-Irving, wife of the recently appointed Commanding Officer of the Trenton Air Station, Mrs. J. Stephenson, retiring President of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Weese, newly-appointed President, Mrs. W. E. Baker, Mrs. M. Hewson and Mrs. H. Hunt, hostess of the Y.M.C.A.

The tea table was most attractive with lace cloth, huge bowl of American Beauty Roses, and tall white tapers in silver holders.

Those invited to pour tea were all wives of mothers of R.C.A.F. members who had distinguished themselves in service either by giving their lives for their country or being decorated by His Majesty the King. These included Mrs. M. Hewson, Mrs. J. M. Wilson, Mrs. C. Dolan, Mrs. R. H. Millikin, Mrs. M. Dixon, Mrs. R. P. Mainguy, Mrs. E. Pafford, Mrs. M. LaFrance and Mrs. F. Moran.

Among those assisting in the dining-room, which was in charge of Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Clancy, were Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Hazard, Mrs. Garka, Mrs. Hodgson and Mrs. Lyne.

Greeting the guests at the door were Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Shelley while Mrs. Purdon, Mrs. Grossmith, Mrs. Webber and Mrs. Campbell assisted upstairs in the registering of the guests. Each guest having a husband, son or daughter in the service of the R.C.A.F. overseas was invited to send them through the kindness of a well-known candy manufacturer and the Auxiliary a box containing ten candy bars. Names and addresses were left with the committee in charge of the registry.

The ladies of the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary are to be congratulated on their efforts in putting on this tea with the express wish in mind that the families of airforce personnel in the town might become better acquainted and the membership of the Auxiliary enlarged to take in all those who in any way are connected with the service. Extensive work is carried on by this society during the year, both in a social and welfare capacity and its executive and members give many long hours of their time in the hope of sending out comfort and happiness to those in the R.C.A.F. in Canada and overseas in the various theatres of war.

Large consignments of work are done monthly by them for the local R.C.A.F. hospital as well as the local branch of the Red Cross, in addition to which many dances and entertainments are put on for the boys and the girls on the two local stations, and from these functions hundreds of dollars worth of comforts, candies and cigarettes are sent overseas.

Minor Hockey

A meeting of the sponsors of Minor Hockey in Trenton was held in the College Street School on Sunday afternoon when a schedule for the present season was drawn up.

Last year 85 boys from Trenton played hockey on the Bantam and Midget teams and it is hoped a similar number of lads will again be interested this year. Games were played from 4.30 to 7 p.m. each Tuesday from January 12th to Februrary 16th last year and a similar schedule is hoped for this season.

The financial statement for the year showed a small balance on hand.

The same officers were re-elected with W. B. McClung as chairman of the meeting. George E. McElwain is secretary treasurer, and Captain Walter Bowen is coach.

Any person in town interested in hockey and who would be willing to coach a team is asked to get in touch with Captain Bowen or Mr. McElwain.

Training these young lads is an important work and will be a great contribution to future hockey as well as providing good clean entertainment for Trenton's youth.

Ralston Declines To Comment On Several Rumors

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 13 — (CP Cable) — Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Defence Minister, today declined to comment on rumors of the possible retirement of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, and brushed aside another rumor that he himself might succeed Sir Lyman Poore Duff as Chief Justice of Canada.

"I have not heard anything official about this report I might succeed Sir Lyman," Col. Ralston said. "You know, the same rumor came up a year ago. I said then that even if I were honored with the offer, I felt I could not accept it so long as there was a war job to be done."

Canadian correspondents asked Col. Ralston about these rumors following a short address he delivered to the daily military conference at the Ministry of Information at which he told a few details of his recent visit to Canadian forces in Italy and North Africa.

He said there were some things he had found wrong which he hoped to get put right, and mentioned problems such as mail for the troops, films and newspapers. Getting news to the troops is most important to their welfare, he added.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

"Your mother will be pleased. She has been very worried".

"I know, I've been a fool. But it isn't Mother I'm thinking of. It's you. Dorothy, I'm terribly ashamed of myself. I—"

"Ted, please. Let's not go into that".

"But I want to make you see what I was up against; why I went away. I couldn't think straight, Dorothy; I was at my wit's end; I had too much to decide. But I've made up my mind now. I can't live without you, Dorothy, and I've come to tell you so".

Dorothy was silent for a moment. When she looked up there were tears in her eyes.

Dorothy was silent for a moment. When she looked up there were tears in her eyes.

"It's too late, Ted. Nothing can ever be the same again for us after that Sunday I waited for you in the orchard and you didn't come."

"But, don't you see, darling, I—"

"I see that you didn't love me the way I wanted to be loved. The way father loved mother. Nothing could have kept him from her. Nothings. Marrying her meant that he would be penniless but he did not hesitate for a moment. You did. You were afraid I'd cost you your career and you took a whole week to make up your mind that I was worth it. I'm sorry, Ted, terribly sorry."

With a sob, she darted up to her room.

To the Osbornes, the weeks that followed were like a long drawn out nightmare. The boy Peter was glad when vacation ended and the first day of the new school term dawned. The once cheerful atmosphere of his home had changed completely. Tempers were on edge . . . everyone wanted to be alone . . no one would play with him, not even Marjory. He had spent most of his waking time for weeks moping about the house, feeling thoroughly miserable, and it was with a light heart that he started for school.

"Pete" went to school in Bradbury. By taking an early bus he was able to be in the playground a full half-hour before classes began. Usually this half-hour was passed swiftly in a game with other early birds, but this morning when Peter arrived, bursting with eagerness to see his friends again, he found the boys clustered near the gate, talking so excitedly that they were not aware of his approach.

"We ought to get up what they call a round robin," he heard one of them say, "and take it to the headmaster."

"Hello, fellas," said Peter cheerily. "What's a round robin, Dick?"

There was an uncomfortable silence. The boys looked at him so oddly that Peter flushed. "What's up?" he asked.

"You have lots of nerve, showin' up this morning!" retorted Brooks. "I told you he would, fellows."

"What—what on earth are y-you talking about?" Peter stammered. "Why shouldn't I turn up? What—what's wrong with all of you?"

"I'll tell you what! My father says it isn't fair to expect us to mix with you — so now you know."

"My family's as good as yours—and better.

"Oh, is it? Well, your faher or some of you killed your aunt!"

For an awful moment Peter thought he was going to be sick. There seemed to be nothing at all where his stomach used to be. He began to tremble at the knees. The mocking faces of the other boys seemed to melt into each other, to waver dizzily before his eyes.

"That's a lie!" he cried, his lips trembling.

"It's true! I read it."

"So did I!" shouted another boy.

"Your father's a murderer," sneered Dick Brooks, encouraged by this support. "A murderer, that's what he is!"

"Take that back," gasped Peter, clenching his fists, "or I'll—"

"Yah! What'll you do? Strangle me with a scarf, I suppose? Go on, cry-baby! Look, fellows, he's cryin'!"

Peter hit him squarely on the mouth and a trickle of blood ran down Dick's chin. An exciting shout rose from the boys: "A fight! a fight!" as they crowded around to see the fun.

"Sock him, Dick!"

"I'll bet he killed her himself!"

With a sob, Peter flung himself on his tormentors, lashing out right and left at their gloating faces. For a moment they stood their ground; then terror gripped them, inspired by Peter's wild eyes, grinding teeth, and furious blows. They fled in all directions.

Brooks ran as quickly as any of them but he tripped and fell; Peter sprawled on top of him, pummelling him with all his might. Nothing was left in Peter's frenzied mind but the desire to hurt, to hurt. He had Dick by the throat and was banging his head on the ground when a teacher came on the scene, grabbed him by the collar and dragged him kicking and struggling, off his howling victim.

Peter could give no coherent account of what had happened; and the other boys made up false stories of the fight. He came home in the middle of the morning, his face streaked with tears and livid with still-bubbling anger. He brought a note addressed to his father in which the school principal politely regretted that it had been found necessary to suspend him for a term "in consequence of a savage and unwarranted attack on another boy."

• •

At dusk that evening Hannah came to her mistress with a troubled look on her homely face.

"It's Miss Marjory, ma'am," she said anxiously. "The child's just come home and when I opened the door for her, she ran straight upstairs to her room with tears streaming down her cheeks. I followed her to find out what's wrong but she won't tell me anything. She's lying on her bed, poor lamb, sobbing as though her heart's breaking."

When Mrs. Osborne went up, Marjory threw herself upon her and clutched her as tightly as tho' never could she bear to let her go. The girl's slim body was shaking convulsively, wracked from head to foot by great shuddering sobs.

"Oh, Mummy!" she gasped. "Mummy!"

Edith had to bite her lips until she drew blood to keep back her own tears. She drew Marjory on to her lap and nursed and petted her as she had not done for many years.

"Oh, Mummy, the girls — If you could only have heard them—"

"Hush, my darling, hush! It's over now. You shan't go back. You'll never have to see them again."

Gently, Edith undressed the trembling child and put her to bed. She sat on the bed, stroking Marjory's forehead, until the girl was lulled to sleep. When Edith tiptoed out of the room, she met Hannah on the landing.

"Master Peter's been sick, ma'-am."

"Hannah, Hannah, what am I to do?"

"The Lord only knows, ma'am! I'd like to get my hands on these murderin' little blackguards. I'd learn 'em to go teasin' the life out of the boy with their lies and sneers."

"They were only boys like Peter Hannah. That's the strange thing about it all. These people who are hurting us, they're — they're just people, people like ourselves. They're not wicked, only very thoughtless. And cruel."

Stephen was waiting for Edith in the hall. There were deep lines of worry under his eyes.

"Michael is in the dining room," he said in a low tone. "He has something to say to me. I thought you'd better hear it as well."

Edith's heart sank. More trouble. She ought to have expected it, she realized bitterly; she ought to have known better than imagine that her children could take up their lives again as though nothing had happened.

She squeezed her husband's arm. "Cheer up, Stephen!"

Michael was pacing the dining-room floor like a caged animal. He wheeled round when they entered the room; for a moment his face softened, then it became hard and determined again.

"I can't stand it any longer, Mother," he said flatly. "No words can tell what I've been through today!"

"I understand son," said Edith quietly. "Sending you back to high school was a mistake. We ought to have foreseen what would happen. You had better study at home for a few months. When all this blows over you can go to another school. If you put your soul into it you'll soon make up for lost time."

"That won't do, Mother. I'm not going back to school — any school — ever again."

"But, Michael, you've always wanted to be a doctor—"

"What I've always wanted to be doesn't matter now. I'm not the person I was at the end of last term. Then I was just one of the fellows. Now I am 'Mike' Osborne—one of the suspects in the notorious Osborne Murder Case. I can't go to school. I can't become a doctor. I can't do any of the things I could have done before."

The boy's voice rose, a little wildly: "Oh, it isn't only school. It's — it's everything. The people in the village—the awful talk—the staring eyes—the pointing fingers—the terrible feeling I have even when I'm with my own family! I can't stand it any longer! I've got to get out of it all, I tell you! I've got to get away!"

For a while, Edith was at a loss. She looked at her husband who was slumped in a chair, his face buried in his hands. There was no help for her from that quarter.

"I'm thinking of asking a relative to take Peter and Marjory for a time," she said, as calmly as she could manage. "He might be willing to—"

The boy shook his head vehemently.

"Going to relatives would be as bad as staying here. I want to change my name and go away where no one knows me—as far away as possible."

"But, son, we can't afford to—"

There was a suspicion of moisture in Michael's dark eyes. He gulped and laid a hand on his mother's arm.

"I don't want you to give me any money. I have a few dollars saved out of the money I earned helping Dr. Denham with his car."

"A few dollars won't last long, dear," said Edith, with a tremulous smile.

"Before it's gone, I'll find a job. Don't worry, I shan't starve. I may not be a regular mechanic, but I know enough about cars to get a job in a garage."

TO BE CONTINUED.

No. 13 Not Unlucky For R.C.N. Frigate, But for Hitler

An Eastern Canadian Port, Dec. 13—(CP)—Sailors are reported to be notoriously superstitious, but the men of one Royal Canadian Navy frigate—H.M.C.S. Swansea—don't believe the number 13 is unlucky.

Swansea's pennant numbers total 13. There are 13 messes on her; the maker's number on her boiler is 13 and there are 13 electric fans aboard. "Superstitious? Not a bit," say the crew.

"Sure, we know that 13 is supposed to be unlucky," said Able Seaman Don Paterson, R.C.N.V.R., of Windsor, Ont., "but we think it's going to be unlucky for Hitler."

Soldiers, Airmen Will Be Given Holiday Leave

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Most soldiers and airmen serving in Canada will get leave at either Christmas or New Year's under special holiday leave orders recently issued—but not the navy.

The leaves to be granted in army and R.C.A.F. are for five days and are subject to exigencies of the services.

The navy has a steady procession of men coming ashore from sea duty who are entitled to shore leave and usually annual leave at the same time. It is understood naval authorities are anxious that these men get to their homes for the holiday season if it is practical, and so are discouraging Christmas and New Year's leaves and travel by personnel employed ashore.

Marvin McIntyre, Secretary to F.D.R., Dies at Age of 65

Washington, Dec. 13 —(AP)— Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt throughout Mr. Roosevelt's 10 years in the White House, died today, aged 65.

McIntyre succumbed to a long illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fred Warren.

A native of La Grange, Ky., McIntyre had been associated with President Roosevelt more than two decades, serving as his publicity representative during the vice presidential campaigns of 1920. Prior to that, he was a newspaperman.

Mr. Roosevelt, on his way home from historic conferences in Cairo and Teheran, was notified immediately of McIntyre's death. In a message to the White House he said:

"Another faithful servant is lost to the public service in the death of Marvin McIntyre . . . We shall remember him as a public servant whose sole career emphasized fidelity and integrity in the performance of the many tasks which made up his busy day."

ALLIED AIRMEN NOW ON ATTACK IN S. W. PACIFIC

Japanese Losses Rise Steadily to Stand at 5 Losses to 1 American

CALIBRE DOWN

(Written for The Canadian Press)
(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, (Delayed) — (CP Cable)— Allied air forces now are on the attack in the Southwest Pacific, Lt.-Gen. George C. Kenney said in an interview with Canadian newspapermen visiting Australia.

(Since this delayed dispatch was written, the Canadian newspaper delegation has left Australia for New Zealand. It is composed of Arthur R. Ford, editor of the London, Ont., Free Press and president of The Canadian Press, Mr. Richardson of the Winnipeg Free Press, and Lorenzo Pare of L'Action Catholique, Quebec.)

Gen. Kenney said that while numerically the Japanese maintained about the same air power as the Allies in the Southwest Pacific, the ratio of losses inflicted upon the enemy has steadily risen until it appears to be stabilizing at a level of five to one against the Japanese.

Japanese Calibre Deteriorates.

In the first stages of the air war in this command losses were on the average of one for one, he said. At that time the calibre of Japanese airmen was better than now. Fighting experience and ability of the airmen in Kenney's command has steadily improved, he said.

His command consists of the 5th U. S. Army Air Force and units of Australian, British and Netherlands airmen, including several squadrons of Spitfire pilots.

At Air Force Headquarters we obtained a detailed description of how claims of damage and destruction inflicted upon the Japanese are checked and double-checked.

Considerable feeling exists among American airmen here based upon letters and other reports of controversy at home regarding claims of damage inflicted upon the Japanese and allegations of exaggeration in communiques. From this distance the people at home appear still to underrate the Japanese and Japan's ability to furnish replacements.

Japanese Replacements.

Actually in the Southwest Pacific Japan recently forwarded 800 planes as replacements for current losses. While it is true Japanese planes do not compare with solid American building, the Japanese have in operation a long-range fighter capable of fighting 500 miles from its base.

Few Allied aircraft constructed for European operations are adequate for the Pacific fronts because of shorter range.

Admiration exists here among American air authorities for the manner in which the Australian aircraft industry undertook and performed a heavy percentage of repair and maintenance required to keep the 5th Air Force operating.

Soldier Killed In Rail Wreck

Seals, Ga., Dec. 13 (AP)—A soldier was killed and 21 other persons were injured last night in the derailment of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company's fast northbound passenger train, the Sun Queen, at a pass switch near here, about 10 miles north of the Georgia-Florida line.

The soldier was thrown through the window of an overturned coach.

A railway official said the wreck apparently was caused by a broken rail and added that "the accident toll was light considering the type of accident."

Arabs Welcome De Gaulle's Pledge Of Algerian Citizenship

Algiers, Dec. 13. (AP)— Arabs generally welcomed today the promise of Gen. Charles de Gaulle that they would be given full citizenship rights in Algeria's three departments but just how the French National Committee proposed to implement the pledges remained to be seen.

Whether Arabs still would be required to renounce Koranic law was not disclosed.

If all Arabs were given French citizenship without reserve they easily could control politically all three departments, Algiers, Oran and Constantine, and hence the entire province. This might bring strong objections from Jews in the European population.

In a speech at Constantine, Eastern Algiers, yesterday, De Gaulle also asserted "a concentrated assault" on Germany from the east, west and south was being prepared by the Allies and that France would "not rest until the moment when free nations meet on the soil of defeated Germany".

Export of Wheat Will Be Increased 100 Million Bus.

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 13. (CP)—An increase of nearly 100,000,000 bushels in the export of wheat and wheat flour in the crop year which began last Aug. 1 is expected by Federal Agricultural officials, it was revealed today.

In a report prepared for the Dominion Provincial Agriculture Conference held here last week, allowance of 30,000,000 bushels was made for exports of wheat and wheat flour.

This would compare with actual exports of 211,817,886 bushels in 1942-43.

In spite of the anticipated gain in exports, the conference decided not to seek increased wheat acreage in 1944, leaving the objective the same as this year —17,487,700 acres, with the largest seeded area to be in Saskatchewan with 10,360,000 acres.

The Canadian wheat surplus is such that greatly-enlarged shipments can readily be handled from existing stocks, officials said. The balance available for export, with domestic requirements deducted, was placed at 692,474,049 bushels Sept. 1.

In estimating 1943-44 shipments, authorities made provision for substantial exports to the United States and for moderate relief shipments to liberated countries.

The possibility of major Canadian wheat shipments in the form of relief has been tempered by realization there probably will be wheat surpluses in the United States in another year, as well as in the Argentine and Australia.

The Canadian wheat surplus position is likely to show a major improvement by the end of the present crop year. If export shipments and increased use of wheat for animal feed reach the present estimates, the carryover next July 31 may be down to about 300,000,000 bushels— about half the carryover at July 31 this year.

Seven Fatalities In East Canada

By The Canadian Press

There were seven fatalities in Eastern Canada over the weekend. Four persons died as a result of traffic accidents, two died from burns after a fuel drum exploded, and one succumbed to gas asphyxiation.

Kelly Louschinko, 75-year-old Russian, died Sunday in a Niagara Falls, Ont., hospital, after being struck down near his home by an unidentified car. Lionel Thomas, 31, of Montreal was killed Saturday when a car skidded into an R.C.A.F. ambulance which itself struck a parked car behind which he was standing. Adrienne Giguere of Valleyfield, Que., was killed Saturday night when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a Provincial Transport Company bus at nearby St. Timothee. Patrolman Singleton Jeffries, 26, of the R. C. N. V. R. died Saturday in the Halifax R.C.N. hospital after he was struck by a street car.

One man was burned to death and another died in hospital Saturday after a fuel drum exploded in a Canadian National Railways shed 13 miles west of Cochrane, Ont.

Stanley C. Hotchkiss, 30, was found dead in a Toronto rooming house Sunday morning, said to be the victim of illuminating gas asphyxiation.

Sentenced to Die In Electric Chair For Ransom Kidnap

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 13—(AP)— Federal Judge Shackelford Miller today sentenced Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., to die Friday, March 10 in Kentucky's electric chair for the $50,000 ransom kidnapping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll of Louisville in 1934.

A Federal court jury late Saturday night convicted Robinson and recommended the death penalty but the judge could have imposed a lesser sentence. Robinson pleaded guilty to the charge in 1936 and at that time was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The 36-year-old former Nashville, Tenn., law student won a jury trial after he obtained a write of habeas corpus releasing him from Alcatraz prison, where he had served 6 1-2 years of a life term for the Stoll abduction. He contended he was insane at the time of the kidnapping, that he was coerced by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation into pleading guilty and that he was not represented properly by counsel.

The kidnapping occurred in October 1934 and the prosecution contended the hearing of Mrs. Stoll was impaired permanently by a hard blow on her head from a piece of iron pipe wielded by Robinson.

Mrs. Stoll denied on the witness stand that she had known Robinson prior to her abduction.

Robinson eluded F.B.I. agents for nearly two years while living a life of luxury at swank hotels from coast to coast. He finally was captured at Glendale, Calif., and returned here where he pleaded guilty to the kidnapping.

Facilities Granted By Portugal Help Coastal Command

London, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Use of facilities in the Azores granted Britain by the Portuguese government has increased by approximately 1,000,000 square miles the ocean area patrolled by the R.A.F.'s coastal command planes, the Air Ministry has disclosed.

The coastal command previously had patrolled from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 square miles of the Atlantic in its war against marauding German submarines.

Air Vice-Marshal G. R. Bromet, who formerly directed the air offensive against the U-boats in the Bay of Biscay, is in command of the combined British Army and Navy air units stationed in the Azores. The units include Wellingtons and Hudsons and Flying Fortresses. One of the latter sank a German submarine within two weeks after operations from the islands were begun.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Waning year-end tax adjustments provided some bullish influence and persistent inflation talk, coincident with recently rising farm staples, inspired bids for individual issues in the stock market today. There was a disposition to keep commitments light, however, pending developments on European battlefronts.

Canadian stocks were firm with McIntyre, Lake Shore and Distillers Seagram up fractions and Canadian Pacific unchanged. Hiram Walker was off a fraction.

Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft and J. I. Case got up about a point each. American distilling moved up and down at intervals. In the plus column were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Goodyear, Homestake Mining, Dome Mines, Woolworth and Kennecott. Declines were posted for Texas Co., Great Northern, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Du Pont and Eastman Kodak.

Report Says Roosevelt And Franco Confer

Stockholm, Dec. 13. (AP)—A roundabout report reaching here today through Ankara and Budapest said President Roosevelt had conferred yesterday at Gibraltar with General Francisco Franco of Spain and Premier Antonio Salazar of Portugal.

There was no confirmation from any other source.

The Budapest correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen said it had been reported in the Turkish capital that the three leaders discussed the position of Spain and Portugal during the expected Allied attack on Western Europe.

Soviet Officers Visit Canadians On 8th Army Front

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With Canadians in Italy, Dec. 9—(Delayed) — (CP Cable) — A Russian military group visiting the 8th Army front came under bombing, shelling and mortar fire today during a tour of the Canadian area.

They talked with Canadian officers and men and inspected equipment, and at the end of the trip said they regarded the Canadian force as good.

The Russian party was made up of Maj.-Gens. Vasiliev and Solodovnic, Col. Sudakov, Maj. Belodokov and Lieut. Golobev. They spent the best part of the day among the Canadians, saw their guns in action, looked over their tanks, visited headquarters and peered at enemy positions from forward observation posts.

The party rode through the frontline area in jeeps accompanied by British officers and Lt.-Col. W. P. Gilbride of London, Ont.

Chatted with Canadians

The Russians chatted with Lt.-Col. Geoffrey Walsh of Oakville, Ont., who told how sappers building a river crossing under fire had captured the Germans. The visitors asked about the bridging methods used by the Canadians, the speed of construction and the load-carrying capacity of the structures.

They seemed impressed by the length of training the Canadian soldiers have had and spoke well of Canada's industrial war effort. They noted that British forces are using a considerable amount of Canadian transport and mentioned the fact that Canadian weapons have been delivered to Russia.

The Russians were under shellfire on the way to the front and at one time enemy fighter-bombers dropped bombs only a few hundred yards away.

They met the Canadian commander in the frontline area and also the commander of Canadian artillery, commenting on his youthful appearance.

City of Montreal Facing Strike Of Civic Employees

Montreal, Dec. 13. (CP)—The City of Montreal today faced prospects of a strike of policemen, firemen and Public Works Department employees, with a deadline set for 11 a.m. tomorrow.

At a meeting attended by 800 workers last night, it was decided that the city would be given 24 hours in which to recognize the Canadian Congress of Labor as bargaining agents for employees of the three departments, with the ultimatum period starting this morning.

A resolution was adopted at the meeting providing for the ultimatum to be delivered to Honor Parent, director of city services, at his offices this morning.

The resolution called on city officials to adopt the majority report of an Arbitration Board which had recommended recognition of the C.C.L. as bargaining agent. It provided a committee with power to call the strike should the city not announce its decision on the majority report before the deadline, or should the city's announcement be "negative".

Before the resolution was passed, Paul Marquette, organizer for the C.C.L., told the meeting he was in favor of "reasonable action" but that "I am also in favor of getting for you what you deserve as citizens and workers of the city of Montreal".

Chinese Forces Drive Japs From Another Zone

Chungking, Dec. 13—(AP)—Recapture of Niupitan, east of Changteh, retaking of 10 villages northwest of Changteh and encirclement of 2,000 Japanese, more than 500 of whom were killed, were announced by the Chinese High Command today in continued bloody fighting in the Rice area.

Remnants of the surrounded force fled toward Linli, 25 miles north of Changteh.

Results of the fighting were not unmixed, however, for the Chinese announced the loss of Shihmen, an important town 40 miles northwest of Changteh.

Panlungkiao, 20 miles northwest of Changteh, was among the towns occupied by the Chinese, it was reported.

The report indicated a considerable advance during the past 24 hours on the part of the Chinese, who announced yesterday that they had cleared the enemy from a 13-mile zone northwest of Changteh.

Chinese advices, however, said the Japanese had reinforced their positions in the Ansiang sector 45 miles northeast of Changteh and were counter-attacking fiercely.

Heavy fighting, meanwhile, was reported around the Yangtse river port of Ichang, where the Chinese said their troops were attacking the outer defences of the Japanese base after hand to hand engagements in which they captured several villages.

16 Southern R.R.'s Declare They'll Ignore Directives

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Sixteen southern railways in the United States today told the President's committee on fair employment practice, in effect, that the agency is wasting its official breath ordering the railways to cease discriminating against negro employees.

The 16 carriers declared they would not obey the F.E.P.C. directives of Nov. 24 forbidding racial or religious discriminations. The F.E.P.C., the railroads said in a joint letter, "is wholly without constitutional and legal jurisdiction and power to issue the directives, and for this reason the said directives are without legal effect."

Four Arrested By Cobourg Police For Car Thefts

Steal Truck in Belleville and Abandon It in Brighton, Stealing Car

ALL TEEN-AGED

Cobourg police are holding four teen-aged boys of Belleville and environs following the theft of a truck in this city and a motor car from Brighton early Monday morning. The boys' names were given by police as Thomas J. DeRushie, 61 Alexander St.; Wallace Wells, 379½ Front St.; Carl E. Smith, formerly of R. R. No. 4, all of Belleville, and Bernard LaBarge of Corbyville. They are being held on nominal charges of motor vehicle stealing.

Shortly before seven o'clock Monday morning, Jack Sweet, 22 St. Charles St., parked his Christie-Brown bread truck with the motor running in front of the New Service Lunch on Front St. while he went inside to purchase a packet of cigarettes. When he returned seconds later, however, the truck had disappeared. Sweet looked about the immediate district for a few minutes before notifying police.

Later Constable Atchinson of Brighton was informed a motor car had been stolen in that village and was being driven west on Highway No. 2 Cobourg police were notified and the above-named quartette were arrested by Cobourg police as they drove into the town with the Brighton vehicle. Later the Christie-Brown truck that had been stolen in Belleville was found abandoned in Brighton. Police believe the four boys rode to Brighton in the truck and then left it for more comfortable surroundings in the stolen car. They are being held in Cobourg, Chief Probert announced later today.

Section of Press Fails to Tell Full Story--Howe

Toronto, Dec. 13—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said today in an address prepared for delivery to Toronto Canadian Club that "a section of our daily press is adding to the prevailing pessimism" that after the war there must be a return to widespread unemployment.

The minister said war production is at its peak and there are frequent changes and adjustments which cause temporary readjustments in employment. He added: "When a section of a factory must close down for retooling, with a displacement of, say, 1,000 workers, that situation is invariably headlined in our newspapers, and my office is flooded with telegrams of protest.

"Usually the employees are absorbed in other departments of the same plant, which have been short of manpower, but that fact is never mentioned in press stories, or admitted in wires of protest.

"By the same token, when retooling has been carried out and 1,000 new employees are added to the plant payroll, such news never finds the headlines. Plant layoffs are news, but new employment is not news. Perhaps you can tell me why?

"From reading the newspapers over the past several months, a reader would reasonably reach the conclusion that our war employment must be falling sharply. This is wholly untrue.

"My statisticians advise me that employment in war plants reached a new high peak in November last and that every month of this year has seen an increase in employment in war plants."

Germans Murder Canuck Platoon

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 11. (Delayed) (CP)—A platoon of Canadian infantrymen, walking forward to accept the surrender of German infantrymen, was "murdered in cold blood" by machine-gunners waiting in ambush on the flank, Canadian troops were informed today.

Attention of all Canadians on the Moro River front has been drawn to the incident by the Canadian commander in a message designed to serve as a warning to all troops to be on their guard when they take prisoners.

The platoon was wiped out yesterday (Friday) after fierce fighting north of San Leonardo. The Germans had put up a stiff battle, but eventually raised their arms in surrender.

When the Canadians went forward to round up the prisoners they were met with a withering fire from ambushing machine-gunners and every man killed. It was, as the Canadian commander described it, "murder in cold blood".

A similar incident was reported earlier by Engineers who built a road over the Moro. German snipers picked off stretcher-bearers carrying wounded men from the battlefield, the engineers said.

Major R. B. Fraser of Toronto, and Montreal, commander of the engineering company, saw it happen and said there was no doubt in his mind that it was deliberate.

"The stretcher-bearers were plainly visible and wearing armbands with Red Cross markings", he said. "There was no question the Germans knew what they were doing".

Gunmen Escape With $25,000 Worth of Liquor

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Three gunmen held up and kidnapped a liquor-truck driven here early today and escaped with the truck and its cargo of 800 cases of Hiram Walker and Sons whisky en route to an Ontario Liquor Control Board warehouse.

Police said the gunmen tied the truck-driver, George Butcher, 38, of Chatham, Ont., and left him at a lonely spot on the outskirts of Toronto while they escaped with the load of liquor, valued unofficially at about $25,000.

City, provincial and federal police are co-operating in the search.

The truck had just pulled into the Western Freight Lines parking lot in Toronto after a trip from Chatham when the gunmen appeared and forced Butcher from his cab. He was bound and blindfolded, he told police, then transferred to an automobile and taken to the outskirts of North York Township and left there. When he got free, he telephoned police.

Butcher, a veteran of 10 years driving with Western Freight Lines, said he believed the truck followed the automobile in which he was taken from the city.

In Early Morning

Butcher told police the holdup occurred at 6.30 a. m. It was 9 a. m. when he walked into a dairy in North York and telephoned police. He said he had been held for about two hours before the men set him free, and his belief that his truck and trailer were nearby during that time came from a conversation he overheard — one man telling another that "there were only 20 cases left in the truck." Presumably during that time the liquor had been transferred to other vehicles, although Butcher's truck and trailer have not been recovered.

Police said the robbery was well-planned, because the men knew beforehand the exact time Butcher would arrive at the parking lot in downtown Toronto. Police throughout Western Ontario from Toronto to Windsor have been warned to be on the lookout for men and vehicles which may have been involved.

Kenneth Chard Pleads Guilty To Six Charges

Campbellford, Dec. 13 (CP)—On six charges of theft, committed within less than a month, Kenneth Chard, 16, pleaded guilty in police court here and was sentenced to 18 months definite and 6 months indeterminate in the Ontario reformatory.

The accused was charged with stealing a battery from a garage and with thefts from the Canadian National Railways freight sheds. Two automobile thefts were also charged.

Edward Hicks, 19, was sentenced to one month in jail on theft charges. Police evidence was that the accused was Chard's companion at the freight robberies. The accused pleaded guilty.

FIRST of all—buy coffee for flavor! I use super-rich Chase & Sanborn Coffee!

Then I make it a rule to keep coffee in an air-tight container. And to get the right strength, I always measure the coffee and water carefully. Of course, I keep the coffee-pot scoured clean, and make only the exact amount of coffee needed—never more. And I serve it as soon as possible.

But getting plenty of flavor in the first place is most important! So I say—be sure you get super-rich Chase & Sanborn Coffee. More flavor ounce for ounce. Remember—quality coffee goes further.

Hastings and Prince Edward Reg't In Foreground of Battle in Italy

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, Dec. 14 (CP Cable)—The grim battle for Ortona on the Adriatic coast in Italy is reaching a bitter climax as Canadians, with some fresh troops now in the line, fight yard by yard against the sternest German opposition they have yet encountered.

The enemy is hurling fierce counter-attacks against them, using armor, infantry and concentrations of mortars, but the Canadians are slowly gaining heights overlooking Ortona. Once they are consolidated there, the fall of the coastal town is inevitable.

The Canadians replaced the famed British 78th Division which successfully stormed the Sangro river, taking its place on the right flank of the 8th Army for the Moro river attack. This was disclosed officially today in the House of Commons by Foreign Secretary Eden.

Success Hinges on Capture of Ortona

The whole current 8th Army thrust hinges on success of the Canadians in capturing Ortona. Fierceness of the fighting is emphasized by the fact that for nearly a week the action has been going on in a two-mile-wide strip between Moro and the lateral road leading inland from Ortona 12 miles to Orsogna.

Elements of three German divisions appear to be fighting in this area but in heavy action in muddy, shell-pocked hills the Canadians are forcing the enemy back to the important lateral road.

Mr. Eden also disclosed that the New Zealand 2nd Division is attacking high ground on the left flank of the Canadians. This should relieve some of the pressure on the coastal sector.

Further west in the central sector of the 8th Army front the Indian 3th Division is advancing.

Hasty-Pees Near Coast

In the Canadian sector the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment from Ontario is advancing with Canadian tanks up a narrow road along the coast.

In the centre of the Canadian front are western infantry, the Princess Patricia's Canadian light infantry, the Loyal Edmontons and the Seaforth Highlanders, the advance being centred on a highway leading north from captured San Leonardo to the lateral road and then east to Ortona. They are near a junction with the lateral road now.

King George Sixth Spends Birthday With His Family

London, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The King, recovering from influenza, today spent his 45th birthday quietly with the Queen and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret.

Flags were flown over public buildings and messages of congratulation poured in from all parts of the Empire.

Thanking citizens of London for their good wishes, His Majesty expressed hope that "the coming year may give the people of London an even clearer prospect of the blessings of peace which their courage and endurance have so well earned."

During the morning the King handled state papers and other business.

The official celebration of his birthday will occur next June as is the Royal custom.

His Majesty will deliver the usual address to the Empire in a Christmas Day broadcast, it was announced yesterday.

AUSSIES SEE FIRST SNOW

London, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—Australian airmen at No. 4 Air Observer School here, romping about at their first sight of Canadian snow over the weekend, cheerfully admitted seasoned Canadians might think them "plumb crazy" in their reaction. They were surprised by the amount of "white stuff" which fell, amazed that it fell "all over the place" and not just in spots.

British Casualties In Italy to Nov. 25 Total 16,074 Men

London, Dec. 14 — (CP Cable) — Foreign Secretary Eden today told the House of Commons that British casualties in Italy from the landing in September up to Nov. 25 totalled 16,074 of whom 3,212 were killed, 9,709 wounded and 3,153 are missing.

Presumably this figure included Canadian casualties.

He gave American casualties for the same period as 10,649 of whom 2,603 were killed, 6,361 wounded and 1,685 are missing.

Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, said the total number of casualties in the Empire's armed forces for the first four years of war is being prepared and will be published as soon as it can be done without assisting the enemy.

Must Replenish Stocks by Summer Or Coal Situation Near 'Catastrophe'

—Says O.W.I.

The United States Office of War Information reported today the coal shortage in America is so acute that if stocks cannot be replenished next summer the situation will "approach catastrophe."

The plain fact is, says O. W. I., that the United States isn't digging as much coal as it is using. Therefore there has been a progressive shortage throughout 1943. Stockpiles in the bins of industrial users and retail dealers will have declined from 86,000,000 tons last Jan. 1 to about 60,000,000 tons at the end of the year.

That is only a little more than a month's supply. By March 31 the stocks will be considerably less than a month's supply—"A dangerously low level," O.W.I. said.

Cherkasy Falls to Russians

MONTREAL POLICE, FIREMEN, CIVIC WORKERS STRIKE

Back Up Demands For Recognition of Congress of Labor As Bargaining Agent

OFFERED PAY BOOSTS

Montreal, Dec. 14. (CP)—Police, firemen and Public Works employees today officially began a strike at 11.45 a.m.— 45 minutes after the deadline of an ultimatum calling for recognition of their Canadian Congress of Labor Unions.

Start of the strike was announced at a mass meeting of employees in a big East End Labor Hall where men—not on duty—had gathered to wait out the deadline and see if city hall officials would make any last minute proposals to stop strike action.

When the ultimatum was served yesterday morning city fathers had offered a compromise which included recognition of a Public Works Department C.C.L. Union but refused recognition of anything but a "House Union" for police or firemen. However wage increases, averaging $300, were offered as an alternative to the jurisdictional demand.

Cops Leave Beats.

An early survey showed that numbers of the big Montreal Cops, clad in their distinctive oxford gray greatcoats and black pony-hair peaked caps, left their beats soon after the 11 a.m. deadline when Union organizers circulated through the city informing them of the city's refusal of Union recognition. But it was 45 minutes before the strike was officially announced by Paul Marquette, C.C.L. organizer.

In many fire stations, crews left their equipment and made their way to the Labor Hall, where a marathon meeting was starting.

Public Works Department men, whose demands were recognized yesterday but who struck in sympathy, also joined the Labor rally. But first they drove snow removal equipment to the various city garages. They had been busily engaged right up to deadline moving the city's first big snow fall of the season.

Army Takes Over.

Roger Lavigueur, president of the C.C.L. Firemen's Union, announced that Stations No. 31 and 41 were taken over by the Canadian army shortly after their crews walked out.

Police chiefs announced that Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Quebec Provincial Police and Civilian Protection Committee (A.R.P.) men had started a police patrol of the city. They did not mention whether the Canadian Army Provost Corps, who had been suddenly called to report to barracks last night, would also be used.

At the Public Works Department it was announced that skeleton crews were standing by to look after the city's water supply.

Was Last Nazi Stronghold On Middle Dnieper River

(By EDWARD D. BALL, AP STAFF WRITER)

London, Dec. 14 —(AP)— Cherkasy, last remaining German stronghold on the middle Dnieper river between Kremenchug and Kiev, fell today to the Red army.

Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the victory in an order of the day broadcast by Moscow radio.

The new Soviet triumph of arms came as Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army turned the die against Field Marshal Fritz von Mannstein in the bloody battle of the Kiev bulge.

Cherkasy is a strategic river port on the main railway linking Minsk and Gomel with Odessa on the Black Sea. Its capture paves the way for the junction of Russian forces operating out of the Kremenchug bridgehead with those on the southern edge of the Kiev salient.

The reluctance of the Germans to evacuate Cherkasy was emphasized by the desperate and costly battle they fought to cling to this Dnieper port of 50,000 population, the outskirts of which were reached and bypassed on Nov. 19 by the Red army.

"After several weeks of bitter fighting in the Cherkasy area, which was successfully sustained against many times superior tank and infantry formations, the German command last night withdrew German garrison forces from Cherkasy to shortened and more favorable positions," said the broadcast.

INDUSTRIALISTS MAKE NO ATTEMPT TO HIDE FEELINGS

British Owners Worried Over Action of U. S. in Trade World

GREATEST TRADER

By JAMES F. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 14—(AP)—British industrialists are worried more and more over what they believe is a determination in the United States to take over leadership in world trade and economics, and they are making no attempt to hide their feelings.

As they see it, te trend in the United States is to promote the flow of American goods and services all over the world after the war, but with, as the London Times puts it, "few, if any signs of pre occupation with measures to provide facilities and opportunities for a corresponding influx of foreign goods and services into the United States."

As the world's greatest trader in the 19th century, Britain's position was different and frequently misunderstood, The Times argues, saying her economic power rested not only on her position as the greatest exporter and lender but, more important, on her position as the greatest import market and clearing house of the world.

Refinements of multilateral trading should not be allowed to obscure the essential character of trade as an act of barter, The Times said, adding that calamity lies in a policy "which seeks to inflate exports without applying an equal stimulus to imports."

It is felt here that unless the United States balances her exports by expanding her imports to provide a means for other countries to pay for goods, disaster will result.

Britain, having sold millions of dollars worth of her foreign investments during the war, especially in the United States, is in a position whre her means of payments for imports will depend almost entirely on her exports.

With America one of Britain's best markets, The Times said "British economic policy in international aspects cannot be framed without rgard to the question of whether British goods or goods of countries buying from Britain will find an open and receptive market in the United States after the war."

Another concern here is the announced American intention to carry most of her own goods—entering a field which Britain found extremely profitable before the war.

TRAP SEVENTY FOXES

Creemore, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—No ammunition shortage stops Claude Patton and Ernest Pifer, Glencairn district hunters. Substituting traps for rifles, they report taking about 70 foxes, selling the pelts for nearly $1,000. On top of that they have collected bounties on two wolves shared.

YUGOSLAVIA WILL HAVE CHANCE TO CHOOSE OWN GOV'T

King Peter and Tito Have Agreed to Lay Down Authority After War Won

PARTISANS ACTIVE

By ERNEST AGNEW
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Yugoslavia will have a chance to choose its own government after the war, Foreign Secretary Eden told Commons today. He said both King Peter II and Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), who recently formed a government of his own, have agreed to lay down their authority the moment the war is over and permit the country to choose freely how it wishes to be ruled.

Meanwhile a broadcast communique from the "Free Yugoslav" radio said Tito's Partisans now are engaged in the heaviest defensive fighting since they began their activities against the Germans.

The Nazis, heavily reinforced and using planes and tanks, are pressing hard to suppress Partisan resistance and have advanced in some sectors, but at tremendous costs the communique indicated.

The Partisans claimed more than 1,500 Germans killed and the capture of large quantities of war materials. They said the centre of the fighting was in Eastern Bosnia and Dalmatia and that in Eastern Bosnio alone the Germans have brought to bear six divisions.

Partisans Being Supplied

Mr. Eden, in his discussion of the Balkan situation, said "The Partisans are engaging a large number of German divisions and we are doing all we can to supply them with munitions and to support them in every possible way." He added Britain has had a military mission with Tito since last spring.

The "Free Yugoslav" radio announced that Tito had formulated plans for a government on a six-unit federal basis after the war. The six units named in the federal plan were Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Montenegro, Bosnia-Hercegovina and Sanjak-Macedonia.

A dispatch from Budapest to the newspaper Social Demokraten in Stockholm reported two Bulgarian army battalions had deserted in the last month and joined the Partisans.

Earlier today the Moscow radio announced a Russian military mission will be sent to Yugoslavia to obtain more detailed information on the guerilla organizations, as has been done by Britain.

Special Statement.

In a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor, a special statement by the Peoples' Commissariat of Foreign Affairs reviewed the setting of a provisional Yugoslav government by the forces of Marshal Josip Broz (Drug Tito).

The broadcast added:

INDIAN TROOPS CRASH THROUGH GERMAN DEFENCES

Offensive Proceeding Methodically Toward Strategic Junction of Ortona

PRISONERS TAKEN

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Indian troops attacking in the centre of the British 8th Army front in Italy crashed through German defences and captured a number of prisoners, headquarters announced today, while Canadians along the Adriatic coast hurled back Nazi armored attacks, wrecking tanks and inflicting casualties.

Main ground fighting took place on the 8th Army front. The Germans made a furious attempt to halt Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's offensive which is proceeding methodically toward the strategic road junction of Ortona.

British and Canadian guns knocked out a number of German tanks which tried to break through in counter-attacks and inflicted casualties on the attackers. The 8th then resumed its advance and broadened its bridgeheads south and southwest of Ortona in a number of local engagements.

Confined to Artillery Duels

Activity of the 5th Army front was confined to artillery duels and patrols, particularly in the Liri Valley, but Nazi prisoners taken by patrols said the German 10th Army had suffered heavy losses in recent mountain fighting against British and American troops which captured heights west of Mignano.

Weather was overcast and showery.

German self-propelled artillery and mortars were extremely active, shelling Allied positions along the Liri Valley. American big guns replied in a brisk artillery duel.

In the air war, American medium bombers attacked a German oil depot at the Yugoslav port of Split and also blasted warehouses at Sibenik, father up the coast.

In other air operations yesterday, fighter bombers and fighters attacked German gun positions and communications and set fire to motor transport.

Two Allied planes failed to return.

52 BELOW ZERO

Kirkland Lake, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Coal supplies in this northern mining centre dwindled visibly today as during the night residents strove to meet a 52-below zero temperature. At eight o'clock the thermometer read 40 below and the temperature continued its downward slide until the 52-below mark was recorded.

Many of Crew on Doomed U.S. Carrier Lost Lives Trying to Save Others

By EUGENE BURNS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 14 — (AP) — When the U.S.S. Liscome Bay, escort aircraft carrier, sank in a mass of flames off Makin Island Nov. 24, the torpedoed vessel carried down many men who ransomed the lives of their shipmates with their own.

The Japanese submarine's torpedo struck on the starboard side amound 5:13 a. m., said Capt. John G. Crommelin, Jr., who told the story of the next and final 20 minutes of the carrier's career.

Crommelin, Chief-of-Staff of Rear Admiral Henry M. Mullinix, who was lost with the ship, dove from the flight deck with even less on than a new-born babe, because "I left part of my hide behind."

Coming from a shower bath and wearing only a bath towel when the torpedo exploded, Crommelin joined officers and enlisted men in efforts to save lives.

The gasoline and oil-fed flames burned off Crommelin's hair, seared his right side, shoulder, legs and the soles of his feet.

Crommelin cited Lt.-Cmdr. Buzz Carroll for unselfish heroism.

Carroll was cut across the stomach from shoulder to hip, but he went below decks to help trapped men free themselves, and lugged wounded men to escape hatches.

Dr. Rowe, who was in the water swimming from one man to another to give first aid, later found Carroll with his head hanging down, supported by a life jacket. Carroll failed to respond to the doctor's ministrations, and Rowe said later the man had lost too much blood while helping others

Capt. Irving D. Wiltsie, the carrier's skipper, was on the bridge when the torpedo struck, Crommelin said.

"Deliberately, calmly, Wiltsie lowered himself to the hangar deck which was burning fiercely," the officer related. "He conferred with the executive officer, then went into the flaming sectors to make a careful inspection, refusing to walk off his ship."

Conference Plans Will Be Unrolled On Field of Battle

Churchill Has Still More Work To Do, Where He Now Is

By ROGER D. GREENE, AP STAFF WRITER)

London, Dec. 14 —(AP)— Foreign Secretary Eden, reporting to Commons on the Teheran-Cairo conferences, declared today "the war will be shortened" by decisions reached with Premier Stalin, and again pledged Britain to battle to the final destruction of Japan.

He told the cheering House that Prime Minister Churchill has "still more work to do in the sphere where he is now." Mr. Churchill had stayed on in Cairo, meeting last week with leaders of smaller powers.

Quicker defeat of the Axis was ensured by the "close co-operation of our military plans" at the Teheran meeting of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Mr. Churchill, Mr. Eden declared.

"Every plan is now agreed upon. The timing is now agreed upon, and in due course the decisions of Teheran will be unrolled on the field of battle."

"The military missions agreed in Cairo" at the Anglo-American-Chinese meeting "on future military operations against Japan."

Mr. Eden termed Japan as much a menace to Britain as to the United States and China, and said Britain is "a principal in the Far Eastern war" because "to destroy Germany and then make a compromise peace with Japan would only sow the seeds of a third world war."

Highlights of Report

Other highlights of the foreign secretary's report:—

Turkey: The conference with President Ismet Inonu gave "good hopes" for a "sound basis for future co-operation between ourselves, Soviet Russia, America and Turkey," and was "encouraging. Further than that I cannot go today."

Post-War: Complete co-operation of Britain, Russia and the United States is assured. "We three can work together," Mr. Eden said. "The current threat of war can only be met if there is an international order firmer in strength and unity than any enemy could seek to challenge."

Balans: A British military mission has been with forces of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) in Yugoslavia since last spring, and Britain is doing everything to supply them with munitions and other help. Politically, the Allies are working to unite dissident groups in Yugoslavia, and both King Peter and the government of Tito have agreed to let the country choose its own form of government after the war.

Warning against an attitude of "easy optimism," the Foreign Secretary declared:—

The very magnitude of the plans to which we have set our hands will call for an immense effort....We have set ourselves a hard task in determination to achieve victory at the earliest possible moment.

"Great battles are impending and for this we shall need all our strength, all our courage, all our unity, in greater measure perhaps than ever before."

Slow Due to Terrain

Of Italy he said this campaign has been slow due to tremendous difficulties of terrain and weather, but all the more important hill features are in our hands, and it seems the Germans may be forced to withdraw farther."

Accused Woman Wins Gamble on Her Fate

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—There was no compromise for Rosalie Walsh, 21-year-old telephone operator, at her trial on a charge of murdering a love rival.

She wanted either her freedom or a verdict of murder. She gambled on her fate and won her freedom.

A criminal court jury last night acquitted her on a charge of murdering Alberta Morrow, 28, a beauty operator, who was shot and fatally wounded Sept. 7 when she and Miss Walsh's fiance, Anthony Van Arkel, came to the latter's home.

As the trial of the blond defendant neared an end yesterday, The state disclosed it was willing to submit a manslaughter verdict, as well as the various murder and acquittal decisions. (Conviction of manslaughter carries a penalty of one to 14 years in prison; the sentence for murder ranges from 14 years to life, or death.)

Defence Attorney George Crane, after conferring with Miss Walsh, advised Judge Rudolph Desort:-

"She doesn't want a compromise. It's either freedom or murder."

Year of Achievement Reviewed By Kinsmen at Annual Meeting

Past President Lloyd Lauded for Fine Showing of Club

M. CURRIE PRESIDENT

It was welcome and farewell as Kinsmen Club held their year's final meeting at Quinte Hotel Monday evening when Past President Orliff Lloyd handed the club gavel over, with due ceremony, to President Matt Currie at the induction of president when club chairmen gave tenure of stewardship for the year 1943. Following the reports of committees Kin. Mayor Harry Rollins spoke to the meeting on the subject "Service Clubs and the Community."

In handing over the club chief executive chair, to President-elect Currie, retiring President Lloyd expressed his thanks to the various chairmen and club members for their united support during his term as president and called upon the Kinsmen to afford the newly-appointed officers the same co-operation as exemplified in 1943.

Large Membership Increase

In accepting the gavel, President Currie gave a short resume of the accomplishments of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville under Past-President Lloyd's direction. "When Kin. Orliff took over office a year ago this club boasted of but 35 members. Today we have 62 active members and I can tell you that in 1943, under President Lloyd our club enjoyed the largest increase in membership in the entire National Association of Kinsmen. He also brought a district council meeting to Belleville and our founder, Hal Rogers," stated President Currie as he presented Kin. Lloyd with the Past-President's pin of Kinsmenship.

In asking the various chairmen to make their annual reports, Past-President Lloyd outlined the work of the club, adding that the Belleville Kinsmen Club had enjoyed its greatest year in its history. Kin. Newt Wilbur reported as Membership Chairman, while President Currie gave some interesting figures as chairman of the Kinsmen Fag Fund, a post being taken over in 1944 by Kin. Buster Labarr.

1,623,500 Fags Shipped Overseas

"Since inauguration the Kinsmen Fag Fund has sent a grand total of 1,623,500 cigarettes to Belleville boys serving overseas. On January 1st, 1943, we were sending weekly shipments of 300 cigarettes to 40 boys, today we are sending weekly shipments to upwards of 75 and for the first 50 weeks of this current year our expenses were approximately $2,826.68," stated Kin. Currie as he thanked the Kiwanis Club for a recent donation of $50 towards the fund.

Kin. Harry Rollins reported as chairman of the ways and means committee and reviewed the various projects sponsored by the Kinsmen for the benefit of their Fag and Milk for Britain Funds, as well as the conventional Eye Clinic work. Kin. Johnnie Fisher reported on the Kinsmen weekly bingos, the backbone of the financial success of the club. And Kin. Mac McMullen as chairman of the Sunshine and Kin. Cleo Colling for the program committees also gave a report on their tenure of office.

$5,200 Raised for Milk for Britain Fund

"During 1943 our club raised $5,200 in various ventures for the Milk for Britain Fund and no doubt this will be increased before the end of the calendar year," reported Kin. Harry Knott, the club treasurer. He told the club members the Kinsmen Club of Belleville had operated its general fund to a financial advantage in 1943.

In speaking on "Service Clubs and the Community," Kin. Harry Rollins called on the service clubs of Belleville to assist in two essential programs. "I would like to see our service clubs study the rehabilitation of our boys and girls serving overseas in our post-war planning when they return to civilian life and the second thing is to have the service clubs of Belleville form a committee for the reception of our boys on their return, be it now or at the termination of a victorious war." He told of a personal case where the rehabilitation of a soldier in another community had been already neglected and brought directly to his attention.

In pointing out the individual and respective aims of the three local service clubs, the speaker continued—

"Rotary—is an association, the object of which is to improve civic service, thus making the community a better place in which to live. Here the work of our local Rotary Club is exemplified in its "crippled children's" project, a program that saves the city large sums of money annually".

"Kiwanis—is an association, established for the purpose of fostering brotherhood and inculcating the observance of the Golden Rule in both social and business life, thus putting into the life of the community the Rule to treat others as we ourselves wish to be treated. How appropriate that motto fits in with the Kiwanis Blood Donor Clinic, giving something to our fellowmen that we ourselves can do without".

"Kinsmen—a group of young business men giving leadership, teaching high ideals of service for human welfare and community betterment. Here we render such service as our Eye Clinic, thus enabling children to see the future. The Fag Fund is another spirit of true Kinsmenship to keep the home ties unbroken, while in the Milk for Britain program you are rendering a priceless service to humanity and also helping to cement relationship for all time between Canada and the Empire. So you can plainly see that service clubs do give something to a community that cannot be measured in dollars and cents", concluded Mayor Rollins.

The speaker was introduced by Kin "Twigg" Woodley and extended the thanks of the club by Kin Newt Wilbur and President Lloyd. In a "Christmas Cheer" raffle Kin A. Cruji was the winner when the sum of $16.50 was realized through the efforts of President Matt Currie. Kin Jim Elliott collected fines as sergeant-at-arms and Kin Bill McIntosh led the singing.

HI-JACKERS GOT HIM

George Butcher, transport driver of Chatham, Ont., is pictured as he arrived at Toronto detective headquarters to report that three armed hi-jackers kidnapped him and his truck and $25,000 worth of liquor after freeing him in a Toronto suburb. The liquor was consigned to an Ontario liquor control board store in Toronto from Walkerville distilleries.

POLICE COURT

As the result of a recent disturbance at the New Service cafe, Front Street, Jack Norris, R.R. No. 2 Belleville, paid $7.50 including costs, after being convicted before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in today's city police court upon the entrance of his own plea of guilty.

Without appearing George Baptiste, of the Tyendinaga Reserve, pleading guilty in writing to two charges of violations of the L.C.A., namely that of being a person under 21 years of age and applying and obtaining a beer permit and second of purchasing beer. In each case Baptiste paid ten dollars and costs at the time of apprehension and did not appear today. However, Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson moved for the confiscation of ten quarts of beer that Baptiste had in his possession when apprehended by city police recently.

George Asselstine, South Front Street, pleaded guilty to a second offence intoxication charge, but sentence was left in abeyance for two weeks. Chief Probert informed the court Asselstine had received a letter from the military authorities in Kingston and might be able to enlist. The accused man stated he was willing, which prompted His Worship to adjourn the matter a fortnight

Violations of municipal parking by-laws cost two motorists two dollars each.

Lighthouse Tenders Will Soon Close Down Their Beacons

Captains Say Past Fall Has Been One of the Finest in Many Years—No Accidents on Lake During Season

Point Traverse Dec. 14. —Duck Island lighthouse tenders will close down their beacon on or about Dec. 15, according to word received by the keepers.

The Canadian lighthouse ship Grenville is busy on Lake Ontario taking up buoys and navigation aids and placing winter markers. Some one hundred buoys must be removed from dangerous shoals and reefs before the Grenville will make port at Prescott.

Lighthouseman W. E. Thomas, Picton, keeper at the Main Ducks, will be taken off from his post by the Grenville, and brought to this point. If weather permits Keeper K. A. McConnell and son, Jimmy, at False Ducks, will leave their station for their home at Black River, near Milford. The Point Traverse light operates automatically and will continue in operation for some time yet.

While the last 'trippers' of the season are making hurried runs for winter ports, lake captains state that they have experienced one of the finest falls in many seasons. Neither a ship nor sailor has been lost on Lake Ontario this fall.

"From this point of view," the statement concluded, "the activities of Gen. 'FLU SHOWS SIGN OF ABATEMENT IN MOST CENTRES

Cold Weather Seen as Factor in Reducing the Number of Cases

TYPE NOT VIRULENT

(By The Canadian Press)

The outbreak of influenza which has caused more than 70 deaths across Canada has passed its peak. A survey by The Canadian Press today showed that the disease is abating in most centres.

Directly or indirectly the malady has been blamed for 42 deaths in Quebec, 14 in Ontario seven in Manitoba, two in Saskatchewan, five in Alberta and one in Halifax. Accurate check of the toll will not be available however, until official reports have been studied in Ottawa.

The outbreak was far less severe than the great epidemic of 1918, and considerably less serious than a current outbreak in England and Wales.

Dr. J. J. Heagerty, director of Public Health services at Ottawa, said last night the present epidemic has passed its peak. "There certainly is a general decrease in the number of cases across the country", he added.

Cold Spell Benefits.

In Montreal, where the 'flu is said to have been a contributory cause in 42 deaths during the past two weeks, Dr. Adelard Groulx, the Health Department director, said that there are indications the epidemic today is less serious than it was and this may be due to the cold spell. Generally colder weather throughout the Dominion appears to have been a factor in the lower incidence of the disease.

Word that the disease is abating came also from Ottawa, Winnipeg and Edmonton, and Ontario centres.

There have been no cases of virulent influenza in Nova Scotia although many school children and workers have been forced to take to bed for a day or so.

The outbreak was also of a very mild type in New Brunswick. Prince Edward Island reported no cases of influenza.

Cold weather of the past few days brought relief to Ontario districts. This was noticeable at Niagara Falls and Galt. Woodstock, like many other districts, reported no fatalities but a noticeable reduction in attendance at schools and factories.

The five civilian hospitals in the Hamilton area are still closed to visitors. A small number of cases of virulent influenza have been reported there, with three deaths. Thousands of people are temporarily laid up but the number of new cases is decreasing.

Colder weather is also bringing a reduction in the outbreak in Brantford, Chatham, St. Thomas, Kitchener and Guelph. At London it is estimated 8,000 persons are currently laid up with a mild type of 'flu but there have been no deaths there directly attributable to the disease.

BRITISH VICTORIES CAUSE SAVINGS DROP

London —(CP)— British military successes have resulted in a "disturbing" drop in small savings in the last four months, from £15,500,000 ($69,750,000) to £11,500,000, says Lord Kindersley, chairman of the National Savings Committee.

"We must get our savings results into step with the tremendous efforts which the fighting forces are making, and the still greater efforts which they will soon be called upon to make," he said.

GERMANY SWEPT BY 'FLU

Madrid, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Germany is being swept by an epidemic of influenza and grippe "comparable to or greater than that prevalent in Britain," according to a neutral physician who recently arrived here from Berlin.

The physician said that cases of the disease are particularly numerous in the Rhineland in Prussia, and that Berlin authorities are preparing to meet a spread of the epidemic to that city already demoralized by Allied bombing.

TOKYO ADMITS LOSS

New York, Dec. 14 —(AP)— The Tokyo radio indirectly acknowledged the loss of Tarawa today in a broadcast reporting that Japanese planes had attacked the United States airbase there yesterday.

The broadcast, recorded by U. S. Government monitors, represented the first Japanese admission that the tiny island in the Gilberts no longer is in Japanese hands. Previous Tokyo broadcasts had spoken of a Japanese "victory" in fighting at Tarawa.

House-Hunting In Canada's Capital A Real Headache

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The trouble-burdened characters of the radio soap operas stack up as sissies against the weary soul trying to find a place to live in this overcrowded capital.

One of the problems is advertisements like these (inserted by other and more prosperous house-hunters):

"Furnished duplex — don't apply unless you can pay year's rent in advance."

"Willing to pay up to $200 a month rent for furnished house."

"Apartment or duplex wanted. Six months' rent in advance, $25 reward."

"Quiet couple, no children, want furnished or unfurnished apartment —rent no object."

Children Not Wanted

Many landlords turn both thumbs down to anyone with children. The average househunter would get mighty discouraged if it wasn't for the occasional chuckle he gets out of the advertisements run by other people in the same plight as himself:

"Wifeless, childless, apartmentless officer wants apartment. You name it and I'll claim it."

"It's getting rather cold for a park-bench honeymoon — can anyone rent us a furnished apartment?"

One lad, burned out of his apartment, advertised for another. He listed what he wanted and said:— "Anyone knowing of a landlord with such accommodation please telephone...will take it over, and have the landlord put on display in the Smithsonian Institute."

A landlord with an apartment to rent in Ottawa IS a museum piece. I'll agree.

Perhaps a letter to Santa Claus ...Well, I'm still looking.

Miss Clazie, Repatriated Missionary From Japan, Treated Well by Japs

Was Interned in Catholic Mission at Tokyo for Year

WOULD GO BACK

"Why certainly I would go back to Japan. After all had it not been for conditions brought about by the war, I would not now be in Canada."

Thus anxiety to resume mission work in the "settlement" at Tokyo, where she has worked for the past eleven years was exemplified by Miss Mabel Clazie as on Monday she talked with a representative of The Ontario Intelligencer. Miss Clazie was recently repatriated to Canada aboard the exchange ship Gripsholm after being interned in Tokyo for twelve months. She has been in the Orient for the past 33 years.

Although truly appreciative of the opportunity of again visiting members of her immediate family in Belleville and district, Miss Clazie clearly reflected her desire to return to her mission work in Japan. "I still have a great many friends in Japan," she said. "They treated me very kindly, even during my period of internment."

Talks Freely of Work

In the comfort of her sister's home on the 2nd concession of Thurlow and in the midst of writing a report for the Board of Missions in Toronto, the repatriated missionary talked freely of her work in Formosa and in Japan. Before going to the Orient Miss Clazie had worked as a public school teacher in Hastings. During the past few years she has been social worker and teacher of English in the "settlement" at Tokyo.

Teaching of the English language in Japanese schools is a regular part of the curriculum, according to Miss Clazie. This holds true ever since the declaration of war against the British, although the hours of teaching have been reduced.

Talking of conditions in Formosa when she first went to the Orient 33 years ago as a Presbyterian missionary, Miss Clazie stated that already Japanese custom and teaching were beginning to supersede the Chinese. Then the population of Formosa was predominantly Chinese although the country had come under Japanese control many years before.

Modernized Formosa

"The Japanese did much to build up Formosa," stated the missionary. "By the time I left the country in 1931 electric lights and motor cars were in common use by all except the aborigines in the distant hills. The people felt still that they belonged to China and there was grumbling about the heavy taxes, but they realized they were getting something for the money being paid as taxes."

Young Formosans in the pre-war period went regularly to Japan to study medicine, later going back to their home country to set themselves up in practice, according to Miss Clazie. Asked if there was indication of a large portion of the heavy taxes going to Japan to build up the war machine, she answered that missionaries entered very little into the political sphere.

At the time of the church union in 1925 Miss Clazie became associated with the United Church but stayed on in Formosa until the establishment of the "settlement" in Japan.

Modern Business Buildings

Japanese living in the large cities have become almost completely westernized with former customs and living conditions having all but disappeared outwardly. Japanese girls have entered into business offices, much the same as Canadian girls and since the war are seen regularly in charge of street cars and taxis. Contrary to the general opinion the business parts of Japanese cities are modern in every respect with buildings constructed of reinforced concrete. Only in the living quarters do the old type frame houses exist.

The Japanese are very industrious with young persons making excellent use of night school privileges to increase their academic standing while at work in factories. Much of Miss Clazie's work had to do with assisting to iron out social problems, while also at the "settlement" were held kindergarten classes. It was estimated by Miss Clazie that prior to the war 99 per cent of the Japanese were able to read and write, she claiming Japan to be one of the most literate countries in the world.

Christianity is not outlawed by governmental authorities in Japan but has equal standing with Buddhism and Shintoism, the official Japanese religion.

Public Not Informed.

With the military authorities in power in Japan, the real truth of international matters was not given to the general public prior to the war and as a consequence the declaration of war came as a distinct surprise to much of the Japanese population. Undying devotion and belief in the Emperor is held even by the Christian Japanese, their sense of patriotism mounting above all else.

At the outbreak of war many male Nationals were interned by the Japanese but women missionaries had not been interned until September 13th., 1942. Military authorities indicated that they were then interned for their own protection, but Miss Clazie considered the real reason was because of the close contact missionaries had with the Japanese people.

At the time of their internment missionaries were given two hours by authorities to get ready and then were interned in a Roman Catholic Mission. She had no complaints of the treatment received during the twelve-month internment but was thankful for the Red Cross parcels which were received each month.

"Our Japanese friends showed us every kindness", stated Miss Clazie. "They even brought gifts of food. Our guards were also very kind and considerate".

Indebted to Red Cross.

"I cannot express too greatly my gratitude to the Red Cross, however", she said, and I feel like urging everyone to help this organization in every way they could". Gifts of food through the Johannesburg Red Cross served to "carry us through", she said.

Japanese newspapers were permitted in the internment camp but their contents naturally played up the Japanese angle of the war so were not much use insofar as obtaining the truth about the war was concerned.

According to Miss Clazie there is now a decrease in church attendance in Japan but this was held due to the busy life lived by the Japanese, rather than to any turning away from Christianity. The attitude of the Christian Japanese toward the English and Americans is that it was they who were responsible for bringing Christianity into Japan.

Since arriving home from the Orient Miss Clazie has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. John Donaldson, 2nd Concession Thurlow. Another sister, Mrs. George Hall lives on the 1st Concession of Thurlow, as does her brother, Mr. Arthur Clazie, who still resides on the homestead. A third sister, Miss Isabel Clazie resides in Belleville.

11 WAR WORKERS KILLED

Bath, N. Y., Dec. 14 —(AP)— Eleven war workers bound for the Ingersoll-Rand plant at nearby Painted Post were killed today when the bus in which they were passengers burned after a collision with a trailer truck.

At least eight more persons were injured, one critically. Coroner James J. Sanford said he understood the bus contained 20 passengers. He said the bus overturned after the collision, then caught fire.

Short Change Artists Active in W. Ontario

"Short change" artists are again busy in the western part of the province according to a story in the Woodstock paper, in which the chief of police of that centre repeats a warning for residents to be on guard.

According to the story from Woodstock the "short change" artists usually work in pairs and after purchasing merchandise worth a few cents proffer a $20 bill in payment. While the clerk is making change they invariably do their utmost to create a confusion and in many cases profit to the extent of many dollars. Merchants were advised by police authorities to pay no attention to strangers who offer $20 bills in payment of a purchase amounting to only a few cents.

ATTACK ENEMY SHIPPING

Cairo, Dec. 14 —(AP)— United States medium bombers harassed enemy shipping in the Aegean Sea in daylight yesterday, sinking a sailing ship, setting a large coastal vessel afire and scoring a direct hit on a motor ship, the Middle East Air Command announced today.

To Place Roll in Abbey

In the national shrine of Westminster Abbey, London, will be placed after the war the names of the 375 R.A.F. pilots (among whom were numbered some Canadians), who died in the Battle of Britain, defending Britain and freedom in the days of grave anxiety in 1940 when Hitler was at the crest of his power.

In that "greatest hour" of Britain's danger and of heroic British manhood and womanhood, the enemy air fleets were foiled, and turned back so definitely that never again did Hitler and Goering try to dominate the skies over Britain. That year 1940 was the year when Britain stood alone against the blitzkrieg might of Germany, it was the year of the immortal evacuation of Dunkirk, another event which forever proved the sublime courage and endurance of the British people, after the tragic collapse of France. It was that year when Mussolini led Italy into the war against France and Britain. It was a year of tremendous import, through all of which British spirit and endurance were triumphant. Events of that year called forth words of praise again and again from Prime Minister Churchill in tribute to British courage of the spirit.

It is over three years since these R.A.F. pilots fell. When they died they gave the world a sublime example of true knighthood of the spirit and defenders of liberty. In the year when they fought and fell, the way was not clear, except through faith in the stout hearts and courage of men and women, of service men and of civilians of Britain. Much of the after course of the war has depended on the deeds of those days and these airmen died that Britain and her freedom might live and endure.

It will be a timely tribute to the men who fell in the Battle of Britain to place a roll in the Henry VII Chapel of the shrine of Britain's heroic dead, the great Abbey.

Women Engineers

Because engineering trends to remain a predominantly male profession, Sir Stafford Cripps, Minister of Aircraft Production, addressing women engineers in Manchester, England, suggested that improvement of "household amenities" would be a sphere of engineering to which women might turn with advantage after the war. He said that 40 per cent of the workers in the aircraft industry are women, compared with only 12 per cent in June, 1940. Sir Stafford warned that women should not think that they had any right to occupy the more skilled posts without going through the rather long process of qualifying for them.

What, of Hitler's Fate!

Every now and then suggestions crop up as to what to do when Adolf Hitler is captured or falls into Allied hands. That he is one of the arch criminals of Germany is realized by everyone.

The Montreal Herald has referred to the question, quoting Booth Tarkington, the novelist, as having "worked out a writer's plot for the last chapter in dealing with Hitler. He would place him in an insane asylum. This, he thinks, would prevent him from being martyrized and would have a sobering effect on the German people for it would make them realize, that their ills are due to the fact that they permitted a madman to lead them to disaster."

The Herald writer thinks there may not be this way out of it for he remarks: "However we haven't got Hitler yet and probably never will get him. Our guess is that his brains will be blown out, either by himself or his fellow Germans, long before the victory march into Berlin."

There appears to be one name fit to be linked with Hitler's, that of Nero, the arch criminal of ancient Rome, whose life was one of terrible excesses and crimes. Nero is generally believed to have been responsible for the fires that destroyed two thirds of the capital city in the first century. Of course he blamed the Christians for it and persecuted them. He then rebuilt Rome with magnificence and plundered Italy and the provinces to pay the cost. Finally disaster caught up with him and he fled. In terror Nero finally succeeded in ending his life on the highway as he was fleeing the soldiers who had revolted.

Hitler has been responsible for more dead and more crimes committed by the Germans than any man in history. He brought the greatest war to come to pass through his bitterness, envy and greed for loot and power. He has been more barbarous than the barbarian chiefs of the fifth century. Like Nero, Hitler is capable of vengeance of the most terrible kind. Some persons think Hitler will make every effort to find an escape although he has said he would not run away from Germany but finding it in vain would be shot by some one in Germany or by himself as a last resort to escape the retribution he knows will face him. Yet some think that he may not have enough fortitude to do this act of suicide.

Whatever fate that comes to punish him he will never be in a position to plot to kill and to plunder the world.

On Historic Grounds

President Roosevelt was in Carthage recently since the memorable conferences at Cairo and Teheran, and discussed with General Eisenhower the Allied plans for victory.

The site of ancient Carthage is in that portion of Tunisia which some months ago saw the windup of the German and Italian army which in vain tried to hold North Africa and had to flee for fifteen hundred and more miles before the famous British Eighth Army, only to be crushed in Tunisia. It was from Tunisia that the next move was to Sicily and then to Italy.

Carthage bears relationship to the Rome of old for Rome and Carthage about twenty-two or three centuries ago decided there the fate of the Mediterranean which became the Roman lake. Rome crushed Carthage for many generations.

Today's warfare brings to life and light these old place-names of two and a third milleniums ago. But the meeting was more than one on historic ground, it was the outcome of the plans set by the Allied leaders in the recent conferences. Out of the Carthage meeting will stem important events.

London Hotels

(Manchester Guardian)

The London hotel situation; already bad, is likely to get worse. Lord Portal is meeting the hotel industry to discuss further Service demands to be made upon it, particularly for American officers and men.

Hotel chiefs say that little can be done except by refusing manufacturers and specialists in war industries who have regularly to visit Government departments in their work, relatives of soldiers who come up to go with a relative who has won an award to Buckingham Palace or to get the decorations of dead heroes, witnesses in law cases, and others who have to come on indispensable business. Visitors on pleasure nowadays are almost negligible. Already some of the biggest hotels have had to set apart sections for foreign soldiers.

The fact has to be faced that if increasing numbers of American officers and men are to be in London on duty and on leave the Office of Works will have to repair and recondition many more of the disused West End houses and make them into hostels.

Bow-and-arrow tribesmen of the Assam border have been comrades of the British "Tommy" and the Indian soldier in the fighting in Burma during the long monsoon months. At one-hundred yards' range the feathered shafts of these Naga hill-dwellers can kill as effectively as a bullet—and without a sound.

Repose and cheerfulness are the badge of the gentleman—repose in energy.—Emerson.

THE LUCKY LAD

Who is the lucky lad? Not I,
Who safely watch the brave go by;
Not I, who, from my earliest year,
Have never peril had to fear;
Not I, who, in my country's need,
Have never shared one glorious deed,
But always, youth to age, have stayed
Complacent, safe and unafraid.

Who is the lucky lad? 'Tis he
Who battles, land or sky or sea;
Who hears his country's bugles call
And in her service offers all;
Who, flesh and bone and mind and heart,
Is of her strength a vital part;
Who heeds commands, perhaps to die,
'Tis he is luckier far than I.

Better, I hold, to march head high
Than merely watch the troops go by,
Better, I'd say, to fight and fall
Than have no part in it at all!
Better, although the task is hard,
To wade the swamps or stand on guard,
Dive the cold seas or ride the sky,
Than to sit safe at home, as I.

From the Red River through the Rocky Mountains to the Fraser River was the trek made by explorers, trappers and Indians when the Northwest was virgin wilderness. Accounts of these trips stress the importance of progression, which meant preservation. Delays often led to death. In the winter, men traveled on snowshoes with dog trains, keeping up a steady pace, and sometimes marching sixteen hours at one stretch to cover as much as fifty-six miles a day.

Simon Fraser, who gave his name to the swift-flowing stream in British Columbia, records in his journal of 1808: "I have been for a long period among the Rocky Mountains but have never seen anything like this country. It is so wild that I cannot finds words to describe the situation at times. We have to pass where no human being should venture; in these places there is a regular footpath impressed or rather indented, upon the very rocks by frequent travel. We had to pass many difficult rocks, defiles, precipices through which there was a kind of beaten path practiced by natives and made passable by means of scaffolds, bridges, ladders so peculiarly constructed that it required no small degree of necessity, dexterity and courage in strangers to undertake."

Spearing fish was a sport enjoyed by explorers, then by the settlers. They learned all about it from the Indians, in whose hands the wielding of the spear had become an art. The natives carried and stabbed the waters dexterously blazing torches of white birch bark as the fish drew close to the boat, attracted by the light.

To bring them "fisherman's luck," west-coast Indians said a prayer at special shrines in the woods before casting off from shore. The shrines were neatly woven of moss and twigs and represented the typical canoe, complete with boatsmen, spears and boodly "catch."

DIES IN CRASH IN SNOWSTORM

Lieut. W. D. King of Aurora, Who Was Taking Pilot's Training, is Victim

Camp Borden, Ont., Dec. 14 — (CP) — Second son of an Aurora, Ont., family to die as the result of the war, Lieut. William D. King, 24, was killed yesterday when his Harvard trainer crashed near Penetang.

In announcing his name today, R.C.A.F. officials here attributed the crash to a sudden snowstorm which caught a three-plane formation aloft on a training flight.

Overseas eight months with the Canadian Army, Lieut. King returned to Canada to take pilot's training with a view to future participation in army-airforce combined operations. He retained his army rank while training.

Lieut. King joined the Toronto Scottish in the first year of war, later transferring to an armored regiment. In England he was shifted to the 7th Reconnaissance Regiment.

A brother, Sgt. Pilot Dale Terry King, was killed in February of this year on his 21st birthday while flying with the R.C.A.F. out of Malta. Another brother, PO. Dale King, a twin of Terry, is a prisoner of war in Germany after his R.C.A.F. plane was shot down on operations.

Lieut. King was married seven weeks ago. Surviving are his widow of Shanty Bay, near Barrie, Ont., his mother, Mrs. W. C. King of Aurora, and two half brothers, F. P. Watts of Montreal and J. W. Watts of Weston, near Toronto. Before enlisting Lieut. King was a member of the University of Toronto athletic staff.

Funeral services for Lieut. King will be held in Toronto Wednesday afternoon.

New Air Blows Against Enemy In the Marshalls

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 14 — (AP) —Latest war reports along a 1,700-mile Pacific chain of outpost Japanese defences told today of new air blows against the enemy in the Marshalls and Solomons and slow, steady progress of Australian soldiers in the jungles of New Guinea's Huon peninsula.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported a 50-ton bombing by 7th United States Army Air Force bombers of a Japanese cargo ship and shore installations at Emidj in Jaluit atoll of the mid-Pacific Marshalls Saturday.

Admiral William F. Halsey reported that his Solomons air force made 175 sorties the same day as the Jaluit raid on Bougainville island and in the Northern Solomons.

On Huon peninsula, part of New Guinea nearest Japan-held New Britain Island, Australian soldiers were reported to have advanced to a point nearly 12 miles north of Finschhafen.

The Aussies, who have utilized planes, tanks, mortars and cavalry in a campaign fought over difficult terrain, still are less than halfway up the 60-mile-long peninsula shore.

R.C.A.F. Men in Africa Highly Praised by Padre

Endure Heat, Cold, Vermin, Water Shortage—and Painful Letters From Home

By PO. A. F. TINSLEY
(R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer.)

Ottawa, Dec. 14. —A story of steadfast devotion to duty by personnel of the Royal Canadian Air Force stationed in North Africa, and of his own experiences during a six months period of duty with them, was told by Squadron Leader H. E. D. Ashford, padre, of Calgary, on his return to Canada from the Middle East recently.

Squadron Leader Ashford, who last summer became the first Canadian padre to accompany a bomber crew on an operational flight, is on leave at his Calgary home, and will go to the west coast before returning for another spell overseas. He made the flight with the bomber crew as a passenegr (for padres cannot fight) during a raid on Italy in order that he might better understand what airmen go through and what problems they have on such raids.

Praises Ground Crews

For the work of the R.C.A.F. ground crew boys in Africa, Squadron Leader Ashford had only the highest praise. They did magnificently, he said. It was no uncommon sight to see men working in the terrific heat of the desert until they literally dropped. Not only did they work by day but they guarded their planes by night. During the season of the sirocco (hot) winds, the bombs which the ground crew had to load on to the Wellington bombers often became so hot that the men's hands were seared. Nevertheless, the loaded bombers left for their operations on schedule.

Even worse than the heat of the day and the cold of the desert nights were the flies—millions upon millions of flies, said the padre. They did not sting or bite. They just worried men almost crazy, and the men, he said, found them harder to put up with than anything else.

Tells of Sam Meeks.

Squadron Leader Ashford cited, as an example of the splendid morale and duty-consciousness of the Canadians, notwithstanding the heat, cold, flies, vermin, water shortage, indifferent food, weekly beer allowance of only half a pint per man, sirrocco winds and pungent Arabs, the case of an R.C.A.F. flier named Sam Meeks.

Flight Sergeant Meeks, he said, originally went overseas with the Canadian Army. He waited three years for action, and then, at the age of 35, transferred to the R.C.A.F. as a tail gunner.

Crashes did not worry Meeks. He laughed at them. But a telegram from home one day called for more courage from him than any parachute jump had ever done.

Meeks, whose address is Kingston, Ont., received a cable from his wife's doctor telling him she had just undergone a very serious operation and would not know for six months whether she would live or die.

"Flight Sergeant Meeks brought the cable to me" said Squadron Leader Ashford. "I asked him, 'Sam do you want to go home—you have five children?' His reply was not an enthusiastic outburst, but a considered statement. 'God knows I want to go home', he said, 'but I can only return when I have finished my tour of operations'.

Fortunately Mrs. Meeks recovered. Of that kind of stuff, said the padre, the Canadians in Africa are made.

Painful Letters.

Squadron Leader Ashford spoke at length on the subject of letters which the men receive from home, and expressed the hope that his remarks might help to stop something which is very definitely damaging to an airman's morale. Certain letters are received by R.C.A.F. personnel in North Africa which "cause pain in the heart of the recipient", he said. He put them into three categories.

"First", said the squadron leader, "are the letters from loving mothers who are worried over their sons' operations and who continue to write warning them of the terrible danger they are in and incessantly hoping and praying that they will soon be finished with them.

"Second are the letters from wives who get out of bed on the wrong side and then recalled some family quarrel that was never quite settled and consider it their bounden duty to finish the quarrel in their letters, although their husbands are thousands of miles away.

"Third, and saddest of all", the padre continued, "are the letters from wives in the service, or in munitions or other work, who began harmlessly to walk out with some other man after their husbands went overseas. Then they write deploring the mistake they made in getting married and demand a release, emphatically declaring at the same time that they cannot live without so-and-so". Such letters do serious things to men far from home.

Turn to Religion.

Squadron Leader Ashford was deeply impressed with the religious life of the Canadians in North Africa. He declared that at least 96 percent of the R.C.A.F. personnel there regularly attended church services. He predicted that as a result quite a number of men would take up the church upon returning to civil life. He said he knew already of at least 12 men who had expressed their determination to do so after the war. These were mostly men from air crew, he said.

Squadron Leader Ashford said: "Facing the hazards they do, I think they tend to rely on every source of power and they have discovered that the power which maintains them best is the Divine Power".

While in Africa Padre Ashford had much experience with the Arabs, and was the guest of one, Sheik Khalif. From his observation of the Arabs he said he felt "quite certain that the day will come when the Arabs will occupy a larger place in the councils of the world than he does at present. These natives have known armies of occupation for four years. Perhaps they do not know where their sympathies lie, but they do know kindness, fairness, generosity and courtesy, and they react to these fine qualities just as any other people do".

Squadron Leader Ashford declared that "the campaign in Africa proved that Canadians, properly led, cannot be surpassed by any people in any land at any time".

BERLIN SAYS 1,000 CHINESE DROWNED AS BOAT UPSETS

New York, Dec. 13 — (AP) —The Berlin radio, quoting a Shanghai report, said today that more than 1,000 Chinese drowned Thursday when a Yangtse river steamer sank off the river port of Nantung in Kiangu province.

It said only 200 persons were rescued and blamed the accident on "the carelessness" of the shipping company, which it asserted permitted so many passengers to board the vessel that it capsized.

Interests of Labor and Proprietors Of Business Enterprise Endangered By Planners of Socialistic Control

President Logan of Bank of Commerce Addresses the Shareholders on Value of Free Enterprise

AFFECT FARMERS

President S. H. Logan of Canadian Bank of Commerce gives address at annual meeting.

Toronto, Dec. 14—At the annual Meeting of shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce held today, the President of the Bank, Mr. S. H. Logan, voiced his continuing faith in free enterprise as the motive force in the development of Canada, pointing out that, while people generally submitted to the hampering restrictions imposed by wartime conditions, Canadians as a whole were fighting for the preservation of freedom of action, and not for the establishment of a bureaucracy such as that implied in the schemes currently projected in certain quarters.

Pride in Record

The production record of Canada during the present war was one in which Canadians might take justifiable pride, and it was the work of a free people, whose initiative and applications had set an example of whole-hearted co-operation. Manufacturers and producers of raw materials had, without compulsion, diverted all their available resources and ingenuity to the exacting demands of the country's wartime requirements. But despite the unexampled accomplishments of both labor and those who planned these enterprises, there were those who systematically cast doubt and suspicion on the system which had produced such magnificent results. Apparently distrusting all motives and qualifications but their own, those behind the movement advocated a new system under which all production, labor and distribution would be directed by them alone, ignoring the past and present achievements of the free enterprise system in increasing production, lowering the cost to the consumer, providing employment and raising the standard of living generally.

Danger to All Classes

The so-called "planned economy" would necessitate a great and continuous measure of regimentation of the Canadian people and have elements of danger for all classes—farmers and other producers of raw materials, manufacturers, tradesmen, professional people and wage-earners. Efforts were being made, said Mr. Logan, to confuse the terms "private enterprise" and "big business", whereas, in reality there were over 1,250,000 proprietors of individual enterprises in Canada, quite apart from the shareholders in corporations. These proprietors ranged over a wide field, including farms, factories, mills, retail stores, etc. "The interests of this vast number of citizens engaged in enterprise on their own account", said Mr. Logan, "as well as others, would be greatly endangered by permanent economic control, and they should not be misguided by the argument that complete socialism is feasible merely by control of key industries. Socialism cannot stop short of absolute control of every individual business unit, small and large."

Quotes President of A.F. of L.

The interests of labor, too, were involved, said Mr. Logan, who quoted the endorsement of the free enterprise system by Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, as follows: "If this country (United States) ever gets a system of governmental regimentation, labor will suffer most. Labor, therefore, is deeply interested in the preservation of private business and labor should everlastingly maintain that the owners and managers of business are entitled to a fair and just return upon their investments."

Plans for governmental regimentation also extended to the banks, said Mr. Logan, seemingly because it was felt in certain quarters that the banks exercised a control over credit which should be in government hands. "However," he said, "the ultimate prerogative of the national monetary policy is already vested in the Dominion Government's own institution, the Bank of Canada. The chartered banks have not the remotest chance of acquiring any of the powers of the Bank of Canada, nor have they the slightest desire to seek those powers."

Banking Highly Competitive

The greater part of the business of the ten chartered banks, which were highly competitive, was directly with the general public through over 3,000 branches manned by staffs trained to render impartial community service, principally on their individual responsibility. "Nationalization of the Canadian banking system", said Mr. Logan," would be monopolistic banking in the true sense of the word, for then all the banking business of the people of Canada would be under political control and each individual's account be subject to scrutiny by a representative of socialistic authority. Surely the millions of people who constitute the banking public—the four million depositors and the hundreds of thousands of borrowers—would not wish to submit to such results of nationalization."

Choice of Two Roads

The people of Canada, continued Mr. Logan, had a choice of two roads, one, which had always ended in economic disaster, was paved with promises that a socialistic government could guarantee security and an abundant life for all from some imaginary source of wealth and well-being. The other road was our present system of free enterprise which, with its vast experience and the advances in method was better equipped than any other to bring about greater employment and general welfare.

Mr. Logan went on to explain that Canadian prosperity was to a large extent contingent upon the state of export trade and that while our position in world export trade had improved from fifth to third among the nations during the war years, this had been the result of the war, which was not only wasteful, but paid whatever price was necessary. But after the war, we should again have to trade in a highly competitive world market, in which Canada did not set the export price and in which we should also have to buy abroad if our exports were to be maintained.

Big Demand to Come

The early post-war years were likely to witness such a demand for consumer goods, unavailable during the war years, and rehabilitation at home and abroad that there would be a high degree of employment and business activity. The conversion of a wartime to peacetime economy would demand a high degree of co-operation between labor and management to ensure that both would receive their due return for the services which they render.

Concluding Mr. Logan quoted the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's warning against the extension of bureaucracy to peace time, as follows: "We must beware of trying to build a society in which nobody counts for anything except the politician or official, a society where enterprise gains no reward and thrift no privileges. I say 'try to build' because of all the races in the world our people would be the last to consent to be governed by a bureaucracy. Freedom is their lifeblood....We must expect taxation after the war to be heavier than it was before the war, but we do not intend to shape our plans or levy taxation in a way which by removing personal incentive would destroy initiative and enterprise."

1,132,973 Deposit Accounts

The General Manager, Mr. S. M. Wedd, after dealing with the Bank's financial statement for the fiscal year ending 30th October, presented a general analysis of the main items presented therein. The Bank had, he said, 1,132,973 deposit accounts, of which 97 per cent were accounts of individuals, and during the past year had made 201,697 separate loans, of which over 60 per cent were for amounts of $200 or less. (The President of the Bank also dealt briefly with the Bank's lending activities, fully nine-tenths of which were, he said, handled by the branch managers direct. In recent years the Bank's Personal Loan Department had lent about $64,000,000 to nearly 400,000 people, an average of $150 per loan.)

Canada 4th Largest Arsenal

Mr. Wedd, in dealing with general business conditions, said that a new high record of industrial activity had been achieved in response to the huge demand for war materials, and that Canada was now the fourth largest arsenal among the United Nations. The production record of the primary industries, however, had fallen, largely because of labor shortage, though the agricultural industry, crop returns from which were nearly a third less than in the previous year, had also to contend with the most unfavorable planting and growing season in many years in Central and Eastern Canada.

The shift from a war to a peace economy, concluded Mr. Wedd, seemed likely to present even greater difficulties than that from peace to war, and was hardly less important. It could, however, be achieved if we all worked together with the same determined purpose that had characterized our outstanding national contribution to the successful prosecution of the war.

Flu Epidemic Runs Course on Reserves

Ottawa, Dec 13 (CP)—The flu epidemic has hit Canada's Indian Reserves and appears "to be running a course similar to that among whites," Dr. H. W. McGill director of the Federal Indian Affairs Branch, said today.

Preliminary reports from reservations indicate that the number of cases among Indians is no greater than among white Canadians, he said.

In the 1918 epidemic, Indians showed less resistance than whites and the death toll among them was in the thousands.

Police Holding Six for Hijacking Load of Liquor

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—Police are holding six men in connection with the sensational theft of a truckload of liquor valued at $28,000, which was recovered late yesterday in a barn on a farm near Etobicoke, on the northwest outskirts of the city.

James Shorting, 39, was charged with receiving stolen goods. He was alleged to be the man who rented the barn in which the truck was found and from which virtually the entire cargo of 7,200 bottles of whiskey and gin was recovered. Police said only two of the 600 cases were not accounted for.

Four other men are held for questioning and a 17-year-old youth is held as a material witness. Police did not reveal the names of these five.

The liquor was recovered 10 hours after three armed men had kidnapped the driver of the truck on his arrival here from the distillery at Walkerville, Ont., early yesterday, and had stolen the truck itself. The driver, George Butcher of Chatham, was confronted with the revolvers as he turned into a warehouse in downtown Toronto at the end of his long run. He was forced into a motorcar and a few hours later was released miles away, northwest of the city, from where he managed to inform police of the theft.

The break in the case came when a resident of Etobicoke township informed police he had seen a truck being driven into a barn and of seeing nine men hanging around there.

Daley Advocates Women in Plants Be Sent Home

Toronto, Dec. 14 — (CP)—Women now employed in industrial work should be sent back to their homes, Ontario Labor Minister Daley said last night declaring that if the manpower problem had been properly handled it "never would have been necessary to drag women out of their homes and into factories."

Emphasizing in an address to the Canadian Association of Personnel Publication Editors that he was expressing his own views and not necessarily those of his government, Mr. Daley said that married women with children who had gone into war work because they felt their help was needed would welcome an opportunity to return to their homes.

"Others are using child-care centres to unload their responsibilities," he said. "They will complain. But let us be realistic about the situation."

The Minister said he believed juvenile delinquency was caused largely by the refusal of parents to accept their home responsibilities. Poverty was another factor and he suggested a solution would be work for all at fair wages.

London—(CP)—The official cost-of-living index at Oct. 1 was 99 points above the level of July 1914, a one-point compared with the Sept. 1 level.

SYSTEM OF FREE ENTERPRISE DEEMED BEST FOR CANADA

S. H. Logan, President, The Canadian Bank of Commerce Declares War Being Fought to Preserve Freedom not Bureaucracy'

S. M. Wedd, General Manager, Emphasizes Bank's Wide-spread Service to Public

At the Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, held in the Head Office of the Bank in the City of Toronto December 14th, Mr. S. H. Logan, President, and Mr. S. M. Wedd, General Manager, presented the Annual Statement of the Bank's operations in the past year, together with a review of Business Conditions. Mr. Logan's address to the meeting follows:

After four years of war we are told that we have approached the beginning of the end and that we can be justifiably optimistic as to the outcome of this, the greatest and costliest war in all history.

Marshalled in support of the united war effort has been the full power of these physical resources of the Allied Nations. Although at times seeming slow to move, its impetus has increased until there is now poised and ready to strike against Germany and Japan and their remaining satellites a weight of overpowering armament about three times greater than can be commanded by the Axis—a weight which is increasing day by day against an opposing output which decreases rather than rises.

ALLIES' WAR PRODUCTION

The British Commonwealth of Nations has been and is producing nearly one-quarter of all the supplies and armament of the United Nations, exceeding the combined output of Germany, Austria and occupied Czechoslovakia. Of this great total the United Kingdom produces three-quarters, and of that share three-quarters is being sent abroad.

Now the great production of the United States rolls on—war expenditures of $90,000,000,000 this year—a half of this in fighting material—guns, munitions, planes, tanks, motor vehicles, ships, etc.—enough to equip 10,000,000 men in their own services and furnish Lend-Lease supplies to Allied forces and civilians of $9,000,000,000 annually.

In Canada production of armament has not been as large this year as was at first projected. There have been excess accumulations of certain supplies, scarcity of materials, time spent on re-engineering resulting from simplified specifications and cost-saving devices, and in some areas labour shortages and unfortunate labour disturbances. Yet the national effort as a whole this year was on a vastly greater scale than in 1942, expenditures of the Dominion of Canada for war purposes increasing by 40 per cent. to $3,947,000,000.

ENTERPRISE MENACED

Such has Canada done as a nation at war. Despite these accomplishments, both of labour and the men by whose own initiative and under whose guidance have been built great enterprises and who have given the benefit of their years of personal experience, there is being fostered in some quarters an agitation against free enterprise, whether it be individual or corporate. These reflections are aimed to cast doubt, suspicion and prejudice against any business—first against the large corporations calling them monopolistic, but aimed also at any individual enterprise. Apparently distrusting all motives and capabilities but their own, those behind the movement advocate a new system under which all production, labour and distribution would be directed by them alone. They forget, or ignore, the advancements and achievements that have been made under an enterprise system. They overlook or gloss over the increases in production and the efforts to lower the cost to the consumer, to provide employment and generally to raise the living standards of all.

DANGERS TO ALL CLASSES

Any such programme demands thoughtful examination by every citizen, for however well-intentioned these proposals for bureaucratic control may be, they have elements of danger for all classes: farmers and other producers, manufacturers, tradesmen, professional people and wage-earners. The inevitable end of such a system is a form of dictatorship and domination of the national economy, with capital, production and labour committed to whatever ventures, whether economic or political, a few leaders may decide.

Apart altogether from shareholders in corporations, our system of individual enterprise actually is made up of over 1,250,000 proprietors of business in Canada. These proprietors are the owners of farms, factories, mills, workshops, retail stores and other small business establishments. The interests of this vast number of citizens engaged in enterprise on their own account, as well as others, would be greatly endangered by permanent economic control, and they should not be misguided by the argument that complete socialism is feasible merely by control of key industries. Socialism cannot stop short of absolute control of every individual business unit, small and large.

DANGERS TO LABOUR

Labour, too, is a vital part of our existing system, and labour should not be misled into believing that its interests would be served better by any form of socialism based on a regimentation of the country at large.

The loss of labour's freedom to unionize and to bargain for better conditions wherever socialism or State capitalism has become dominant impelled one of the great leaders of the times, Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labour, to give this emphatic endorsement of the free enterprise system:

"If this country (United States) ever gets a system of governmental regimentation, labour will suffer most. Labour, therefore, is deeply interested in the preservation of private business and labour should everlastingly maintain that the owners and managers of business are entitled to a fair and just return upon their investments."

BANKING

The most ardent supporters of governmental regimentation extend their arguments to nationalization of banking. So far, they do not claim that the Canadian banking system is inadequate or inefficient.

It seems that there persists among advocates of nationalised banking the idea that the chartered banks monopolize credit in some measure for the so-called "big interests." Moreover, it is implied that the banks control, partly or wholly, the "big interests," or that the "big interests" control them, erroneous assumptions since no bank, so far as we know, has any large stock holdings in any trading corporation, nor has any "big interest" any important holding in bank stocks. The greater part of the business of our ten chartered banks, which are highly competitive, is directly with the general public through over 3,000 branches manned by staffs trained to render impartial community service, principally on their individual responsibility. In this Bank, for example, branch managers deal directly with fully nine-tenths of the borrowing transactions through their own offices, making thousands of loans each year to all classes of the public, manufacturers, traders, farmers, wage-earners and others. Again, to note the activities of this Bank, its Personal Loan Department, in addition to the above loans, in the last few years has lent about $64,000,000 to nearly 400,000 people, an average of $150 per loan.

Nationalization of the Canadian banking system would be monopolistic banking in the true sense of the word, for then all the banking business of the people of Canada would be under political control and each individual's account be subject to scrutiny by a representative of socialistic authority. Surely the millions of people who constitute the banking public—the four million depositors and the hundreds of thousands of borrowers—would not wish to submit to such results of nationalization.

ENTERPRISE THE BEST ROAD

The people of Canada have the choice of two roads. One is paved with promises that a socialistic government—no matter how the result is to be obtained—can guarantee security and an abundant life for all from some imaginary source of wealth and well-being. Always this road has ended in economic disaster.

The other road is our present system of free enterprise. We do not say that it has been altogether smooth, and that no mistakes have been made by those who have followed it, but we do say definitely that it led to Canada's great progress.

We also say with strong confidence that this thoroughfare of enterprise is the only one that can lead to business expansion, full employment and better economic and social opportunities for all. It is the road that will be travelled by a free and happy people.

POST-WAR CONDITIONS

Much of Canada's prosperity comes from the export of her primary producers—the grain growers of the West, the livestock raisers, the miners of metals, the lumbermen, the fishermen and fruit growers—and after the war many more of our manufacturers. To carry on our foreign trade after the war we must be prepared to meet the needs of world consumers in a highly competitive market, consumers who will make their own choice of goods and who will pay only the price that they can afford. Make no mistake, Canada does not set the export price; that is determined by what the world is willing to pay for what we have to sell, and we must also buy from countries abroad if our export trade is to be maintained.

When peace comes—and we cannot tell what form it will take, whether it will be an armistice with a period of gradual readjustment or whether it will be an abrupt ending which will demand of all of us speedy readjustment to peacetime needs—there is one thing of which we are sure, and that is that we must be prepared to make this period one of the minimum uncertainty. Returning members of the Armed Forces must be absorbed into the routine of commercial life with well-planned efficiency. We may reasonably expect, after the first uncertainties, demands for civilian goods which will bring about a high degree of employment and generally active business. Some of those now trained solely for war work will have to be retrained for peacetime operations, and to accomplish this smoothly there will be required a fine degree of co-operation between labour and management to ensure that both employers and employees will receive their due measure of return for the services which they render.

PERSONAL INITIATIVE NECESSARY FOR PROGRESS

We must remember that Canada's magnificent effort in this war has been due in large measure to the support and initiative of her million odd business enterprises. If political action is allowed to destroy or weaken that initiative, advancement of this country will greatly be retarded, and its natural virility tend to become decadent.

A grave warning from no less a person than the British Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, against bureaucracy was issued in these words, which we quote:

"We must beware of trying to build a society in which nobody counts for anything except the politician or official, a society where enterprise gains no reward and thrift no privileges. I say 'try to build' because of all the races in the world our people would be the last to consent to be governed by a bureaucracy. Freedom is their lifeblood . . . We must expect taxation after the war to be heavier than it was before the war, but we do not intend to shape our plans or levy taxation in a way which by removing personal incentive would destroy initiative and enterprise."

There are still great opportunities in this country—as great as ever in the past—for people with initiative, ability and a progressive spirit. They must be free to go forward as the result of their own individuality and enterprise, and feel that this war was fought to preserve that freedom and not to develop and build up a bureaucracy.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

The Financial Statement now presented shows the aggregate assets of the Bank at $1,003,183,000, the highest in our history and representing an increase of $116,522,000 over the corresponding figure of the previous fiscal year. Cash reserves are $165,559,000 and total quick assets at $774,660,000 are equivalent to 75.10 per cent. of the Bank's total liabilities to the public.

Our total deposits now stand at $913,879,000, an increase of $121,319,000 over last year. This increase is made up principally of $65,648,000 in demand deposits and $50,611,000 in deposits bearing interest, the latter notwithstanding the very substantial investments which have been made by our customers in Victory Loan bonds.

It may be interesting at this time to analyze in a general way the make-up of the figures which have just been presented. In the first place we have 1,132,973 deposit accounts, of which 97 per cent are accounts of individuals. In view of this large number of accounts entrusted to the Bank which we operate solely on the direction of the respective depositors according to their needs, it is necessary for us to maintain large cash reserves, the first line of which is the Bank's holdings of notes of the Bank of Canada and the large balances which it carries at all times on deposit with that institution. Following this first line there is the large investment in the short and medium term securities of the Dominion of Canada. After this background of liquidity there are the Bank's loans to individuals and industry.

The Canadian banks are, of course, at all times anxious to develop their loaning business and in this way assist in the financing of the needs of agriculture, business and enterprise generally. In the past twelve months this Bank has made 201,697 individual loans to its customers and it might be mentioned here that of these over 60 per cent. were for amounts of $200 or less.

There is then the investment in the Capital Stock of the Bank. There are 12,228 shareholders and of these 7,630 reside in Canada; the others almost entirely in Great Britain and the United States. The average holding is about 24 shares.

An examination of the figures which I have just outlined shows that while the assets of the Bank are large in the aggregate they mainly counterbalance the liabilities to a great number of individual depositors.

FINE STAFF RECORD

The integral and vitalizing factor in the production of our Balance Sheet is, of course, the staff of the Bank. In the past year the banking system, in addition to its already enlarged day-to-day responsibilities due to war activities, has taken on among other governmental services "coupon banking" for the Ration Board.

In the past year 323 additional members of the staff have joined the services, bringing the total up to 1,618. Of these 45 have given their lives for their country and we shall miss them deeply. I am sure you will join with me in extending to their relatives our sympathy.

With respect to our young men and women now in the services, we would like to add that it is our hope that they will soon be back in civil life and to say that our foremost thought is to see that employment is immediately available for them in the Bank.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

The past year has set a new high record in industrial activity in Canada in response to the greatest requirements for war materials ever known. There have also been brought into operation the last of the newly-built plants and extensions undertaken in earlier years to provide facilities for the vast and well-rounded armament production that has made Canada the fourth largest arsenal among the United Nations.

On the other hand, the primary industries, agriculture, forestry, mining and fishing, all showed lower production records than in 1942.

General crop out-turns were nearly one-third below those of last year. Apart from the farm labour shortage acute in some of the largest production areas, was the most unfavourable planting and growing weather in many years in Central and Eastern Canada.

Labour shortages account for a drop of about 15 per cent. in forestry products and nearly 10 per cent. in minerals, although even sharper declines occurred in gold production and at some individual base metal mines.

As we all know, the shift from a peace to a war economy involves many complicated problems, but the readjustment from a war to a peace basis, which we have to face, presents even greater difficulties. This is because in the first place the shift to war production is a shift from production to meet varied and uncertain requirements of thousands of individual consumers to production to meet a concentrated demand for munitions of war and, in the second place, because under the impulse of patriotic emotion people accept more readily the sacrifices and inconveniences involved. However, the smooth readjustment to peace conditions is hardly less important than the converse and it can be achieved if we all work together with the same determined purpose that has characterized our outstanding national contribution to the successful prosecution of the War.

...OR THEY PROTECT US AGAINST INFLATION AND EACH IS DRAWN UP BY A MAN OF LONG EXPERIENCE IN THE PARTICULAR FIELD HE ADMINISTRATES
WELL, THAT IS DIFFERENT...STILL I MUST SAY...
STILL YOU WISH THE REGULATIONS DIDN'T INCONVENIENCE YOU EH? SO DO WE ALL!

"DON'T SHOOT, HE'S DOING HIS BEST!"

All restrictions are a nuisance, which we tolerate only in order to avoid the greater interference that would result from defeat or even victory plus inflation. It's easy to blame any regulations that affect one's own convenience. But remember that every regulation has been drafted by men who know what they are doing to meet a specific need. In the words of the song "Don't shoot the man at the piano, he's doing his best."

Christmas Banquet Of Quinte Circle 20

At the regular meeting of Quinte Circle 20, Canadian Woodmen of the World, held in the Orange Hall on Thursday, the following officers were elected and the annual banquet and Christmas tree were enjoyed.

The following members were elected to office: Past Con. Com., Sov. E. Ellarby; Con. Com., Sov. A. Palmer; Advy. Lieut., Sov. A. Hilton; Clerk, Sov. L. M. Lennox; Banker, Sov. A. Adams; Managers, Sov. Betts, Sov. Dack, Sov. Benn; Escort, Sov. L. Gazley; Watchman, Sov. Mifflin; Sentry, Sov. Phalen; Pianist, Sov. Storms.

After the formal closing of the business meeting, members adjourned for a banquet prepared by Sov. Adams and Sov. Storms. Hot chicken dinner was served and all the dainty Christmas extras were included. Poinsettas and red candles formed the table decoration and greeting cards gave the personal touch, but owing to war conditions, the gifts were of a smaller nature. The guessing contest was won by Sov. Lennox and Sov. Benn. The pair of slippers, donated by Mr. Leslie, was won by Sov. Phalen. Sov. Hilton entertained with the mysteries of 1944. At midnight the season's greetings were exchanged and much work planned for the new year. The children's gifts were looked after by Sov. Betts, and Sov. Mifflin, who made an excellent Santa Claus. Sov. Dack and Sov. Ellarby were responsible for the useful gifts for the members and hearty thanks were accorded all committees.

'Information Please' Program Features Women's Club Meeting

A discussion of the post-war planning of the social services in the form of an "Information Please" program was the main feature of the December meeting of the University Women's Club, held at the home of Mrs. E. M. Carefoot, MacDonald Ave. Miss Ruth Thompson was the leader of this stimulating type of discussion and with Mrs. W. J. Doyle, Miss E. Panter and Mrs. Carefoot, formed the "Board of Experts". Each member present was required to ask the "experts" a number of questions, and in so doing became active participants in the program. The existing social services were reviewed and suggestions made for augmenting these as well as developing desirable new ones.

At the present time several kinds of social insurance are available for unemployment, sickness and accident, but it was thought that these should be made more inclusive. Old age pensions and children's allowances were examined and recommendations made for increasing their value to those concerned.

The health program should have as its aim the maintaining of the whole population in maximum health. This could be effected through such media as clinics, visiting nurse services, mental health clinics, a health program in the schools, and a nutrition program. Also important in maintaining health are parks, playgrounds, proper water supply, and sewage disposal. The need for Government aid in medical research was stressed.

It was pointed out that the Government recognizes that there will be a lack of adequate housing accommodation after the war, and town planning is being considered. These communities are planned with the school as the pivot, each unit having its own park, church, theatre, and possibly library. It is also recognized that recreational facilities such as museums, art galleries and meeting places for clubs are essential to any community.

Recommended changes in the present educational system were reviewed, such as increased remuneration for teachers, compulsory education of all children until 16 years of age, university education for all able to take it, more Canadian Civics taught in the schools, and provision to cope with juvenile delinquency.

In conclusion it was stated that in the future there must be a clear acceptance of responsibility, and dynamic leadership will be necessary to ensure that the required social services are put into practice.

Monthly Meeting Of Children of Mary

The regular monthly meeting of the Sodality of the Children of Mary of St. Michael's Church, was held on Monday night in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy.

The remainder of the meeting was then given over to the Junior Newman Committee. Miss Eileen Belair, chairman of this committee, gave a most interesting and inspiring talk on the life of Cardinal Newman. The assemblage was then addressed by Miss Joan Moher who spoke and reported on the works of Cardinal Newman. A quiz program was conducted by the Junior Newman Committee, which concluded the evening's activities.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa (CP) — Macaroons require no butter and little sugar. Need we say more? If you are making shortbread for the holiday season you'll like to have this good companion recipe for cherry macaroons. The shortbread will take an egg yolk and the macaroons will use the white in a delicious way. This recipe is one tested in the consumer section of the Department of Agriculture.

Add a pinch of salt to one egg white and beat until stiff. Gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar, then fold in 1½ cups of wheat or corn flakes and ½ cup candied or maraschino cherries, cut in small pieces. Drop with a teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet and bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, for 30 minutes. This makes one dozen small macaroons.

MEAT STRETCHER: Besides being a coupon sparer, rolled oats or rolled wheat used as meat extenders will step up the family's calcium supply and their intake of vitamin B complex, Dr. L. B. Pett, director of Nutrition Services, says the use of whole grain bread and cereal can supply as much as six per cent. of the day's requirements of calcium.

PRACTICAL GIFTS: This year more than ever before Christmas gifts should be practical, the Prices Board Consumer Branch emphasizes. Besides being out of place in the wartime scheme of things, needless expense and frivolity are not fashionable. There's no reason why duplicate or ill-fitting gifts should go to waste either because they can be exchanged at any time as long as it coincides with the retailer's merchandising policy of making exchanges.

SUGAR SAVER: Having coffee with a dietitian from the Agriculture Department's Consumer Service testing kitchen, we noted that she tested her coffee before adding any sugar. Half the usual amount of sugar serves as sweetening if one tastes before sugaring she says. It works, too.

WASTE LINE: Using the same dish for cooking and serving, or serving plates in the kitchen eliminates the waste when food is transferred from cooking dish to serving dish. And it eliminates a lot of dish washing.

FISH LOAF: Fish is one of the most valuable forms of food, since it contains the same constituents as meat but in a more digestible form, Nutrition Services says, and the Fisheries Department contributes the recipe for a delicious fish loaf:

Melt one tablespoon of butter, add one tablespoon of flour, mix and cook one minute. Then add one cup of hot milk gradually, stirring constantly; season. Add to that sauce two cups of cooked fish, two beaten eggs, one cup of soft bread crumbs, one chopped hard-boiled egg, two chopped pickles, three tablespoons of chopped parsley. Pour the mixture in a greased baking dish or mold. Place in a pan of boiling water and cook for one hour in a moderate oven. Unmold and serve sliced either hot or cold.

Fashion Flashes

LIMITATIONS haven't destroyed the skill of bag designers; it has merely stimulated their talent. A beautiful evening bag, right for afternoon, too, is a bag of black jacquard satin, made with a firm, box base, the entire bag outlined in gold kid piping.

ONE STYLE that is going to be a Spring winner is the wool suit with the collarless, cardigan jacket. Powder blue or coral is used for a pretty little suit of this type, made with radiating shoulder tucks and slanting pockets.

COMFORT is paramount these days, so the evening sweater is a best-seller. A smart model is a fine handknit black wool sweater, waist length, with a deep rounded neckline. It is finished with a knitted metallic yarn border.

British Housewives Have Hard Time Furnishing Homes

By MARGARET ECKER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 14—(CP) — Canada's pioneer ancestors who set up housekeeping in the unconquered bush with only the utensils and equipment they made themselves, have nothing on someone trying to furnish a home in London nowadays. London's shops are as bare of housekeeping necessities as Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

Take cups and saucers, for instance. Cups with handles are virtually extinct. You can get heavy dime-lunch counter types without handles, if you are lucky. And if you watch chemist shops you might grab off bright colored plastic ones which sell at about 60c each.

There are no teapots—unless you want to hand out $100 for a silver piece. Pots and pans are almost impossible to get and what are in shops are expensive and of poor quality.

Cutlery is scarce, but you can buy a very poor knife for about 75c, five times the pre-war cost. A small electric plate to boil a kettle, which in Canada would cost about $1.50, sells for around $5, that's if you can find one.

If you want linen sheets, you have to be a millionaire. A few shops still have good quality linen sheets, selling at between $70 and $75 a pair. Rayon sheets, single bed size, go for $23 a pair. The latter are scarce because they are bought by housewives to make shirts for their husbands or undies for themselves. A single pair of bed sheets are said to make two shirts and two blouses.

GAMES TRANSFERRED

Toronto, Dec. 14. (CP)—O.H.A. officials announced today changes in the schedules affecting the Dec. 17 and 27 games between Hamilton and Kingston senior teams.

The Dec. 17 game, scheduled to be played in Hamilton, has been moved to Kingston and the Hamilton-Kingston game scheduled for Dec. 27, has been moved to Hamilton. The changes were made because of rink commitments in Hamilton.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's Church was held on Monday night in St. Michael's High School on John St., with the President, Mrs. George Wilson, in the chair.

It was decided to pack a box of clothing and forward it to the Jesuit Home in Toronto for its charitable work. The second vice-president reported that an award of $10 had been given to Miss Florence Foster from the league for the highest standing in the commercial department of the Belleville Collegiate. A letter from the diocesan social convener, Mrs. M. Morrison, was read, advising the league that discussions be held concerning the current problems which affect the community life and social conditions generally. There was also a letter from Mrs. Glennon, magazine convener, extending congratulations for the achievements of the Belleville subdivision in the past year. It was decided to send the sum of $50 to the orphanage at Kingston as a Christmas present.

The war work convener reported that boxes and ditty bags had been packed and sent to the parish boys serving overseas. The remainder of the evening was spent in preparing boxes to be sent to the boys who are serving in the Dominion.

CONFERENCE

While he spoke guardedly of the conference with Turkey, he made it clear that Russia was included in the expressed hopes for four-power co-operation. The Soviet envoy, Andrei Vishinsky, had intended to be present in Cairo, but was visiting in Italy and could not get to Egypt until after the meeting with Inonu.

As for Japan, he declared that ever since that country's attack on Pearl Harbor "We have been committed to the objectives now set out for the first time internationally in the Cairo agreement." Those objectives are to crush Japan and strip her of all her territorial gains of 50 years.

Opens Two-Day Debate.

Opening a two-day debate on the war situation and foreign affairs, Mr. Eden said Prime Minister Churchill had asked him to express regrets to the House for the Prime Minister's absence. There has been no official word on Mr. Churchill's whereabouts since conclusion of the Cairo and Teheran conferences.

Mr. Eden told the House Mr. Churchill "has still more work to do in the sphere where he is now".

Mr. Eden said:—

"We have spent three very strenuous weeks. Into that short time have been compressed three conferences of world significance which in the ordinary leisured time of diplomacy any one would have taken a full month".

The Foreign secretary said he never knew Mr. Churchill to work so indefatigably day and night as at Teheran and Cairo and added:—

"In spite of this I left him, though perhaps a little tired, in good health, stout heart and most confident spirit".

Dealing with the first Cairo conference relating to the war in the Pacific, Mr. Eden told the House:

"Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Mr. Churchill speak just the same language of determination.

"If we are compelled for the time being to devote the greater part of our human and material resources to the task of defeating Germany, we are still principals in the far-eastern war. Japan is just as great a menace to the security of the British Commonwealth as she is to the security of either the United States or China".

Conference Encouraging.

Turning to the second Cairo conference at which President Inonu of Turkey met Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt, Mr. Eden said he had good hopes these talks would result in "a sound basis for future co-operation between ourselves, Soviet Russia, America and Turkey".

"We regard this conference as encouraging", he said. "Further than that I cannot go today".

Mr. Eden said that six months ago he could not have given assurance of complete post-war co-operation among the United Nations but if asked that question today he could reply emphatically, "yes, we three (Britain, the United States and Russia) can work together".

Forecasting quicker defeat for the Axis than he had hitherto envisaged, Mr. Eden said:—

"Close co-operation of our military plans at Teheran will ensure that".

Dealing further with military co-operation he said that "military missions agreed in Cairo on future military operations against Japan". The remark was greeted with renewed cheering.

Mr. Eden disclosed that Britain has had a military mission with the Yugoslav Partisans headed by Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) since last Spring.

"From all reports we have received it is clear that the Partisans under Tito are containing and engaging a large number of German divisions and we are doing all we can to supply them with munitions and support them in every possible way", he said.

Committed to Assist

Recalling that Mr. Churchill had warned Japan in 1940 that if she attacked the United States, Britain would declare war upon her within the hour, Mr. Eden declared:

"From that moment we have been committed to objectives now set out for the first time internationally in the Cairo agreement.

"We are committed to them because we understand that to destroy Germany and then make a compromise peace with Japan would only sow seeds of a third world war.

"We should be utterly unworthy of our heritage and our tradition if we did not at the earliest possible moment deploy all our resources for the purpose of establishing the security of the dominions on a firm basis. For that we have to fight Japan to the bitter end, whatever the cost, however long it takes."

He disclosed that Soviet envoy Sergei Vishinsky intended to be present at the conference among Mr. Churchill, Mr. Roosevelt and President Chiang Kai-Shek but was visiting in Italy and could not get to Egypt until the conference was over.

Close Interplay

The Teheran conference, he said, laid the groundwork for "close interplay in every move" against the Axis.

"We have not had that until now," he continued. "Every plan is now agreed. The timing is now agreed on and in due course the decisions of Teheran will be unrolled on the field of battle."

Turning to post-war plans, Mr. Eden said:

"More than once before Allies have stood together in war and fallen apart in peace. That certainly will be Germany's game once again. She will play it with all she knows from the moment the last shot is fired and then prepare for the next challenge.

"This recurrent threat of war can only be met if there is an international order, firmer in strength and unity than any enemy could seek to challenge."

Due to Terrain

Commenting on the battle of Italy, Mr. Eden said: "The advance of the Allied armies in Italy during the third and fourth months of the campaign has not covered quite the spectacular distance we achieved in the first two months of fighting."

"The slow progress," he explained, "is not in any sense due to lack of initiative on the part of our armies," but rather to the difficult terrain at the narrowest part of the Italian peninsula and the additional handicaps of rain, swollen rivers and deep mud.

"But all the more important hill features are in our hands," he added, "and it seems the Germans may be forced to withdraw further."

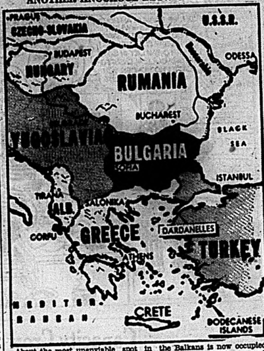
ANOTHER KNOCKOUT BLOW COMING UP?



About the most unenviable spot in the Balkans is now occupied by Bulgaria. On one side of her the Partisans of Yugoslavia are making it increasingly tough, while on the other, Turkey is now definitely committed to a policy of "benevolent non-belligerency," leaning to the Allies, with rumor busy to the effect that Turkey may actually march with the United Nations. U. S. bombers have given Bulgaria a thunderous hint that she'd better quit the Nazis when they bombed Sofia, the capital.

The War Today— Russian Initiative Major Step In Destruction of Nazi Power

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red Army's sudden recovery of the initiative in the bloody battle which is raging along the great Kiev salient, and southward into the Dnieper Bend, represents a major step towards making good the recent Allied pledge at Teheran to crush Germany by concerted blows from East, South and West.

What this means is that Marshal Stalin is trying to manoeuvre his forces into favorable position for another devastating winter offensive. Hitler faces a further fierce crisis amidst the snow and ice and sub-zero weather of the wind-swept steppes.

Offensive Part of Grand Strategy

Such an offensive must be an integral part of the grand strategy which is calculated by all-round pressure to deliver the coup de grace to one of the most barbarous conquerors of history. Hitler's forces must be kept engaged in Russia while the western Allies get set for their establishment of that crucial second front in France.

That's also the explanation of the Allied pressure in the Balkans. It's the reason too for the intensification of the Allied drive in Italy, and the devastating aerial assault on Western Europe and Germany.

For a month past the Hitlerites have been hitting the Red front in the Kiev sector with all they had.

Nazis Fail to Wipe Out Salient

Nazi Marshal Mannstein has had his temporary successes in this month of death, due in part to the fact that bad weather has grounded much of the Red air force. However, while he appears to have employed every resource at his disposal, he hasn't been able thus far to wipe out that vast Kiev salient which is bending inward like a giant mountain to crush him. Doubtless he hasn't had his full fling yet, but the fact that the Red forces have seized the initiative again bodes ill for the Hitlerites.

Once the Nazis are torn loose from their present positions, and have lost their north-and-south railway communications, the likelihood is that they have to pull their line back to central Poland, where they were when they started their attack on Russia in 1941.

COMMANDER RESIGNS

Stockholm, Dec. 14 — (AP) — A dispatch from Brussels to the newspaper Social Demokraten said today that Gen. Baron Alexander Von Falkenhausen has submitted his resignation as commander of the German occupation forces in Belgium. The dispatch added that he would be succeeded by Gen. Richard Jaungklaus, said to be a close collaborator of Heinrich Himmler.

PAYS HIS TAXES

Lubbock, Tex., Dec. 14 — (AP)— Staff Sgt. James D. King, United States Army Air Forces, is a Cheyenne Indian from Tame Deer, Mont. —and as a member of the tribe, is exempt from income taxes — but Sgt. King declares tax-paying is a privilege — and sends his payments to the treasury anyhow.

OLD MUSIC HALL VICTIM OF WAR

London, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The Montpellier Music Hall, one of the oldest landmarks at Walworth, London suburb, has disappeared, victim of the war. It was hit by a bomb in 1941 and lay in ruins until a demolition squad cleared away the debris.

"The Monte" as everyone called it, was famous as the place where promising performers got no pay, but paid for the privilege of appearing on the stage.

BUSY GIVING ADVICE

London —(CP)— Citizens' Advice Bureau, an establishment designed to help people do everything from mending pants to getting flavor out of cabbage, has replied to 2,500,000 questions since its inception a year ago.

BEAUTY QUESTION

A question of beauty arises and it's a moot question too—which one of these fair lasses will be queen of the Pasadena tournament of roses? These seven finalists in the quest for a beauty to reign over the classic New Year's Day event were introduced to the committee of judges through this huge question mark.

Bulgarian Mission May Visit Turkey

Ankara, Turkey, Dec. 14 — (AP) —Reports were current here today that a Bulgarian mission will arrive soon in Turkey to seek Turkish aid in extricating Bulgaria from her alliance with Germany.

(There have been widespread reports recently that Bulgaria, traditionally friendly with Russia and worried over a possible Allied invasion of the Balkans as well as the threat of greater air raids, has been seeking "a way out.")

The rumor of a Bulgarian mission to Turkey came as a German broadcast said that all Bulgarian cabinet ministers had left bomb-scarred Sofia, the capital, for different parts of the country to try to explain the government's policy to the people.

A reliable informant said, however, that foreign minister Chichmanov stayed in Sofia to remain in contact with foreign governments. He conferred with the German ambassador and the Bulgarian minister to Berlin yesterday, it was said.

(There have been persistent, though unconfirmed, reports recently that Chichmanov had resigned.)

PUB RUN BY VICAR TO KEEP 'EM SOBER

Carlton-in-Cleveland, England, Dec. 14 —(CP)— When Canon J. L. Kyle became vicar of this Yorkshire village 36 years ago, he said it was "the most drunken place in the whole country," so he bought the village pub to control the people's drinking habits.

One of the first things he did was close the pub on Sundays.

Canon Kyle, who had become known as the publican-vicar, died recently, aged 87. He maintained ownership of the pub until his death.

CONVOY MAN

Here is Leading Signalman Lloyd Kirkpatrick, R.C.N.V.R., of Saint John, N.B., a veteran convoy man with 24 return Atlantic crossings to his credit. On one trip he was torpedoed and spent 21 days in an open boat. He is a typical Royal Canadian Navy signalman, one of the men who are the lifeline and "eyes" of the merchant ships.

MONTREAL POLICE,

The 15-man committee voted for the strike after considering counter-proposals from the city of their demands for union recognition. The counter-proposals granted the union recognition to the public works department, but refused it for police and firemen, substituting wage increases averaging $500 a year in its place.

The committee received its authorization to call the strike at a meeting of 800 of the estimated 2,300 employees of the three departments the night before. At that time, an ultimatum was drawn up, giving the city until 11 a.m. today to recognize the C.C.L. as bargaining agent.

Complicating the situation was a sub-zero temperature. There were prospects of more snow too, with the possibility a heavy fall could completely snarl city traffic.

Tramway Workers May Go Out

Amid it all, rumors spread through Montreal that tramway workers would walk out in sympathy with the municipal workers, should the strike materialize. The tramway employees are affiliated with the C.C.L., having won union recognition in a three-day strike last Mar.

The tramway employees met last night and approved a new contract to be presented to Montreal Tramways. Officially, they confined their reference to the proposed municipal strike to a vote of sympathy for the city employees, but after the meeting several groups of tram workers discussed the possibility of another strike.

Meanwhile, the plans of Montreal to meet the strike, should it develop, remained unknown. City officials remained silent on steps they had taken and army provost corps chiefs would throw no light on the matter although Montreal radio stations last night carried announcements telling all provost corps personnel to report to barracks immediately.

Turn Down Offers.

It was understood, however, the city had turned down offers of assistance from the Civilian Protection Committee and from a provincially-organized mobile emergency squad.

Police Chief Fernand Dufresne called a meeting of all police captains, lieutenants and sergeants after the strike call last night.

"I am not going to give you any orders to stay at your stations tomorrow," he said. "I expect you to act as men of honor with a sense of duty and responsibility toward the citizens who look to you for protection.

"I am giving no orders, because those that want to go will go anyway, and I do not want to add the crime of indiscipline to any crime sheet. You are asked to stay and man your stations and be true to your oath."

Apparently the city was entirely on its own in seeking a solution to the situation. In Ottawa, federal labor department officials said that the strike was not within their jurisdiction, while at Quebec, Attorney-General Leon Casgrain said "This is the city of Montreal's problem."

FEARED LANDIS WILL TURN LOOSE MANY PLAYERS

Minor League Clubs Will be Hardest Hit by New Edict

ON DEFENCE LISTS

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Ever since Commissioner K. M. Landis put out that recent baseball "revolution" several "chain store' farm operators have been getting ready for a new headache they're afraid the Commissioner is cooking up.

This is the fear that before the winter's out Landis is planning to set free several hundred minor league ball players—some estimates run as high as 1,000—who went to war from the 106 clubs in the 16 leagues which suspended in 1943.

When they entered the armed forces, these hired hands were placed on the National Defence Service lists of those clubs. Since the loops suspended, however, the players were transferred—many for a mere $100 a head—to clubs in leagues still doing business at the same old stand. They were placed on the defence lists of those outfits and will report to those clubs when the war ends. It is at this long string of transfer deals that Landis is now aiming his high hard one, and the reports are that "the head" may declare the whole lot of them free agents.

Rumors that this was the stew the high commissioner had on the fire were what stirred up the rebellion at the recent winter meetings, thereby turning up the first serious threat in 22 years to Landis' baseball reign.

'DIZZY' DEAN NO GLAMOR BOY

Famous Pitcher Turns Down Offer to Make Pictures in Hollywood

Lancaster, Texas, Dec. 14 (AP)—Dizzy Dean has no desire to be a glamor boy—besides, it would interfere with his farming.

That was his story today as she spiked reports that he was going to Hollywood to make western pictures. Sure, there had been something to it; he had even signed a contract, but didn't mail it.

"I don't want any part of Hollywood," said the former star major league pitcher. "I work six months a year broadcasting baseball and I want to be at home on the farm the rest of the time. You know, I'm just farmer at heart"

Dean is selling his prize Herefords at his 200-acre farm because he can't get help in taking care of them, but he's not giving up his place, he said: "It's quiet, he can sleep as long as he wants to and work when he pleases."

'BOBO' NEWSOM TO SERVE UNDER CONNIE MACK

Most-Traded Player Sent From Senators to the Athletics'

NEWS TO HIM

By ED CREACH
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Philadelphia, Dec. 14. (AP)—Louis Norman (Buck) Newsom, the nominee of Leo Durocher among others for baseball's No. 1 problem child, will get a fresh start come spring under the refining influence of Connie Mack.

Big Bobo, who led the historic Brooklyn Dodgers revolt against Durocher in the Middle of last season, will join the Athletics' pitching staff in exchange for Roly-Poly Roger Wolff, the relief hurler who has pulled more than one of Jesse Flores' Tamles from the fire.

Wolff, of course, goes to the Washington Senators. The trade was announced last night although negotiations between Mack and Clark Griffith began at the recent major league meeting in New York. It involves no cash or other players, according to the official announcement.

"I think we'll get along just fine", Mack said at Frederick, Md., where he was inspecting the A's Spring training site. "As to Newsom's past I'm not worrying about that. Instead I'm figuring on what he is going to do for us in the future".

As for Bobo, "I know absolutely nothing about the deal and do not care to comment", he said at his Hartsville, S.C., home when a reporter broke the news.

Capacity Crowds in Prospect For Bowl Games in Football

By The Canadian Press

Capacity crowds are in prospect for all the bowl games in football on New Year's Day despite an 18.4 per cent drop in college gridiron attendance during the past season. Already every seat has been sold for the Orange Bowl fixture at Miami which will draw together Louisiana State and Texas A. & M. and even the newly-organized Oil Bowl game at Houston, Tex., is expected to attract a full house of 30,000. At Pasadena, Calif., where Southern California will take on Washington, a throng of 93,000 is anticipated for the Rose Bowl feature.

New Orleans will have its third successive crowd of 73,000 for the Sugar Bowl contest in which the participants will be Tulsa and Georgia Tech. The Cotton Bowl at Dallas will have 35,000 for the game between Texas University and Randolph Field. The Sun Bowl in New Mexico will be the mecca for a holiday game between Southwestern of Texas and New Mexico. At San Francisco a crowd of 58,000 is expected for an East vs West battle, the proceeds from which will go to Shrine hospitals and war relief agencies.

Fritzie Zivic, veteran of 179 fights, and Ossie Harris are having trouble getting together in their 10-round bout at Pittsburgh. After one postponement, the scrap was scheduled for Thursday night but it has again been postponed to Jan. 3. Harris was reported to be troubled with an infected ear.

Three National League stars have cast their ballots for outfielder Bill Nicholson of Chicago Cubs as the most outstanding player in 1943 baseball, it was stated at Sarasota, Fla., last night. The voting trio, now wintering there, were pitcher Paul Derringer of Chicago, outfielder Waner of Brooklyn and John Cooney, Dodger outfielder.

Figures released at New York last night showed a decline in 1943 attendance figures for the Giants of 41.6 per cent, Brooklyn Dodgers off 35 per cent and Yankees down 33 per cent. Branch Rickey blamed the ban on night games, which because of the dimout last summer, was partly responsible for the decrease for Brooklyn.

Russia has become increasingly sport-conscious, according to a declaration published last night from Maurice Indus, an authority on Soviet matters. One of the first things the people do when they return to a liberated city is to organize soccer competition. He suggested the next Olympiad be held in Moscow.

Wally Kilrea of Hershey Bears maintained a four-point lead in the individual standing of the American Hockey League, according to statistics released last night from circuit headquarters in New Haven. Gaston Gauthier, of the same club, was second with 25 points and Tom Burlington of Cleveland had 21 points for third.

Miss Laura Forlich literally paid $2,000 for a dead horse when she claimed The Duck in a race at Fairgrounds, New Orleans. The horse broke its neck during the race but she had to pay for it anyway, plus $10 to haul the carcass away. It was announced last night Miss Forlich could not collect insurance on the thoroughbred, either, because the policy had been sold to the previous owner.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

In a recent case in the county courts in which damages were claimed for assault, a carpenter, who had been called as a witness was asked by counsel what distance he was from the parties when he saw the plantiff struck:

Carpenter—Just four feet, five and one-half inches.

Counsel—Please tell me, how it is possible you can be so exact as to the distance?

Carpenter—Well, to tell the truth, Ithought some fool might ask me, so I measured it.

(Free publicity, what—)

It was the late P. H. Barnum, the world's greatest showman, who is credited with the saying—"Keep my name before the public, and I care not whether you're knocking or boosting."

Truer words were never spoken and maybe Peterboro Scribe Fred Craig had them in mind when he penned the following sport note:—"Perhaps this city will get about as much publicity from the fact that it is not going to have any hockey club this winter as it would have from the presence in the O.H.A. of a Peterborough team. For instance Ted Dormer, a Peterborough boy who is with the United States Navy sends home this clipping from an American sport sheet: "While most fans are worrying about who will play on their favorite team this coming season, there is a hockey team in Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, ready to go, with a strong lineup but no rink to play in. Last year they played in Lindsay, 25 miles away, but the wear and tear on players and fans was too much. It is doubtful if they will operate this year, so don't feel too badly if your favorite team is undermanned and has trouble getting players. You could live in Peterborough."

(Out-foxed McGraw.)

While Bucky Harris, "boy manager" of the Senators in 1924, directed the Washington club on the field, Clark Griffith occasionally offered the young manager suggestions. One suggestion was the starting pitcher in the seventh and final game of the 1924 World's Series. The strategy was to get Bill Terry out of John McGraw's lineup, and Bill's absence in the later innings helped Washington win the ball game, 4 to 3, in the twelfth.

McGraw was using two lineups. Against righthanders, he employed Terry on first, George Kelly in centre and Hack Wilson in left. Against lefties he had Kelly on first, Wilson in centre and Irish Meusel in left.

To the amazement of everybody, Warren Ogden, a righthander, who hadn't pitched an inning in the Series, warmed up for the all-important game. McGraw started his lefthanded-batting shift. But, after pitching to only two batters, Ogden was withdrawn, and George Mogridge, the southpaw, was sent in. McGraw didn't immediately pull out Terry, but in Terry's third time at bat, he sent Meusel to bat for Bill.

Washington then shifted to two righthanders, George Marberry, who hurled three innings, and Walter Johnson, who pitched the last four. The Giants put a drove of runners on bases in those seven innings, but the cleanup punch in the middle of the batting order wasn't there. Had Terry stayed in the game, there might have been no twelfth inning.

Harris, as the prodigy pilot, was credited with the strategy, but it was really that of "Old Fox" Griffith.

(A vote for Matty.)

The Customers Always Write: Harold H. sends a wistful note. "So Christy Mathewson's three successive shut-outs in the 1905 world series rank only sixteenth in baseball annals of epic performances!" he says in commenting on the tabulation of a Sporting News poll. "I have watched baseball and read it for forty years and also fail to recall a single incident which equals it in sustained brilliance of performance between two top-ranking baseball teams. The fact that no one had come even close to matching it in thirty-eight years is significant in itself and when great performances are mentioned it is difficult to argue that one into second place, much less six sixteenth!"

(Need some props.)

Walter Gerow had better reinforce the Hume Arena ring for Thursday night's "battle of the pachyderms." With grapplers the size of Earl McCready, Hannigan, Jerry Monahan, Al Dunlop, Jack Reeder and one more of a similar weight the strain on the ring may be too much and the patrons may be treated to additional fun. At any rate Skipper Tunney has two main bouts lined up for his farewell show and promises the season's greatest thrill-producing card.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT CIGARETTES

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 252

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elevator Eddie likes the Kangaroo system. He makes up the mind of his pair and promptly jumps to a game. A sound partner prefers to swap advices until the best contract is discovered.

I was kibitzing a group when this deal came up:

SOUTH
♠9
♥K 8 3 2
♦A J 9 6
♣A Q 10 8
NORTH
♠7 4
♥A Q 6 4
♦K Q 4 3
♣9 6 2

South opened with one diamond. North responded with a heart. South then bid two clubs and north jumped to five diamonds without further delay.

The bidding should have gone like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 D	1 H
2 C	3 D
3 H	4 H

With a choice of two bids of the same length, first bid the one of higher rank; diamonds. The north north takeout to hearts comes before an assist. The two club bid by yyyosouth is still forcing for one round.

So, the players were in the groove up to that spot. Having raised the contract with the two club bid, south has revealed a total of six tricks. With five in his own hand, north can now see 11 tricks.

Having discovered enough tricks for a game, it was correct for north to make a jump bid in this spot. But a one-jump bid is enough to force the bidding to game.

There is no excuse for making an unusually yhigh jump unless you are anxious to make partner shut up. And north certainly had no reason to keep south from giving any more information.

Of course, it is very likely the five diamond contract will make. But if it does, five hearts will also make. And it is safer to play a game at four hearts than at five diamonds; everything else being equal.

Much valuable information between partners is shut out by those who use the kangaroo method. They should join the Leaping Lena club.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Tahiti Honey"

Comedy in the modern manner, a whole batch of swell songs, and a grand cast headed by Simone Simon and Dennis O'Keefe—these are the attractions in Republic's "Tahiti Honey" which opens at the McCarthy Theatre tonight.

In contrast to the highly dramatic roles she has enacted in many previous films, Simone Simon turns to singing and dancing in "Tahiti Honey"—and take our word for it, she's terrific at both! Dennis O'Keefe scores with a brilliant performance, showing convincingly why he is one of the screen's most popular stars.

Outstanding in the supporting cast are Michael Whalen, Lionel Stander, Wally Vernon, Tom Seidel, Dan Seymour, and Tommye Adams. Top honors go to John H. Auer, who was the associate producer-director.

There are no less than seven—count 'em—songs in the picture, and all of them are excellent. The title tune "Hahiti Honey" was written by Jule Styne, Sol Meyer and George R. Brown; while Charles Newman and Lew Pollack are credited for the others: "This Gets Better Every Minute", "You Could Hear a Pin Drop", "Koni Plenty Hu-Hu", "Any Port in a Storm", "I'm a Cossack" and "Ten Gallon Hat".

This reviewer found "Tahiti Honey" to be the "tops" in screen entertainment—and you will too. So be sure to put it on the list of your films-to-see.

"Texas to Tokyo"

Youth in command is the significant theme of Walter Wanger's production "Texas to Tokyo" now playing at the McCarthy. Keyed dramatically to America's most exalted traditions and American victorious progress on the war front of the world, the Universal picture has its chief locale in Texas at the Texas A.M. College, which has trained more U.S. Army officers than any other American institution.

The graphically filmed story is enacted by a cast of youthful celebrities including Richard Quine, Anne Gwynne, Noah Berry, Jr., and Martha O'Driscoll, all of whom are said to have contributed inspired performances.

Spectacular scenes of the mighty training centre highlight the film's starring action which focuses attention on the intimate career of a certain student officer. This officer, portrayed by Quine, is the supposedly mythical traitor who apparently aids the enemy but who forfeits his own life in an act of supreme loyalty to his country.

"Texas to Tokyo" an original story by Norman Reilly, Raine, was prepared as a screen play by Raine and Nick Grinde. William Sickner was the cameraman and the picture was directed by John Rawlins who piloted the recent "Arabian Nights".

Universal's News of the World completes an excellent show.

AT THE CAPITOL

"So Proudly We Hail"

Three great stars—Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard, Veronica Lake; a great Producer-Director—Mark Sandrich; a great studio—Paramount; a great writer—Allan Scott; two new male heart-throbs—George Reeves and Sonny Tufts, have all contributed to the production of one of the finest pictures ever made. It is "So Proudly We Hail" which was hailed last night at the Capitol Theatre by a thrilled and enthusiastic audience.

"So Proudly We Hail" tells the stirring story of a group of American Army nurses who fought side by side with their men on Bataan and Corregidor. What happened to them before they were flown to safety in Australia, how they lived and loved on the besieged islands, is unfolded in a movie that is tops in entertainment.

Two exciting romances, one between Miss Colbert and George Reeves, another between Miss Goddard and Sonny Tufts, are played against scenes that reproduce, amazingly well, the action on the Philippines. They are scenes that you will long remember for their great dramatic power and intensity.

There are superb performances from Barbara Britton, lovely star of "Wake Island", Walter Abel in the role of chaplain, and Mary Servoss as Captain "Ma" McGregor, head of the nurses. By all means see "So Proudly We Hail". You will be seeing one of the greatest pictures of all time.

"Lady Bodyguard"

Who protects a lady bodyguard from the lad she's supposed to protect? That query is one of the plot posers in Paramount's lively comedy thriller, "Lady Bodyguard", the Eddie Albert-Ann Shirley starring picture that opened last night at the Capitol Theatre as the added first run hit.

"Lady Bodyguard", produced by Sol C. Siegel and directed by William Clemens, is just about as suspenseful a fun film as their reviewer has seen in a long time. It has a swell cast, including Maude Eburne, Edward Brophy, Roger Pryor and Raymond Walburn, and an unusual story that revolves around a million dollar insurance policy on the life of Eddie Albert, who's cast as a test pilot for an airplane company.

"Lady Bodyguard" is fast and funny, with plenty of thrills and plenty of romance. You'll enjoy every minute of it.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big bill.

George Reeves, Paramount's new male heart throb, tries to talk lovely Claudette Colbert out of bathing him in "So Proudly We Hail," which is now at the Capitol Theatre. The added comedy thriller "Lady Bodyguard" stars Eddie Albert and Anne Shirley.

AT THE BELLE

"The Common Touch"

Musical drama of a wealthy young man who combines business, pleasure and curiosity. It also establishes the first motion picture appearance of the famous concert pianist, Mark Bambourg and Sandy MacPherson, England's leading theatre organist, apart from the huge cast. Likewise it brings to the theatre the beautiful background music of the London Symphony Orchestra, together with the appearance of Carrol Gibbons and his orchestra in a lavish cabaret display and many musical interludes and also introduces the new song hit of England, "Cubanoca." The film "The Common Touch" now on the Belle Theatre screen has feminine interest and appeal centred in a pair of good-lookers who play a considerable part in the development of plot. The production is another feather in the cap of Director John Baxter who will assuredly win approval among every class of audience.

"The Common Touch" gives to young Geoffrey Hibbert a role that will long be outstanding. While young in years, he has been in motion pictures for a considerable time and now definitely establishes himself in "The Common Touch" as a number one leading star and with the support of Greta Gynt and Joyce Howard, excellently maintains the star appeal of the production.

"The Adventures of a Rookie," Funny

While comedy gags and action cause spectators to rock and roar at RKO Radio's new mirthquake, "The Adventures of a Rookie," announced as the added laugh feature attraction, love blooms just as sweetly in the turmoil as anywhere else.

The comedy action and gags of the picture are in the department of two new comedians, Wally Brown and Alan Camey. Love-making, of the deep and tender variety, is left to Richard Martin and attractive Margaret Landry.

The Canadian Fox Movietone News completes the program.

NAVY DEFEATED IN OVERTIME

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—Toronto R.C.A.F. defeated Toronto Navy 4-3 in overtime in a senior "A" O.H.A. game here last night, Bud Poile scoring the winning counter on a pass from Heron after four minutes of overtime.

Navy had a 2-1 lead after the first period and still led 3-2 after the second, the Airmen tying the score in the third period and going on to win after four minutes of extra play.

The winning counter was Poile's second goal of the night, O'Flaherty and Henderson getting the other R.C.A.F. goals. Mair, Milne and Barlow scored for Navy.

Larry Amo Heads C.N.R. Veterans

Mr. Larry Amo was re-elected as president of the Canadian National Railways War Veterans' Association when members of that organization met in their annual meeting and election of officers at the Engineers' Hall last week. Practically all of last year's officers were returned, with George Secker being named as a vice president and E. Pigden as chairman of the sick committee.

Vice Presidents named included H. Drury, H. McElrath, C. Smith and George Secker, with J. Hart as secretary and A. H. Jones as treasurer and chairman of the cigarette fund. Chairman of the entertainment committee is J. T. Walden and sick committee chairman, E. Pigden.

During the meeting A. H. Jones told the members that through the C.N.R. Cigarette Fund a total of 1,008,300 cigarettes had been shipped to Belleville boys overseas at a cost of $3,358.44.

BOSTON BRUINS CAN BE SECOND BY WIN TONIGHT

Play Chicago Black Hawks and Yet to be Beaten on Home Ice

LEAFS MEET WINGS

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens may have the National Hockey League leadership sewed up for the time being, but the odds are that Boston Bruins will be alone in second place after tonight's single game. The Bruins entertain the Chicago Blackhawks, and the Bruins have yet to be beaten on their home ice this season.

Right now Chicago and Toronto Maple Leafs are tied for second place, nine points back of the Habitants, but Boston is only another point behind in fourth place. With the Leafs idle, tonight's winner at Boston edges into undisputed hold on second place.

The Bruins on their home ice should be especially tough for the Hawks tonight, in view of the affair Sunday at New York when the Rangers surprised a big home crowd by taking Boston with their first victory in 16 starts. That defeat came on the heels of a 9-6 win for the Bruins over Rangers at Boston Saturday.

Chicago's last effort was a 3-2 victory at home over Toronto Sunday night. The last time Boston and Chicago met at Boston it turned into a 6-5 victory for the Bruins.

Only one other mid-week game is scheduled before the usual week-end jam. Detroit travels to Toronto Thursday night.

Leo Wasn't Lion

Leo (The Lion) Houck, Penn State's boxing coach, gave up boxing with his pupils after Billy Soose and Steve Hamas left college, but he had to go back in harness this season because of the manpower shortage. . . The other day Leo was doing pretty well for a guy 55 years old when an onlooker asked: "Why don't you put on the gloves oftener, Leo?" . . . Houck merely opened his mouth, pointed at his bridgework and replied: "There's gold in them mountings, feller."

TWO MAIN BOUTS THURSDAY NIGHT

Tunney Signs Up Roughest Members of Wrestling to Wind up Season

Not satisfied with causing riots and pandemonium among the wrestling customers who weekly crowd the Hume Arena in hopes of seeing some poor unfortunate grappler-pachyderm disected, Promoter Frank Tunney has signed six of the roughest and toughest wrestlers in the business to wind-up the current muscle-bending season at the Hume Arena Thursday night. To prove his sincerity, Matchmaker Tunney even has included two main bouts for the night, but the principal question is whether the Hume Arena ring can stand up under the tonnage of human avoirdupois that will be on the card.

Starting at the top, Skipper Tunney tried to satisfy all by signing Earl "The Moose" McCready to meet "Hard-boiled" Hannigan, as tough a ring hombre as was ever introduced to a wrestling crowd. "Belleville fans want to see Hannigan soundly trounced because of his unorthodox efforts while in the ring. If McCready can't do the job, then no person can," suggested Tunney today.

The next main bout brings back "Irish Jerry" Monahan, another pugnacious villain of long standing who meets "Jack the Ripper" Reeder, the team-mate of "Texas Dick" Bishop tag team grappling. Reeder possesses no ring scruples, but then neither does Monahan so all is even on that score. Al "The Bunny" Dunlop is another of the ring ruffians of the night and that line-up should satisfy any wrestling fan's appetite for one night.

Vichy Urges French Workers to Ignore Underground Appeals

Barcelona, Dec. 14 — (AP)—The Vichy government, through a communique published in newspapers throughout France, has urged French workers to ignore underground and Allied radio appeals for a general strike, which Chief of Government Pierre Laval apparently fears might precipitate a national crisis.

The communique declared strikes in France are illegal and hinted they would be suppressed by force if necessary.

At the same time French newspapers carried an account of the assassination of Jean Lidore, chief inspector of police in Limoges, who had been directing a campaign against guerillas operating in the Limousin mountains.

Also reported assassinated were Pierre Arnaud, Secretary-General of the Miners' Federation in the Loire department, and Louis Faure Pulguely, President-Judge of the Lyon Court of Appeals. Both men were said to have been pro-German collaborationists.

The assassinated officials were among scores of collaborationists and leaders of various pro-Nazi political parties said to have been slain in the past few days.

The newspaper Action Francaise said that 2,700 "terrorists" had been arrested throughout France in the last two weeks in an attempt to halt the wave of killings.

AT THE BELLE — A mingling of drama, comedy, music and spectacle are presented in "The Common Touch," co-starring lovely Greta Gynt and Geoffrey Hibbert. The second feature offering at the Belle Theatre is the new scream team Wally Brown and Alan Carney in "The Adventures of a Rookie."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Dec. 13 (CP)—The Nazi fighter attacked over Kassel and raked the Lion Squadron Halifax with cannon and machine-gun fire, killing two of the crew and wounding another. But the bomber, with its casualties aboard, made base. The feat brought award of the D.F.C. to the pilot, Flt. Lt. George Laird of (188 Eglinton Ave.) Toronto and the Conspicious Gallantry Medal to Sgt. Bill Cardy of Port Credit, Ont., the flight engineer.

Wounded in the right arm and over the eye, Cardy lost consciousness but revived long enough to note that the hydraulics had been shot away, and to give instructions on how to lower the landing wheels.

A fire that broke out in the bomb-bay was extinguished when Laird sent the black giant into a steep dive. The crew was unable to jettison the bombs with the exception of a block-buster that fell when the Nazi fighter shot away the release cable.

"We had confidence in the skipper to know he could land the aircraft," said PO. J. Moffat of Castleton, Ont., mid-upper gunner, "but if it hadn't been for the engineer telling us how to get those wheels locked it would have been a different story."

Sgt. Joe Corbally, bomb-aimer of (150 Formagh Ave.) Toronto applied a tourniquet to Cardy's arm and took over the duties of flight engineer. The other surviving member was Sgt. George Lorimer, navigator, of (1768 Robson St.) Vancouver.

Two pieces of the fuselage of an ME 109G, Germany's swiftest and smallest spy plane which was shot down from 34,000 feet in a one-minute action off the south coast, were presented by Gen. Sir Frederick Pie, G.O.C. in Chief of anti-aircraft command, to the two mixed batteries which destroyed the plane.

One of the Royal Air Force men who died Oct. 6 to save the lives of many persons in North London has been identified as PO. James A. Robertson of Bo'ness, West Lothian, Scotland. He helped get a crippled plane, which lost most of a wing when it hit a barrage balloon, over three miles of crowded streets so it could land in Regent's Park.

The plane caught gire when it crashed and Robertson and other members of the crew were killed. So far, names of the other men have not been released.

Farmers Using Old Carpet For Horse Blankets

It took shortages created as the result of a nation at war to find a practical use for those old rag carpets which several decades ago covered mother's floors from wall to wall, but those rolls of old carpeting are now coming out of hiding to serve a rather useful purpose—and a purpose which the equine population will appreciate.

Since early autumn farmers of the district have been complaining that horse blankets have been almost impossible to procure at local stories and it has been the suggestion of dealers that farmers make their own. And for use as a pattern which is loaned to farmers at least one Belleville merchant has managed to hang onto a couple of blankets, just for this purpose.

On a visit to the country this week a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer saw at one farmer's residence a roll of carpet spread out on the kitchen floor, the material being cut to conform with the horse blanket pattern. "That's the only blanket I could find in Belleville", lamented the farmer. "I got the loan of it to try and make my own blankets. Then I have to return it".

GYPSY MOURNERS DRY AT FUNERAL

Cambridge, England, Dec. 14 — (CP)— The funeral of a gypsy was not considered good enough reason by Cambridge magistrates to extend the beer-selling licence of a Cambridge innkeeper for one afternoon.

The innkeeper asked to be allowed to sell beer to the gypsies from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. because many of the gypsies were travelling long distances in their caravans to attend the funeral and, later, a lunch at the inn where the body lay in state before burial.

Pournemouth, England — (CP) — More than 900 persons left Theatre Royal without commotion when fire broke out in the roof.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The following morning, Michael Osborne shoved a suitcase into his battered old car and started off, his small savings in an inner pocket. His mother looked after him until he was far out of sight; then she went up to her room and remained there alone for a long time. When she came down, her eyes were sunk in hollows, but there was a smile on her lips. Someone had to smile, to keep up the family morale; and that someone had to be Edith.

A few days later, a reply came to a letter Edith had written to a cousin living a hundred miles away, who wrote that he had decided it was his duty to have the two youngest of "her unfortunate family" to stay with him for a month or so. Peter and Marjory left by train that afternoon, in a state of growing excitement at the prospect of a holiday away from what had become the hateful village of Lakelawn.

Edith suggested that sufficient funds might be spared to send Dorothy and Ann to some quiet resort for a few weeks, but her daughters refused to consider it.

"And leave you and Dad to fight it out alone?" cried Ann. "We wouldn't dream of it."

"Our place is with you, Mother," said Dorothy quietly.

"But I should feel happier if you were away from it all."

"Well, we shouldn't!" retorted Ann, kissing her mother. "So that's that!"

No one ever knew what the ensuing week meant to Edith. Never before had she been separated from any of her children for so much as a single night.

And then a wire from her cousin plunged the depleted household into a state of nervous anxiety. It read:

"Children missing their beds not occupied last night have consulted police no accident reported diligent search started.

When the flurry created by the telegram was at its height, Peter and Marjory walked in, grimy and hungry, but in the best of spirits. The previous evening, when the rest of the cousin's household was asleep, they had packed their things and stealthily crept out of the house. A friendly truck driver, bound for Bradbury, had come out of his way to bring them home.

"We've never had such a terrible time before in all our lives," declared little Marjory. "I hate to say it about your relatives, Mother, but they were awful. They kept trying to make us tell them all about the murder."

"They would roll their eyes and say: "Dear, dear, what a shocking calamity!" added Peter, "but they loved hearing about it just the same. They kept talking about poor, poor Aunt Octavia."

"I told them you wanted us to forget about Aunt Octavia," said Marjory, "and they said you weren't bringing us up properly."

The following evening, when the family was at supper, Michael came home. He put his roadster in the shed, dumped his suitcase in the kitchen, slapped Hannah on the back, strode into the dining-room, and dropped casually into a chair.

"Hello, Mother," he said. "Hello, Dad!"

For a moment his swagger deserted him and he had rather a touching small-boy air.

"Gosh," he exclaimed, "it's good to be home again!"

Stephen held out his hand across the table.

"It's good to have you home again, son."

They shook hands solemnly; and then Michael grinned up at Hannah who was coming into the room with a laden tray.

"Hurry up, Hannah. I'm starving!"

That night he sat on the end of Ann's bed and talked for half an hour with hardly a pause for breath.

On his second day away from home he found a job as helper in a garage. He had given his name as Jimmy Milligan and told the proprietor that he was an orphan. At first he had been fairly happy, although he had missed everyone at home like blazes—"even you, old Funny Face!"—and, Lord, what a relief it had been to be no one in particular once more! To walk down the street and not have the ghastly feeling that people were craning their necks to look at you! To be treated naturally, easily, like a normal human being, instead of a freak in a sideshow. Yes, there had been a lot of advantages to being Jimmy Milligan, orphaned garage hand.

"But this morning a fellow drove in and, while I was under his car, I heard him talking with the boss about the Osborne case. I kept telling myself that the Osborne Case was no concern of mine, that I was Jimmy Milligan and didn't care a hang what anyone said about it. But it didn't work. I was all ears. My face felt red. I couldn't help it.

"And then the follow said: 'As a matter of fact, I understand police are satisfied that Stephen Osborne did it, but they can't produce sufficient evidence to satisfy a jury so they are delaying the arrest and hoping that fresh evidence will turn up.'

"When I heard that I was all burned up. I slid out from under the car and stood up.

"'I am Michael Osborne,' I said, 'and Stephen Osborne is my father. And you—you're a liar.'

"With that, I punched him on the nose."

Ann clapped her hands.

"Good for you, Mike! What did he do then?"

"For a second I thought he was going to hit me back; and he could have killed me with one punch. Gosh, he looked as big as Carnera! But I didn't care. I wanted him to hit me. I didn't care if he killed me.

"But he didn't. He stood looking at me for a while, rubbing his nose and then said: 'You're all right, Sonny. I was just shootin' off my mouth. I'm sorry.'

"'That's all right,' I said. And we shook hands.

"It was then I realized that I'd let the family down by running away and changing my name. I went across to the corner of the garage where my jallopy was standing, started her up—and headed for home."

With hands that trembled slightly, Stephen Osborne filled the blackened bowl of a favorite briar and fumbled for matches in the pockets of his shabby tweed packet. He was frowning as he strolled down a winding path to his rose garden. He stood staring at the last blossoms of the season for some minutes, his forehead wrinkled, his teeth clamped tightly on the chewed mouthpiece of the pipe, his thoughts far away; and then from an inside pocket he drew a letter which had come in the morning post and read it for the third time. It was from a law firm in New York, and was headed:

Re: Miss Octavia Osborne's Trust.
Dear Sir,—

As we informed you in our letter of August 30th, of which we have not yet received an acknowledgment you and your five children are the residuary legatees under a will made by your sister in May, 1924; which is, to the best of our knowledge, Miss Osborne's last will and testament. Under the terms of the will the entire estate, with the exception of a few minor bequests, is to be held in trust on your behalf during your lifetime and you are to receive the income from it. After your death the capital is to be divided equally among your children on their attaining 25 years of age. While we are not yet in a position to provide you with an exact statement, it is probable that the residue will be in the region of eight hundred thousand dollars.

We regret that there is little likelihood of the estate being settled in the near future, since the deceased's affairs are unusually involved.

Yours truly,
PARFITT, MAKIN & PARFITT

Stephen had tried not to think of what his sister's death would mean to him financially. Edith and he had not discussed it. They had studiously avoided the subject, fearing that the barest mention of it would invoke the spectre they were trying to exorcise. Octavia had been murdered—to all appearances—to prevent her leaving the money to charity; and to talk about the money was to bring up the question Stephen and his wife were trying to ignore; the question that haunted them, nevertheless, every waking hour; the awful question of the identity of the murderer.

It was not surprising that a previous letter from the lawyers had gone unanswered. Stephen had not received it. During August and early September, scurrilous anonymous communications had been coming in their hundreds by every mall and, after the shock of reading a few of the initial batch, Edith had burned most of each day's correspondence unopened.

It was the last sentence of the letter that caused Stephen to frown and chew nervously on the stem of his pipe. ". . . there is little likelihood of the estate being settled in the near future, since the deceased's affairs are unusually involved . . ."

Having known Octavia, Stephen could not swallow that explanation. Octavia's affairs involved? Impossible! Her judgment had been shrewd, her business sense admirable, her love of order almost a mania. No, in death her affairs would be as orderly as her prim person had been in life.

There was another reason for the delay; and Stephen did not need to be told what it was. The lawyers were stalling for time. They were waiting to see whether the police would take the first step toward eliminating Stephen from the position of heir to his sister's fortune by arresting him for her murder.

Stephen's funds were running low. Only about fifty or sixty dollars were left to his credit at the bank. It was urgent that he obtain more money within a few days. But from what source could it be obtained?

To approach Octavia's lawyers was out of the question. Knowing all the time what they were thinking about that murder, the interview would be intolerable. They were probably expecting him to come to them; and making up their minds what answer to give him.

His bank? He had had an account with it for twenty-four years, and in all that time had not once been overdrawn. The manager had always been friendly, had seemed to appreciate the straightforwardness of his small affairs. Surely he would be willing to allow him a reasonable loan?

The matter was urgent, so early that afternoon Stephen went to Bradbury and called upon the bank that carried his account. He was shown into the private office of the president, who expressed the formal hope that all Stephen's family were well and condoled with him on the death of his sister. When Stephen broached the subject of his visit, the president gave him no help. He put his fingertips together and listened in silence with a blank face to his client's halting request. After Stephen had managed to blurt it out, the banker still made no remark for what seemed to his client an interminable period. He frowned and adjusted his spectacles.

"A loan of five hundred dollars," he said at last in a dry impersonal tone. "You have not stated what security you propose to offer."

"I can offer no security," said Stephen, reddening, "but—"

He passed the lawyer's letter across the desk and the banker read it with raised eyebrows.

"I am afraid," he said, "the bank could not consider advancing such a sum without security unless you could find some person of substance —this law firm, for instance—to guarantee the advance."

"That is out of the question. There is no one I am prepared to ask."

"You have a daughter who is of age, have you not?"

"Dorothy? Yes, she is twenty-three. But"—Stephen smiled slightly—"I am afraid Dorothy is not a person of substance. You would hardly be likely to regard her as a suitable guarantor for a loan."

The bank president coughed. With one hand he stroked his chin and with the other he drummed lightly on the desk.

"She is—er—a residuary legatee under the will of your sister."

For some moments Stephen did not comprehend what the banker was getting at. When realization dawned, he gasped and his face turned very pale. His mouth opened, but he did not speak. With a visible effort he stumbled to his feet. He put out a shaking hand which groped over the desk before it found the letter. In trying to fold the letter he made a ragged tear in it. The banker said something in an apologetic tone, but Stephen did not hear. He turned and went blindly out of the room.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, Oh dear, sometimes I dont think dieting has anything to do with weight at all.

I'm inclined to agree with you, I believe the only thing that affects weight is eating, pop said, and ma said, But on the other hand some of the diet specialists claim that it's not what you eat that counts, it's when you eat it.

That makes sense, pop said. You could eat a dozen potatoes with every meal and still lose weight if you only ate one meal a month, he said, and ma said, I was referring to the sistem of eating nothing but proteens at one meal and nothing but starches at the next, and so on. In that way the various conflicting elements are kept apart so they cant act on each other, or at least that's the theory, she said.

Well G wizzickers, ma, I mean gosh, pop, why cant I try that? I said, and pop said, Are you trying to reduce for Peet sake?

No sir, I'm trying to get bigger and stronger, and maybe if I eat nothing but meat for one week and nothing but green vegetables the next week, maybe I'll grow twice as fast, I said. And anyways if I try it for a couple of weeks and nothing special happens, I can always go back to the old way. How about that, ma? How about it, pop? I said, and pop said. It sounds like a splendid idea, dont you think so, mother?

Why yes, yes indeed, ma said.

Making me feel luckier than I expected, and I said, G great, I'll start right away for a week with nothing but meat, and ma said, Good, that's just fine, with one exception. You'll start with green vegetables, she said, and pop said, Naturally, the greener the better, and I said, Aw G. roozalem, I mean may be I wont try it after all, I guess.

Maybe you're wise, pop said. After all, nature keeps manufacturing the proteens and the starches and the carbohydrants all at the same time, and perhaps nature knows best, he said.

Which she probably does.

BRACKEN VIEWS WITH ALARM BAN ON RADIO SPEECH

Letter to CBC Head Says Action Endangers Freedom of Speech

STRONG OBJECTION

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, said in a letter to Dr. Augustin Frigon, Acting General Manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, that "I look with the greatest alarm upon the political control of radio, for I see in it the beginnings of a general restriction on the freedom of speech."

The text of Mr. Bracken's 800-word letter, dated yesterday, was made public today by his party's national headquarters. In it Mr. Bracken said he wished to go on record as 'strongly objecting" to the CBC's action in banning from the National network a speech which he delivered last Friday night at Hamilton.

"No amount of argument can establish any basic difference between the press and the radio," said Mr. Bracken. "Both are vehicles by which news, opinion and entertainment are carried to the public.

"Freedom of speech and freedom of the press are cardinal principles in the democratic system. The denial of either involves danger to the other.

"As a public servant in control of the broadcasting system, it is your first duty to see that responsible opinion has access to the air, provided people are interested in listening.

Strange Action

"My words on Friday, because I happen to be the leader of a National party, were picked up and printed by almost every newspaper in this country. Do you not think it strange that the other great medium of communication, the radio, was forbidden to carry them?

"The frequency with which the leader of a National party might make use of the network is a matter deserving consideration and decision. But there is no excuse for censoring his words as a condition of making the network available to him."

(A previous exchange of letters between Dr. Frigon and Ross Brown, Director of Public Relations for the Progressive Conservative party, made public last week, showed the National network was made available to Mr. Bracken on condition his address was "not of a political nature." The network facilities were not used, however, when Mr. Bracken refused to make "substantial changes" in the text of his address to conform to this CBC requirements.)

Speech Not Partisan

In his letter of yesterday to Dr. Frigon, Mr. Bracken said "no Canadian reading the text of the speech which I delivered Friday could find anything narrowly partisan in what I had to say." He criticized the CBC for denying him the right to broadcast when it made its network facilities available to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his cabinet colleagues.

"The government is a one-party government which is approaching the end of its term of office," he said. "Inevitably, therefore, the pronouncements of the Prime Minister or any of his colleagues, however dressed up to give a different appearance, cannot escape being regarded as political, in exactly the same sense that any pronouncement that I might make would be considered political."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Stocks were mildly weak in the early hours on the Toronto stock exchange, the industrials, golds and base metals posting index losses of .11 to .31. Western oil shares held steady. Trading dwindled after the first hour and turnover for the first three hours was 180,000 shares.

The utilities were the heaviest of the industrial group and in the golds the soft spots involved Dome, McIntyre, Pickle Crow, Preston, Kerr-Addison, MacLeod-Cockshutt and O'Brien. International Nickel, Steep Rock and Sherritt were moderately weak base metals.

Ajax advanced 11 cents to 1.25 and in the western oil list, Calgary and Edmonton was up 3 cents to 2.02 and small losses came out for Mid-Continent and Vermilata.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec 14 (AP)—Irregularly downward price tendencies continued in today's stock market without touching off anything resembling urgent liquidation.

Fractional variations ruled near the fourth hour although there were few wider swings.

Canadian issues were generally lower, with McIntyre, Hiram Walker, Distillers Seagrams and Lake Shore off fractions.

'Hard Blows' Coming Against Japanese In S. W. Pacific

Washington, Dec. 14 —(AP)— Navy Secretary Frank Knox predicted today "hard blows" against the Japanese in the Pacific in the near future.

"We are getting stronger and stronger," he told a news conference. "The preliminaries are out of the way. We are getting ready to drive home some hard blows."

He gave no indication of where the United States fleet could be expected to strike.

Knox reviewed the war of attrition and added:

"Of course, the whole strategy is becoming apparent. It is perfectly obvious now that what seemed to be only nibbling has been carried on with the express purpose of decimating the enemy's strength. He has contributed by sending down small task forces which have been regularly overwhelmed."

Discussing the air welfare, he said that the actual figure of losses shows that six or eight enemy planes now are being shot down for every American plane lost.

Generally, he said, operations all over the Pacific are "going forward very satisfactorily. We have had a period of preparation and training. Now we have the equipment and men to do a complete job."

ATTACKED AT REAR OF HIS HOME

Le Moyne told police he was about to enter his home when a man jumped on his back and hit him several times.

Jap Prisoners in China Had Not Heard Of Reconquest of Guadalcanal Island Or German Defeat at Stalingrad

By SPENCER NOOSA
(AP War Correspondent)

Chungking, Dec. 13 —(AP)— Japanese troops in China are getting precious little news about Axis reverses, foreign correspondents found out today in a talk with prisoners of war in a camp in downtown Chungking.

Nine Japanese privates in the group and two non-commissioned officers among the prisoners said they had not heard of Allied reconquest of Guadalcanal or the German disaster at Stalingrad.

Private Akano Hironaka, 23, who said he came from a large family of farmers, declared "the Japanese peasants will rise in revolt if the war continues another two or three years." He added that the peasants were hostile to the government which buys their crops for fixed low prices and leaves them far from enough to eat.

Sgt. Mitsui Katsuo, 25, like other prisoners, said Japanese troops were equipped with a non-toxic suffocating tear and sneezing gas, four cylinders of which are supplied every front line platoon. These gases, he said, are employed to take stubbornly-defended points or break through encirclements.

He asserted all Japanese troops were issued gas masks as a part of regular equipment, and each Japanese division had gas sections equipped with special anti-gas clothing.

Katsuo seemed a little confused in his ideas. He said he believed in implicit obedience to orders, regarding the Emperor as infallible and said "I was fighting for His Majesty."

Yet he said he surrendered last July 29 because of difficulties with his company commander, a hot-tempered bully with a vitrolic tongue. He said he now wanted to become a Chinese citizen.

Lessons Learned At Dieppe Saved Salerno Beaches

Montreal, Dec. 13—(CP) — The "narrow margin" by which the British-American Fifth Army wou the Salerno beach-head battle at the outset of the Italian campaign can be credited to Canadians and the lessons learned at Dieppe, L. S. B. Shapiro, Montreal war correspondent, said here today.

Recently returned from the Mediterranean area, Mr. Shapiro told a Canadian Club luncheon gathering "It was strange and rather disconcerting for those of us overseas to hear that Dieppe had not only become a political football in Canada, but that it was blandly considered in some civilian quarters as a failure and a disaster."

The speaker described it as Canada's most valuable contribution to the Allied cause and added "The lads who died at Dieppe saved hundreds of Allied lives in the North African assault." He said that at Salerno where he was the only Canadian reporter, Gen. Mark Clark put into effect all the lessons learned at Dieppe.

Mr. Shapiro praised the Canadians in the Mediterranean theatre. "I think," he said, "the history of the Sicily campaign will show that General Montgomery used the Canadians whenever he had a tough and intricate assignment which simply must not fail. The left hook which finally broke the Mount Etna line and the entire German position in Sicily was launched by Canadians and carried through under conditions which are almost indescribable."

Mr. Shapiro represented the Montreal Gazette overseas.

H. & P. E. Reg't Moves on Ortona

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

With Canadians in Italy, Dec. 12 (Delayed) (CP Cable) —Canadians today consolidated their hold on the northern side of the Moro River, pressing into what has become their bloodiest battle of the Italian campaign.

Fiercest fighting developed northwest of San Leonardo where a Maritime unit moved up to within sight of a lateral road leading to Ortona.

With support of artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire, the Germans counter-attacked at least five times and each time were driven back. Both sides suffered considerable losses in day-long skirmishing.

At the eastern end of the front along the Adriatic the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment supported by tanks continued to advance towards Ortona which now is less than a mile away.

Elsewhere there was little change in the situation, with western troops still overlooking a crossroads north of San Leonardo.

Remove War Paint From U.S. Army Planes to Cut Weight

Washington, Dec. 14 — (AP) — The United States War Department has ordered removal of war paint from virtually all of the Army Air Forces' planes in order to lighten the aircraft and add several miles an hour additional speed.

Combat commanders recommended the action, the announcement said. Only specialized planes in use overseas will retain camouflage paint.

The Army Air Force estimated omission of the paint will reduce the weight in fighter types by 15 to 20 pounds and in heavy bombardment types by 70 to 80 pounds.

GERMAN FORCES POUR INTO SMELA SECTOR

Soviet Parachute Troops Menace Vital Rail Town

Kirovograd And Krivoi Rog Are Threatened To Be Engulfed by Reds

FOE GAINS NEAR KIEV

By EDDY GILMORE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Dec. 15 — (AP) — The Germans hurled tanks and troops into the Smela sector 14 miles southwest of captured Cherkasy today, seeking to hold off strong attacks by Soviet parachute troops threatening the vital railway junction from the northwest.

From frontline dispatches, it appeared that Lt.-Gen. Koroteyev, operating under the command of Gen. Ivan Konev of the 2nd Ukranian Army, already has a substantial group of parachutists, well-armed especially with mortars, near the village of Svidovok between Cherkasy and Smela, and there are indications that he is pouring in more.

While the parachutists, joined by the advanced groups that took Cherkasy, moved westward toward the Kiev-Dnepropetrovsk railway and Smela, other Red Army forces advanced in the direction of Smela from north of Znamenka and west of Kremenchug.

Konev's new offensive, powered by perhaps 300,000 men, threatens to engulf the important industrial targets of Kirovograd and Krivoi Rog, farther down in the Dnieper Bulge.

(At Kirovograd, the German communique said, the Russians "temporarily" succeeded in breaking into the German lines. The Nazis claimed, however, that the Soviets had been thrown back later by German counter-attacks.)

Russian troops in the Kiev Bulge, meanwhile, battled desperately to halt Field Marshal von Mannstein's reinforced Nazi armored divisions which were reported pushing on toward Kiev from the highway junction of Radomysl.

Throwing in waves of tanks and infantry in apparent disregard for the cost, von Mannstein seemed determined to recapture the capital of the Ukraine.

Gradual Shut-Down Defence Industries' Plants at Nobel

Nobel, Ont., Dec. 15 — (CP) — Employees of Defence Industries Ltd. here today were informed that beginning in January the plants are to be gradually shut down. For the past four years the plants have been making explosives.

Notice to this effect came officially to the management from Ottawa. It was believed the shut-down would extend over some months and the employees dismissed gradually.

The Nobel plants employ 3,600 persons, including several hundred women engaged recently. The payroll has fluctuated between 3,000 and 4,000 for a year. At its peak the D.I.L. engaged 4,500 workers.

More than 200 new houses were erected here by Wartime Housing Ltd. and 180 more at nearby Parry Sound where the effect of the curtailment of plant operations will be felt. Normal population of the town is between 3,600 and at present the town records show a population of about 5,800 as the result of the overflow from Nobel.

NAZI PROPAGANDA SHIFTS EMPHASIS

Goebbels Indicates Gloomy Attitude Changed to One of Defiance

London, Dec. 15. (CP)—The Berlin radio said today that Joseph Goebbels told his propaganda chiefs yesterday "it cannot be disputed that both the front and homeland were disposed to extremely harsh trials in the course of this year".

Acknowledging German sensitivity to the Allied nerve war, Goebbels issued new directives for 1944, and declared:—

"While the heroically-fighting German soldiers are making void all enemy attempts to destroy us, the homeland proves worthy of them by putting up an admirable attitude to the brutal violence of the increased air terror and the nerve offensive connected with it".

Goebbels said the German people had suffered "wounds and scars during the past few months", but were determined to do their utmost and "are prepared for final decisions".

Goebbels indicated a shift in the Nazi propaganda policy from its recent open gloom to an attitude of defiance, referring contemptuously to the "enemy's illusions" in hoping for the early downfall of Germany.

He said the Allies, "by the shortening of the German frontlines, hoped for a military and, in analogy to November 1918, also for a political collapse of the Germans. Now they have to put up with the failure of their plans and with Germany's unbroken military and economic power".

COBOURG WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED

Cobourg, Dec. 15. (CP)—Mrs. Leslie Wilson, of Cobourg, was found dead in her bed by police yesterday. Noticing that the milk had not been taken off the verandah during the past two days, a neighbor called the police.

Cause of death is not definitely known, but the fact that the door of the furnace was open it was thought coal gas might have been the cause.

She is survived by her husband, a newspaper editor in Kenora, and two brothers, William and Charles Pomeroy, both of Toronto. She was a native of Cobourg.

Canadian And Indian Troops Push Closer To Ortona

MONTREAL AGREES TO RECOGNIZE LABOR CONGRESS

One-Day Strike Of Police, Firemen and P.W.Dep t Employees Is Ended

NO MAJOR CRIME

By HAROLD FREEMAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 15. (CP)—Montreal became a normal city again today after 14 hours of existence under the most skeletonized of police and fire protection and the lack of most of its municipal services.

A strike of police, fire and public works department employees totalling more than 5,000 ended in the early morning hours upon delivery to strike headquarters of an agreement whereby the city promised to recognize the Canadian Congress of Labor as bargaining agent for the workers in the three departments.

The statement promising recognition was signed by L. E. Potvin, chairman of the Quebec Municipal Commission which controls the administration of Montreal. Its delivery removed the only expressed cause of the strike and workers began returning to their stations immediately.

And as more and more firemen, policemen, water works employees, snow removal workers and garbage collectors returned to work, the 1,500,000 residents of the Metropolitan area counted themselves lucky that none of the many catastrophies that might have overtaken the city had developed.

Went Thru Strike Easily.

To many residents, the comparative ease and lack of excitement with which the city passed through the 14 hours was the most amazing feature of the strike.

Although 76 Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Provincial Police officers took over the duties of 1500 city constables, the strike period passed without major crime incidents. Although the merest skeleton of a fire-fighting staff was available, no major fires broke out despite sub-zero weather and the consequent increased threat of such outbreaks.

Only a skeleton staff attended the water works machinery but pressure never faltered in city mains. Snow removal men were on strike 100 per cent, but city streets remained comparatively clear, and snarled traffice unsnarled itself despite the absence of traffic police.

But while the city passed through the most critical period without major incident, the reverberations of the strike and its settlement were expected to make themselves felt for some time to come.

MIGHTY AERIAL RAID LAUNCHED ON NEW BRITAIN

100 Heavy and Medium Bombers Drop 248 Tons of Bombs

CARGO VESSEL SUNK

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, Dec. 15 — (AP) — One of the mightiest aerial assaults of the war on New Britain Island, Japan's bulwark in the Southwest Pacific, was reported by Allied headquarters today.

In the Gasmata area, important enemy supply centre on the south shore, more than 100 heavy and medium bombers in a three-hour midday attack Sunday dropped 248 tons of bombs.

Nineteen Japanese interceptors rose to meet the attackers, which included fighters, and two of the enemy were shot down.

While Gasmata was taking it, other attacks were made on Rabaul, the enemy's sea and air base on the Northeastern tip of the island, where medium bombers set fires at Lakunai airdrome; at Wide Bay, on the Southeast coast; at Cape Hoskins, on the north coast, and at Cape Gloucester, airdrome area on the western coast.

The Japanese attempted to stop the Australians moving north in Ramu valley, Eastern New Guinea, with three counter-attacks which the Aussies repulsed with heavy loss to the attackers.

An Australian column advancing north from Finschhafen, New Guinea, is closing in on Lakona, Japanese supply base, the communique said.

Air squadrons in the Solomons, freed of restricting bad weather, staged 200 sorties over Japanese air fields and supply centres on Bougainville Island, dropping 150 tons of bombs.

Other Allied planes ranged at night up to New Ireland, where a 4,400-ton enemy cargo vessel was sunk off Timor Island, northwest of Australia, to bomb the town of Koepang and its wharf area, setting off large fires.

King Emmanuel One of Gravest Obstacles to Rebirth of Nation

By RELMAN MORIN

(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Naples, Dec. 14 (Delayed)—(AP)—The Italian Committee of National Liberation, representing the six major non-Fascist political parties, issued a statement today describing King Victor Emmanuel as "one of the gravest obstacles to the rebirth of the nation."

At the same time Benedetto Croce, venerable Italian politician and philosopher, declared unequivocally that the King's abdication is a prerequisite to reconstruction of an united Italy.

Croce's assertion was made in reply to a recent barrage of editorials in monarchist periodicals and pamphlets attacking him, the pre-Fascist Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza and other elements who have been urging the King's abdication.

In another statement, published in Naples' only newspaper and broadcast by the Naples radio, Croce raised the possibility of a formal trial of the King, adding that he hoped legal proceedings would never be brought against the sovereign for, he said, the results could only complete condemnation of the monarch.

Should Abdicate

The King should voluntarily abdicate, he continued, not only for his own sake but for the sake of the monarchy itself.

Croce's statement was the second recent intimation that actual court proceedings against Victor Emmanuelwere within the range of possibility. "The King's crimes against the Italian people are greater than those that have caused others in Europe to lose their heads."

The crossfire of accusations and counter-accusations brought the political fever in Italy to its highest pitch at any time since the campaign against the King began.

The committee's lengthy statement—the strongest criticism yet directed at the King—was addressed to the people of Italy and pointed out three fundamental problems:

1. The urgent need for food and transportation facilities to move supplies from one part of Italy to the other.

2. The necessity of reactivating Italian industry in order to aid the war against Germany.

2. The importance of reconstructing government.

Allied officials have been attempting to maintain strict neutrality toward the dispute. They have warned both sides, however, they cannot permit the political campaign to reach a point where it may cause violence or disorders that will hinder the active prosecution of the war against the Germans.

BULGARIA SENDS 'PEACE FEELERS' SAYS N. Y. TIMES

Sent Separately to Three Great Powers and Turned Down

WANTS TO GET OUT

New York, Dec. 15 — (AP)—The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Cairo that Bulgaria had officially sent "peace feelers" to the Allied governments "in an effort to get out of a war that both the Bulgarian government and the population now realize is lost."

"These feelers," said the dispatch, "have been sent separately through the Russian government and to Britain and the United States, and they have been turned down.

"Premier Dobri Bojilov said that Bulgaria would be willing to negotiate a peace on the basis of the Atlantic Charter, in return for guarantees that Bulgaria might keep those territories that she seized from Yugoslavia and Greece."

The dispatch said Bulgaria was prepared to argue that these were ethnically hers.

The Times' dispatch said that thus far the only answer received at Sofia was the continued bombing by the Allies and reiteration of the unconditional surrender terms which "means the evacuation of the stolen territories."

"The Germans are reported to have warned Sofia that any further efforts to desert (the Axis war machine) will be met with strong German action and the unhappy state of Italy is cited as evidence of what may happen," the dispatch declared.

It added that Turkey was trying to induce Bulgaria to leave the war "by combined persuasion and threats."

Noted Negro Dance Band Leader Dies

Kansas, City, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Fats Waller, 39, noted Negro dance band leader, died today on a train in the Kansas City Union station.

A representative of the coroner's office said after a preliminary examination that the band leader had suffered a heart attack.

Waller, known privately as Thomas Wright Waller, attended Paderewski concerts in New York at the age of 10, studied under Carl Bohm and Leopold Gadowski, and regarded low-down boogie-woogie as definitely beneath his nimbly-fingered piano.

Despite his respect for the classics, he paid taxes on a reputed income of $72,000 in 1941—and jazz did it.

Known internationally as Fats, he weighed 278 pounds.

Waller composed such hits as "Ain't Misbehavin'," "Feets' too Big," the music for "Connie's Hot Chocolates," "Keep Shufflin'" and the current broadway success "Early to Bed."

Waller came from a musical family, which had its roots in Virginia.

12 NAZI FIGHTERS DOWNED IN AIR WAR OVER GREECE

300 Bombers, Fighters Strike the Greatest Allied Blow of War Over the Balkans

PIRAEUS HARBOR HIT

Algiers, Dec. 15 (CP)—More than 300 bombers and fighters struck Nazi-occupied Greece the greatest Allied blow of the air war over the Balkans yesterday, and 12 German fighters were downed in a big aerial battle, Allied headquarters announced today.

Clearing weather enabled the 15th air force to send big formations into the air.

The great fleet of bombers and escorting fighters dealt a knockout blow against German air force nests at Elevis, Kalamaki and Tatoi, all just outside Athens.

Heavy bombers delivered the first blow at Piraeus harbor, key Grecian port which was almost destroyed during the early days of the German invasion of Greece in April, 1941.

Challenges Brushed Aside

Thirty-five German fighters which rose to challenge the waves of bombers and their escorting fighters were brushed aside in a blaze of gunfire which sent 12 of the Germans crashing to earth.

In other air activity during the day, three additional German planes were shot down bringing the 24-hour bag in this theatre to 13, against an Allied loss of five, with one pilot safe.

The attacks on the airield around Athens were the same tactics used by the Germans during their invasion to knock out the tiny R.A.F. force then stationed on those same airdromes.

Over the battle area in Italy several hundred sorties were flown by fighters, which also operated over Yugoslavia. Fighter-bombers hit shipping in the harbor at Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome, and R.A.F. Bostons bombed Pontecorvo in the Venafro area.

Britain Plans for Adequate Diet For Every Family in Post-War Era

By SYDNEY GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 15—(CP) — The British Government has been so gratified with the results of wartime rationing on the nation's health, it plans the creation of a permanent post-war food commission to guarantee a maintenance of health standards under any economic conditions.

This will not mean continuation of rationing after the war but rather an overseeing program to make sure an adequate diet for health purposes is available to every family, no matter how poor.

The preliminary work has been entrusted to a group of experts charged with the job of taking the British people off their pre-war "tea and margarine" standard on to a "butter, milk and meat" standard. These experts will lay the groundwork for the commission to take over planning of production and organized distribution of adequate health-building foods immediately after the war.

The plans call for reorganization of British agriculture to bring about vast increases in the production of milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables—the main protective and health-producing foods, and the building of reserves so that at no time a shortage of these essentials can develop.

Nutrition experts point to white bread, margarine, jam and tea as the principal hunger-satisfying foods for the masses of people who could not afford better in peace days. They are to be given the opportunity, no matter their means, of obtaining the essential foods in greater quantity than they ever have consumed them before.

British food policy will be closely linked with world policy to step up production of milk, eggs, fruits, vegetables and meats and Canada's ability to produce these essentials undoubtedly will be taken into consideration when Britain puts her plans on paper. The Dominion has been the main source of Britain's wartime supply of bacon and eggs.

Capture Caldari After Stubborn Nazi Resistance

CommandingOfficer And Adjutant of German Grenadier Division Taken

WEATHER IMPROVES

(By WES GALLAGHER)

(AP War Correspondent)

Algiers, Dec. 15 —(AP)— Canadian and Indian troops led an 8th Army attack that captured Caldari, six miles from Ortona on the Adriatic coast of Italy, and cost the Germans 200 prisoners, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Canadian troops in a daring night raid on the village of Berrati, two miles from Ortona, captured the commanding officer of the 361st Armored Grenadied Division, his adjutant, four other officers and 140 men.

An Allied officer announced that two bridgeheads across the Moro river, forced by the Canadians on the coast and Indian troops farther inland, now have been merged into one. It is about a mile in depth and five miles wide.

This bridgehead includes Caldari.

The Canadians had replaced the battle-tried British 78th Division. Not content with steady day attacks, the aggressive Canadians staged a night raid on Berrati, catching the Nazi garrison by surprise to take nearly 150 prisoners and kill many other Germans. The Canadians retired after the raid, on the night of Dec. 12th., taking all equipment of value with them.

Indian troops, which are flanked along the coast by the Canadians, and inland by the New Zealand 2nd Division, took Caldari against stubborn resistance in their fiercest attack.

The weather improved on both the 8th and 5th Army fronts.

Patrol clashes were reported near Venafro in the 5th Army area. Some German prisoners were taken.

BOUND TO HAPPEN

Montreal, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Something like this was bound to happen during yesterday's strike of firemen, police and public works department employees.

A skeleton crew of five district fire chiefs, working with light equipment, tackled a blaze in a two-storey dwelling and finally conquered it after the house was destroyed and adjoining buildings badly damaged.

One of the tenants of an adjoining building was L. A. Caron, a striking fireman.

Hunt Is On For Nude Turkey

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 15 — (AP)—Reporters and photographers of the Augusta Herald staff were on a turkey hunt today.

They were looking for a bird without any feathers and wearing a droopy look.

The turkey, the property of one school teacher was purchased for Thanksgiving dinner last month by a school teacher. Having no men in the family, the teacher hit upon the idea of chloroforming, instead of beheading the bird. She then dry-picked the turkey and put it in the refrigerator.

The following day, the story goes, she opened the refrigerator and the nude turkey staggered out.

School teacher No. 1 stoutly avers that school teacher No. 2 was overcome with remorse and fixed a sweater for the de-feathered bird.

The Herald staff wants to find out if the turkey outlives Christmas, too.

Committed for Trial On Murder Charge

Montreal, Dec. 15 (CP)—George Webster, 14-year-old high school student from neighboring Westmount, today was committed to the Court of King's Bench to stand trial Feb. 10 on a charge of murder in connection with the baseball bat slaying of his mother. No witnesses were produced at the voluntary statement hearing.

The youth was charged with murder after a coroner's jury held him criminally responsible for the death of Mrs. Andrew R. Webster, 35-year-old wife of a prominent Westmount resident, who was found in her bed with a fractured skull a month ago. Three other persons in the house were taken to hospital with head injuries.

Finn Radio 'Discusses Peace Proposals'

New York, Dec. 15 — (AP)—The Finnish radio "discussed peace proposals" in a broadcast beamed to the Soviet Union, according to a BBC broadcast recorded today by CBS.

The broadcast quoted the Finnish "President of the Foreign Affairs Commission" as saying:

"Our country must made every effort to have peace as quickly as possible. Certain great powers have often declared that peace would not come before a long time. But if this is the case, a small country forced to fight a numerically superior enemy will find itself in a situation very different from that of a nation who has not awaited the end of the war to make peace, and whose frontiers have been defended by all armed forces."

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

RESIDENTS OMIT TO WRAP GARBAGE

If Belleville householders find their garbage pails being jammed up these cold days, they can blame it on the weather and to the fact that they have omitted wrapping their garbage before placing it on the street curb for collection.

During the past few days with the thermometer hovering in the vicinity of the zero mark, more than a little trouble has been experienced by public works employees in emptying garbage pails into the garbage collector. The unwrapped garbage freezes solidly to the metal and considerable jarring is necessary before the contents can be loosened. The trouble could all be avoided, according to City Engineer Charles Mott, by householders wrapping their wet garbage in newspaper before placing it into the garbage cans.

STATION FIREMEN EXTINGUISH BLAZE

Station firemen at Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School received a hurry-up call early Tuesday evening when an overheated furnace was said to have set fire to the basement of the station recreation hall. Smoke and water damage proved greater than the fire damage, according to station officials, who stated the blaze was easily controlled by the station fire fighting personnel.

German Story Of Spring Offensive Pure Propaganda

Washington, Dec. 15 — (AP) — The story told by German soldiers captured in Italy that the Fatherland is husbanding its forces for a great spring offensive was regarded in military quarters here today as propaganda of the fantastic variety.

Washington authorities were quick to emphasize, however, that Germany still is fully capable of lashing out with savage and even locally successful counter-attacks against the tightening ring of Allied pressure.

The current claims of captured Nazis that vast quantities of military equipment, including new weapons and aircraft, are being hoarded for a final great drive for German victory is treated as propaganda dished out to its own troops and civilians by a government which still hopes for some political quarrel among the Allies that might yet save the present structure of the German state.

DR. W. ST. CHARLES DIES IN TORONTO, WAS BORN HERE

President of Lake Shore Gold Mine; Senior Member of Medical Staff of St. Michael's Hospital

FUNERAL IN TORONTO

Dr. William Patrick St. Charles, a native of Belleville and a leading figure in the Ontario mining industry for many years, died early today at his home, 424 Sherbourne Street, Toronto.

About one and a half years ago he suffered a serious heart attack and although largely recovered, he fell victim to an attack of influenza about two weeks ago which developed into pneumonia which caused his death.

Dr. St. Charles was the president and treasurer of the Lake Shore Mines, Ltd., of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

A son of James St. Charles and Margaret O'Brien, he attended primary school here and the Belleville High School and later graduated from Toronto University in medicine. He practised privately for a number of years at the corner of Queen and George Street and maintained an active interest in the medical profession until the time of his death. For the past fifteen years he has been the senior member of the medical staff of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

His father, James St. Charles, was one of the original owners of the old Richardson Gold Mine, north of Belleville and from this association in early mining around Belleville sprang a keen interest in other mining ventures. About 1911 he became acquainted with Sir Harry Oakes and became interested in the early development of the Lake Shore Gold Mine. A great friendship arose between the two men and Dr. St. Charles became the first treasurer of that company. Subsequently about ten years ago he succeeded Sir Harry Oakes as president when Oakes left Canada to take up residence in the Bahamas.

Dr. St. Charles was interested in thoroughbred racing and was a prominent member of the Thorncliffe Racing Association, the Ontario Jockey Club, the Granite Club and the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. Until a few years ago he owned some fine racing stock.

He is survived by four sisters, Rev. Mother Ethne of the Loretto Abbey, Toronto, Mary, Margaret and Helene at home. Two brothers, James and Campbell predeceased.

A funeral mass will be held Friday morning at ten o'clock at St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto and interment will be in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Onion Shortage Reported in City

Housewives in the Belleville district will have to find some substitute other than onions in their Christmas turkey or goose dressing if the present shortage of this seasoning ingredient continues. For weeks local stores and restaurants have been lamenting the fact that onions are very difficult to procure, while this is re-echoed by local grocery wholesalers, who report onions as a minus quantity.

In conversation with the Ontario Intelligencer this morning, an official of the National Grocers wholesale firm stated that no onions were available at their warehouse, adding that only a small percentage of the usual onion crop grown in this district was available this year as the result of labor and weather conditions.

The wet spring resulting in the impossibility of onion growers getting their seed in had been principally responsible for the short crop, it was stated. Storekeepers and restaurant owners contacted stated they had not been able to secure onions either from growers or wholesalers.

The shortage has also been reflected on the local produce market with only a very few vendors offering onions and in very limited quantities.

4 Airmen Crash To Flaming Death At Mountain View

Three student airmen and their instructor crashed to a flaming death in their Bolingbroke bomber at the Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School shortly after the noon hour on Tuesday when coming in for a landing the plane plummeted to the ground and crashing on the edge of the field took fire.

In announcing the crash Group Captain R. C. Ripley, commanding officer, stated it was not known exactly what had caused the crash and that a court of inquiry has been ordered. The officer in charge of the plane was stated to have received his commission just a few hours previously.

According to reports from Mountain View the aircraft was said to have been approaching the landing strip with the motors idling when the officer in charge saw there was danger of striking another plane which had just landed. He immediately gunned his motors with the result that one engine conked out and the plane suddenly went into a side slip and plummeted to the ground. It was stated the plane immediately caught fire and that the four airmen were badly burned.

Next of kin of the four airmen have been notified, it was announced by station officials today, but release of their names was withheld pending official confirmation.

Old 'Stinker' Match Lives Up to Name

Visions of the past were brought up for Vernon Orr in the past few days when he unearthed a 60-year-old package of matches. That in itself is a story, finding a box of matches in these times, but these matches were older than Mr. Orr himself. Many local citizens will recall the old "stinkers", as they were known, but their memories may be vague as to just how much they stank, and such was the case with Mr. Orr until he struck one...The world owes the inventor of the modern match a great deal. When struck, the "stinker" burns slowly with a dull yellow flame, heating the sulphur with which the tip of the wood is impregnated until it ignites the untreated wood and burns with a clear flame. The only catch is that it takes a great amount of endurance to stand the odor thrown off by the burning sulphur. It is very easy to understand why our grandfathers were partial to chewing tobacco after one whiff of the ancient type of match, and it is highly probable that they are responsible for grandmother ordering grandfather out of the house when he wanted a puff at his favorite pipe. There is absolutely nothing to recommend these "stinkers" except that was all there was in the good old days. However, perhaps even "stinkers" would be acceptable now that matches are almost worth their weight in gold.

Kiwanis Presents $100 to Navy League

The local branch of the Navy League of Canada was presented with a cheque for $100 by the Belleville Kiwanis Club last week to carry on their efforts on behalf of the men in the Royal Canadian Navy and Canadian Merchant Marine. The money will be used to send ditty bags to the men in these services. Approximately seven hundred ditty bags, containing comforts for the two services have been filled already by the citizens of Belleville.

Last year, when the appeal was made for ditty bags, approximately 105,000 were collected throughout the Dominion and distributed aboard the various ships of the Canadian Navy. These were mostly for merchant seamen and went a long way towards improving any lagging morale. This year it is planned to distribute 150,000 and everyone who can help in this project is urged to do so.

Mohawk Reserve.—The death occurred early Saturday morning of Mrs. Albert Brant, an aged and highly esteemed resident of the Reserve. Mrs. Brant, whose maiden name was Mary Maracle, had been an invalid for the past eighteen years. She is survived by her husband and three daughters, Bertha, (Mrs. Elgin Moses) of the Reserve; Selina, (Mrs. Russel Warner), of Mayfield, N.Y., and Maude, (Mrs. Nicholas Nixon) of California. One sister, Miss Janet Maracle of the Reserve, and four brothers, Mitchell, of the Reserve, Alexander, of Shannonville, Arvel and James of Midland, and several grandchildren, also survive.

The funeral took place from the family residence Monday afternoon, and was conducted by Mr. A. E. Burley of Deseronto. Interment was made in Deseronto Cemetery. The bearers were Abel and Gordon Green, Thomas Brant, Clarence and Harold Brant, Oshawa, and Edward Maracle.

MISS VIVIAN M. FILE
(Oshawa and Prince Edward County.)

The following obituary which appeared in the Oshawa Times and Gazette on Dec. 11th., will be of interest to many persons in Belleville and Prince Edward County.

Citizens were greatly shocked today to learn of the passing of Miss Vivian May File, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. File, 309 Colborne Street East, Oshawa, who passed away at the Oshawa General Hospital, following a serious illness of a month's duration.

Miss File underwent a serious operation in July of this year and was ill for a month. A few weeks ago she again was operated upon and had been seriously ill from that time until her death this morning.

A member of the Oshawa Public School teaching staff, Miss File was extremely well known throughout the city, having taught in every one of the Oshawa public schools, with the exception of Ritson Road, but the greater part of her 18-year teaching career was spent at Centre Street School. Miss File was also a popular member of several of the city's sport organizations, having been a prominent member of the Oshawa Tennis Club, O.C.V.I., General Motors and St. Andrew's Badminton Clubs as well as a keen golfing and skiing enthusiast.

Born in Prince Edward County on October 6, 1905, Miss File came to Oshawa with her parents twenty-five years ago. She was a member of St. George's Anglican Church and for a short time taught in that Sunday School.

Besides her parents, one brother, Clive, also of this city, survives.

The funeral was held from the Armstrong Funeral Home, Oshawa, on Monday afternoon, December 13th., and the service was conducted by the Rev. E. H. McLennan of Holy Trinity Anglican Church. Many friends were present.

Swings Along Girder, Carries Rescued Dog In Scissors Hold

Oshiosh, Wis., Dec. 15 — (AP)— While crowds cheered him on, Harold Parsons, 23, swung hand over hand along girders of a bridge yesterday to rescue a German shepherd dog that had plunged through the ice into the Fox River. The youth went 15 feet toward the centre of the river before he could get to the dog. Then he wrapped his legs around the animal's neck in a tight "scissors" hold. He returned to shore swinging from girder to girder while carrying the 70-pound dog between his legs.

FATE SAVES CAR FROM FIRE

Charlottetown, Dec. 15 — (CP)— Fate was harsh but it could have been worse, believed Frank Roper, nearby farmer dairyman, whose dairy and garage burned to the ground yesterday. His car would have been burned, too, he said, if it hadn't been stuck down the road —in a snowdrift.

NAZIS CLAIM COUNTER-ATTACK SEALED TEMPORARY BREAK-IN

London, Dec. 15 — (CP Cable)— German radio reports last night claimed Empire troops of the British 8th Army made strong attacks and achieved a "temporary break-in" at one point on the Moro River front but asserted it was sealed by a counter-attack.

The German reports, recorded by the Associated Press, said there was "violent local fighting" at the British bridgeheads.

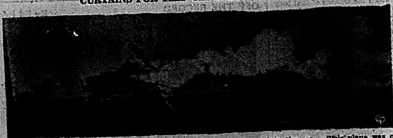
CURTAINS FOR THIS JAP TORPEDO PLANE



Slapped down by accurate anti-aircraft fire from a Pacific fleet aircraft carrier which raided the Marshall Islands on December 4th, this Jap torpedo bomber is going down burning, her "tin fish" dropping harmlessly into the sea. This plane was one of six that came in at low level to launch torpedoes at the carrier only to be destroyed.

Simpler Tax Forms Out For Low-Income Group

Ottawa, Dec. 15—(CP)—The man with 1943 income not exceeding $3,000 will find the job of filling out his income-tax form a little simpler than he did this year, it was indicated today when copies of the new "T-1 Special" form started coming off the presses.

More complicated forms are required for persons with higher incomes.

The new "T-1 Special" is of four pages as before, but the last two pages are devoted wholly to tables showing the tax payable on various incomes by persons having various number of dependents.

The essential blank spaces to be filled in by the taxpayer cover two pages, whereas in the 1942 forms all went on the first page and a half, with part of the second page containing the first part of the tax tables.

The order of the questions is changed somewhat and they are broken down into greater detail this year. Where there were 14 main questions, each with a number of subquestions, in last year's form, there are 17 main questions this year.

A factor which caused some taxpayers confusion this year — the remission of 50 per cent. of the tax due through adoption of the "pay-as-you-earn plan"—is not present this year. That in itself leads to simplification.

In the table of tax rates are 13 columns covering every situation from "single with no dependents" to "married with eight dependents." The new form puts the classification in print at the top of the column of taxes payable, whereas the old form simply used an identifying letter—"A," "B," "C," and so on—and referred the taxpayers to a key for interpretation.

The rates, as laid down in this year's Federal Budget, are unchanged from last year, except for the 50 per cent. remission. A single person with no dependents and the minimum taxable income of $660 to $670 pays $2 in fixed tax, and $2 additional in compulsory savings if he has no allowable voluntary savings. Where the tax columns last year listed first the total potential tax, the fixed tax and the compulsory savings together and later the compulsory saving, the new form gives the fixed tax and the compulsory savings.

Where this year's form gave in two columns the total potential tax payable (graduated tax and compulsory savings added together) and the compulsory savings portion the 1944 form lists instead the graduated tax and the compulsory savings (but no total of the two).

Taxpayers are allowed to credit premiums paid on life insurance policies and annuities and principal payments on mortgages on their homes as voluntary savings to offset the compulsory savings tax which is returnable after the war.

Pte. Bob Emerson Writes Interesting Letter of Action in Sicily, Italy

Any family would be happy to receive a letter from their son, when he is serving overseas in the battle fronts of the world and this is especially so when it is known that he is wounded. After a delay of a short time, the following letter was received from Pte. R. A. Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Emerson, 9 Everett St. Pte. Emerson was writing from a base hospital, somewhere in the Mediterranean theatre of war.

Dear Mom and Dad:

Still getting better every day and getting anxious to hear from home as it is getting near Christmas. It looks like another year away, but I hope to be home next year, my wife and I. I can't imagine what kind of Christmas we will have. I am sure it will not seem like it at all, but I'll make up for these when I do get home. I can't get anything to send home, maybe a few oranges, or something like that, as everything else is very dear. One of the boy in our tent went to buy something for his wife. They had some handmade purses. . but all they asked for them was 1,600 francs, about three times as much as we get a pay day, so that was out.

I think since we landed in Sicily and Italy I have eaten more fruit than I ever did in all my life before, such as grapes, peaches, apples, oranges and figs. The people here are very different to any I have ever seen, and nothing surprises me any more. At first I could not get over the fact that their pigs, chickens and donkeys, shared their homes. Their language is still a little puzzling at times, but we manage to make them understand and get along all right. I am taking it better than I thought I would, and believe me sometimes it is very hard. If the people back home could be shelled by the German mortar-fire, and have their own artillery open up on the Germans and see the effect and accuracy of their fire, they would not hesitate to buy Victory Bonds, because I know if I was home today that is where all my money would go. One Jerry sergeant said before he died that he wanted to see the Canadian automatic artillery, so you can imagine what it is like if they think it is automatic.

I never thought last year that I would spend my 23rd birthday under the conditions I did, that just shows you, eh. Next year, I hope to spend it at home with my wife and you".

A second letter received at the same time by Mr. and Mrs. Emerson from their son, Bob, continues in almost the same vein.

"I am getting along fine, improving every day, but still have received no mail at all since I was wounded nearly a month ago now. I can get around very well now, my back is sore yet, but I hope it won't be too long as I want to get another crack at old Jerry before I come home. By the way, I suppose you are trying to figure out how I got it in the back. Well, to ease your mind, I wasn't running away from him by any means; I'm afraid I was a little too anxious and got in behind his line. If one of them hadn't spotted us we could have had quite a time. There was another chap with me. He was captured but got away the same night. For a few minutes it was kill, or get killed. I am glad they were not real good shots. But, let's forget that. We are having some very nice weather over here. I am going around this morning with no shirt on and in my shorts. I'd like to see us do that in Canada or England in October. Cheerio, and a Merry Christmas".

Pte. Emerson was married on April 20th., this year to Miss Vivien Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Warner, Basingstoke, Hants. He enlisted with the Royal Canadian Army in May, 1940, and went overseas in July, 1940. He reported in an earlier letter that he was with the Eighth Army and found them to be marvelous soldiers.

Princess Louise Dragoon Guards Fighting in Italy

Algiers, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Allied headquarters today officially disclosed that the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of the Canadian Army has participated in the fighting in Italy.

The Princess Louise Dragoon Guards also served in Sicily, as a reconnaissance battalion attached to the Canadian 1st Division.

It is the ninth Canadian unit to have been officially identified by name by Allied headquarters as fighting in Italy with the British 8th Army.

Those previously named were: The Royal Canadian Regiment, The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the 48th Highlanders of Canada, The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, the Carleton and York Regiment and the Three Rivers Tank Regiment. Regiments named in news dispatches, but not formally identified by headquarters, include The Royal 22nd and the West Nova Scotias.

All these units fought in Sicily before the invasion of the Italian mainland.

Living Conditions At Brandon Station Not Good Is Claim

Toronto, Dec. 15 —(CP)— Living conditions in the R.C.A.F. Station at Brandon, Man., are a "crime and a disgrace," city council was told last night by Alderman W. V. Muir, who added that Toronto boys sent to other parts of Canada "are not well treated."

Muir said he has received a letter saying 38 of a group of 40 men who arrived at Brandon were in hospital because of "conditions" there. He said he has a son in the R.C.A.F. at Brandon "and I have had to send him money to get his meals."

"The R.C.A.F. tells these boys . . . to take 10 days' clothing with them, but they would be walking the streets with the soles out of their shoes if they didn't get help from outside," he charged.

Rear Admiral Merrill Awarded U. S. Navy Cross

Aboard a U.S. Cruiser in the South Pacific, Dec. 11—(AP)—(Delayed)—Rear Admiral Aaron Stanton Merrill today received the United States Navy Cross for brilliant command of the Task Force which sank five Japanese warships in a decisive action off Empress Augusta Bay, Bougainville Island in the Solomons, the night of Nov. 1-2.

Merrill also received the legion of merit for his direction of a Task Force in the Kula Gulf battle the night of last March 5-6 when two Japanese warships were sunk.

Soldier's Family Made Homeless As Result of Fire

Trenton —(Special)— A mother and four children, family of Pte. James J. Crooks of the Canadian Army, stationed at Kingston, are homeless as the result of a fire last night which completely destroyed their small dwelling and its contents on the bay shore.

The fire is said to have started from an over-heated stove. The mother, along with the oldest child, Annie, age 8, had gone shopping late in the afternoon and took in the early movie before returning home. Edward, 6, Margaret, 5, and James, Jr., 2, were left with their grandmother, Mrs. Rola Beckwith, who lives across the street. Fortunately none of the children was in the house when the fire started.

When the fire was first observed by the neighbors it had gained such headway that though the fire reels arrived in a matter of a few minutes, nothing could be done to save the building or its contents. However, the fire brigade with its powerful new engine, prevented the flames from spreading to adjacent buildings as might have happened with the severe wind which was blowing at the time. It was only minutes after their arrival that the firemen had the situation completely in hand and the fire extinguished.

This is certainly a sad disappointment to Mrs. Crooks and her family to lose their entire home such a few short days before Christmas, especially with Pte. Crooks busy in the service of his Country. It is hoped kind neighbors and friends will see to it that they are re-established and provided with a comfortable home in the very near future.

Red Cross Meeting.

Following Tuesday's session of Red Cross work, the rooms closed until Jan. 4th., when it is hoped the women of the town will come forward in great numbers to assist with huge quotas of supplies needed by headquarters to fill requirements.

The monthly meeting was held during the latter part of the afternoon with the president, Mr. B. P. Joyce, in the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. V. P. Carswell, and the financial statement presented by the treasurer, George Sprentall. Reports of the various committees were read by the conveners and the shipping report showed 3602 articles were shipped during the month of November at a total value of $282.10.

A motion was presented to the effect that the local branch of the Red Cross would co-operate with the Y.M.C.A. and others in regard to providing Christmas cheer for the patients at the R.C.A.F. hospital. Mr. Joyce and Mr. Sprentall offered to take care of this service as done last year.

The date for the annual meeting was set for December 28th., at 8 p.m., in the Red Cross work rooms, over Shurie's Drug Store. It is hoped that the citizens of Trenton will show their interest in Red Cross work by attending this meeting.

Police Court.

Twenty cases came before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton police court on Tuesday with S. Gordon Robertson prosecuting.

Among those appearing were:

A. M. Blackmore and A. B. Stephens each paid $7.50 for speeding while one other paid a similar amount on a charge of vagrancy.

On a charge of having a liquor permit which did not belong to him Kenneth Chapman was fined $10 and costs.

For failing to obey traffic signal A. Gagnon paid $4.50.

Albert Hart, charged with drunk driving, case was dismissed. He was, however, charged $10 and costs on a charge of being intoxicated. He was also given two months' suspended sentence and ordered to pay $20 costs on a charge of indecent exposure.

One woman, charged with breach of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, had her case enlarged until Dec. 21st.

JAIL QUARANTINED AS PRISONERS ARE ILL

Amherst, N.S., Dec. 15. (CP)—The law courts as well as the jail here now are tied up because the prisoners are down with diphtheria. The jail is under quarantine, so a prisoner due to be sentenced could not be brought out today. By the same token no one can be admitted to the jail while the quarantine is on, so court has been suspended until Dec. 28.

250 HOLES IN SHIP'S SIDE DID NOT SINK CRAFT

Seattle, Dec. 15 —(AP)— Capt. Elmer J. Stull, who commanded the Liberty ship Samuel Parker in the Mediterranean during the invasion of Sicily, told today of weathering 50 enemy air attacks—but never stopping.

Home between voyages, Captain Stull told newsmen that one near miss by a 1,000-pound bomb during the actual invasion blew 250 holes into the Parker's side, but she remained afloat.

Mr. Eden Reports

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden brought to the British Commons on Tuesday a first-hand report of the momentous conferences in Cairo and Teheran recently. The scope of the work which Prime Minister Churchill has been called upon by his office to do is seen as amplified by the statement of Mr. Eden that Mr. Churchill had more work to do in the sphere where he now is.

That "the war will be shortened" as a result of the great gatherings in the Middle East was the assurance by Capt. Eden, and he uttered these words, "Every plan is now agreed upon. The timing is now agreed upon and in due course the decisions of Teheran will be unrolled on the field of battle." The military missions meeting at Cairo decided on future military operations against the Japanese.

Mr. Eden used words that stressed the greatness of the planning and the importance of the decisions. "The very magnitude of the plans to which we have set our hands will call for an immense effort . . . We have set ourselves a hard task to achieve victory at the earliest possible moment.

"Great battles are impending and for this we need all our strength, all our courage, all our unity, in greater measure perhaps than ever before."

Encouragement over Turkey and complete co-operation of Britain, Russia and the United States in peace as in war were stressed. "We three can work together. The current threat of war can only be met if there is an international order firmer in strength and unity than any enemy could seek to challenge, said Mr. Eden.

What Canada Did in Loan

Canada's Fifth War Loan final total has been announced as $1,383,275,250, which is $183,275,250 beyond the objective. In addition Canadians turning in matured bonds or bonds called for redemption bought $188,036,300 worth of the Fifth Victory Loan bonds.

The general and payroll canvass and the special names canvass went over the quotas which had been set.

Another interesting fact was that there was an increase of nearly 340,000 contributors to this loan over the number who bought the Fourth Victory War Loan.

Only such wholehearted effort can do justice to Canada's part in the present struggle for the maintenance of free institutions and liberty.

How efficiently the loan was handled is disclosed in the words of Finance Minister Ilsley that "the costs of the Fifth Victory Loan, while incomplete as yet, are expected to equal about 88 cents for each $100 of bonds sold. This compares with $1.09 per $100 of bonds sold at the time of the First Victory Loan, just over 99 cents of both the Second and Third Victory Loans and slightly over 92 cents for the Fourth Victory Loan." The steadily lowering cost per $100 of bonds sold is something in which the Department of Finance and the Fifth Victory Loan organization can take pride.

The people of Canada have certainly put their dollars to work beating the enemy and they have put their dollars away too for the after-the-war era.

As the Minister said, "The tremendous success of this loan is of vital importance to Canada's war program and the widespread ownership of Victory Bonds is of great importance to the future of Canada and to the future welfare and happiness of individual Canadians."

Holiday Travel

Transport Controller T. C. Lockwood has requested that civilians refrain from travelling, except on urgent business, between December 22nd and January 4th when many thousands of the members of the armed forces will be on their holiday leave.

If unnecessary and merely pleasure trips were dispensed with, personnel of the armed forces would be able to travel without undue crowding, and transportation companies would be able to handle the traffic efficiently, he said.

Everyone of the service folk who will be on leave will naturally seize the opportunity at this season to visit their families and homes as well as relatives and friends from whom they have been separated by their enrolment in the services. Many of these have to travel long distances and it is well that they should have accommodation and comfort in travel without "undue crowding."

Snow and Motoring

Motorists have had a good season this fall as weather conditions have been unusually favorable except for wet pavements. But now as it is evident that even this winter, though it has been in a large measure somewhat late, will like other winters, have its snow though delayed a little.

Tuesday's light fall of snow, which laid a light blanket on the roads and pavements, made driving a slippery operation and pedestrians wisely were very observant, taking no chances with approaching cars. That is as they ought to do when there is a slippery condition prevailing. Drivers too will exercise the utmost caution to avoid accidents in striking other cars or pedestrians.

The season has come when all, those who walk and those who drive, will move cautiously for the proverbial ounce of prevention is worth more than the pound of cure. Just at the Christmas season this carefulness on the part of those on foot or driving is most timely and apt.

Famine Victims

(Manchester Guardian)

One of the most curious, because unexpected, facts lately reported from Calcutta is that the chief sufferers from the famine in Bengal are professional beggars.

Times are hard indeed when the beggar in India cannot make a living. It is true that he belongs to an enormous brotherhood which must instantly feel the effect of high prices and scarcity. On the other hand, if he is a Bairagi, or Hindu religious mendicant, he operates from a distinctive point of vantage, for it is well understood that he confers a favor by giving his victim an opportunity to be charitable. It is not the giver of alms who is blessed so much as the recipient, for the latter has prompted the flow of benevolence for which otherwise there might have been no outlet. That argument is undoubtedly a score for the professional beggar.

Nothing like it can be advanced by the criminal tribes, who include in their ranks large numbers of housebreakers, thieves, and others of undesirable reputation.

Water Gipsy World

(London Observer)

Women are doing splendid work, on the canals, which have been usefully relieving road and rail, though doubly handicapped this year by lack of men and of rain. One inch of water represents one ton of cargo, so that five inches less water may mean five tons less cargo per boat.

Canal life has been regarded as the last resort of gipsy freedom and unordered ways, but now, like everything else, it is under Whitehall. The first year of control has been successful. Despite shortage of crews and showers our canal freightage rose by 140,000 tons to 11¼ millions.

Waterwomen are described as "manning" 10 pairs of "boats." But why not feminize the verb as well as the job? What has become, too, of the word barge? And why not a "bargess?"

Just eight more trading days before Christmas—that is the important fact that everyone must remember in order that the last minute rush and disappointment may be avoided.

THE BILL OF RIGHTS

Ten paragraphs to chart and plan
Th' inalienable rights of man.

Freedom to worship, meet and pray
Devoutly as he sees the way;

So firmly settled, all shall be
Of mind and conscience wholly free.

Freedom of all to print or pen
The truth about affairs and men.

Freedom to own! No soldier grim
Shall take a free man's home from him.

The right to trial when accused,
With justice to no one refused.

All civil matters fairly tried,
The facts a jury to decide.

Last paragraph, which delegates
All lesser powers to the states.

Ten right with which we're born and die
But rights which tyrants all deny!

Rights which with freedom bud and flower,
But wither under tyrant power!

The town council has bid adieu to the hall over the Engine House in which the sessions of that body have been held for several years. The members are to be congratulated upon their final escape from a room in which they have experienced so much discomfort, and the acquisition of a new place of meeting. Now the councillors will meet in their chambers in the new town hall, where they will not suffer from cold and smoky chimneys in the winter season. The police magistrate suffered the same discomfort as did the councillors and he will shortly follow to the new town hall. Thus the old battle ground of the municipal legislature will be left to the occupation of the firemen.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Our forefathers had to do things the hard way. Let's look back and see. We'll realize how much easier life has become. We'll find hope for the future, too, in the record of what can be accomplished by hard work and wise planning.

The first craft made by the early settlers seldom lasted more than six or eight years. This was due to the fault of using green wood. Trees were felled, sawn and fashioned into vessels without allowing the timber to season. Ships from eighty to one hundred tons burden were considered the right size for Lake Ontario—for Lakes Huron and Erie, fifty tons was the limit recommended. The pioneers among Canada's fresh water seamen feared Lake Ontario more than the lakes farther west . . . and they were wise to do so. The great depths of Lake Ontario produced rolling waters as large and dangerous as ocean waves.

Pay-day in the navy, during the infancy of the 19th century, is reported to have brought these rewards of hard work. To each captain—ten shillings a day. To each lieutenant—six shillings. To each second lieutenant—three shillings, sixpence. To each seaman—eight dollars a month. In the mercantile marine — twenty-five dollars a month for captains, nine or ten dollars for sailors.

"It is predicted." These words magical with hopes for the future, appeared over and over again in the books and newspapers of the past century . . . . As late as 1874 sailing vessels still formed the greater part of the shiping that passed through Canadian canals. But, quoting a monthly of that year, "It is predicted by many interested parties that screw steamers and barges will quite supersede sailing vessels in the through transportation. . ." Canal authorities were inclined to favor the newer craft because of the regularity and speed of their trips. This often aroused resentment. Crews of delayed sailing ships would pelt the propellers of steamers given preference in passage through the canals.

In 1834 there was much discussion about whether or not it would be a good idea to stock the fresh water lakes with fish from the ocean. Newspapers of that year report a debate in the House of Assembly for Upper Canada on the subject.

Letter to the Editor

Belleville, Ont.,
December 8, 1943.

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir,—

Now, that we have chosen a new Council I would like to draw attention to two questions that seem to have always been left more or less in the background. I consider that they deal with subjects that are of prime importance first to all the people and secondly to the members of our school board and council.

The first question concerns the welfare of a group of people which comprises all the people, a group wherein the members are as nearly equal from an economic point of view as one can expect from any system of planning. So much more so than under any other system of classification. I mean that as consumers of the necessities of life we are nearly equal.

Consumers as a group always seem to be the goats when any class (so-called) use their strength and position to get what they desire. It is only from our Public Utilities that the Consumers (they own the Public Utilities) get anything like fair play. This in spite of the arguments of some who charge mismanagement. If there is any mismanagement it is due to a lack of supervision by the owners.

The question that I wish to ask of all the people is: What are you doing to ensure fair play to the consumers? Do you think that merchandizing of goods is done in the best interests af all? Perhaps you do not think that the people as consumers should dare to question how business is conducted. Our council should be the mouthpiece of all the people to defend and promote fair play for all in all things. Sometimes they seem to think only of the so-called taxpayers. I say so-called because we are all directly or indirectly contributing to the taxes in Belleville (who is to say whether each pays a fair portion). The voice of the council would certainly carry more weight, than any individual in the proper place.

The second question is one that seems to be always side-stepped by those who contend that it is not their responsibility. It is the question of fair play to a group who should have priority over all the rest of the people. The future of Belleville and all of Canada depends on whether they received fair play or not. The members of this group are not in a position to speak or fight for themselves but must depend on the rest of us seeing to it that they get fair play. I refer to the children. Remember they are also citizens even if they don't vote. Fair play for them depends on the wisdom and the sincerity of the parents first, but if the parents for any reason at all do not live up to their responsibility in even the smallest detail, then it becomes the responsibility of the rest of the adults. The School Board perform an important function but they are inclined to limit their activities. The Churches are trying to do something but they could do a lot more. The council consider it is not part of their responsibilities beyond paying the salaries of the police to apprehend bad boys.

Now I do not say that the council should be responsible for remedying unfair practices as concerns consumers and children but I do say that the council could give leadership in organization of bodies who would make it their business to see that all receive fair play. The success of these efforts would depend on the support of all the people. What wonderful work could be done, if they would, by sincere people from all the churches, school board, service clubs, council, etc., co-operating and working to produce better and better citizens for the future by planning efficiently. Not one child should be missed. Or are all the adults too busy doing less important work? This work cannot be done by paying taxes. Adults must give their time and concentration to do the job right.

All people have their responsibilities and as they perform them so are they entitled to the rights of Canadian citizenry.

Yours,
J. W. McKay,
25 Turnbull Street.

WE MUST HOLD THE LINE!

On the home front the battle against inflation is now the most critical of all.

The winning of this battle will contribute much to winning the war.

It will contribute more than all else towards the solution of post-war problems.

• • •

The purpose of Price Control is to prevent inflation. Its purpose is to protect and maintain a basic standard of living.

A higher money income will not be of any advantage if, because prices are going up, our money buys less and less.

To win the battle against unemployment in the post-war period, we must first of all win the battle against inflation.

• • •

Salaries and wages are a large element, often the largest element, in the cost of everything we buy.

If the Price Ceiling breaks down, in the long run all stand to lose.

We must hold the line against inflation to assure victory in war.

We must hold the line to provide a solid foundation on which, after the war, to build a greater and a better Canada.

Canadians Supported by Tanks, Guns In Bitter Fighting South of Ortona

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 14—(Delayed)—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops, closely supported by tanks and a great weight of artillery, are fighting their bitterest engagement of the war south of the Adriatic Sea coast town of Ortona.

The battle which started a week ago and in which the Canadians drove the Germans back from their strong line on the northwest heights of the Moro River valley now is raging over a lateral road running 15 miles inland from the Adriatic to the town of Guardriagrele.

Fight Goes on Day and Night

On the north side of this highway the Germans are fighting strongly in defence. The Canadians occupy positions on the south side. The fight goes on day and night, accompanied by the constant thunder of guns, the whistle of shells and mortar bombs, the groaning of tanks and the roar of aircraft. The battle is regarded as the fiercest the Canadians have fought either in Sicily or Italy.

Infantry and tanks succeeded two or three times in forcing a way across the road but the weight of German fire each time prevented the Canadians from gaining a foothold for more than 24 hours.

Advance is Slow

An indication of the determination with which the Germans are fighting is the fact the advance has gained little more than one mile since the forcing of the Moro River last Wednesday. The progress now being made is recorded in yards rather than miles.

The Germans are paying heavily in casualties. Two hundred Nazi prisoners were taken Monday.

One hundred prisoners were taken by a combat team headed by tanks and which included a company from a Maritimes battalion which was astride the road momentarily. Approaching the highway the tanks surprised three German Mark 4 tanks and knocked them out.

Canadian Shells Pound Germans

Thousands of rounds of shells have poured into the German positions from Canadian guns. In the last 10 days more shell rounds have been fired by Canadian gunners than from all the 25-pounders used by the Canadians in the entire Sicilian campaign. British batteries are lending their weight to the attack.

In the battle area discarded German equipment dots the ground, also marked by shell craters and flattened trees. The dead are buried as soon as possible and the grassy slopes which form the Canadian positions are being planted with little groups of wooden crosses over the graves.

Tory-Financial Conspiracy Claim Of Ian Mackenzie

Also Attacks C.C.F. Policies Which He Said Were "Preaching Militant Revolution"

CALLS ON LIBERALS

Vancouver, Dec. 15 — (CP) — A charge that there was a "Tory-financial" conspiracy to undermine the Liberal Party in British Columbia was made Monday night by Pensions Minister Mackenzie in an address to the Vancouver Liberal Association.

This conspiracy, he charged was headed by a "tool from Trail," was organized by "Locke," a Vancouver barrister, and had been formed in British Columbia with a fund of $250,000 to defeat the Liberal party.

He linked the name of S. G. Blaylock of Trail, B. C., president of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada with those of Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Conservative Prime Minister, and John Bracken, present leader of the Progressive Conservative party, describing them as a "reactionary clique" which he was fighting.

Mr. Mackenzie also attacked the policies of the C.C.F. party which, he said, was "preaching military revolution."

Behind the "Tory conspiracy," he said was the "lock, stock and barrel company" of British Columbia. The "lock," he said, was "Locke the Vancouver barrister," the "stock" that of a great railway corporation, otherwise unidentified, and the 'barrel" was "the pork barrel of the Conservative party in this province."

Mr. Mackenzie said Mr. Bracken was a "creature of Meighen," and was financed by the Labor Corporation of Canada.

"It is time that Liberals woke up in this province," he declared. "You must wake up or perish. There is no alternative.

"If you are going to be ruled by the cabined cribbed and confined policies of the socialist party, your freedom is gone forever. If on the other hand you are going to be swayed by the financial conspiracies of B. C., your freedom is equally gone.

"I would like to know and I intend to know where the funds are coming from for this conspiracy organized by the tool of a certain railway corporation — the tool from Train — which a Vancouver lawyer, Locke, is in charge of the organization here."

Mr. Mackenzie said he intended "to expose the whole conspiracy, lock, stock and barrel unless they disband and go to their fox holes tomorrow."

The Pensions Minister deviated from the prepared text of his address to make his charges. He spoke for 45 minutes, devoting much of his time to a review of Liberal policies and plans.

History of Wool Spinning Told To Kiwanis Club

The guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville in the Hotel Quinte at noon on Tuesday was Mr. Alec Howey. The subject Mr. Howey spoke on, "Yarns About Yarns" is closely associated with his own business and a more enlightened speaker on the subject would be difficult to find. He was born near Tillsonburg, Ontario, where he attended public school, high school and business college and later went to Hamilton where he became associated with the Westinghouse Electric Company of Canada. He enlisted with the Canadian army in World War 1 and spent several years overseas to return to the Westinghouse Company. He is a member of the Optimists Club of Hamilton and is at the present time office manager of Mercury Mills Limited of Hamilton with whom he has been associated for a number of years.

He related the known history of spinning, stating that it had undoubtedly originated in prehistoric times, that it is warrantable in believing that from the earliest times mankind has clothed itself in the wool of the sheep in some form. It is very possible that the first spinner was a shepherd boy, who while caring for his sheep might have discovered that by taking a piece of wool and twisting fibres together, a thread could be produced. Machine spinning may be said to have begun about the year 1762, and was invented in England. In the year 1779 in England, the first machine with spindles placed in a movable carriage was invented.

Wool Preparation

Mr. Howey described the various stages of wool preparation before it is spun into yarn. He said that raw wool contains matter other than wool. The condition of wool necessitates conditioning with machines for cleansing wool with the addition of soap and alkali to the water. Wool also contains vegetable matter and can be freed from same by carbonizing. This method is very effective, Mr. Howey said. At this stage in the manufacture of wool is the divergence of woollen and worsted. All combed wool is made into worsted yarns ,while uncombed wool, with the exception of a very small percentage of wool used for carpet yarns, is used for woollens.

Mr. Howey's speech was replied to by Kiwanian Clarence Jewell who passed on the appreciation of the Club for his splendid discourse on a subject little known to the layman.

Letters of Appreciation

A letter from the chairman of the Navy League, Kiwanian Fred M. Lewis, written in appreciation of the $100 cheque received by the League from the Belleville Kiwanis Club, was read by secretary Ross Stiver. Another letter of similar nature was read by Mr. Stiver from Matt Currie, chairman of the Belleville Kinsmen Fag Fund in appreciation of the $50 cheque presented by the Kiwanis Club to the Fag Fund at the combined meeting of the three city service clubs last Friday.

An appeal was made to the assembled members of the Club to send in the names of relatives and friends serving in the armed forces and merchant marine for incorporation into the City of Belleville Honour Roll. Forms were distributed and several were filled out and handed back before the end of the luncheon.

Mrs. Yateman served lunch and a social half hour was spent by all.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALLAN NICKELSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F., In England, (CP)— The Liberator "stooged" around at 300 feet over the Bay of Biscay when five Nazi fighter planes roared to the attack from nowhere. That ended this bomber's submarine-hunting for the day.

Five shells from the guns of the Ju88's tore through the Liberator's starboard wing and part of an aileron was shot away during the running battle which lasted 12 minutes. In turn, the bomber, with a Canadian as captain and pilot, scored hits on at least one fighter.

PO. Bill Winter of (Sarnia Road) London, Ont., handled the big aircraft so skilfully that none of the crew was injured. Finally, it shook the fighters by taking cloud cover and later Winter set the damaged bomber down in a perfect landing.

The enemy fighters first were seen by the mid-upper gunner at a distance of 700 yards.

"I started to climb as fast as I could and the enemy kites did the same thing", said 22-year-old Winter.

The leader of the pack raced up on the Liberator's port side and from there directed the attacks of the remainder. The first and second Ju88's scored several hits.

"Our gunners hit the third, but it was dificult to see how much damage we caused", Winter said. "Our eyes were fixed on the fourth. It closed in, attacked in half-hearted fashion, then broke away".

The latest word on Flt. Lt. D. M. (Bitsy) Grant, D.F.C., Watrous, Sask., who has been listed as "missing, presumed killed", is that he was flying at a low altitude over France when his Mosquito was struck by flak.

The stocky blonde, a fighter commander in what was the first Canadian squadron to come overseas, was a fighter-reconnaissance pilot whose duties called for photographic and tactical reconnaissance. However, he managed to find time to become a great exponent of "train-busting" and to shoot down three German aircraft.

"He was not only an exceptional pilot, but a fine navigator, which is highly important in our type of work", said Wing Cmdr. Bunt Waddell, D.F.C., Peterborough, Ont., Grant's commanding officer.

"He inspired a lot of confidence in the boys and coupled his other attributes with a good personality. His gunnery, too, was very high class, which would explain a lot of his success against locomotives".

On one sortie into France, Grant was credited with shooting up 12 locomotives within 12 minutes.

LONDON LETTER

By DOUG HOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 15 — (CP) — The perplexing thing about London fogs is that you can't get face to face with the problem because you can't possibly see that far.

For one who has been engulfed by Saint John, N. B., and Halifax fogs — probably Canadian maximum in this field — the recognition is almost instant that here is something on an entirely different plane.

You recognize that this is an entity. To stumble into one is to become a waif in a world where there is only a forlorn you, the fog and your vocabulary.

The streets become torture chambers where conductors struggle along on foot guiding their buses, where tramcars creep in humility and where that personification of the cocksure, the London taxi driver, openly becomes humble.

The fogs gather the soot of weeks and hang it through the streets and embed it in your lungs. They lose you, taunt you, bully you, exhaust you and convince you that this is something nobody else could possibly have known.

That is what makes you write about them, because to every novice the London fogs are a discovery and, as such, news.

Yet to the Londoner they are simply weather.

Stories about the things that can happen in them are seldom suspected because anything is possible.

You would, for instance, never think of doubting the story of a little man who has known London for three years. He started from one pub for another two blocks away (he is known to his friends as a restless drinker) through a fog, strayed for half an hour and finally found himself in a bar. The vexing thing about his case was that it was the pub he had left in the first place.

You have had the personal experience of campaigning from Chelsea to Marylebone, about two miles, and ending up guiding your own army of three American soldiers. One, incidentally, was a paratrooper whose snores were volleying eerily through Hyde Park.

He was a trifle indignant at being roused from his concrete bed because, he said, that was the sort of thing he had been trained for anyway.

Among the guests who were close relations of the bride was Pte. Ruth Hicks, C.W.A.C., Kingston.

The groom's gift to his bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid, a compact and a cigarette case to the best man. The couple will reside in Milford.

MITCHELL—WILSON

St. James' Anglican Church, Ingersoll, was the setting for the marriage of Mary Gwendolyn Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wilson, to 2nd Lieut. John Burke Mitchell, Ordnance Mechanical Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mitchell, of Hamilton. Rev. H. E. Merifield officiated.

A gown of antique ivory faille and lace was worn by the bride, her long veil held with a calot of ivory velvet designed in three pinwheels. She carried Johanna Hill roses and chrysanthemums.

Miss Joyce Owen of Walkerville, Miss Jean Allen, Toronto, Mrs. T. R. Lee, Ottawa, sister of the bride, and SO. Margaret Mitchell, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), Belleville, her attendants, were gowned alike in Cuban gold crepe trimmed with vari-colored sequins. Their headdresses were gold feather calots with brown bows and veiling and they carried Talisman roses and bronze chrysanthemums.

PO. John E. Allen of Hamilton was groomsman and the ushers were Maj. Robert Mitchell, Hamilton; Mr. Harold Wilson, Ingersoll and PO. Gavin Coyle, Toronto.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will live in Kingston.

ROGERS—PLANETTA

Frankford—A pretty wedding was solemnized on Thursday, Dec. 2nd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Planetta, Sydney N.S., when their daughter, Helen Evelyn Planetta, became the bride of Sgt. Harold Earl Rogers, R.C.A.F., of Frankford, Ont. Rev. A. A. Murray of Westminster Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

The marriage took place beneath an arch of evergreen and flowers. The bride was given away by her father and was a winsome picture in her bridal gown of white sheer over taffeta, modelled on Grecian lines with embossed yoke and shirred waist. The sleeves were full and banded at the wrist. Her full length veile of tulle illusion was held in place with a dainty wreath of orange blossoms and her bouquet was of tea roses, baby 'mums and maidenhair fern. The bride's only ornament was a string of pearls.

Miss Nina Batstone, of New Waterford, was bridesmaid and was becomingly attired in a floor-length dress of baby pink chiffon modelled on similar lines to that of the bride. She wore a finger-tip veil and carried a bouquet in corresponding shades.

Karol Planetta, brother of the bride, was best man.

Dinner for some thirty-five guests followed the ceremony, when the bride's table was centred with the wedding cake. Serving the guests were Edmund Planetta, Mrs. Charles Estano, Mrs. Cecil Batstone, Mrs. W. Kay, Mrs. Douglas Bayer, Mrs. H. Crook, Mrs. Kenneth MacLeod and Miss Lydia Planetta, sister of the bride.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque; to the bridesmaid, a sterling locket and to the best man, a bill fold.

Sgt. Rogers and his bride will reside in Sydney as the groom is stationed at an Eastern airport.

Fashion Flashes

THE HAPPY MEDIUM between the tailored and the dress-up model is always welcome. A nice balance is achieved in a frock of black or purple wool jersey with clusters of bead and gold thread leaves embroidered across its bodice. Shallow V neckline and elbow sleeves.

THE HEIGHT of something or other is attained in the ermine trimmed hat of ermine, but there's no gainsaying its white beauty. One we saw was a tiny ermine fedora, trimmed with ermine tails arranged in the form of tall plumes. It is worn perched forward on the head.

MUCH THOUGHT and care is expended by designers on clothes for girls in their very early teens. A charming frock is in winter-white spun rayon and aralac, with shoulder bretelles of padded appliqued flowers in vivid-colored felt. Same trimming for slanting skirt pockets.

LOOKING AHEAD to suits for spring, it is noted that soft detail and the cardigan jacket is stressed in many models. Aqua Shetland woolen is used for a suit whose cardigan jacket has a four-button closing, three slit pockets, and saddle stitching around the collarless neck line, down the front and around the jacket bottom.

IT'S RARE these days, so it is more wonderful than ever when a bride can walk down the aisle clad in traditional white satin. A lovely bridal gown of white satin, has a low, fitted bodice with a marquisette yoke, long tight sleeves, and a full skirt over a crinoline underskirt.

"HEAVENLY BODY"

Maybe it's coincidence, but Film Star Hedy Lamarr posed for "leg art" for the first time in her Hollywood career while she was working on a new picture, "The Heavenly Body." The legs in no way mar Hedy's glamour, either.

Women's Activities

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Mrs. D. Wright was hostess to the Tyendinaga East Women's Institute for their December meeting. The President, Mrs. C. J. Akey presided and opened the meeting in the usual way. Roll-call was answered by "My Happiest Memory of Christmas" also exchange of Christmas gifts. Minutes and correspondence were read by the secretary. A discussion followed concerning institute library books, also plans for the January meeting. Current events were given by Mrs. P. Kimmerley, also some short readings. Christmas carols were then sung, followed by a reading by Mrs. D. Waddingham. The National Anthem brought an enjoyable meeting to a close after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Fred Kimmerly moved a vote of thangs to Mrs. Wright for her hospitality.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The December meeting of the Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Ross. The President, Mrs. C. MacInnes was the presiding officer. All enjoyed the singing of Christmas carols. Mrs. D. Mrs. Fred Heasman, district president, was the guest speaker. She gave some very helpful suggestions on the institute work and also a paper on "Christmas" which was much appreciated. Mrs. D. Smith led a discussion on "Christmas in Wartime." The hostess served a lunch.

Mrs. A. Fisher Honored By Tabernacle W.M.S.

The ladies' parlor of Tabernacle United Church was the setting for an inspiring Christmas program Tuesday afternoon. After the opening hymn a brief business period was followed by the presentation to Mrs. A. H. Fisher of a Life Membership certificate in appreciation of services rendered the Tabernacle Auxiliary as treasurer for the past seventeen years. Mrs. G. F. Lent, on behalf of the members, expressed recognition of and gratitude for Mrs. Fisher's loyalty to the society and of the amount of labor entailed during her long period as a devoted member of the executive, and Mrs. J. Fox presented the certificate.

Although Mrs. Fisher had received no previous intimation of this token of the friendship of her co-workers, she made a fitting reply and said the Life Membership would be one of her most cherished possessions.

Mrs. Tovell read the Scripture lesson after which visitors and new members were cordially welcomed by the president.

The prophecy and culmination of the Christmas story was told in a series of responsive readings interspersed with the singing of verses from sacred Christmas carols. Assisting Mrs. Froats were Mrs. Laura Adamson, Miss Ethel Horton and Mrs. P. Isard, leading in the candle-lighting ceremony, with Mrs. Robb and Mrs. R. Irwin as readers; Mesdames Burgess and Emerson offering prayers. Mrs. P. Cornell was the soloist, rendering one of the carols in her usual pleasing manner.

As a fitting finale to such a beautiful and inspiring devotional period, Mrs. Youdale held the wrapt attention of all present as she related the story of "The Song from Heaven," i.e., "Silent Night;" which was written on a Christmas eve more than a hundred years ago by a young priest living in a small village among the Austrian Alps and the music composed by his school-master friend, Franz Grubber.

In closing the president expressed gratitude to Mrs. Youdale and to all who had so amy assisted with the program.

Roslin. — The storm and high winds on Friday evening caused a disruption of the hydro and telephone service, when a large limb blew down breaking the wires and blocking the road a little over half a mile east of the village. WHEN WILL ZERO HOUR COME TO THE CHANNEL?

The hour has been set! Stalin has been given solemn pledge that Britain and the United States will soon open a second front with a thrust across the English Channel to France by air, land and sea. Many experts give early February as the most likely time agreed upon. Attacks from "the east, west and south will be carried on relentlessly" warned the official statement following the Teheran conferences. This map shows the various directions in which blows may be struck simultaneously. The black area indicates the shortest cut across the Channel and the drawings show methods of landing, wire-blasting and attack.

Canadian Troops Drive Almost To Town Ortona

New York, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Despite mud and German counter-attacks, Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have driven "almost to the town of Ortona," and have closed the road leading inland from it, the BBC reported last night in a broadcast recorded at the CBS short wave listening station.

Here is the text:—

"It is announced that Canadian troops of the 8th Army have battled further up the Adriatic coast almost to the town of Ortona. They've thrown back German counter-attacks and knocked out a number of tanks.

"A correspondent with the 8th Army describes how the Canadian tanks, throwing up great showers of mud as they plowed across boggy ground, closed in on the road running inland from Ortona; the road the Germans have been fighting so hard to hold.

"German tanks and guns opened fire, but the Canadian tankmen swiftly hit back. They knocked out three German Mark IV tanks, and the rest of the enemy armor and guns pulled back.

"The correspondent says by far the fiercest fighting just outside Ortona has been going on in a ravine. The Canadians have been attacking and the Germans counter-attacking across the ravine, and it's under shell fire 24 hours a day. The Germans put in five counter-attacks in little more than a day, but they couldn't move the Canadians from the ground they had won."

MONTREAL AGREES

Almost immediately after announcement of the settlement, city officials found themselves confronted with a 40-hour ultimatum from 800 white collar workers, members of the National Syndicate of Municipal Workers, who demanded pay increases similar to those they expected the other departments to get.

Granting of recognition to the C.C.L., too, was only the first step in the city's dealings with the union, with the subject of a formal contract governing wages and working conditions yet to be discussed.

Does Not Concur.

"I cannot sign an ordinance to give effect to a settlement with which I do not concur", he added.

The city, through the Municipal Commission, accepted the union terms of recognition after Mr. Potvin had been advised to do so by provincial government officials following a lengthy cabinet meeting in Quebec.

In its counter-proposal to the demand for recognition, the city said it would recognize the Union in the public works department but would not admit its jurisdiction in the police and fire departments, offering the wage increase there instead. The counter-proposal was rejected and all three departments went on strike yesterday morning.

In its ultimate recognition of the Union in all three departments, the city adopted the majority report of an Arbitration Board which a month ago recommended that such recognition be extended. The Board was investigating an earlier strike of public works department employees.

Another Strike Threatened.

The white collar ultimatum came close on the heels of release in Quebec of the report of another arbitration board which recomended that city officials recognize the National Syndicate as bargaining agent for the office staffs, some of whom are C.C.L. members.

Linked with the municipal situation was the threat of another tramways strike such as tied up all trams and buses for three days last March and resulted in recognition of the C.C.L. as bargaining agent for the tramway workers. That strike too was directed by Paul Marquette.

At the height of yesterday's strike, tramways workers were talking of refusing to continue their runs without police protection, claiming that the money they had to carry with them on their routes was in danger in a city bereft of a police force.

At a meeting last night, however, the tramways men confined themselves to giving approval to a proposed contract due to be presented to Montreal tramways early next week. Reaction of the men should the contract be turned down remained in doubt.

Paul Marquette, C.C.L. organizer who directed the strike, said after it ended that a proposed contract embodying union demands would be presented shortly. He said he expected the city would be willing to grant pay increases to police and firemen averaging $500 yearly—the increases the city offered the two departments in a counter-proposal when the recognition demand was first made.

On the other hand, Honore Parent, director of city under the municipal commission, said that the offered pay increases no longer applied, and would not apply unless agreed upon at collective bargaining negotiations.

ROLL OF HONOUR

Forgetting all else, we must not forget to remember those of ours who have served their country in war in the ranks of our Fighting Forces. Throughout the Dominion of Canada, in every community, grateful citizens are inscribing the names of their men and women who have joined the Army, Navy and Air Force, and entered into that most dangerous service but least recognized service of all, the Merchant Marine, on a permanent Roll of Honour.

Even as the Roll of Honour of the City of Belleville is being prepared, men and boys from the district are paying the supreme sacrifice on the fields of battle. Their names are enscribed on the hearts of those who loved them and unselfishly gave them up to their country in its need, but their sacrifice is not a private matter, their's was a sacrifice for all and their names should go down in the annals on record forever that they may never be forgotten. This is the purpose of the Roll of Honour.

Without the aid of relatives and friends who will send their names into the committee, many men and women will be unconsciously omitted from this Roll. Unless every name is included the purpose of the Roll of Honour has been in vain. At the end of the war, when the world prepares to re-arrange itself into peaceful ways, and the average person will say that now that it is over, let us forget it as quickly as possible, the problem of obtaining the hundreds of names will be almost impossible. It can only be done now. It can only be done with the complete co-operation of everyone who has someone serving in one or other of the four services. Means have been provided to receive the names submitted and list them, and I appeal to everyone to assist in this effort to recognize those who are doing a great thing for us.

Your full-hearted co-operation is requested. Address the form below, completed, to: "The Roll of Honour" City Hall, or, "The Roll of Honour" Public Utilities Office, Front Street. Additional forms may be obtained from these locations.

THE MORE WE'RE IN IT THE QUICKER WE'LL WIN IT!

Thousands of boys like Ronnie laid aside their ambitions when their country called. They put down their books and picked up a rifle : : : to go out and fight for us! We, who are left behind, must remember their sacrifice by doing all we can to help get this war over : : : and won! Don't waste money — put every cent you can into War Bonds and War Savings Stamps. CIVILIAN CLUBS LEADING PARADE IN O.H.A. HOCKEY

Hamilton and St. Catharines Up Near Top Over Navy and R.C.A.F.

ARMY TEAM SECOND

By The Canadian Press

Confident predictions that Ontario's rich reserves of military service talent would provide the province with a powerful Allan Cup contender were in process of revision today as civilian teams dominated the strong Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" series.

Before the season started Toronto R.C.A.F., Toronto Navy and Toronto Army Daggers were regarded as almost certain to lead the parade in a six-team circuit. Then Army Daggers folded, apprehensive of ramifications of the army's new "soldier-first" policy.

Navy and R.C.A.F. still were favorites as the season started, but from the outset civilian clubs shared pacemaking duties with Kingston Frontenacs, hard hit by postings but reinforced by a flow of seasoned players from other centres.

Frontenacs, sparked by playing coach Robert (Red) Hamill, now trail Hamilton Majors two points while St. Catharines Saints are in third place, four in front of Navy and R.C.A.F. Most of Hamilton's power is provided by Johnny Conick, Dillon Brady and Doug Runions, veteran forward threesome who currently form the hottest line in senior hockey.

Oshawa Generals, always a power in junior hockey, lead group one of the junior "A" O.H.A. with 14 points, two ahead of Toronto St. Michael's College who promised to provide most of the contention. St. Catharines Falcons held a four-point margin over Galt Kists in the second group of the junior "A" series, which saw 10 clubs split into two groups.

NO. 1 BADMAN

IS "HARD-BOILED"

There's no use denying the fact "Hard-boiled" (and don't be misled by his smiling smirk above) Hannigan, is one of the roughest and toughest wrestlers ever to grace the Hume Arena ring. However, Promoter Frank Tunney believes he has the answer to the downfall of "Hard-boiled" when he signed Earl "The Moose" McCready to meet Hannigan here on Thursday night. So that the fans will be kept in a warm frame of mind, however, Tunney tossed in a second main bout pitting "Irish Jerry" Monahan against "Jack the Ripper" Reeder, two of the meanest and unorthdox grapplers yet. Here's another warmer-upper. Then Al (He's no bunny) Dunlop is training to win a preliminary, but Tunney is keeping this one a state secret. It looks like a hot time at the Arena tomorrow night.

Bill Cowley Back On Top As Scoring Leader of N.H.L.

Montreal, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Boston's Bill Cowley is back at the top of the National Hockey League's official scoring figures, regaining the position he has twice gained and lost in the weekly N.H.L. figures.

The league compilations, which do not include points scored at last night's Boston-Chicago tilt, gave Cowley 33 points, for a three-point margin over his team-mate Herbie Cain. Tied for third spot with 26 points were Bill Mosienko of Chicago and Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens, former leader who has been out a week because of illness.

Cain took over leadership in the goal department during the week, with his total given as 17, two more than Mud Bruneteau of Detroit and four more than Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens. Cowley's 23 assists put him well ahead in that column, his closest competition being O'Connor with 19.

Mike McMahon moved out all alone as the league bad-man with 38 minutes in majors and minors as well as two 10-minute misconducts. Pat Egan of Detroit and Murph Chamberlain of Canadiens each had 32 minutes in the box.

VETERAN JOCKEY DEAD

Scarborough, England, Dec. 15. (CP)—Thomas Bruckshaw, believed to be Britain's oldest retired jockey, died at this Yorkshire town at the age of 90. A prominent rider until he was over 40, Bruckshaw later turned to training.

COWLEY MAY SET SCORING RECORD IN NATIONAL LOOP

Has 36 Points With Only Seven Weeks of Season Completed

BRUINS BEAT HAWKS

By The Canadian Press

Ott Heller's prediction that Bill Cowley would score more than 100 points in 1943-44 National Hockey League competition seems to have been something more than a shot in the dark. With little more than seven weeks of the 4½-month schedule completed, Cowley has collected 36 points on 11 goals and 25 assists.

The playmaking centre of Boston Bruins collected three of the points last night, connecting for the deciding goal and two assists as Bruins toppled Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 before a 10,000 crowd at Boston Garden to move into second place ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago.

Cowley set the league record for assists at 45 in 1940-41 and equalled the mark last season, but failed to score more than 17 goals in a season until he fired 27 pucks past rival netminders last winter. This year he seems likely to shatter his personal standards for goals and assists, as well as fulfill the forecast Heller made at the New York Rangers training camp in Winnipeg shortly before the season started.

Art Jackson sharing scoring honors with Cowley last night, tallying twice and setting up Cowley's clincher as Bruins recorded their eighth unbeaten game on home ice. Herb Cain also counted for Bruins, his 18th of the season. Bill Mosienko, Cully Dahlstrom and Clint Smith were Chicago marksmen in a see-saw game.

Third War-Time Winter Turf Season Opens in Florida

(By The Canadian Press)

The third war-time winter turf season in Florida opens today for another 100 days. President H. L. Straus of the Gables Racing Association, operators of Tropical Park says: "We are ready, the people are in Miami, and as far as we can see we should do very well."

He said the crowds may not be as large as in the past, due to gasoline restrictions, "but there should be enough patrons to assure a successful season."

Opening feature is the $2,500 inaugural handicap for three-year-olds and up at six furlongs, and when an even two dozen were entered the race was split into two events, with six horses in each.

Tropical will operate for 20 days, then give way to Hialeah Park's 50-day season, after which Tropical resumes for 30 days of racing.

Yale University found intercollegiate athletic competition so thriving this year that it is going ahead full steam with plans for 1944 in football, baseball, swimming and basketball. University authorities at New Haven have given their approval, and Athletic Director Ogden D. Miller is elated.

Down at Sarasota, Fla., 42-year-old Johnny Cooney says if the Brooklyn Dodgers need him this year he's ready to play. And it looks as if they might. Cooney was a pitcher for 10 years when he developed arm trouble and moved into the outfield for the Boston Braves. He wasn't able to help the Dodgers much during the past season because of a torn shoulder muscle, but he says it's all right now.

The American Hockey League in special session at New York last night took no action in the case of Eddie Shore, manager of the Buffalo Bisons who was fined $250 and $100 for disputing official decisions. It had been reported some other disciplinary action might be taken. Play-off arrangements were completed to start March 14.

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Shed a tear for Charlie Sands. The lakehead product spent 11 seasons in the National Hockey League with only occasional brief visits to the minors and just missed the major league's 100-goal club by one goal. Charlie, now 32, started this season with New York Rangers needing just one counter to enter the charmed circle but Rangers released him before he made the grade. Sands' best year was 1937-38 with Boston Bruins when he scored 17 goals and 12 assists...Sands' former teammate with Bruins and Canadiens, Ray Getliffe bagged his 100th N.H.L. goal 10 days ago. He started this season with 92 accumulated in seven big league campaigns.

Memory Lane:

In a talk with Fred Kerner of the Montreal Gazette, Charlie Querrie, who managed Toronto Arenas to the Stanley Cup in 1918, suggests the men who helped build the game of hockey be recognized in the proposed hall of fame — men like Frank Calder, W. A. Hewitt, George Kennedy, Lester Patrick, Art Ross and Conny Smythe. Kennedy was one of the N.H.L. organizers in Montreal. Querrie also suggests a special niche for referees and he named Lou Marsh, Mickey Ion and Cooper Smeaton.

Pro and Con:

Maj. Ed Bickle, president of Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens, received a wire from George Drew, Ontario premier now in England: "Thanks for message. Con Smythe and I had dinner last night. You can all relax. He has settled the Conservative party and I have fixed up everything for the Leafs."

Round and About:

Jack Carmichael, star of several Winnipeg St. Andrew's basketball teams in their Manitoba championship days, now stars for the R. C. A. F. Manning Depot team at Brandon, Man. ... Ching Johnson, former all-star defenceman with New York Rangers, is still playing hockey at 44 in a Los Angeles semi-pro league...Peterboro, Ont., is without O.H.A. hockey for the first time since 1895. Fred Craig of the Peterboro Examiner comments: "We are paying the penalty, of course, for sitting around for years and doing nothing about providing a modern artificial ice arena." ... Don Metz, former Toronto puck star, has transferred from the Army to air crew and is posted at Manning Depot in Edmonton where no indoor rink is available.

NEWSOM HAS BEEN MUCH IN NEWS IN LAST 2 DAYS

Classified as 1-A and Obtained Divorce at Les Vegas

MAY BE INDUCTED

Hartsville, S. C., Dec. 15—(AP)—Up to now, this has been an eventful off season for Louis Norman (Bobo) Newsom, lately of the Washington Senators' pitching staff.

The big, communicative right-hander has been much in the news in the last two days.

First, came an announcement that the Senators had traded Newsom to the Athletics for pitcher Roger Wolff. Newsom, at his home here, said he knew nothing about it and declined to comment.

Then, his Selective Service Board here disclosed it had mailed Newsom notice of his classification in 1-A.

And shortly afterward, news came from Las Vegas, Nevada, that he had been residing there for the last six weeks and had obtained a divorce from his wife, Bessie Lucille Newsom.

A Draft Board spokesman said Bobo's file had been transferred to Washington, D.C., for his physical examination and explained he had asked for a pre-induction going over. The Board's next call for men for induction will be on Jan. 25, 1944. If Newsom is included, he will be required to report to Fort Jackson, at nearby Columbia, on that date.

This news occasioned surprise in the Washington and Philadelphia baseball club managements. Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, said he did not know what would happen to the Newsom-Wolff deal if Bobo were inducted. He predicted rejection, however.

Connie Mack said when he made the Wolff deal, he was told Newsom was in 3-A but said, "We are not going to cross the bridge until we come to it. Lots of them are rejected when they go up for examination." He added that "If I lose Newsom to the army, there as a possibility that Clark Griffith will give me another pitcher in his place."

Bill Cook played for the Saskatoon "Quakers" in the old Western Canada Hockey League. It was just 19 years ago tonight that Bill, who later became famous with the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League, scored three goals to help the "Quakers" retain an unbeaten record and down Victoria 4 to 1. Bill Cook is now manager of the Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League, with his brother Bun Cook as manager. The Cook boys hail from nearby Kingston and on more than one occasion appeared with Jim Sutherland's Kingston Frontenacs at the old Turnbull Street arena in Belleville immediately after the last war.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

(By ALLAN NICKLESON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 15. (CP)—Death of George Cook, former Australian heavyweight champion who had more than 500 fights in Britain and the United States, left the ring mourning one of the strongest characters in its history. He died at the age of 45 following a short illness at Surbiton, Surrey.

During a lengthy career—he fought the best heavyweights in the country at 40—Cook met such topnotchers as Larry Gains, Toronto negro who once held the Empire heavy crown; Georges Carpentier and Primo Carnera. He had several fights for the British and Empire titles, none of them successful. His biggest handicap was that he lacked a knockout punch.

Not so long before his death, George, as member of the fire force formed to deal with bombings, told a friend: "They say I'm too old to soldier. However, nobody's too old to fight fires".

Frank Soo of Stoke City, English born athlete of Chinese descent, long has been one of the accepted stars of England's professional soccer circuits. Now another Chinese looks like emulating him.

J. Scott-Lee, a Liverpool University graduate, played for Everton against Burnley in the League North match and was the big success of the tilt. Like Soo, he is a wing half. Small but powerful, he should have plenty of natural ability and brainwork.

When a Coastal Command bomber was forced down in the Atlantic after attacking a submarine, all its crew was lost——except one.

The boy who cheated death crashed big league soccer a few weeks later when Sgt. Arthur Turner, an air gunner from London, shone at centre-forward for Charlton Athletic of the League South. That means his ambition has been realized.

The chance came when Turner was posted to ground duties after 18 months' flying.

Bravery while engaged in tunnel blasting at Gibraltar earned the George Medal for L-Cpl. Terry Hicks, former Welsh junior 105-pound boxing champion. . . Thirteen times England's diving champion, Wing Cmdr. C. D. Eomalin has been awarded the D.F.C., for his leadership of a Mosquito squadron. . .Capt. Robert Mayne, Irish rugby international forward capped six times, has been awarded a bar to his D.S.O. for distinguished services in Sicily.

The Give-Away

The prisoner was on trial for stealing ducks. His counsel addressed the jury at great length, pointing out firstly, that it had not been proved conclusively that the prosecutor had lost any ducks; secondly, that the ducks found in the prisoner's cottage were not those of the prosecutor: thirdly, that the prisoner had established an absolute alibi.

Just as the judge began to sum up the prisoner interposed and asked if he might say something.

As an indulgence, this was permitted.

"All I want to say," remarked the prisoner, "is that I wish I'd never seen the darned ducks."

(Juniors clear decks.)

President Tom Fluery's Belleville junior hockey executive will meet tonight prior to the O.H.A. group meeting of tomorrow. Junior hockey is to move into higher brackets this year, and that's the way it should be now that a full executive has been named.

Secretary Wally Berry announced today the club colors would once again be red and white, which brings back fond memories of the days when the late Dick Arnott pilotted junior hockey teams in Belleville and the "red and white Belleville colors" were recognized and respected from Cornwall to Toronto (inclusive). The days of Daw Whalen, Gunner Arnott, the Holway boys (Toots and Bouncer), Bill Green and many others who brought hockey fame and honors to the Quinte City.

Another innovation will be junior hockey programs that will carry the names and numbers of all players in the group, thus keeping the patrons of junior hockey acquainted with each player, particularly our own. Of course there's got to be ice at the local palace de sport before all of this is realized.

(Welcome, "John Silver".)

According to the Trenton R.C.A.F. station publication, "The Contact" Station Warrant Officer Silver was elected president of the Air Station's first junior O.H.A. team. "John" Silver, as he's commonly known, needs no introduction to the sport fans across Canada, having taken part in all branches of sports as an active player, as well as coach and director.

Incidentally Cpl. Mike Dziura, former New Haven professional hockey player in the old International League, will coach the junior "Flyers". Dziura is well known for his hockey ability in Belleville, having played here with Fl. "Buff" Horton's senior Trenton R.C.A.F. sextette last season and the popular "Mike" should prove a successful coach for the No. 8 Manning Pool juniors from Trenton.

(Collegiate rink.)

Students at the Belleville Collegiate aren't missing out on a skating rink this year. Long before the weatherman dropped the mercury last Saturday energetic hands at the Church Street seat of knowledge had erected sideboards for a hockey cushion about 170 feet by 65 feet, making an ideal rink for school skating a cushion for their intermural hockey. As soon as the mercury dropped this week the boys belabored the school hose and commenced flooding, but quick. Today they have a splendid foundation and another cold day will see the students enjoying skating on the campus before Christmas for the first time in history. The erection of the hockey cushion boards and flooding is done entirely by the students who take pride in the fact they are responsible for their own skating rink. Well, that is until a two-foot snow storm hits the town some night.

(Remember when—)

Winnipeg's Billy Marquart was removed as a contender for the lightweight boxing championship of the world four years ago tonight when he was knocked out in New York's Madison Square Gardens by Lew Jenkins, who later went on to knock out Lou Ambers to win the crown.

(A real contrast.)

The weatherman may be blowing cold, but Promoter Frank Tunney is blowing torridly hot with two main bouts at the Hume Arena Thursday night. He probably couldn't have picked a better, or more popular opponent, for Hannigan, the hard-boiled egg; than Earl "The Moose" McCready and so as to create more wear and tear on the arena ring Tunney is tossing Jerry Monahan against "Jack the Ripper" Reeder in a second main bout, which is equivalent to four men in a ring, or "Tunney's circus comes to town." And plus Bunny Dunlop to also help warming matters up.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 253

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Progressive party bridge holds forth in east and west and south and north. No better chance a hostess gets to pay off all her social debts.

Unless they come there for the booze, no neater agent could she choose to entertain the flock of pests who gather as invited guests.

As prizes she can thus dispose of gifts that once turned up her nose. And serve a fussy dish that she dare never feed her family.

If how the game of bridge is played is strange, the folks are not dismayed. No matter which one present beats, each gets an equal share of eats.

At a bridge party, the hostess is stuck for all she purveys and mistress of all she surveys. She is the judge of how the contest is to be conducted.

First comes the selection of partners. A number of ways can be used for that. Some methods are more popular than others. Something could be said against all of them.

The customary procedure is to prepare tally cards. Each tally card shows a table number and seat position. Each person selects a tally at random. Thus, players opposite each others start as partners.

With an equal number of each sex, tallies may be in two colors. Then, a male and female may start as partners. Or a pair of gents may start against a couple of gals.

Or, husband and wife may start as partners. Or, the deafest man with the most talkative dame. Or each player just flops into the nearest seat.

When four players at a table are not yet partnered, each draws a card. The two highest are partners; the two lowest are partners. In bridge, an ace is the highest card.

When a pair of bridge players are partners for the first time, they may get some of their signals crossed. However, some bridge signals are universally used by all experienced players.

Take a hand like this:

♠9 6 3 2
♥A K 6 5
♦8 4 2
♣J 8

The opening lead from that hand is the heart king. The lead of a king promises a hand that contains the ace or the queen in that suit.

If you see the queen in the dummy or your own hand, you know the leader has the ace. If you see the ace in the dummy or your own hand, you know the leader has the queen.

Otherwise, the leader must be a palooka.

"Spitfire", the warmly human the action naturally is taken by story of the man who designed and perfected Britain's deadly fighter plane, is a picture in which most of men.

Yet it is a "woman's picture" in every sense of the word, for as Mrs. R. J. Mitchell, wife of the hero of the story, said, "There's not a woman in Britain who doesn't look up to the sky when a Spitfire goes over, wondering whose husband, brother, son or sweetheart sits between those hurtling wings."

Leslie Howard plays Mitchell in "Spitfire" projecting the qualities of genius and simple humanity which marked the living man. David Niven was given leave from active duty with the R.A.F. to portray the daredevil test pilot who tried out the then-fantastic ships born on Mitchell's drawing board. Mrs. Mitchell herself is played by the English beauty, Rosamund John.

"Spitfire" is a Samuel Goldwyn presentation, and comes next to the Belle theatre.

A funny Leon Errol comedy "Gem-Jams" and a Disney colored novelette "Home Defence" precede the feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Texas to Tokyo"

Anne Gwynne, Noah Beery Jr., Martha O'Driscoll, Harry Davenport and other notables are in the large cast.

Tahiti Honey one of the season's most entertaining musical comedies is the second feature attraction now showing at the McCarthy theatre. AT THE CAPITOL

"Man From Tumbleweeds"

Bill Elliott, hard-riding, straight-shooting cowboy star, returns to the Capitol Theatre next in Columbia's latest Wild Bill Saunders' adventure, "The Man From Tumbleweeds". "Blondie For Victory"

"Blondie For Victory" latest in the Columbia comedy series based upon Chic Young's cartoon strip characters, opens next at the Capitol Theatre as the added hit. Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms again are featured as members of the Bumstead Family, with Stuart Erwin heading the top-flight supporting cast. Frank R. Strayer directed.

"Secret Service in Darkest Africa", starring Rod Cameron, Joan Marsh, Lionel Royce and Duncan Renaldo will bring local serial fans a gripping, timely chapter-drama of the part our secret service is playing in the war effort.

A funny cartoon completes the big family bill.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 15—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg has been chosen as the No. 1 football coach of the year by nearly everyone who does such picking. . . . So how about recognizing Steve Owen as the No. 2 man? . . . Spherical Steve started out with what one scout described as "the worst pro football team I ever saw." . . . In mid-season his Giants took a 56-7 drubbing from the Bears, which could have finished almost anybody. . . . Next Sunday those same Giants are going to try to ma'e it three in a row over the Washington Redskins in the playoff for the National Football League's eastern title. They'll probably do it, too, and then give the Bears a tussle in the championship play-off a week later. . . All that leaves no doubt that Owen can get the omst out of his men (an important factor in coaching) . . . and if that isn't enough, proably the neatest tricks of the year were his luring Mel Hein out of retirement and then springing soldier Hank Soar from Fort Devens, Mass., as a weekend player.

Soar-ing High

When the Giants were heading for Washington last week, Coach Owen stopped beside Hank Soar and asked: "How's your pass defence, Hank?" . . . "Wonderful, Steve. No M.P. can stop me," Soldier Soar replied as he reached into his pocket and displayed a three-day pass signed by his commanding officer. He was right too. Hank intercepted two of Sammy Baugh's passes.

Deanna Durbin Granted Divorce

Los Angeles, Dec. 15. (AP) — Deanna Durbin, singing screen star from Winnipeg, was granted a divorce Tuesday from Lieut. Vaughn Paul in proceedings, which took less than ten minutes.

Scarcely raising her voice above a whisper, she testified that constant criticism of her film and radio work by her husband had kept her in a constant state of nervous distraction.

"It all started about two years ago, when we were planning to move to our new home", Miss Durbin testified. "Vaughn went to a stag party; I asked him to come home early, as we had a lot of unpacking to do. But he didn't show up until noon the next day, and then he was completely incapable of helping me. He went immediately to bed, giving no explanation as to where he had been.

"Frequently when he came home, I would be listening to a symphony program. He would go immediately to the radio and turn it off. Quarrels would follow which left me nervous and upset".

Vaughn was not in court. A property agreement was reached some time ago. She is 21, Vaughn 28. They had been married 2 1-2 years.

'Added' to His Age To Get to War On Norse Merchantship

Brantford, Dec. 14 —(CP)— Ross Oliver is too young to join the armed forces or the merchant marine but he's already seen service with the latter.

Only 15 years old now, he returned home recently with a number of souvenirs from Bizerte, North Africa, which he got from an Arab.

Ross "added" to his age to get aboard a Norwegian merchantman last January in Toronto and from July until last month he was on convoy work. Now he's home waiting to "come of age" and re-join the merchant marine.

He gave an Arab some cigarettes for some souvenirs which included a German-Italian "Triumphal" medal for the Cairo conquest; a brass badge from a German soldier's cap, and a large drapery he picked up in a Bizerte home.

The son of Mrs. A. Oliver of Brantford, he has three brothers on active service.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons yesterday that complete post-war co-operation of Britain, Russia and the United States is assured, adding that "the recurrent threat of war can only be met if there is an international order firmer in strength and unity than an enemy could seek to challenge."

"We three can work together," said Mr. Eden. He didn't attempt to be more specific about a method of maintaining peace.

There probably are few people of the United Nations who don't hope earnestly that war's end will produce some sort of organization that will insure peace and generally promote the welfare of mankind.

Because so many millions are eager to see this ideal achieved, it's reasonable to believe success will be attained in due course. It's likely that partial success will be a comparatively early reward of our efforts.

I think we may save ourselves much disappointment, however, if we figure it will take a long time to reach the ideal.

There's a very sizeable school which feels that, looking at the matter from a coldly practical standpoint, the maintenance of peace will have to be left, at least for a considerable time, in the hands of the Big Three — Britain, the United States and Russia.

These are the dominant powers of the world. Standing together they represent a power which is invincible in the face of any combination of countries which could be devised. This trio could maintain peace — so long as it remained intact. And that arrangement wouldn't preclude the creation of an organization which would handle other matters of mutual concern to the members.

Hollywood and HERE

By HYE BOSSIN

There is a revival of religious film subjects in Hollywood, what with "Keys of the Kingdom," "Song of Bernadette," "Going My Way" and "The Robe." Cecil B. DeMille's famed "King of Kings" will be reissued with a modern prologue. DeMille, long hesitant about filming the life of the Blessed Virgin Mary, is making plans to produce "Queen of Queens" . . . Quebec City was the scene of an interesting and successful motion picture experiment the other week. "Le Ciel et Toi," a French-language version of "All This and Heaven Too," was presented before 25,000 people the first week and now a regular schedule of such features will be maintained. French dialogue is substituted for the original English in a fashion that guarantees synchronization of lip movements and dialogue. Much of Quebec has been seeing films made in France which express Old World ideas. The scheme was first undertaken to provide films for France when that country is freed.

On his way to sure stardom is 36-year-old Alexander Knox of London, Ontario, ex-newspaperman. Knox will play the title role in "Wilson," the story of the great American president of the last war, which is being made as an epic production. Still a Canadian citizen, Knox joins Walter Huston and Raymond Massey as Canadians who portray leading Americans on the screen. Huston and Raymond Massey are great favorites as Lincoln. Captain Jack Young, also a Canadian, played Roosevelt in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" . . . Walter Pidgeon grew a beard for "Madame Curie" and the studio's publicity men sent out quite a few candid photos. Now they want them back because some executive decided that they would detract from Pidgeon's sex appeal.

Barbara Stanwyck will be the first star to appear in a post-war film for the Chinese people, one of an international series. . . . Greer Garson, who won the Academy Award last year for "Mrs. Miniver," is expected to win it again for "Madame Curie." . . . A film made in France years ago, "Marie Chapdelaine," is having its Hollywood premiere this week. It would be interesting to see the Canadian classic. . . . Dick Powell ordered a cup of coffee in a cafe and remarked to the waitress who delivered it that "it looks like rain." "I know," replied the waitress, "but that's all the coffee we're allowed to put in!" . . . Mischa Auer used his stand-in to good—or bad—advantage the other day. Mischa was in bed with the flu and sneaked out to finish a scene, leaving his stand-in —or lie-in—to keep the bed warm. He was back before the nurse got wise . . . It looks like the real thing between Capt. Clark Gable and Virginia Bruce.

We know you would like to give them something, but you are probably in your nice warm bed when they call at your place these freezing cold mornings.

Drop it in here. We will hand them the money and the list of names.

CHAPTER 18

It was not until late that night that Stephen could bring himself to show the letter to Edith and tell her of his interview at the bank. Edith took his haggard face in her two hands and looked at it lovingly for a long time; and then she pressed a kiss on each of his burning eyes. She cradled his head on her bosom and soothed him as though he were a little child.

"Don't think of it any more, Stephen, my darling. And don't worry about money. I knew we should need some and I've arranged to sell the bonds mother left me. A thousand dollars will last us a long time."

"But—Edith!" he protested. "That is your own little nest-egg. We agreed never to touch it—"

"There is no 'mine' or 'thine' in family life, Stephen, my dear. We need the money and that's all there is to it."

After a pause, Edith said: "Stephen, there's something I've been meaning to speak to you about. We ought to move. It isn't only us the curiosity-seekers flock here to see; it's the house in which the murder was done, as much as anything. Well, let them have the house—we'll find another."

"Yes, we ought to move," agreed Stephen hoarsely.

The following day they began house-hunting. They chose a quiet suburb of Bradbury, on the far side of that sprawling city from that on which Lakelawn was situated. In the afternoon they found a medium-sized house with a pleasant garden which seemed reasonably suited to their requirements. They returned to the agent from whom they had obtained the keys and enquired about the rent. It was higher than their present rent but they had expected that.

"I think we'll take it," said Edith after a consultation with her husband.

"You are very wise, madam," said the agent with professional enthusiasm. "It's a good solid residence, built at a time when houses were built, not thrown together and held up by the wallpaper. Thoroughly modernized, too, with every convenience you could reasonably ask for. And the neighborhood is good. I live in it myself. Up-to-date stores. A fine park. Good schools. You didn't say whether you have a family, Mr. — Mr."

The agent glanced at Stephen's card and his face changed. His gaze travelled from the card to Stephen and from Stephen to Edith. There was an uncomfortable pause.

"I—er—will you excuse me for a moment?"

He was gone for a few minutes, and when he returned he was frowning and shaking his head.

"This is very unfortunate, very unfortunate indeed. I must apologize, Mr. Osborne;; a stupid blunder has been made. My assistant—careless of him, incredibly careless—I'm afraid he sent you on a fool's errand. That particular house was taken only the other day."

"But the rent sign is still up."

"No doubt, sir. Probably my workman has not found time to take it down. You know what these fellows are."

"I see."

"Stephen bit his lip and looked at Edith.

"There is a card in your window advertising a house in Eden Road which might suit us," she said.

"Eden Road . . . Let me see. Oh, that! That house is in rather bad repair. And the landlord positively refuses to do anything to it. You'd have to spend hundreds on it to make it decently habitable." The agent rubbed his chin doubtfully. "As a matter of fact, I don't think there's a house on my books that would suit you."

Suddenly the truth dawned upon Stephen.

"What you really mean is that you won't rent me a house because I'm involved in a murder investigation."

"You put it bluntly, Mr. Osborne. I hesitated to say so, but that is roughly the position. It isn't me. I'm sure I have nothing against you, nothing whatever. It's the owners of the properties. They wouldn't allow it. People talk, you know."

"If—if we changed our name?"

"It wouldn't work, Mr. Osborne. They'd find out soon enough who you were. They'd say"—he coughed apologetically—"they'd say there must be something in all these stories or you wouldn't change your name, if you see what I mean. If you'll allow me to advise you, you'll hold on where you are."

* *

A conference of the law was under way. The discussion went in this wise:

"—I still think Stephen Osborne did it. He had lost his job and was desperate when she refused to help him. He owed her a grudge for having done him out of his inheritance all those years. He claims to have been in the garden at the time of the murder but we have only his word for it; no one saw him there. Besides, it's only a step from the garden to the living room through the French windows and he could have done it in a matter of seconds—"

"Let's not overlook the point that there was oil on the scarf. It seems to me that that is a feature of the case to which none of us had paid sufficient attention. It's agreed, more or less, that the oil must have got on the scarf from Michael's hands, but I think we've been too quick to accept this explanation. No normal lad is going to absent-mindedly wipe his oily hands on an expensive silk scarf. I think this is what happened: coming in from the shed where he kept his old car, 'Mike' looked in through the open door of the living-room and saw his aunt sitting there with her back to him. At the same time he noticed the scarf lying in the hall. At his age, a boy is keen to be a man. 'Mike' had heard his aunt abusing his father at lunch and threatening to cut him out of her will. In some twisted way he must have felt that to avenge the insults and prevent her from disinheriting his father her death would be a justifiable, even manly, action. He picked up the scarf and—"

"We mustn't lose sight of the fact that the dead woman would have been out of the house an hour and a half before the time of the murder had not Edith Osborne persuaded her to stay until four. To my mind, that's significant. She hated the old woman, who had been the cause of a terrible scene. It would be natural to want to be rid of her as soon as possible. And yet, she coaxed her to remain a little longer. Why? Edith Osborne is a strong-minded woman and devoted to her family. There's probably nothing she wouldn't do for the sake of her husband and the children—"

"Talking about strong-minded women, what about Hannah, the maid? She, too, hated the dead woman;; and not even the mother is more devoted to the family than she. Murder would readily occur to a lady like Edith Osborne, but Hannah Gale is of the type that goes in for direct action, the type that thinks with its hands. A whole-hogger, utterly devoted to her employers, utterly ruthless in her hatred of anyone who would harm them—"

The conference of the Osborne case investigators continued with this discussion of suspects:

"It it's a ruthless type we're looking for, let's consider Ann. There's a cold-blooded young woman, if you like. Not a nerve in her body. Reading Shakespeare when the murder was committed, if you swallow her story—I can't."

"What about young Fleming? Oh I know he isn't the most likely suspect, but he's got to be considered. The silk scarf was in his hands at three o'clock. He may be lying about what he did with it. He's very much is love with the oldest girl and young men in love don't stop to think. He was in the garden alone half-an-hour before the murder was discovered. He could have entered through the windows and killed the old woman. Motive? Well, hearing from Dorothy that the old woman was disinheritting her father—knowing that his parents would object to their only son marrying a penniless girl—"

"If we're considering Fleming, let's not forget the younger children. Doctor Denham says that no particular strength was exerted in the commission of the crime. A child could have done it. I'm told young Peter recently made a murderous attack on another boy at school—"

"It's my opinion that we ought to concentrate our attention on Simon Osborne. He's the likeliest of the lot. A drunken old bachelor with no moral code and not the ghost of a conscience, he stood to gain considerably by the old woman's death and he'd think no more of it than of blowing foam off a glass of beer. He sponged shamelessly on his cousin when Stephen was poor; he could look forward to endless easy pickings if the timely death of Octavia made Stephen rich. His alibi for the time of the murder is weak. I wouldn't mind betting that Simon is our man!"

The ashtrays were overflowing with spent matches, ash and cigarette and cigar stubs. The atmosphere was hazy with smoke. Down both sides of a long table in the Sheriff's office five men were seated in the informal postures of those who have been sitting in talk on hard seats until the sittable portions of their anatomies are tired and sore. They were weary of the discussion, which had gone on for hours "about it and about, but evermore came out at the same door wherein I went." The quintet were Inspector Burrows, Sergeant Feathers, as assistant district attorney, Dr. Heffner, the coroner and the sheriff who was stiffling a yawn.

Sheriff Black rose.

"Gentlemen," he said, "we're getting nowhere fast. This is the twentieth of our conferences on the Osborne case and we are simply going over the old ground. None of us has a fresh idea. There isn't an avenue of speculation that hasn't been explored time and again. The fact that we can make out a reasonable case against any individual member of the family is nullified by the fact that we can make out as good a case against every member of the family. We can't put 'em all on trial nor can we settle it by drawing a name out of a hat.

"Gentlemen, this is the last conference on the Osborne case that we shall hold. Unless further evidence comes to light, the case goes into the 'unsolved' file."

In this decision the Sheriff and District Attorney's office were following rather belatedly on the heels of the press. For lack of fresh material, the newspapers had dropped the case a number of weeks before. The public were tired of it. People were beginning to forget who the Osbornes were. In the village of Lakedawn they still remembered and goggled at the Osbornes every time they went out; but villages have long memories for their own scandals. To the world at large, the Osbornes were becoming just another family.

Edith Osborne was humming to herself as she came downstairs early one morning in November. She felt more cheerful than she had done since the fateful day in August when Octavia was murdered. Life was becoming bearable again now that they were no longer living it in the full glare of publicity. Now that they were no longer stared at and pointed out wherever they went, the children were beginning to forget, to laugh and be happy, to take up the normal pursuits of healthy young people.

Michael, Peter and Marjory were at new schools and finding that they were no longer regarded as freaks for having had an aunt who was murdered. Ann was trying to write a novel, appearing at meals with her spectacles askew and ink all over her fingers. Dorothy and Ted Fleming were friends again.

Oh, life was good! Not as sweet as before—Edith knew that the old feeling of peace and security in the bosom of her family was gone, never to return—but good, nevertheless. The only fly in the ointment was Stephen. Poor Stephen!

Stephen did not forget. He hardly ever went out. Edith could not remember when she had last seen him smile. His hair was whitening, he was growing old before her eyes. Something must be done about it.

Edith went out on the front steps and brought in the morning newspaper. She glanced at the front page. Suddenly she put a hand to her head and uttered a bitter cry. "Not again! Oh, they can't start it all over again—"

She was staring at an advertisement which occupied almost half the page:

THE FAMILY THAT CANNOT FORGET!
Once Happy, Now Plunged in Gloom by Haunting Memory of Murdered Aunt

In the Sunday World next week will be told for the first time the inside story of the Osbornes, the tragic family which figures in the most engrossing unsolved mystery of recent years. An absorbing human narrative of normal, everyday family life, shattered forever by a cruel and sudden death which brought the father a fortune but destroyed the happiness of his loved ones. This story, told by an intimate friend and illustrated by exclusive pictures, will touch the hearts of all who read it.

Exclusive in the Sunday World.

"They can't! They can't do it! That's over! They can't start it all again."

Hannah came into the hall and stared at her employer's white, strained face. "What is it, Ma'am? Is anything wrong?"

Edith tore out the page and folded it. "Don't ask any questions, Hannah. I've got to go to New York at once. I'll be back tonight. I know I can rely on you to see to things while I'm gone."

"Of course, Ma'am".

During the journey from Lakelawn to New York, Edith's mind kept saying: They can't do it. They can't start it all over again. Why won't they let people forget us? There can't be any news in a story that's been told so often. They've squeezed it dry.

The Sunday World building was a tall white structure facing the Hudson River. In the entrance hall a private policeman greeted Mrs. Osborne and she asked to see the editor. "Fill in this form, lady, and I'll send it up".

Edith wrote her name on the form but left blank the space provided for an explanation of the nature of her business. The officer summoned a boy, who took the slip of paper upstairs. It seemed hours before the boy came back. Looking at the clock, Edith was startled to discover that only five minutes had elapsed. The boy said something to the officer and handed him the form Edith had filled in. The man approached her, twisting the paper in his thick fingers.

"Sorry, lady, but the editor is engaged".

Edith took the paper from him and wrote: from Lakelawn under her name. "Will you be kind enough to send it up again?" she asked.

The officer glanced at what she had written and his eyebrows rose. "Certainly, lady," he said. "Boy!"

Before long the messenger was back. This time he walked up to Edith, clicked his heels, and said: "Mr. Snaith will see you, lady. Please follow me".

Mr. Snaith was a dapper little man of about thirty-five. He had sleek hair, sharp features and piercing eyes. When Edith entered, he bobbed up to shake hands with her and bobbed down again all in one motion.

"Good day, Mrs. Osborne. Won't you sit down? Now, what can I do for you?"

Edith took the advertisement from her handbag and passed it across the desk to him.

"I came about this".

Mr. Snaith raised his eyebrows. "Yes?"

"You should not print that story".

"No? But I'm afraid we must. We've advertised it all over. Our readers will be looking for it".

"If you print it", said Edith unsteadily. "I shall sue you for libel".

"I don't think you will, Mrs. Osborne. We are very careful, you know. Our attorneys have been over every word, and they assure us that the story is free from libel. Would you care to see it? I have a proof here".

"WASTE NOT..."

It is illegal to throw away paper in Great Britain.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was in the living room pushing crooked things straight and straight things crooked, saying to pop, My, what a queer unaccustomed feeling.

I dont feel anything unusual, pop said, and ma said, I mean I have litterly nothing to wear, and let for the first time in my life the fact comes as a relief instead of a clamity.

Nothing to wear for Peet sake? pop said. The last time my dazzled eyes lighted on your wardrobe I saw row after row of things to wear, representing all the colors of the rainbow and all the prices of the checkbook, he said.

Well of course you're right theoretically, but the point is, there's not an outfit in that wardrobe that hasn't been viewed publicly at least a dozen times by every woman I know, ma said. And that's the point. In normal peace times such a condition of clothes would be almost unbearableand practically unforgiveable, and I'd be actually duty bound to stock up on new clothes to put an end to the old regrain of there she goes in that thing again. But in the emergency of war time it's a real badge of honor to appear in twice told gowns. It proves openly that you are discouraging inflation, and at the same time it suggests that you are buying war bonds. So that's the topsy tervy aresult, William, nothing but old clothes and proud of it, ma said.

I'll drink to that, pop said, and ma said, You can imagine me turning up my nose at Hookbinders pre-inventory sale, although they're practically giving away the most remarkable outfits at a fraction more than their cost. It was no effort at all to limit myself to 2 new outfits instead of the normal 3 or four, she said.

It's a women's world and you're a representative woman, allow me to congratulate you, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page and blew smoke over.

Heavy profit taking sales later reduced the top gain. Reports of a similar distribution by Park and Tilford brought a rush of buying in that stock and a rise of better than 6 points.

Picton News

$25 Bounty

Picton, Dec. 15—Prince Edward County Council —will pay a reward of $25 for any wolf shot in the county, it was decided at the opening of the December session yesterday. There has been a heavy loss of sheep by these animals, and a plea for such a bounty was made by Reeve Milton Brooks of Athol and Reeve W. O. Striker of South Marysburgh. Both the townships represented by these reeves, have offered $25 rewards, thus anyone shooting a wolf in Prince Edward is eligible for the $50 offered by township and county and $25 by the province for a total of $75.

In considering the Prince Edward County Old People's Home report, it was decided to purchase a team of horses and a wagon. It was pointed out that the present horses and wagons were a poor advertisement for the Home. The team will be a matched pair and will be available for use by county organizations requiring such in parades or other show purposes.

Flying Officer Tupper of Saskatoon, Sask., captain of a Royal Air Force Liberator, found his plane in unusual disorder during a recent flight in the Mediterranean war zone. During operations, one of the bomb-doors was torn off and embedded itself in the leading edge of the port tail unit. Tupper continued to fly his aircraft a distance of 250 miles and landed safely.

Russo-Jap War May Be Coming Says Prisoner

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Chinese Forces in Northern Hunan Province, Dec. 12 — (Delayed) — (AP) — A little Japanese prisoner of war, who used to be a farm hand near Osaka, blandly told visiting Allied military attaches and correspondents today that Japan was rushing preparations in Manchuria and "the final result will be war with Russia."

The prisoner" Masakusu Funabashi, 25, asserted that a conflict with the Soviet Union was regarded as a foregone conclusion by his old comrades, friends and relatives.

As he spoke Japanese planes drummed in the distance through Hunan's sunny haze, clearly audible to the group of questioners clustered handily near the mouth of a hillside air raid shelter. Included in the party were Russian, British, Fighting French and American military representatives who are touring the Hunan front with correspondents.

Funabashi was a corporal in the 217th Infantry Regiment, 34th Division, before the Chinese captured him two months ago near Hsinkien in Kiangsi province.

Among the interrogators was Lt.-Col. P. P. Voronin, assistant military attache of the Russian Embassy in Chungking.

Germans Forced To Abandon Uljan Opposite Zara

London, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Mounting Allied air assaults along the Yugoslav Adriatic coast have forced the Germans to abandon Uljan Island opposite Zara, and played a big role in a heavy defeat inflicted on the invaders by Yugoslav ground forces near Zara, headquarters of Marshal Josip Drog (Tito) announced today.

Tito's communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio also declared that Moslems — presumably recruits from scattered tribes in Eastern Yugoslavia — had joined his Partisans, with the Moslem 16th Brigade capturing a town in Eastern Bosnia and forcing the Nazis to retreat.

The Berlin radio reported an Allied seaborne excursion against Pag Island, north of Uljan Island. It declared coastal batteries on Pag had sunk a fully-manned Allied landing boat, and turned away other boats "trying to reach the island."

If true, this German account meant the Allies had made a bold penetration of the outer screen of numerous islands to reach Pag, which lies within the sheltered approach to Fiume naval base.

Later a Budapest broadcast said German and Croat troops had landed on Pag, and occupied the town of the same name.

The Partisan communique gave full credit to Allied aerial assistance in the Yugoslav warfare, which is rising to a new pitch.

"In Dalmatia, units of the National Army of Liberation helped by Allied air forces heavily defeated German troops near Zara," it declared. "The Germans had heavy losses in men and material.

"Also thanks to the Allied air forces, German forces have had to evacuate the island of Uljan opposite Zara."

50 TO 100 PERSONS KILLED IN U. S. TRAIN WRECK

Two Coast Line Trains Pile Up In North Carolina

North-Bound Train Hits Derailed Cars Of Train on Way To Florida

BROKEN RAIL BLAMED

Lumberton, N.C., Dec. 16. (AP) Between 50 and 100 persons were killed and more than 100 injured in the wrecks of two crowded streamliner passenger trains along an icebound stretch of the Atlantic Coast line in southeastern North Carolina early today.

Rescuers batled over snow and ice-coated highways to bring survivors of the double smashup to hospitals at Lumberton and Fayetteville.

One morgue at at Red Springs had received 50 bodies by noon but no identifications had been made. Mrs. W. F. Barham ,owner of the establishment, said other bodies were expected.

An eye-witness said three coaches of the Florida-bound Tamiami West Coast Champion were derailed and a few moments later the speeding New York-bound Tamiami East Coast Champion slashed through the wreckage scattered over a double track.

Shattered Like Boxes.

Coaches were shattered "like match boxes", said the witness, Publisher William Wood of The Small Homes Guide Magazine, who was en route to Tampa, Fla.

A railroad spokesman at Rocky Mount said about 75 or more persons were killed on the 'northbound train and at least one killed on the southbound streamliner.

Pre-holiday travellers, many of them soldiers headed home for Christmas, crowded the coaches of both trains.

The Red Cross went into action swiftly, rushing nurses and aid to the scene.

Snow was falling and temperatures were near zero. The wreckage was so twisted acetylene torches had to be used to remove both injured ano dead from the shattered coaches. Merchants in nearby towns stripped their stocks of blankets to protect the survivors.

C. G. Sibley of Wilmington, a vice president of the line, said he believed the wreck was caused by a broken rail.

The streamliner Tamiami West Coast Champion, southbound from New York to Tampa, Fla., was partially derailed at about 1 a.m. E.D.T.

A few minutes later the Tamiami East Coast Champion, bound from Miami to New York, plowed through the wreckage which had spilled over on the parallel double track.

Meagre reports were made to the Lumberton newspaper, the Robesonian, by witnesses who talked to survivors.

Highways to the scene were sheathed in snow and ice and one Atlantic coast line station said lines of communication were down.

First reports said the three last coaches on the southbound train were derailed, precipitating the accident. Passengers in the front coaches said they did not even know there had been an accident until the northbound train crashed into the derailed cars.

The engine of the northbound train remained on the track as it plowed through the derailed cars.

Twenty-five injured were packed into two Lumberton hospitals at 9 a.m.

Eyewitness Account.

Florence, S.C. —(AP)— A passenger on one of the two Atlantic Coast Line express trains smashed together at Buie, N.C., today told how an expectant mother with both legs mangled held up bravely until aid arrived and how a Navy captain did heroic rescue work.

"I was a passenger on the Tamiami West Coast Champion southbound to Tampa, Fla., which derailed at about 1:10 a.m.," said William Wood, publisher of Small Homes Guide magazine, unhurt in the wreck.

"Capt. P. W. Allen of the Navy and I took charge of helping the injured and trying to reach the dead. We got blankets from the Pullman cars and hot coffee and whisky from the diner, then made fires on the snow-covered ground.

"Captain Allen did some heroic work in that smashed wreckage. Through State Highway Patrol radio we reached Robert Samet at Lumberton, who brought acetylene torches used to cut out the dead."

Luftwaffe Praises Accuracy of U.S. Airforce Bombing

Washington, Dec. 16 — (AP) — The German air force has congratulated Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker of the United States 8th Air Force on the accuracy of his force's bombings.

The compliment was revealed yesterday by Wellwood E. Beall of the Boeing Aircraft Company, who said the Luftwaffe had sent Eaker a radio message congratulating the American bombers on their avoidance of a hospital during the attack on Regensburg.

Airplane factories that were the target in the attack occupied three parts of a rectangle, the fourth corner being a hospital. So accurate was the bombing, said Beall, that the factories were destroyed but the hospital was undamaged. The Luftwaffe, in its message thanking Eaker, expressed its inability to understand how such accuracy was achieved.

"Eaker's mighty proud of that," Beall said.

Eisenhower Says War Entering 'Crucial Phase'

Algiers, Dec. 16 — (AP) — The Allied Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean area, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in his first message to his troops since his return from the Allied military conferences at Cairo, told them today that "The war now is entering into its crucial phase."

The message to Allied forces in Italy follows:—

"The past year has been a very hard one for us, but we have obtained very good results.

"The war is now entering into its crucial phase.

"I ask each soldier to do his duty to his utmost."

Gen. Eisenhower attended the Cairo military conferences at which observers believe final plans were laid for all-out offensives against Germany and Japan. He also accompanied President Roosevelt on his subsequent visits to ancient Carthage and Malta.

At Carthage, the President gave Gen. Eisenhower a detailed report on Allied strategy.

CHURCHILL DOWN WITH PNEUMONIA IN MIDDLE EAST

'General Condition Is As Satisfactory As Can Be Expected' Says Bulletin

SPECIALISTS ATTEND

By ROGER GREENE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 16 —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill, who marked his 69th birthday while attending the three-power Teheran conference, is suffering a "patch of pneumonia in the left lung," Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the hushed House of Commons today.

Mr. Attlee indicated that Mr. Churchill now is somewhere in the Middle East. A bulletin issued at 10 Downing St., Mr. Churchill's official residence, which gave the first intimation of the Prime Minister's illness, said:—

"His general condition is as satisfactory as can be expected."

A later announcement that daily bulletins on his condition will be issued might be taken as an indication of the gravity of his illness.

Supplies of the new drug—penicillin—were understood to be available if needed.

That is the second attack of pneumonia suffered by Mr. Churchill in less than a year.

Mr. Churchill fell ill with a cold last January just after his Casablanca conference with President Roosevelt, and Feb. 19 it was announced that he was confined to bed with acute catarrh of the upper respiratory passages. A later bulletin disclosed that pneumonia had developed.

The Prime Minister was reported suffering from a heavy cold with a temperature of more than 100 when he sailed from Britain to attend the historic conferences with President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, President Chiang Kai-Shek and President Inonu of Turkey.

On his arrival in Cairo, the cold became worse and the Prime Minister had lost his voice, but insisted on continuing his arduous labors.

Two days ago, Foreign Secretary Eden told Commons he had left Mr. Churchill "in the sphere where he now is" in good health though perhaps a little tired.

Mr. Eden also commented that he had never seen even the hardworking Mr. Churchill exert himself so indefatigably day and night as at the Teheran and Cairo conferences where he helped lay the plans for a climactic assault on Germany and Japan. The last of these conferences was with Inonu Dec. 4, 5 and 6.

In today's announcement, Mr. Attlee told Commons, "the House will be sorry to learn of the Prime Minister's indisposition. I am sure it will be the desire of all of us that we should send best wishes to him for a complete speedy recovery."

German Home Front Shows No Sign Of Cracking As It Did in 1918

By DWIGHT L. PITKIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 16 — (AP) — Germany capitulated after 52 months of fighting in the First Great War, mainly because her home front cracked.

Today, a generation later, marks the 52-month period of the Second Great War. It has numerous parallels of the events that led to Imperial Germany accepting an armistice in November, 1918.

There is also this big contrast: Germany's home front shows no real signs of breaking up, even though her armies are on the strategic defensive just as they were in 1918.

Germany's obvious strategy is to keep her home front regimented, while her armies fight delaying actions and attempt to wear down the United Nations into a compromise peace.

The Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference has crushed definitely any hopes of Nazi leaders that a peace offensive might bring about an armistice that would save the German military machine for another try at world conquest.

Now it is war to the death. The grim tragedy must be played thru the final act, unless—

Germany's home front again breaks, this time under a sustained aerial offensive that has laid waste the great port of Hamburg and is methodically levelling Berlin.

The punishing aerial blows, though aimed primarily at destroying industrial Germany's capacity to support her military forces, rather than at breaking civilian morale, already may have given the German home front greater provocation to fold up than did the Allied naval blockade of 1918.

What makes the situation worse for Germany this time is that Russia, an awkward giant, which was knocked out in the last war after vitally contributing to the Allied victory, now has a streamlined fighting machine, that has fought the Germans to a standstill.

Commander and Officer Of Launch Flotilla Are Awarded D.S.C.

London, Dec. 16. (CP Cable)—The Admiralty disclosed today that a flotilla of British motor launches commanedd by Lt.-Cmdr. G. W. Stead of Vancouver were the first Royal Navy ships ot enter Catania Harbor during the Sicilian invasion last summer.

The officer, member of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, also led his ships in paving the way for the bloody Salerno landings in Western Italy last September by sweeping the bay of mines.

His flotilla swept the sea from Salerno to Naples and its ships were the first to enter Naples when that port was captured from the Germans.

Stead's ships also were the first to enter Sfax during the North African campaign earlier this year.

Stead and another officer of the flotilla have been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

BOARD TO ALLOW HIGHER PRICE FOR DOMESTIC COAL

Ilsley Hopes Pressure Will Not be Exerted to Make Others

NO SUBSIDIZING

Ottawa, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Regret that it has been necessary to permit a higher price for domestic coal and the hope that pressure will not be exerted to make additional increases were voiced by Finance Minister Ilsley in announcing Wednesday the government's decision to authorize an increase in the price of coal produced in Nova Scotia mines.

The National War Labor Board recently authorized wage increases for Nova Scotia miners, and Mr. Ilsley said the Board had been directed to determine the amount of increase necessary to meet the higher wage scale.

After wage increases were granted coal miners in Alberta and British Columbia a similar decision was reached.

(In granting wage increases of $1 a day to employees of three major Nova Scotia mines, the National War Labor Board said its decision that the companies had estimated it would cost them $15,460,225 a year—equal to $3.44 a ton on the basis of 1942 production —to meet the miners' demands for increases of $1.25 a day.)

No Subsidy to Meet Wage Increases

(The Board also said it was granting the increase in Nova Scotia following the decision of a Royal Commission which awarded western miners who asked for an increase of $2 a day a raise of $1.)

The Minister said the government has regarded as "fundamental" its policy of refusing subsidies to meet wage increases. It had also reached the conclusion that it would be inadvisable to direct a price increase on imported coal equal to the recent price increases in the United States.

No user of Canadian coal would be in any way benefited by having the price of anthracite coal increased—and anthracite is the only imported coal whose price is really in question.

To subsidize wage increases from the public treasury "would provide too easy a way of acceding to demands for higher wages" and invite further severe pressures for upwards adjustments in wage rates.

Mr. Ilsley said the decision to increase the price of Nova Scotia coal was based on the principle that increases in the cost of essential imports should be offset by the payment of subsidies or remission of duties and taxes wherever that is necessary to preserve the price ceilings.

Second Victim Of Asphyxiation In Tourist Cabin

Hamilton, Dec. 16 (CP)—Eighteen-year-old Alice Coe died in hospital here, second victim of asphyxiation in a tourist cabin four miles east of Hamilton.

Thomas Shellard, 30, died in hospital late yesterday.

The two were discovered in an unconscious condition yesterday by Harry L. Denman, Shellard's employer. It was believed the girl had gone to call Shellard and was overcome by the fumes from a gas heater.

Police said Shellard had lived in the cabin for about a year.

Miss Coe came to Hamilton from Haileybury, Ont., and had been employed here as a maid and a waitress. Shellard was born at Canfield, Ont.

NAZIS BURN, SACK EVERY VILLAGE IN THEIR PATH

Partisan Lines Give Way Under Constant Pressure of Germans

TWO SHIPS SUNK

London, Dec. 16 — (AP) — The Yugoslav Partisan lines have given way under the crushing pressure of constantly reinforced German troops in Croatia and the advancing Nazis are burning and sacking every village in their path, the headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Tito's war bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said the German breakthrough was achieved by five columns of Nazis and Ustachis (Croat Puppet Storm Troopers) in the Kordan and Banija districts southwest of Zagreb.

In the neighboring Lika district, Tito said the Yugoslavs beat off attacks by German and Chetnik (Serb guerilla) forces, destroying one Nazi column between Donji and the town of Bihac, across the border in Western Bosnia.

Partisans operating in Eastern Bosnia between Rogatica and Sokolovic killed 70 of the enemy. Near Visegrad, 40 miles east of Sarajevo, Tito's men wiped out a regiment of German Alpine troops, the communique said.

The Partisans said they sank two enemy ships in the Adriatic off Dalmatia, and damaged three others. In Slovenia, Partisan units stormed the town of Mali Sladnik, destroyed the German garrison and captured war material, Tito reported.

To Offer Prayers For Recovery Of Churchill

Hamilton, Dec. 16 —(CP)—Prayers for the recovery of Prime Minister Churchill will be offered in churches of all denominations here Sunday, it was announced today.

(Mr. Churchill is confined to bed with an attack of pneumonia, it was announced in London today. He is believed still to be somewhere in the Middle East, following recent conferences at Cairo and Teheran.)

Rt. Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, Anglican Bishop of Niagara, and Most Rev. J. F. Ryan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Hamilton, have asked members of their clergy to offer special prayers and church councils have agreed to take similar action, church officials said.

THANKS TO 'PHONE WORKERS

Toronto, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Ten Ontario telephone workers at a dinner last night received commandery votes of thanks from the St. John Ambulance Association for valuable assistance in furthering first-aid principles and training. Those honored included W. Draper, Sault Ste. Marie and H. D. Paulucci, Chatham.

SMUGGLERS ESCAPE

VATUTIN'S ARMY TAKES OFFENSIVE, DRIVES HUNS BACK

View Gains Ground German Forces Have Shot Their Bolt In Vain

REDS EXPAND LINES

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Dec. 16 — (AP) — Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian Army has gone over to the offensive for the second time this week in the battle of the Kiev Bulge and in a series of swift counter-attacks has driven the Germans from several strong points along the Teterev River salient, 55 miles west of the Ukrainian capital.

Marshal Fritz von Mannstein's powerful armored divisions were unable to withstand the concentrated artillery fire from the Russian positions, field dispatches said.

In one sector the Nazis attacked again and again with more than 100 tanks and at least 4,000 men, but they wilted each time in the face of the accurate Soviet gunfire.

While the outcome of the tense, see-saw tank and gun battle still was undecided, the fact that Vatutin's line had held firm against the enemy's sustained frontal assaults suggested that the Germans had shot their bolt, at least for the time being, in their drive to recapture Kiev.

South of the Ukrainian capital, Red army forces under Gen. Ivan S. Konev were reported rapidly expanding their positions west of the Dnieper river following the joining of the Kremenchug and McMherkasy bridgeheads yesterday.

That operation gave the Russians complete control of the west bank for a 6-mile stretch between the two cities, and Konev was quick to exploit his victory. His troops stormed into the railway town of Byelozere, five miles northeast of Emsla, placing that important rail junction within easy artillery range of Soviet guns.

(Actually the Russians now are in control of a 250-mile stretch along the Dnieper's west bank, from Cherkasy south to Nikopol. The Germans hold only stretches from the mouth of the river to Nikopol, from Cherkasy to south of Kiev and in White Russia from Vitebsk to Zhlobin.)

Konev also tightened his grip around Kirovograd, southwest of Kremenchug in fierce fighting. Sixteen smaller towns and villages fell to advancing Red army troops in the Kremenchug-Cherkasy sector, the Soviet war bulletin said.

(Berlin broadcasts said the Russians had launched two new offensives in the far north. South of Nevel, where the Red army was within 60 miles of the Latvian border, the German lines were breached in several places, Berlin said.

(The second drive was aimed at Zhlobin, southern White Russia, the Germans asserted. Moscow made no mention of activity in these sectors.)

Pump Meals Into Wounded Stomachs Red Doctors' Success in New Method

New York, Dec. 16 — (AP) — Russia's daring military surgeons are feeding a big meal directly into wounded abdomens of their soldiers, with dramatic results. The method is described in the first issue of the American Review of Soviet Medicine, a new publication.

The Russians pump the meal directly into an intestine and call it "feeding abdominal wounds." The food is pumped even into a perforated intestine after it has been closed surgically.

The meal is a whopper. The menu is nearly one pint of milk, two eggs, a cube of butter nearly four inches on a side, nearly two ounces of sugar, a little salt and from 50 to 70 cubic centimetres of distilled alcohol.

The alcohol is a real shot, amounting to from 1/50th to 3/20ths of a pint.

P. A. Panikov describes the feeding which was originated by Spasokukotski.

"The satisfactory effects of the Spasokukotski method of feeding were sometimes evident on the operation table itself," Panikov writes. "Frequently we observed the color return to the cheeks, lips become red and warm to the touch. In the majority of cases, the patients fell asleep at the end of the operation. The pulse became rhythmic, the beat much clearer and the breathing deep and regular.

"The injured were able to go through the post-operative period with much less pain. From the third to the fifth day the patient showed a desire to eat."

30 Nazi Bombers Fly Low and Fast Over Supply Port

Raiders After Convoy Which Arrived 2 Days Before Attack, Nearly Unloaded

1,000 CASUALTIES

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 16 — (AP) — Seventeen United Nations merchant ships were sunk by German bombers in the Allied port at Bari, Italy, Dec. 2. Approximately 1,000 persons were killed or injured.

War Secretafy Henry Stimson disclosed casualty details and the loss of the ships at a press conference today after other sources of unquestionable authority had put the total number of vessels lost at 17, approximately 50 per cent. of the total amount of shipping in Bari Harbor at the time. Five of the ships destroyed were American.

In official quarters here there was no disposition to deny that the blow was a serious one, reducing British army supplies for two or three days.

Bulk of Cargoes Safe

"Fortunately, most of the cargo had been discharged prior to the attack and the loss of supplies was not great," Stimson said.

About 30 German bombers participated in the raid. Stimson said much of the damage resulted when two ammunition ships were hit and exploded, spreading fires and destruction over the harbor.

The wave of German bombers came over the Bari area just at dawn, flying low and very fast. They caught the city's defences entirely by surprise, as frequently happens in an air attack made at dangerously low levels.

The raiders were not interested in port installations as much as in the ships in harbor. A convoy apparently had arrived only a day or so before and the work of unloading ships had been going forward at top speed. Thus, some of the vessels lost were completely empty, others had discharged portions of their cargoes.

Thirty Ships in Harbor

In all, there were about 30 big merchant ships in harbor.

The attack lasted only a few minutes. When it was over, harbor shipping was a shambles and 17 merchant vessels lay useless on the bottom of Bari harbor.

The raid, so far as could be established here, did not have any extremely disruptive effect on Allied strategy in Italy.

The 8th Army suffered badly in supplies for two or three days but rapidly recouped its supply position. The more significant effect was in the loss of shipping and the harbor clearance work made necessary at Bari.

Fine Planning

The assault was carried out with obviously fine planning and brilliant execution.

One of the main difficulties with the defences at Bari appears to have been that they were weak in fighter planes. The R.A.F., in immediate charge in that area, ordinarily follows the practice of concentrating on strategic bombing and tactical support of front line positions. Bari defences thus depended principally on anti-aircraft equipment.

A German communique on Dec. 5 described the attacks as having been carried out by "strong bomber formations" with the sinking of four commercial vessels and hits on nine other freighters and a "medium warship." The Germans claimed to have lost only two planes.

Man Who Claimed To Be Charley Ross Dies in Arizona

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 16—(AP) —The man who laid legal claim to the identity of Charley Ross, child-victim of a kidnapping case which gained country-wide publicity in the United States for more than 50 years, is dead at the age of 73.

Known as Gustave Blair until the Maricopa county court recognized him in 1939 as the abducted and long-lost son of Christian and Sarah Ann Ross, wealthy Philadelphians, he died as he had lived most of his life—an obscure carpenter. An attack of influenza proved fatal Monday.

The Ross family insistently refused to recognize his claim to being the toddling Charley who, with a brother, Walter, was kidnapped from Germantown on the fashionable outskirts of Philadelphia July 1, 1874. Walter later was found.

356-Ton Bombing Dumped on Arawe In New Britain

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, Dec. 16 — (AP) — A record 356-ton bombing which devastated the Japanese barge and supply base at Arawe, on the southwest coast of New Britain, was reported by Allied headquarters today.

For seven hours Tuesday more than 100 heavy and medium bombers blasted this key point in the biggest Allied aerial attack ever staged in the Southwest Pacific.

The blows were concentrated on Amulut plantation west of Arawe village and on islands at the harbor entrance.

Many fires were observed and the devastation of barges and stores, and among enemy personnel, was widespread.

Tuesday's raid on Arawe, with the absence of enemy interception which has been widely noted of late, emphasized claims of Allied air supremacy in this theatre.

Planes of Admiral William F. Halsey, United States commander in the South Pacific, pounded Japanese supply points and ground defences on Bougainville Island in the Solomons, where United States troops have established an air strip on Empress Augusta Bay, only 250 miles southeast of Rabaul.

MILITARY BRUSHES RETURNED TO STORE

"This was taken from your store by a small boy. It was not paid for," was the note, printed in pencil in block letters which accompanied the return of an expensive set of military brushes and case to a Front street drug store. Evidently, though no explanation other than that given was made, the brushes had been picked up from a Christmas display on a counter in the store and not discovered by the boy's parents until they arrived home.

FARMER SHOOTS WOLF NEAR TWEED

Presenting the skin of his second wolf shot this winter, Fred Chalk, R. R. No. 1 Tweed, appeared at County Treasurer Jim Haggerty's office bright and early today with the pelt seeking his wolf bounty.

The wolf pelt indicated the animal was a young one, as it measured about six feet from nose to the tip of its tail.

Mr. Chalk had shot a wolf about in the same area north and east of Tweed several weeks ago. "I've seen quite a few of them in that area, but it is hard to get near them. They travel in pairs as a rule," stated Mr. Chalk, who will receive a government bounty of $25 from the province and $10 bounty from the County of Hastings for his wolf pelt.

TERRIER BITES O.S.D. PUPIL AND TEACHER

A wire-haired terrier dog attacked and bit an O.S.D. pupil and teacher yesterday afternoon near the deaf school situated at the corner of Church and East Bridge Sts. As the result of the attack Miss Hadley, the teacher, had her fur coat torn while the dog bit a student on the leg. Thos. Thorne, of the city dog pound department, was notified and although the area nearby was searched no sign of a dog answering the description of the terrier was in evidence.

MOTORIST CLAIMS NO TRAFFIC LIGHT LEADS TO ACCIDENT

Claiming the absence of a traffic light signal at the southwest corner of Front and Bridge St., prompted her to proceed southerly on Front St., without stopping, Miss Eleanor Johnson, of Foxboro, finally wound up in a two-vehicle crash that fortunately terminated with only fender damage to Miss Johnson's car. At the same time under the green light a truck was being driven easterly on Bridge St. by James C. Smith, 21 Murney St., who attempted in vain to avoid an accident, but when he applied the brakes of his truck the vehicle skidded on the snow-covered pavement and was in collision with the rear fender of the car. Police attached no blame to the truck driver. Incidentally the traffic light standard at the southwest corner of the intersection was broken some time ago and has not been replaced.

ARRIVES OVERSEAS

Graduating as a bombardier early in October from the R.C.A.F. training school at Malton, Pilot Officer E. S. "Ted" Russell, formerly with the Ontario Intelligencer staff, has arrived overseas as a member of the Wildcat Squadron, according to an Ottawa paper carrying an R.C.A.F. announcement. The Wildcat Squadron was formerly stationed in the Aleutians.

For several years PO. Russell worked as a linotype operator in Belleville and later in a defence plant at Ottawa, where he was born. He enlisted in the Air Force in July 1942 and trained as a pilot before remustering to train as a bombardier.

REPORT CORRECTED

In a news report pertaining to Chief Petty Officer Wm. H. Hirst, who is now posted to the Canadian corvette "Snowbery," published yesterday the article stated the "Snowbery" had been adopted by the St. Julien Chaper of the I.O.D.E. This was in error as the "Snowbery" was adopted by the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. with Mrs. B. C. Donnan as regent. The Argyll Chapter took over the adoption of the "Snowbery" crew some months ago and have since personally looked after all needs of the crew.

POLICE COURT

Bernard Corrigan, 20, of Marysville, was convicted of delivering gasoline without obtaining the proper gasoline ration coupons when he appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in county police court here today. Corrigan entered a plea of guilty and subsequently paid $18.25, including costs, for his folly.

"The accused man was working in Read and delivered three gallons of gasoline to a friend, obtaining commercial coupons instead of class AA ones," testified Provincial Constable J. J. Hatch, who investigated the case and preferred the count. Upon hearing the evidence regarding Corrigan providing gasoline for "a friend," Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson remarked: "That is a good way to try and evade responsibility."

Guest of Jail

"How do you like being a guest of the jailer?" Magistrate Lloyd asked 61-year-old George Smith, who appeared on a charge of vagrancy after having been found wandering about in Sidney Township in sub zero weather and without adequate clothing.

"Why naturally I like my freedom," replied Smith, but His Worship meted out a month's term in order that the elderly man might be given shelter during the current cold snap.

Leavens Brothers Open New Field In Air Transportation

Many people in Belleville and District will be interested in knowing two former citizens of Belleville, pioneers in aviation, the Leavens Brothers, Walter and Clare, are more than ever active in the field of air transportation. Once well known in the city and surrounding countryside, Walter and Clare Leavens, president and general manager respectively of the Leavens Brothers Air Services Ltd., commenced their career in aviation in Belleville in 1927, when they barn-stormed in and around Belleville, carrying passengers at a nominal price, one cent per pound, on exhibition flights at the various county and city fairs. Much water has flowed under the bridge since these early days for the two brothers, who now own and operate a thriving business between Leamington-Kingsville territory and Pelee Island, providing a new and higher standard of air transportation for that district.

Established in 1931

The present company, Leavens Bros. Air Services Limited, was established in 1931 with its base of operations at Barker Airport, Toronto, Larder Lake, Ontario, Walker Airport, Windsor, in addition to other airports. Upon declaration of war, this Company offered its services to the Federal Government and immediately became engaged in the training of student pilots for the Royal Canadian Air Force. This work was carried on until the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan was in full operation and the Company then became and is today, an aircraft overhaul depot for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Operate in London

Leavens Brothers operate another company in London, Ontario, known as Leavens Bros, (Training) Limited. It is this company, employing over 800 civilians, that operates No. 4 Air Observer School, a unit of the B.C.A.T.P. The Leamington Airport, officially opened December 1st., is constructed on the farm of Dr. F. J. Cook, located at the corner of the Fourth Concession and the Town Lines Road. The new airport has a hangar for two aircraft, passenger ticket office, waiting room and freight depot. The service that Leavens Bros. Company operates to Pelee Island during the winter months, has further been improved through the addition of a Custom built five place Waco aircraft with a 275 horsepower motor. Formerly the passenger fare between the mainland and Pelee Island was $5.00 but the company, anticipating increased traffic, has reduced the fare to $4.00 plus tax. Members of the armed forces will be carried for half-fare.

Following the opening of the airfield, the party returned to the Leamington Hotel where the Leavens Bros. dinner was held attended by dignitaries of the Provincial and Dominion Governments and members of the civic government of Leamington, as well as officials of the Leavens Company. Members of the Leavens Company present at the dinner were Glenn Tripp of Toronto, Ron Nelson, D. W. Forrester of London, Harry Pelzer, manager and Norm. Reynolds of No. 7 E.F.T.S., Windsor, and Harry Honey, pilot of the plane to Pelee Island this year.

Dr. William Patrick St. Charles Remained Typical Family Doctor

(From Toronto Globe and Mail.)

Dr. William Patrick St. Charles, who, despite financial success in the development of the North country that he loved, remained all his life a "typical family doctor," died yesterday at his home, 422 Sherbourne St. First stricken with a heart attack more than a year ago, he contracted influenza a week ago, which developed into pneumonia.

Last night, within a few hours of his death, came evidence from every quarter of the quiet generosity that had attended his 45 years' practice among the less fortunate people of Toronto. At St. Michael's Hospital, where he was senior member of the medical consulting staff, a sister said last night: "No one will ever know how much good he did; he gave away thousands of dollars in coal and food and rents."

And among the staff of the hospital Christmas will not be marked this year by the banknotes, totalling hundreds, that were squeezed into hands of yardmen, orderlies, switchboard girls and others of the non-professional workers.

Always shy of public attention and one of the least publicly known of Canadians who had reached great success in both his profession and the financial world, Dr. St. Charles had achieved that success while ministering almost wholly to people who were seldom able to pay his fees, and to whom he never sent accounts.

Among his colleagues there was a standing joke about "Doc's jitney," the service performed by his motor car in bringing patients to hospital who couldn't afford taxicabs and in delivering medicine to patients who couldn't afford to get prescriptions filled at drug stores.

Native of Belleville.

He was born in Belleville 69 years ago, son of an early mining pioneer, James St. Charles, who had an interest in the Richardson Mine, Canada's first gold producer. He came to the University of Toronto and started practice at Queen and George Sts. after graduating. He never married.

Because of his family background, he was interested in mining and spent his few vacations in Northern Ontario. Shortly after the turn of the century, and while he was still a youngster in practice, a mining man called at his office while en route to Baltimore, and said a mutual friend had suggested St. Charles as a physician. The mining man was examined, and Doc, as he was known for 40 years, promptly rushed the man to hospital in his first car, a one-lunger.

During the convalescence of the patient, Doc took the young prospector on his tour of calls, so he could listen to stories of the North. Five years later the miner dropped in again, said he had struck something good, he believed and wanted Doc to get "in on it." The Doc did. The find was Lake Shore Gold Mines and the young prospector was the late Sir Harry Oakes. Their friendship ripened through the years. Doc officiated at the birth of Oakes' five children, was chosen by Oakes to succeed him as president of Lake Shore when Oakes retired, Dr. St. Charles retaining also the treasurer's office that he had held since the organization of the mine.

Old Friends Remember

Yesterday messages were pouring in from prospectors whom his friends never knew, men whom he had grubstaked for years. The messages were the same as those coming from patients, recollections of his philanthropy.

One sister at St. Michael's, who had known Dr. St. Charles for 27 years, recalled last night: "He gave me $25 for coal for one patient, $50 for another's insurance payments, $18 for special shoes he prescribed for a woman, once produced a $5,000 cheque which he said he hadn't expected and, therefore, didn't need, and gave it away in little amounts. And he wouldn't ever let me say who left the money; he hated it ever mentioned and it was an honorary tradition here that none of us would ever refer about these things to him. None of us knows all he did; I couldn't begin to recall the money I know he left for people."

Two years ago a business associate called for him to start on an important trip to Baltimore. Dr. St. Charles apologized, said he couldn't go. After much argument he explained that a 13-year-old girl whom he had brought into the world was sick and it would upset her mother if he left the city. And, despite the entreaties of several friends who knew the Baltimore meeting was important, he flatly refused to go.

Holidays Put Off

Holiday trips planned in advance were seldom fulfilled; he always had sick patients who were more important. Last night these friends said: "Thousands of dollars in unpaid accounts died with him; he deliberately didn't list his patients in writing, so no one could collect from them."

And a colleague at St. Michael's recalled: "Doc's greatest reputation in all his years was he couldn't say 'no'. He was the one who accepted night calls; I can recall him on his bicycle going all night down in old lower Cabbagetown. It kept up the same way when he got a car."

Often urged to retire from practice, Dr. St. Charles refused to "let go" as he described it. Yesterday on his desk in his office, among odds and ends like notes from prospectors, boys overseas and patients whose families he had tended to two generations, his old black satchel stood, exactly where he dropped it last and symbolic of his determination to keep going.

Snapshots of Mining Camps.

Cluttered among the papers were snapshots of mining camps, his second great love.

Dr. St. Charles was a member of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Granite Club, the Knights of Columbus, the Ontario Jockey Club, the Thorncliffe Racing Association of which he was a charter member.

The medical and mining world will be represented at his funeral. Chief mourners will be his sisters, two brothers having predeceased him. They are Rev. Mother Ethne of Loretto Abbey and Mary Margaret and Helene at home. Funeral mass will be sung at St. Michael's Cathedral at 10 a.m. Friday.

Active pall bearers will be Hon. Charles McCrea, George F. Doggett, of Kirkland Lake, Frank Shannon, D. M. Rraser, R. O. Petman and Vincent J. McCabe. Honorary pall bearers will be A. L. Blomfield of Kirkland Lake, W. H. Wright, Hon. W. H. Moore, M.P., Al Wende, George McCullagh, A. G. Slaght, K.C.M.P., Dr. G. M Cameron, A. Drew Hunter, K.C., Dr. T. C. Callahan, Dr. E. A. Broughton, Dr. George E. Wilson, Dr. Gus L. Alexander, Dr. H. A. Snetsinger, John J. Farrell, Jr. of Baltimore.

Operators Discuss Hours of Sale In Post-War Period

The question of hours of sale for gasoline in the period following the war again came up for discussion at the regular dinner meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators' Association held at the Y.M.C.A., Wednesday evening. At a previous meeting members voted that hours of sale should remain as at present but a re-opening of the subject last evening saw opinion divided on the matter.

Past President J. B. Boyce, acting as chairman of the meeting in place of William Davies, held that service stations remaining open for twelve hours resulted in too long a day for one shift and too short for two shifts.

"There will be hundreds of young men looking for jobs in the post-war period", stated Mr. Boyce. "And if regulations restrict the hours of sale of gasoline the industry will not be able to accommodate those at present working in service stations as well as those who employers are duty bound to re-instate in their pre-war positions".

Revision of the garage licensing act with the view of enacting legislation tending to prevent autos sold for wrecking eventually finding their way back on to the highways also came up for discussion. Members felt however, that revision of the licensing act was not the answer to the problem, but rather periodical compulsory inspection of automobiles with view of determining their exact mechanical condition and degree of safety with which they could be operated.

Compulsory mechanics' certificates for all garage employees working on auto maintenance jobs was also discussed by the members.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. provided the supper for the members, while the door prize of $15 was won by Mr. Basil VanDusen of Marlbank, who is reputed never to have missed an Operators' meeting.

His weary trials and troubles are past.

Like ivy on the withered oak when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

B.C.I. Students Ease Christmas Labor Shortage

Students at Belleville Collegiate will materially assist in relieving the pre-Christmas labor shortage in local stores and at the post office, it was revealed by Principal W. S. Turner today when he indicated that by Monday it was expected approximately 200 students will have been granted permission to leave school. Quite a number have already left school for this purpose, it was stated, but the Department of Education has indicated December 17th as the date for pupils leaving.

To encourage pupils turning in to assist in relieving the labor shortage during the pre-Christmas season, the Department is granting such students full attendance records providing they engage in jobs relating directly to the Christmas rush season.

Approximately 50 students from Belleville Collegiate and Albert College have been engaged for the Christmas rush at the post office and many will commence work on Saturday. For the first time in Belleville inexperienced help this year will be trained for sortation of city mail. Fourteen of the students will act as mail carriers on the 12 city routes, while the other 36 will be engaged in the post office sorting letters and parcels.

Do Christmas Mailing Early Postmaster Asks

Another appeal for Belleville residents to get their Christmas cards away in the mails as early as possible was made today by Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch as the annual Christmas rush commenced in real earnest. If the mailing of Christmas greeting cards is delayed until near the holiday their delivery may not be made in time, it was stated, as when mails become blocked preference is always given to first class mail matters.

And while on the subject of Christmas greeting cards, it was stressed by Mr. Truaisch that the postage rate for such cards in unsealed envelopes remains the same —one cent—regardless of destination. When the postage rate for first class mail was changed the rate for cards remained the same.

Tie Mail Together

If residents would tie together all mail intended for delivery in Belleville, the business of sorting would be materially assisted, according to the postmaster. To further carry out this schedule of keeping local mails separate from that destined for outside, special drop boxes will be provided both in the office and at the outside drop location. Into these boxes all local mail should be dropped.

With volume of Christmas mail increasing each year since the beginning of the war another substantial increase in the number of parcels and letters is expected this year. As an indication of the increased volume of mail during the Christmas season, monthly sales of stamps at the Belleville office average around seven thousand dollars. During December this increases to over $11,000.

Students Assist

To assist in the sortation and delivery of mails in Belleville this year arrangements have been made to employ approximately 50 students from Belleville collegiate and Albert College. For the first time in this city, inexperienced sorters will be used for city mail, but before going to work the boys will be given a brief training and will be required to memorize sorting box charts for the particular area of the city to which he is designated.

It has not yet been found necessary to employ women as mail sorters or as letter carriers in Belleville, according to Mr. Truaisch.

Additional sorting facilities are now being set up in the post office to handle the extra volume of mail expected during the Christmas rush. Sortation of letters will take place on the first floor while parcels for the most part will be sorted and arranged for delivery in the basement of the office.

In emphasizing that the rate of postage for unsealed Christmas cards was only one cent, Mr. Truaisch indicated that the post office received a considerable number of telephone calls every day from persons uncertain of the rate in effect. One cent will take an unsealed Christmas card anywhere in the world, he stated.

Talk on Labor Situation Given Carpenter Group

A talk on the labor situation was given to those assembled at the Carpenters Local meeting at the Oddfellows' Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 14th., by Miss Beckie Buhay, field organizer of the Labor Progressive Party, Toronto. The meeting was chaired by Mr. G. Elliott of the Carpenters' Union, under whose auspices it was held. Miss Buhay stated that wherever she went, she found that what was worrying people most, was the fear of insecurity when the war ended. There was a determination that Canada must not return to the bread lines or depression of the '30's. It was this determination that brought about the great progressive sweep in the recent Ontario elections and the many by-elections.

Miss Buhay dealt with the international situation, the great significance of the Moscow and Teheran conferences. Before any new era of security could be ushered in, the speaker stated, we had to have speedy victory over Hitler and a just peace. The declarations of these famous conferences brought these essentials much nearer and the guarantees given that the occupied and other countries shall have the right to choose freely their own form of government, gave the hope that when the war ended victoriously the road to orderly progress would be opened up for mankind.

The decisions of these conferences were a big defeat for the enemy who was striving with might and main to divide the democracies from the heroic Soviet Union, and a check-mate to those friends of Hitler within the democracies whose task was to sow suspicion, confusion and disruption of our war effort. They had been checkmated, but not defeated as witness such a serious event as the release of Mosley in England, released sad to state by a so-called labor leader —a lesson in itself to labor in this country as to the type of labor leaders they can put their trust in.

Reactionaries Blamed.

The same small group of reactionaries who have represented appeasement and anti-Soviet policies in the international arena, are the ones who prevent labor from getting a square deal at home. Unfortunately they play an enormous role in our government and now this same crowd are trying to whip up a frenzy of hysteria against all progressive thought at home under the slogan of "preserving the sanctity of private enterprise." Miss Buhay dealt at length with the new government so-called labor program of Premier King and contended it was not only totally inadequate, but actually a step backward in regard to labor conditions and labor relations.

Mr. King had never released the findings of the majority and minority of the Labor Board investigations, neither had labor been consulted in any way before the issuance of the new decisions. It was an insult to labor's intelligence to propose at this time when the final push for victory and peace is at hand, that collective bargaining shall be made compulsory in war industries only. Mr. King insists that raising wages is the key to inflation, never once in his speech has he mentioned profits. The rigid insistence on the wage freezing policy with a heartless disregard to the problem of raising the level of the many sub-standard wage rates, was creating an even more serious labor crisis in the country.

The freezing of the cost of living bonus as it now stands to make a basic wage rate without removal of taxation on the cost of living bonus, in many instances actually makes for a wage decrease rather than an increase. Mr. King by his recent remarks held out no hope that the sad tangle of conciliation machinery would in any way be unravelled but on the contrary greater bureaucratic machinery for prolonging labor dissatisfaction was evidently in store. Miss Buhay showed how serious was this situation in view of the facts.

Incomes Too Small

It has been proven by facts and figures beyond dispute that 44 per cent of the working population got less than 10 per cent of the National income and that nearly one half a million heads of families were earning less than $18 a week, and that three quarters of a million unmarried males and females were receiving between $7-$9 dollars a week. These facts were startling and made for serious discontent and disunity — these were the great fruits of the "sanctity of private enterprise" that Gladstone Murrays, Drews and industrialists were trying to sell us. The Canadian people were determined that the war was not being fought to continue this kind of affairs and they knew that the old line parties could not be trusted to bring about a better state of affairs.

The solution lay in the hands of the people. They had already begun to show the way in the recent elections. The people wanted drastic social reforms that would bring them a greater measure of security. This can be brought about if all forces of progress unite to defeat the small group that represents high finance and reaction. It is unfortunate that within labor's ranks there are some who refuse to allow this vital unity, this is unhappily true of some CCF leaders who think that they can satisfy the red-baiting reactionaries by themselves becoming the more expert red-baiters. Such a course can only lead to disaster. Dragging out of the "red bogey" in times of crisis has been a favorite sport of the appeasers and it led to the present world plight. The trade union movement must play a decisive role in the unified movement of progress and the Labor Progressive party has urged the CCF continuously to open its doors wide to take the trade union movement into it on a basis of full partnership, it has urged that all sections of the labor movement be welded together into one united vehicle to work for drastic social reforms, for speedy victory and a just peace and for labor and farmer governments that can bring about the reforms that the people desire.

After Miss Buhay's talk there were a number of questions asked. A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was passed by the meeting.

New Artillery Director

W. van Steenburgh Given High Post

Former Resident of Belleville Made Director of Artillery at Ottawa Headquarters

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—Appointment of Col. W. E. van Steenburgh, 43, as director of artillery at defence headquarters was announced today. He succeeds Col. S. E. E. Norres who has left to take up another appointment.

The new director was born at Havelock, Ont., where he received his early education. He earned his Bachelor of Arts Degree at St. Louis, Mo., and later returned to Canada to attend Queen's and the University of Toronto for M.A. and Ph.D. Degrees; then back to the United States as a mining engineer, specializing in construction.

In 1928 Col. Van Steenburgh came back to Canada to enter the science services of the department of agriculture and worked at Belleville, Ont., and Harrow, Ont.

Earlier in this war he was on the staff of the 5th armored division at Camp Borden, Ont.; commanded the 7th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment, the 34th Battery at Belleville and commanded an artillery training centre at Petawawa, Ont.

British and U.S. Oil Resources Jointly Used

Washington, Dec. 16 (CP)—Interior Secretary Harold Ickes said yesterday that the oil resources of Britain and the United States have been "employed jointly since the beginning of hostilities" and reiterated that the plans of the Allies have been developed "with a view to making the most effective use of the available oil and facilities, wherever located and regardless of ownership."

The views of Interior Secretary, who also is Petroleum Administrator for War, were given in a letter to Senator James Mead (Dem.-N.Y.), one of five Senators who recently inspected Allied war fronts and returned home with some criticism of what they termed the disparity of British and American contributions of oil to the common war effort.

Mead said Ickes' letter said statements to the effect that British-controlled oil supplies are being drawn upon less than those of the United States were factually correct but he added:

"The British and the American contributions have been unequal, but they have not been inequitable."

INSTANTLY KILLED

Welland, Dec. 16—(CP)—Harry Lady, 38, of Fort Erie, Ont., was killed instantly at a level crossing at nearby Stevensville today when a truck he was driving was struck by a New York Central Express. It was believed he failed to notice the express, which was westbound, after waiting for an eastbound train to pass.

Enemy's Murderous Deed

A number of Germans the other day in the fighting near San Leonardo resorted to the muredrous trick of throwing up their hands in sign of surrender and when Canadians came forward to receive them, the Canadians were fired upon by concealed Nazi machine guns.

The German has never shown chivalry, but rather the instinct of the desperado, whose hand is against mankind. This device of the enemy in which noble-hearted Canadian soldiers were murdered in cold blood is of a pattern of the Nazi destruction of life and property, the looting, the shooting of hostages and all the crimes by Germans of which records are being kept. Such offences cannot be forgotten, cannot be forgiven. For these crimes German leaders and all responsible must face stern judgment and justice.

The German is an enemy who has none of the finer instincts that would make him regard the ordinary decencies of life and the pledges and agreements of nations. Nothing matters to the Hun when he is frustrated in his bullying and brutality but to flout the laws of man and the dictates of honor and kill, kill. That is measure of his attitude towards all the rest of the world, he is brutal, tyrannous, a bully, without honor or chivalry. He is the negation of all that civilization stands for. He is the denial and the opposite of all that is good and noble.

For that reason he must be treated severely in being brought to justice for his enormities against men, women and children.

The bully must be taught a lesson which he will understand.

World War II Now Longer

World War No. II is older than World War No. 1 now, that is, the nations have been at war for a longer period in the present struggle than in the first war. Whether one figures the opening of the first war as of July 28th., 1914, when Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia or August 1st when the Kaiser declared war on Russia or from August 4th when Britain entered the war.

It must be galling to the neurotic Nazi leader and his pirate crew to realize that the war they counted on to be a brief blitzkrieg which would overrun civilization with Teutonic thoroughness before the non-aggressive world could get their military stride or catch their military breath, has run on long and claimed countless tens of thousands of Germans. For Hitler's hope was in a swift-moving conflict. He long ago lost that for it was in the summer of 1940 in the darkest developments of the war that he was foiled, he never was able to mount an attack upon Britain, except through the air and there he never was able to claim dominance because of the spirit of the British people, their airmen, and the heroic seamen and others who helped to save the large remnant of Dunkirk in one of the great events of the war. In September of that year Hitler's air fleet halted because it was too badly shaken by the losses inflicted upon it.

The course of the two wars shows differences and likelinesses. The second war has been more modern, modern mechanism having greatly changed the nature of the war as far as the part of air offensive is concerned. Though Germany yet holds a great portion of Europe in its fist, it is a tyranny that has created the most explosive forces—the down-trodden nations—ready to strike when the Allied toscin sounds and that hour seems not far away. For Hitler long since lost his aim for a change took place in June 1940. Since then Hitler has relatively never been as strong as he was between the time of the French collapse and Hitler's foiled air assault on Britain in September. There was the turning-point in the war. The worst of dire events was out.

Though Hitler devoted more attention to preparedness for war than did Kaiser William and his militarists, the result of the German aggression will be the same. Present indications point that way with assurance. Mighty Russia is an ally of giant strength, who is draining the Hun armies and war machine of vast resources of blood and material. Small states on the fringe of the Reich are overrun but vibrant with hatred of the Germans and ready to strike. On the sea, as in the last war, Germany has suffered powerful losses and her submarine fleet has run into defeat as did the U-boats of 1917. Her satellites have discovered that they are in grave danger and show signs that they may act quickly when the time comes to desert the Germans.

Hitler has shown that he has destroyed everything of individuality in Germany. That is the fate of Germany, she has gone all evil. That makes Nazism a powerful force for wrong but it has unified the world of free nations against the Hun and his partner, the Jap. There is something elemental and titanic in the Allied declaration that only by unconditional surrender of Germany will the Allies be satisfied. German leaders who have debauched races and individuals know what that type of surrender means—it means a judgment, and so the criminal Huns, who know their crimes, will fight on and therefore the defeat of Germany will be all the more complete than it was in 1918. But that is the end. Signs point the way to the final overthrow of Germany, in the next year, it is hoped. The Allies are absolutely confident. The final stage of the war will be heavy fighting, all agree, and the greater will be the overthrow of the offending German state and government.

How much longer this war will last than the other cannot be foretold, but the handwriting is on the wall for Hitler and his wretched band to see. So once again evil of the avaricious and dominating spirit and pride of Prussian militarism, Nazi gluttony and robbery will come to the same end, but this time, greater will be the fall of the Hun empire of wrongdoing.

Iran Road, Symbol of Tolerance

For those who see too great difficulties in the way of racial tolerance and co-operation, there may be an object lesson in the accomplishment of the motley crew that recently completed a new highway across eastern Iran to bring supplies from India to Russia.

The denizens of Biblical Babel had their language difficulties. How about a conglomerate labor army of 30,000 men, women and children, composed of Greeks, Yugoslavs, Belgians, Russians, Turks, Italians, Bulgars, Rumanians and native Persians. The supervising staff alone represented 15 nationalities.

Here were differences not only of language, but of religion, of customs, of food, of dress and many more. Yet the job had to be done and was done—the hard way, largely with pick and shovel because powered bulldozers and graders such as we used on the Alcan road project were unavailable.

When disaster stares us in the face we aren't so much concerned with the racial background of the men and women who may help avert it. We forget to ask what church they attend. We are concerned primarily with their ability and willingness to help in our cause.

America has been the great melting pot of modern times. But now a global war has brought extensive migrations, mixed armies fighting for a common victory, a breaking of peacetime trade barriers and a heterogeneous crew of laborers working side by side to build a new road across Iran.

Victory may be hollow indeed and even spell defeat for the ideals of the Atlantic Charter if we do not carry over some of this tolerance learned in war into the hard days of national and international readjustment. — (Milwaukee Journal.)

JUST FOLKS

THE OLD WORLD

'Tis these they'll want when they return:
Of rest a week or two
And then, as all at home shall learn,
A daily task to do;
A kiss o' mornings as they leave,
A welcoming kiss at night;
The strength of friendship when they grieve,
For it's for these they fight.

We talk the different world to be
In richly rounded phrase,
And yet the world they'll want to see
Is of their yesterdays.
The girls they've known, the cokes and pops,
The drug store and the hall,
The main street with its various shops,
They'll want to see them all.

They do not fight for something new
Or something that is strange.
They hope the scenes they long to view
Somehow will never change.
That better world that is to be
They may not live to find.
When they return they hope to see
The world they've kept in mind.

The mother smiling at the door,
The neighbors down the street,
The boss they had before the war,
They hope again to meet.
The old-time Christmas and the tree,
The dog in slumber curled,
And everything that used to be
The old familiar world.

The War Today—
Guessing at Date of Invasion—Ironing-out Raids Seen As Prelude

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Habitual prophets and soothsayers are rushing to guess the date of the Allied invasion of Western Europe, a fact which in itself has some significance.

Whether the Allies will be able to stage the cross-Channel invasion as soon as they would like is a matter of anxious speculation. In this connection Lt.-Gen. Lesley McNair, Commanding General of the United States Army Ground Forces, declared in an interview in San Francisco last night that "The war is not going fast enough." He said the enemy is "still plenty tough," and added:

"Bombing is giving tremendous destruction to Germany, but it only serves to weaken her. The final decision in this war will come on the ground. We have to have ground force invasion."

Ironing-Out by Bombing

Here we must note that invasion by land forces must be preceded by an ironing-out of enemy territory by intensive bombing, and we are getting ahead with that now. Reliable quarters in Washington estimate that about 60 per cent of Germany's primary industrial targets have been destroyed by the R.A.F. and American bombing. The total prime targets are set at about 90.

That's a mighty interesting picture. Fourteen months ago I cabled to this column from London that there were fewer than 200 targets all told which the Allies need destroy in France and Germany in order to render Hitler so nearly impotent that the Allies could roll their Army over him without undue casualties. Actually the experts then figured that the destruction of about 60 prime targets would open the road for invasion.

The difficulty at that time was that the Allies didn't have the bombers for the job. It's only in recent months that the two forces have acquired sufficient power so that they really could get on with the job.

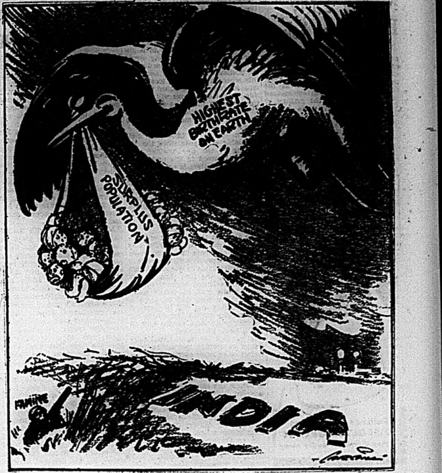
"OPEN SEASON"



Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

The life of a raftsman was exciting and attracted those with a strong urge to keep "on the move." In passing through turbulent river rapids the shantymen had to hold tight, for the raft plunged down, down to each new level and with every lurch came a ducking. Frequently travellers made the trip downstream by raft for the thrill of it—instead of voyaging more sedately by Durham boat. Rafts of tremendous size were built, with pine logs helping to keep the oak logs afloat. Much of the timber was for spars.

With the growth of the lumbering industry, colonizing came along at a faster clip; and as lumbering developed so did shipping interests. Men flocked to Canada to work in the lumber camps, the sawmills and ship yards. In 1823, the administration of Lord Dalhousie imposed an export tax on timber, in recognition of the importance of the lumber trade.

Meanwhile, bluff Canadian fishermen shouting "Heave ho" and hauling great catches of finny creatures. Their craft suited the easily-ruffled waters of the Gulf and Bay of Funday and were sailed "by guess and by gosh," or so it seems to us in comparing their methods of navigation with the greatly improved methods of today. It was dangerous to follow the sea but—what was more important to them—it was profitable. The estimated value of fish caught in sea and lake waters of Canada and the Maritime Privinces in 1866 is $6,263,000

The Durham boats mentioned above were larger than bateaux and fitted with a slip keel or centreboard. There was a stationary mast with mainsail, jib and topsail. The bow was round, the stern was square-cut. The boats were poled upstream . . . but not through the rapids. Then they were hauled by oxen and horses pulling from the river bank.

Richest Man In Enland

(W. L. Clark in Windsor Star)

Neither duke, nor lord, nor Russian czar was the richest man in England. Instead, he was plain Joe Rank, who has just died at 89. His fortune has been estimated at between $80,000,000 to $120,000,000. His benefactions were many. He could have been included in the honors lists, but he always refused. He explained that people knew him as plain Joe Rank, would not know him as Sir Joseph Rank.

Joe Rank began his career as operator of a windmill that ground one and one-half sacks of flour an hour, if the wind was strong. When he died he controlled mills with an output of 8,000,000 sacks of flour a year.

A devoted Wesleyan Methodist, he believed in prayer, saying: "If I take anything to prayer, I always succeed. I've never been in difficulty in my life."

In the last war Mr. Rank proposed a flour scheme to Prime Minister David Lloyd George. He offered his services free. Mr. Lloyd George said the free services could not be accepted, but the proposal was taken. Mr. Rank made £2,000,000 out of it.

Mr. Rank was not well known to the general public. But, those who did know him understood his ability and capacity for making money.

Canadian Gunners Give Splendid Infantry Protection in Italy

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 14 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Canadian gunners are breaking all records with the support they have been giving infantry units engaged in the Moro River battle.

Crews operating the 25-pounders have been living in the mud beside their guns for 10 days and in that time have put more rounds "up the spout," as they call shooting, than the Canadian artillery fired all through the Sicilian campaign.

The gunners live, eat, work and sleep by their guns, oiling and cleaning them when they are not firing.

The pup tents in which the crews snatch a little sleep whenever they can are set up only a few feet from the guns and there is always at least one man on guard during any lull.

Except for the Sergeant who is in charge of the crew, the gunners take whichever station is nearest when they run for the gun. No. 2 may take No. 3's position on the sights while No. 3 will take over No. 2's job of ramming shells into the breech as they are handed up by No. 4.

Every member of the crew can do the job of any other, and they interchange their duties and stand guard in alphabetical order. The noise of other guns in the area doesn't interfere with their sleep when they are tired.

The gunners' first job when they reach a new area is to dig pits for the guns and slit trenches for themselves. Sgt. Dick Jackson of Olds, Alta., who is in charge of one crew, says the difference between the gunners who have seen action and those who have received training in England is the speed with which the veterans dig in.

The first night Jackson was in Italy the area in which the crew had just dug a pit for the 25-pounder was shelled. "The digging in lesson was taught me clearly that night," the sergeant said.

MAD ANTHONY

It is natural to assume that General Anthony Wayne of Revolutionary fame was called "Mad Anthony" because he was rash, reckless and daring in battle.

But Harry Emerson Wildes, in his "Anthony Wayne, Trouble Shooter of the American Revolution," tells us that such was not the case.

He says Wayne was given his famous nickname during the winter of 1781 by an eccentric private soldier, a chronic deserter, an old Chester County neighbor of Wayne's, who was known as the Commodore or Jemmy the Rover. Jemmy regarded Wayne as his protector and friend, but when the general failed to help him out of a scrape he mumbled to himself: "Anthony is mad. He must be mad, or he would help me. Mad Anthony that's what he is. Mad Anthony Wayne."

"The title stuck to Wayne," says Wildes. "No officer employed it, but soldiers in the ranks, carried away by its rhythm and its euphony, used it as a nickname. The disappointed mumblings of a half-crazed common trooper became a nom de guerre. Years later, Washington Irving, wholly misunderstanding the nickname, jumped to the false conclusion that it was given Wayne because of rashness, recklessness, and unbridled daring, and by so doing not only smirched Wayne's military reputation as a cautious, careful strategist, who never took unnecessary chances, but in addition gave him a stigma of mental unbalance which many of Irving's uncritical readers accepted. The hasty sobriquet, bestowed carelessly by an eccentric private, detracted for many years from a full recognition of Anthony Wayne's military genius."

It is doubtful, however, if Wildes is correct in his opinion that the nickname hurt Wayne's reputation. The picturesque nickname probably did more than any one thing to preserve Wayne's memory, to popularize his career and to endear his name to Americans.

Mr. Wildes would very likely never have written his interesting and valuable biography of Wayne had it not been for the nickname.

Many nicknames of famous men, if taken literally, are unjust; as, Winfield Scott's "Old Fuss and Feathers," and Stonewall Jackson. The latter was anything but a stonewall, the name having been originally given by General Bee to Jackson's men in formation, not to the general himself.

Besides Wilde's book shows Wayne to have been proud, headstrong and sensitive, and there is evidence that General Washington regarded Wayne as somewhat impatient and impetuous.

But the story of Mad Anthony Wayne storming Stony Point lives in history.

DESERONTO

A Memorial Service for the late Pte. Willard Zachariah was held in Christ Church Sunday morning, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, and by the Canadian Legion, Deseronto Branch, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion, and the Kan-yen-geh League. Floral tributes to the memory of the young soldier were given by his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hill, Belleville, his nephews and nieces, and by the Legion. Preceding the sermon, the Rector read the following letter, recently received by Mrs. Zachariah,-

"From the Rev. W. H. Waring, C.F, No. 3 (U.K.) Casualty Clearing Station, Central Medical Forces, 4th Nov. '43.
Dear Mrs. Zachariah.

It is with great regret that I am writing to inform you of the death of your husband, Willard, in this Casualty Clearing Station. He came in severely wounded in the head; but although specialists operated, and did everything in their power, it proved impossible to save his life. I have just returned from conducting his funeral. He lies, with others in the British War Cemetery in the little town where we are now stationed. If possible I will take a snapshot of the grave, and send it to you by sea mail. Please accept my sincere sympathy.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. H. Waring"

Parents should not ignore the depressed moods, the listless, tired air, the pallor, headaches, fickle appetite—the crying spells—so many daughters exhibit during those years when they are passing into womanhood.

If her health at this stage is not maintained by a sufficiency of good rich blood, all kinds of weaknesses may arise to make her later life unhappy.

So should you notice any of these disturbing signs in your daughter, lose no time. Get some Dr. Williams Pink Pills at your druggist. They are wonderfully effective in helping to build up iron-impoverished blood and have helped to transform thousands and thousands of sickly, pale daughters suffering from simple anemia into happy active girls full of vitality and high spirits, hungry for meals, glad to help with the housework, attractive to others. Mrs. E. Baker Hostess At Christmas Party

After cordial greetings by Mrs. Farnsworth, the thirty guests sang a number of hymns accompanied by Mrs. Hubbs at the piano, with Mrs. Shortt supplementing Scripture notes. Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Maguire led in prayer and thanksgiving.

The hostess told of the work of the different branches of the W. C. T. U., interesting teachings in day schools, missionary enterprise, providing two mobile canteens for army, the Friendship Lodge, the ditty bags provided by the six groups of the union toward which the generous collection was to be used. She explained the origin of the name "ditty bag" and gave an interesting poem which had been inserted in one of the first.

Mrs. Houston's melody of "The First Christmas Dawn" was well received, as was also Mrs. Hubbs' piano solo. Mrs. Sweetman's Christmas-Navy story of Dunkirk brought smiles and tears.

Mrs. R. Morgan's reading, "The Great Guest Comes," showing how any help given to the needy is accepted as personal service to the Christ, was most enjoyable.

Miss Reeves told of the origin of the Christmas tree in appropriate words.

Mrs. Farnsworth's theme, "Music, One of God's Best Gifts," told of composers and music in different lands.

After Mrs. Bruein's and Mrs. Sharp's vote of appreciation to the hostess and her helpers, the party closed with "Silent Night" and the serving of refreshments by the hostess and her helpers.

Fashion Flashes

A CARRY OVER into the new season is the brown frock for dress-up wear. Brown moire is used for a charming frock made with a deep square neckline, buttons made of countless tiny gilt beads, and soft draping on the street-length skirt.

NEVER BEFORE have gloves been so beautiful. Black antelope is used for a smart afternoon glove made with a gauntlet cuff that has one section in latticed suede with jet beads marking each interstice.

ONE DRESS that seemed to suit everyone is the simply fashioned frock of black or heavy crepe with deep rounded neckline outlined with petal-like ruching in white or pale pink chiffon. We've seen it in daytime and after-dark frocks and it always looks lovely.

WE'RE AT HOME most evenings, so why not concentrate on fireside charm, is the sentiment of many women. Black velvet slacks and a lame blouse or coat or a velvet tunic lame lined and trimmed is a fashion formula that is popular all over the country.

CLEVER HANDLING marks many new felt hats. Banana colored felt is smartly handled to achieve a high crown and a suggestion of a brim yet with no apparent break in the line. A soft green feathered bird is held by a cerise velvet ribbon.

Hello Homemakers! Fruit cookies, the plum pudding and mincemeat requires several days to mellow and develop that rich blending of flavours so desirable. They will be less heavily fruited and lack the richness of other years because of the scarcity of some of the ingredients. However, make a perfect dessert, neither soggy, nor dry, and the family will be cheerful.

Preparations for steam puddings may be accomplished in easy stages. Wash raisins and drain thoroughly; shred peel and chop suet when you have a few leisure moments in the evening. When ready to mix, use about 1-2 cup of the sifted measured flour to dredge the fruit. Combine measured ingredients together. Mix and pour into well greased moulds. Cover with two layers of wax paper. Tie securely with a string. Incidentally, if you put puddings in several small moulds they will require less time to cook. We prefer to steam the puddings. However, if your steamer has worn out, you may improvise one by putting moulds in a covered roast pan with the rack in place in lower part of oven with bottom element on High—indicator at 400, or place on top element and keep boiling. Do not lift the lid during the first 2 hours. If the lid is tight-fitting it will not be necessary to replenish with water—if water has to be added, use hot water so that steaming continues without interruption. To reheat the pudding, allow a half hour for small moulds, or 1 hour for the listed English Plum Pudding.

RECIPES

English Plum Pudding

7-8 cup pastry flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon mace, 1-4 teaspoon each cloves, allspice, ginger, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup minced suet, 1-2 cup currants or seeded raisins, 1-3 cup sultanas, 1-3 cup seeded raisins, 2 tablespoons citron peel, 2 tablespoons mixed peel, 1-3 cup blanched almonds, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon lemon juice 1-2 cup grated carrot, 1-2 cup grated raw potato, 1-2 cup grated raw apple.

Method: Sift flour, measure and re-sift with soda and spices. Add all other ingredients. Combine thoroughly. Steam in covered, greased pudding pan for three hours. Re-steam for serving.

Carrot Pudding.

1 cup grated carrots, 1 cup grated potato, 1 cup breadcrumbs, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup peel (sliced), 1-4 cup cherries (sliced), 1 cup brown sugar, 3-4 cup suet, finely chopped, 2 tablespoons sour milk, 1-2 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon allspice.

Method: Mix ingredients in order given. Turn into well-greased mould. Cover and steam. If individual moulds are used, 1 1-4 hours would be required; larger moulds, three hours.

Plum Pudding Sauce

Cream together a cup of sugar and half a cup of butter. When light and creamy add the well beaten yolks of four eggs. Stir in 1-2 cup raspberry vinegar or similar flavouring, a pinch of salt, and one cup of hot cream or rich milk. Beat this mixture well. Place in double boiler over the fire until the consistency of thick cream. Add 1 teaspoon of liquid allspice. Do not let it boil.

Butterscotch Sauce

1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 2-3 cup white corn syrup, 1-2 cup water, 1-4 cup butter, 2-3 cup rich milk.

Boil sugar, syrup and water together until they reach a temperature of 236 degrees F. Add butter and cool. Beat in milk. Serve hot or cold. 1-3 cup shelled almonds may be added to sauce after cooling.

TAKE A TIP:

1.—Heat a cake pan slightly before greasing; less fat will be needed.

2.—Bake or grill patties or croquettes instead of frying to save fat.

3.— Plain scones or tea biscuits may be baked on a lightly floured pan instead of a greased pan.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. M. asks: How can fish odor be removed from a metal pan, and should frozen fish be thawed before cooking.

Answer: Scrub with hot water and salt; rinse, then wash in soapy water. Small fillets do not need to be thawed, but it prevents excess "spattering" of fat.

Mrs. S. Mc. asks: How to make good pastry without pastry flour.

Answer: Add 1-4 teaspoon baking powder to sifted flour; use 1-3 more cold fat, and sprinkle with milk instead of water. Chill before it is rolled out.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In Mother's Day and New

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm almost 17 years old and have a little problem about staying out late or being allowed to do things on Sunday. My mother works every day but Sunday and my father "now and then". I take care of the house and keep things in order, for which I occasionally get a compliment.

I belong to a club of friends and we like to get together once a week (Fridays) at the girls' homes, and have a little entertainment, playing games, singing, etc. Mother gets very upset if I'm not home by ten-thirty, although the girls walk home with me. If I stay too late I find her crying and she says I can't go out anymore. When she cools off and I ask her again if I may go, she says all right, but with strings attached. If I'm not extra good she won't let me go.

She doesn't want me to go horseback riding, because I have to wear trousers; she doesn't want me to bowl or go to shows on Sundays. She doesn't approve of anything she didn't do when she was young. But she does allow me to go to parties with boys, if I'm home by one o'clock. She buys me everything I want, and my only "grudge" is that I can't do so many of the things the other girls can do.

Father agrees with Mother in everything, so it's up to her as to whether I may or may not. Do you think I'm wrong?

F. P.

Here is the usual domestic clash concerning the way things were done when mother was a girl and at the present time. It seems a very harmless recreation to me, this club of girls you describe and ten-thirty seems an unusually early curfew for these days. The only way in which a domestic situation of this sort can be managed is by talking Mother and Dad over, without bitterness in the argument.

I'm glad you take a sensible point of view about these restrictions. So many girls threaten to do violent things under such circumstances, that it's hard to persuade them their parents are not really enemies.

Men Who Take Engaged Girls Out Are Known as Santa Claus.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls engaged to boys in the service. Do you think it is considered correct for girls in our position to go out on dates with other young men, either in a crowd or a twosome? We have asked advice from others but opinions vary so much that we thought we'd better ask you. We read your column and like the answers you give to problems.

T. P. G.

There are two schools of thought about engaged girls going out with other young men. The old school which decided such questions before the first World War, held that after a girl became engaged she should not go out with anyone but her fiance. The more modern school says, "Yes, if you can find any man willing to play Santa Claus".

To take a girl out usually entails some expense, and a good many young men are not in favor of incurring expense for a girl who is engaged to another man. It's only the decent thing for a girl to ask a man she expects to marry if he would object to a Santa Claus.

GOOD MANNERS

Christmas Cards From a Widow.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband died last March, and I don't know if it is proper for me to send Christmas cards this year. My family seem to think that I should wish my friends a happy Christmas, even if my Christmas won't be a happy one. They say it is my friends who must be careful about the kind of Christmas cards they send to me. I will be governed by your advice, Mrs. Beeckman, and I thank you for your guidance.

L. B.

Do just as your own feelings incline you to do about sending Christmas cards to your friends this year. Certainly your relative and friend will cometely understand if you decide to make no Christmas gestures. If sending cards would be a too-wearisome tax on your feelings and on your strength, you should not add this burden.

But if you feel that you do not want your own unhappiness to stand in the way of wishing your friends happiness at Christmas-time, do send cards (or write brief notes) to your relatives and friends. They will, you may be sure, be deeply touched by your bravery and thoughtfulness.

If you send cards, you would, of course, choose conservative cards, and you would send them only to close friends, not to acquaintances. And your family is right. . . if your friends send you cards, which is kind and thoughtful for them to do, they too should choose conservative cards.

Return-Address Slip.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have just had printed two hundred of the small slips with my name and address and zone-number on them. Would it be proper for me to paste one of these on the back of each of my Christmas card envelopes?

T.W.

Yes, an excellent idea. Proper and practical.

Signing the Christmas Card.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How would you suggest I sign the Christmas cards for my husband and me and our four young children? Also we have a dog, very beloved in our family and loved by our friends, too. Is there any way we could include his "greetings" on our cards?

T. M.

How about signing your cards this way. . . "Dearest Christmas greetings from The Allens. . .John, Mary, Johnny, Dorothy, Polly, and Bob. And from Skippy too!"

Greetings to Your Doctor.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I'd like to send a Christmas card to my doctor. I've known him since last January, but have never met his wife. Should I address the card to "Dr. and Mrs.", even if I haven't met her? Should I send it to their home, or to his office, which is in an office building? Should I sign my husband's name too. . .he doesn't know the doctor or his wife. Thank you.

Selma

Even if you don't know the doctor's wife, address the card to him and his wife. Sign your husband's name with yours. Send the card to the doctor's home address. And write out "Doctor". . .Doctor and Mrs. William Bryant.

"Why," said Farley, "he'll show up somewhere in a day or two, asking for a hamburger." The other night came a knock at the Farley door. There stood Charley. Well, he asked, shall we have a hamburger?

San Leonardo Once Beautiful Now Battered to Pieces As Shells Fall at Rate of One a Minute

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(CP War Correspondent)

With Canadian Forces in Italy, Dec. 13—(Delayed) — (CP Cable)— This story comes from the little town of San Leonardo where a quiet hour is one when only one shell falls in a minute.

Canadian troops have been fighting around the town 2½ miles north of the Moro river for five days and have held it for the last four. But the Germans still are so near there have been machine-gun clashes right on the outskirts. German patrols have even ventured into the town itself.

At one time San Leonardo must have been a picturesque place. But today it is just smashed to bits by shells, first from British and Canadian guns, now from the Germans.

The road leading to San Leonardo winds down the northern slopes of heights overlooking the Moro valley. A sign at the top reading "this road is subject to shellfire and sniping" is almost superfluous.

"Duck Alley."

A dead mule lies in the bend of the road the Canadians have named "Duck Alley." Another mule is 50 yards away while at "Hellfire Corner" a burned-out truck lies on its side.

And if these signs do not convince a driver to keep moving, the Germans lend conviction with a round of multiple mortars or heavy shellfire. It is not a comfortable spot.

A stone cross marks the entrance to San Leonardo and beyond it are shell-pocked ruins of houses. Some still provide cover for the Canadians garrisoning the town but many are just heaps of stone and concrete.

I spent an hour in the town today, arriving just after a shell scored a direct hit on a truck. The driver, unhurt, was standing in a doorway across the street watching flames and smoke rising to the sky and warning passersby that the gasoline tank had not yet exploded.

Fifty yards down the street along which there were a dozen "deloused" German mines, Maj. J. C. Clarke of Toronto was keeping in touch by wireless with forward platoons of the company he commands. With him in a house damaged early in the battle by a Canadian shell were two signallers, Ptes. Harold Smith of Montreal and Willard Perrault of Penetanguishene, Ont.

No Civilians in Town.

Shells were falling with unnerving consistency but Clarke who gained his majority in this battle did not appear worried. Nor were the signallers.

"It's not too bad when they are far away but you get a bit shaky when they land in the alley outside the door and plaster begins to fall," Clark said.

His "far away" meant anything from 50 yards up. There were no civilians to be seen anywhere.

Clarke, whose Eastern Canada battalion crossed the Moro last Wednesday, has been in San Leonardo for three days. The troops he commanded were used previously to strengthen the town's eastern flank after a German counter-attack threatened to force back the Canadians already there.

To the accompaniment of shell bursts, Clarke told how the battalion forded the narrow river and took up positions west of San Leonardo. He said the Germans, moving back under pressure of an artillery barrage, dropped everything, leaving weapons, steel helmets, packs and "a lot of good Jerries."

Patrols went east to the outskirts of San Leonardo which they thought Canadians had captured by that time but found Germans still there. During the following day the troops were under shell and mortar fire.

Troops Stand Up Well.

Then Clarke led two companies to the east of the town where they remained until the threat of counter-attack was over. Since then his troops have been in the area of the town itself.

Shelling has been continuous, he said, with the Germans concentrating their heaviest barrage between two and three each afternoon and for an hour before dawn.

The troops are standing up well under the shelling and there have been comparatively few casualties but Clarke said their inability to hit back personally was hard to take.

The Major said there had been many close calls among officers and men of his battalion and cited the cases of Capt. Freddie McLaren of York Mills, Ont., another company commander, and his own sergeant major, G. R. Keeler, of St. Catharines, Ont.

McLaren was in a slit trench protected by a sort of frame covering when a Canadian tank which apparently mistook his position for a German strongpoint attacked. Machine-gun fire and then a high-explosive shell riddled the covering.

Narrow Escape.

The troops were certain McLaren must have been killed. And still believed he was at least seriously wounded when he emerged from the trench sprayed with blood. But on examination it was found his only injuries were scratches from wood splinters.

Keeler's escape was almost as close. He put his hat, rifle and binoculars in a slit trench and walked away to make a cup of tea. When he returned he found a shell had scored a direct hit and the only thing left was a small piece of the rifle.

"If he had not decided to brew some tea we'd be indenting for a new sergeant major," Clarke said.

The two signallers who with Pte. George Clements of Montreal man a wireless set and repair lines of communications to forward platoons after shelling also had an "incident."

"We lost a set by shrapnel," Perrault said. "The shell landed quite close and a splinter went right through the receiver."

As shells kept falling and mortars moaned over the town newspapermen asked Clarke and his men how they managed to sleep. He replied it was not much trouble to sleep through explosions but at every burst of machine-gun fire he woke up.

"We eat too," he said. "Rations have been coming up every night."

Across an alleyway from Clarke's post was another stone house in which half a dozen Maritime mortarmen from the West Nova Scotia Regiment were taking shelter.

The mortarmen had given the Germans a 15-minute pasting earlier in the day in support of an infantry attack by another Maritime battalion (the Carlton and Yorks from New Brunswick). British and Canadian artillery had joined in and the enemy was so shaken that prisoners had to be lifted out of their trenches.

"I saw 22 prisoners being brought in and they were really shaking," Sgt. D. G. Tait, Amherst, N.S., said. The Maritimers had been under heavy fire themselves the previous day and Tait who has been with the unit since its first landings in Sicily said, "it was just about as rough a time as I ever had."

Continuous Counter-Attack.

The West Nova Scotians had advanced during the night to positions northwest of San Leonardo and the following day was just one continuous counter-attack.

"They bumped us and we went right back again," Tait said. "The enemy concentrated heavy stuff right in our area and we were shelled and mortared all day long."

A couple of shells landed outside as the sergeant was speaking and he added, "this is a picnic compared with yesterday."

"When the first lull came we decided to quit the town for the safer and quieter area of our camp."

Pack W. M. S. Bale.

On Thursday evening, five members of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society and some friends, convened at the home of the supply secretary, Miss Muriel Sine, and a splendid array of new articles and used clothing was prepared ready for shipment. The bale contained three new quilts, 20 pair of mittens, 8 pair of hose, 6 new children's dresses and a large array of good used clothing and coats.

The Mission Band provided 85 bags of candy and pop corn besides other small articles. The bales, which were shipped to the Sunday School superintendent at St. Ola and to the missionary at Westmount, will bring cheer to several children at Christmastide.

The society is indebted to Mrs. Clifford Sine, Muriel and Doris for their splendid assistance in handling the work of the supply department for the past two years. Only those who have held this office know anything about the vast amount of work that is entailed during the year in getting the quilts and articles sewed. Thanks is also extended to all those who assisted the supply secretary.

BONARLAW

Bazaar, Supper At St. Mark's

Bonarlaw, Ont., Dec. 16 — On Wednesday evening the ladies of St. Mark's W. A. held a pork and bean supper and bazaar in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church, which was well attended. About one hundred persons sat down to do justice to the good things provided. The gross receipts were over $70. The bean guessing contest was won by Harold Barlow. Many beautiful and useful articles were on display and were sold at reasonable prices.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to AC2 Jack S. Eastwood, R.C.A.F., Edmonton, of a wrist watch from the Springbrook War Service Club. Mr. Allan B. McComb acted as chairman for this part of the program. Mrs. Hiram Mumby, president of the club, read an address and Miss Freida McLaren, secretary of St. Mark's Young Peoples' Society, made the presentation. Mr. Bert Bedford, Ex-Reeve of Rawdon Township, in a splendid address, wished Mr. Eastwood all success and the best wishes of all in the township. J. F. Baker, Sunday School superintendent, spoke of the help Mr. Eastwood had been in the Sunday School, the church choir and the Y.P.S.

Mr. Eastwood, in a few well chosen words, expressed his deep appreciation and thanked all for the beautiful gift. He was given three hearty cheers and a tiger and all sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The last part of the evening was spent playing progressive euchre, the prizes going to Mrs. Geo. Williams and Bob Anderson.

Personals.

A successful euchre was held by the Y.P.S. of St. Mark's Church in the club rooms on Monday evening of this week. The prizes were won by Mrs. W. J. Barlow and Thos. Neal. Lunch was served.

Bevan Assails Allied Strategy In Italy

London, Dec. 16—(AP)—Aneurin Bevan, Labor, assailing Allied strategy in the Italian campaign, told the House of Commons yesterday, "the greatest crisis the German High Command has faced since the battle of Stalingrad is now over and the Germans can transfer first-class troops from the Italian front to Russia." While praising the bravery of American and British troops in their drive toward Rome, Bevan drew laughter when he declared bitterly:

"The Allied Command has approached the problem of attacking Italy like an old man approaching a young bride—fascinated, sluggish and apprehensive."

Bevan called Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech in Commons recently a "masterpiece of ambiguity" and declared that when Prime Minister Churchill and Eden "engaged in world tours" they brought back "merely ambiguous sentences because we have not the necessary military successes to back up our diplomacy."

Aside from the victory in North Africa, Bevan charged, the British government's military handling of the war situation was one blunder after another. He spoke on the second day of a two-day debate on the war and foreign policy.

Point Traverse

Heavy Fleecy Rolling Fog Bank 30 Feet High Blankets Lake Like Rolling Bed of 'Fire and Smoke'

Point Traverse, Dec. 15. Special.) —The waters of Lake Ontario, off here, were a rolling bed of "fire and smoke" Monday morning, but it was just an atmospheric chicanery. King winter and his cohorts riding the crest of a cold wave, sent the mercury slithering down to zero temperatures. The result of the sudden drop was that the air became much colder than the water and heavy, fleecy, rolling fog thirty feet high, blanketed the lake.

The early morning sun glinting through the wind-tossed fog banks, created an appearance of numerous bonfires from daybreak until the sun rose too high to continue the weird effect.

Operations Halted.

Sub-zero temperatures have curtailed fishing operations at this colony. Although all boats of the fishing fleet have been made ready for winter, with the exception of two fishing craft, which have been in operation up until the general freeze up. The harbour here is solidly frozen over, which has brought a halt to operations at this fishery. The fishermen will attempt to retrieve their nets from South Bay waters, before heavy bay ice forms over the surface of the lake.

Season Closed.

The last east bound freighter of the season, passed between the Duck Islands, off this point, Monday afternoon. The Canadian lighthouse tender Grenville, was the last boat in these waters this Fall.

Rawdon

Rawdon —(Special)— Mrs. Percy Hubble opened her home on Wednesday for the December meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society. The house was tastefully decorated with roping and tinsel in keeping with the festive season. There were 19 in attendance and the president was in charge.

The service opened with a worship service under the leadership of Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and she read a poem "Father of Lights." Mrs. Don Campbell read the Christmas story as found in Luke. The service included Christmas hymns and responses as outlined in the monthly. Mrs. Weaver's paper brought out the thought that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" in our own homes this Christmas is the special work of the civilian people. Thirteen members answered roll call with a Christmas thought.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Carleton Potts.

The treasurer reported $186 to the end of November.

Miss Muriel Sine gathered the offering which amounted to $9.90.

At this juncture the amount of the mite boxes was announced and the bowl of coppers and over amounted to over $25. Mrs. Philips read a leaflet entitled "[illegible] Proctor's Missionary Box," and all gathered around the table while prayer was offered and the Doxology sung.

Mrs. John Holmes synopsised the third chapter of the study book "Skill and Joy in Work," telling how missionaries who are interested in agriculture try to help these people who farm only a few acres and if we are to assure them the abundant life about which we preach we must help them find ways of producing enough food to live decently.

Mrs. MacMullen told of the safe arrival home of Miss Mabel Clazie who has been interned in Japan.

The service closed with a candle lighting ceremony with Mrs. Edgar McKeown reading the responses and Mrs. Roy Thrasher sang the solo. The pastor closed the service with prayer.

Mrs. Percy Hubble and Mrs. Earl McMaster served candy and Mrs. Hubble was tendered appreciation for her hospitality.

CHURCHILL DOWN

Specialists in Attendance

Mr. Attlee said specialists were in constant attendance on Mr. Churchill and added:

"The House will observe the bulletin is signed not only by Lord Moran but also by Brig. Bedford and Lt.-Col. Pulvertaft who are consultant physician and director of pathology, respectively, to the Middle East forces.

"I can assure the House that every modern facility is available on the spot."

Lord Moran, the Prime Minister's personal physician, accompanied Mr. Churchill to the Cairo and Teheran conferences and on his previous flights to Washington, Moscow and the Middle East. He is president of the Royal College of Physicians.

While en route to the Cairo conference, Mr. Churchill's cold was not considered cause for undue alarm, but was sufficiently serious so that a covered passageway was set up leading from his stateroom aboard the ship to the bridge. The Prime Minister is an inveterate "bridge watcher" on sea voyages.

Enjoys Robust Health

Despite his advancing years—and he is the oldest of the United Nations "big three leaders"—Mr. Churchill normally enjoys robust health although he puts in long hours of work at home and has travelled farther than Mr. Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin in the last two years, consolidating the Allied war effort.

He is noted for his powers of physical endurance and his faculty for quick recovery.

Where the Prime Minister is confined to bed was not disclosed in the official statement, the text of which said:

"The Prime Minister has been in bed for some days with a cold. A patch of pneumonia has now developed in his left lung. His general condition is as satisfactory as can be expected."

No announcement of Mr. Churchill's return to Britain has been made since conclusion of the Cairo and Teheran conferences with President Roosevelt, President Chiang Kai-Shek, Premier Marshal Stalin and President Inonu of Turkey.

U. S. Bombers Hit Telling Blows On Brenner Pass

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Dec. 16 (AP)—American heavy bombers, striking with as great force as on Tuesday when 300 aircraft blasted airfields in the Athens area, hit telling blows at enemy communications on both sides of the Brenner Pass yesterday.

The new blows were directed at rail facilities at Innsbruck in Austria and at Bolzano and the Trento regions in northern Italy. Allied headquarters said all planes returned safely.

These attacks, described as highly concentrated and successful, were made on the main supply line from Germany into Italy.

In the raid on Innsbruck, first major blow delivered on the Austrian Tyrol, high explosives were laid across the railway yards and terminal.

Innsbruck is the junction point where the rail line extending southward through the Brenner Pass leaves the main east-west line which links the industrial areas of southern Germany and Austria.

South of the Pass heavy bombers struck the rail yards at Bolzano and the viaduct over the Avisio river near Trento.

U. S. MISSION VISITS SAUDI ARABIA

Cairo, Dec. 16 —(AP)— The first American military mission ever to enter Saudi Arabia has just completed successful introductory talks with King Ibn Saud on economic and military matters, it was officially disclosed here yesterday.

The visit raised speculation of a possible expansion of military supply and transportation activities in the Middle East.

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B——, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'Baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. They contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. They help give refreshing sleep by clearing away wastes and poisons that disturb rest.

Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder if desired—Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds. Try them. 25 cents.

See Little Hope Relief From Cold

Toronto, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Temperatures in Toronto and the suburbs early yesterday ranged down to the vicinity of zero as the cold snap continued to grip most of Ontario. The official low of two above registered at the Toronto observatory shortly after midnight marked the third day in the last five that Toronto temperatures have neared zero.

Officials at the observatory give little hope of relief and the weather for today is expected to be only slightly warmer.

Thermometers in most Northern Ontario centres showed slightly higher than they have for the last few days. The record low for the province was made at White River where an official 40 below was registered. North Bay was 19 below and Ottawa 18 below. The lowest overnight temperature in Peterborough was 12 below while Cornwall recorded 18 below for the lowest of the season in that area.

Railroad Strike May Be Averted

Cleveland, Dec. 16 (AP)—Railway and government officials expressed belief today a country-wide railroad strike scheduled in the United States for Dec. 30 would fail to materialize, while a spokesman for one of the five operating unions said "we know of no reason why a settlement cannot be worked out" at a mediation meeting next Monday.

The meeting was called by the National Mediation Board after operating brotherhoods set Dec. 30 and the three succeeeding days for a "progressive strike" of 350,000 unionists seeking to enforce demands for wage increases. The session will be held in Chicago and will be attended by railroad officials and brotherhood leaders.

Announcing a proposed "strike against inflation for the privileged few and deflation for the many," presidents of the brotherhoods said 97.7 per cent of their members voted for the walkout.

Firemen Fight Fire in Zero Temperature

Trenton, Dec. 16—Firemen worked for more than three hours Wednesday in zero temperature to extinguish a blaze which completely gutted the residence of James Merker, 156 Front Street. Mr. Merker was ill in bed at the time the fire was first noticed about 12 noon by neighbors who immediately sent in an alarm. It was thought to have started from overheated pipes as it was first noticed in the upper storey of the house near the roof.

The firemen were quickly on the scene but had some trouble as the roof itself was metal over shingles and it was difficult to get the hose through to the fire which appeared to be almost directly under the shingles. The greater part of the roof had to be torn away and though most of the contents of the house were removed everything sufferd greatly from water damage. The walls of the house were all completely ruined, those not burned were water soaked and smoked.

Mrs. Merker was in the house with her husband at the time but was unaware of the fire until it was noticed by neighbors. The loss is said to be partly covered by insurance.

This is the second serious fire here this week as on Monday evening the entire residence of Pte. James Crooks, Bay Street, was destroyed by fire leaving the mother and four children aged two to eight years homeless. The father is serving with the Canadian army and stationed at Kingston.

Christian Way Only Way

"The Christian way is the only way that works for the good and happiness of all," this was embodied in an outstanding Christmas message delivered by the Rev. J. D. Martin, of King Street United Church, at the regular weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday evening.

Is this true, or is it nonsense?, continued the speaker. If it is true it will not make much progress until courageous, earnest, sincere men declare their faith openly and conduct their business according to Christian principles. The challenge, he said, is to you men and all others who have positions of responsibility in business and government.

Using as an illustration a child's "Model Village" to show the difference Christ's coming has made, Mr. Martin opened his Christmas message. When asked by her father what changes would have to be made to make it into a heathen town the child set the church to one side. The father led her to see that the school, library, hospital, Orphan's home, etc., would have to be removed also. "Why father, exclaimed the child, there is not one good thing left."

When Jesus was born into the world a great light shone in the dark streets of Bethlehem. The whole world was dark. Life within the Empire was characterised by hopelessness and ugliness, immorality and brutality. With Christ came a new way of life. In a few years little groups of men and women in whom Christ's Spirit dwelt were changing that dark world into a world of light and hope and goodness.

Between that time and the present there have been recurring periods of twilight until the light shone brightly again on a few disciples. Eighteenth century England was characterised by the evils of the slave-trade and slavery, drunkenness, gambling, prostitution, illiteracy and general moral degradation. Then came the revival which was a new coming of Christ into the life of the world. Before many years had passed slavery was abolished throughout the Empire, the barbarous prison system was reformed, the lot of workers in factories was bettered, popular education was really begun starting with the Sunday School. Dr. Barnardo had begun his great work, the Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army had been formed, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children and animals were instituted, the modern Temperance movement and the Trade Union movement came into being. The Christian religion from its beginning has been concerned with the lot of the unfortunate.

Mr. Martin ended his talk by [illegible] interest in the building of a hospital in the town of Trenton is an instance of the working of this same humanitarian spirit.

Discover Life Far From Dull in Sub-Arctic

(By STUART UNDERHILL)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Camp Canol, N.W.T., Dec. 16. (CP)—If Santa Claus wants to be popular with the 100-odd girls who work at this eastern terminus of the Canol pipeline, he should take each one a combination beauty parlor and dry-cleaning establishment compact enough to stow in the corner of a cozy prefabricated "igloo".

Dainty frocks aren't the usual wear in the big construction camp five miles west of the Mackenzie River and just 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle. But comes the time for dancing and parties and getting prettied up provides a major problem.

However, most of the girls are philosophical about such drawbacks and "we don't feel very much like pioneers, as we now have running hot and cold water that they tell us will be available all winter, and electricity", says Margaret Fleming of Victoria, an employee of Bechtel-Price-Callahan, contractors for the pipeline being put through from Norman Wells to Whitehorse, Y.T.

Miss Fleming speaks with authority, for she was one of the first six girls at Camp Canol. When she arrived last June the camp was a collection of log huts by the river side and bathing facilities were limited to little tubs about 14 inches in diameter.

"When, sometime in August, we had showers installed, most of the girls caught cold", she recalls. "Now we are in quarters we expect to occupy for the winter. We live in 'igloos' with dome-shaped walls and roof. Some of the girls who have written home mentioning the igloos have been amused and surprised when they were asked by their friends if they were really built of ice, and if we had to crawl into them".

Huts Well-Equipped.

The girls' huts are equipped with big cupboards and dressing-tables and connected by a covered ramp to the offices, post-office and mess-hall. The latter, a three-storey, steam-heated structure, is the centre of social activities, for here movies are shown and dances are held to the tunes of a juke-box. There's no dearth of partners with 2,000 men in camp.

Virginia Telfer of Minneapolis, who believes she is the northernmost female switchboard operator in the world, shares these views and says "probably the rest of the world thinks that the poor isolated people at Canol have nothing to do in their spare time, but this is far from being true.

"Keeping clean, washing and ironing and keeping up with one's correspondence is almost enough to fill up all time after working hours. Besides doing the things that must be done, we have various diversions, such as reading, playing cards, dancing, going to the movies and dating".

Another enthusiast for life at Canol is Olga (Tiny) Lewko of Edmonton, who, like most of the girls admits that two things—adventure and money—lured her into the northland. Her only complaint is that mail isn't received often enough.

The girls are employed chiefly as office workers, though some of them are waitresses and laundresses. But all work the same hours as the men —seven days a week and often 10 to 11 hours a day.

Whitehall Notebook

London, Dec. 16 —(AP)— The theory that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton is matched by the reality that those same acres of Buckinghamshire have been instrumental in winning many a seat in the British House of Commons.

In fact, one in four Conservative M.P.'s and one in seven of all M.P.'s is an Ex-Etonian. To wear one of the ancient school's top hats is automatically to increase your chances of entering parliament to 2,000 times those of an elementary schoolboy.

A north country Englishman, J. P. S. Ross, brought forth those facts in publishing "Parliamentary Representation," a compilation of facts and figures on the people of Britain elects to Westminster.

He reported that:

If you meet an M.P. who has been to Oxford the odds are four to one that he is a Conservative and 19 to one that he is not a Socialist.

The age of the average M.P. is consistently above the age of the average adult. (From other sources: average age of Labor members is 61, of Conservative members, 54.)

The personnel of the House "changes much faster than might have been thought." In the average new House 175 of the 615 members are novices; 183 have no more than five year's experience and only 29 have more than 20 years of previous service.

M.P.'s do not talk enough. They have, he found, a "great aversion from letting anyone know their age, education, occupation, or, indeed, anything about their experience or qualification.

Ross worked for years compiling personal dossiers of the 1,823 people who have sat in parliament since 1918.

His conclusion: "The House is not in any sense . . . an average sample of ordinary man."

Charged with the labors of minister of health in the latest Churchill cabinet shuffle was Henry Urmston Willink, K.C., 49, one of Britain's big legal men. From September, 1940, until a week prior to his appointment he was special commissioner for rehousing Londoners driven from their homes by enemy action. He is, incidentally, an old Etonian.

To Willink, who professed that his promotion came "like a bolt from the blue," befell a ministry which is supposed to be nearing the presentation of a bill embodying the government's response to Sir William Beveridge's call for a "comprehensive health service." Leftist comment is that the Opposition of "vested interests" among the big doctors has dictated a more moderate plan than originally conceived.

Mouth Scratched Says Jail Doctor

Toronto, Dec. 16—(CP)—William Baskett of Hamilton, charged with armed robbery in the theft of a liquor load here Monday, is suffering from "a few scratches about the mouth," Crown Attorney James W. McFadden was informed by Dr. W. H. Hills, jail physician.

Examination of Baskett was made following charges by George Bagwell, counsel for Baskett, who claimed in police court that his client's lips were swollen and said he had been told Baskett was beaten by police.

Four of the six men apprehended after the robbery were released on bail, Max Applebaum, Edwin MacDonald and Victor Taylor, held on vagrancy charges, were released on $500 bail. Howard Wilkinson, 17, held as a material witness, was freed on his own bail.

Baskett is held without bail, while James Shorting was still in custody Wednesday with bail set at $10,000. He is charged with receiving 600 cases of liquor stolen from the truck.

The truck and cargo were stolen early Monday by gunmen who kidnapped the driver, George Butcher, 38, of Chatham, Ont. Police recovered the truck and liquor late Monday.

No Secret Treaties Made at Conference

London, Dec. 16—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons yesterday that no secret engagements or treaties were made at either the Teheran or Cairo conferences and declared "our Russian Allies attach the greatest importance" to British and American long-range bombing of Hitler's Europe.

Eden said the aerial offensive against Germany "has a very high place indeed in our plans for the coming year."

He dropped a blunt hint that major Allied operations may be imminent, declaring:

"Military plans which we laid down at Teheran call for all our Allied resources in every respect.

"There will be no margin and it is going to take us all our energies to fulfill demands which will be made upon us in the very near future."

Massed Guns Called Effective Counter to Tanks in Action

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 16 —(CP Cable)— The Australian newspapers said the belligerent nations are reducing production of tanks because of the discovery of an effective counter to that weapon is massed guns.

Actually for Australia this means abandonment of tank production altogether, the newspapers said, adding that Britain, Russia, Germany, the United States and Canada are all reducing tank output.

With other switchovers in war industries, this involves the transfer of 20,000 Australian workers from one sort of weapon to another. Australia spent $14,000,000 on tank production, built nine large factories for making and assembling parts, and trained 2,000 men for work in tank arsenals.

Over 16,000 Canadian Soldiers to Bring Back English, Scotch Wives

London, Dec. 16 —(CP Cable)— More than 16,000 Canadian soldiers will take English and Scottish girls home with them as wives after the war, Canada's High Commissioner to Britain, Vincent Massey, said in an address in London's Guildhall yesterday.

"A true welcome awaits these new Canadians," he said.

British Miners Want Increase

London, Dec. 16 — (CP) — A demand by the Mine Workers' Union for immediate wage increases ranging up to about $8 weekly for Britain's 690,000 coal miners produced the threat of a fuel crisis today.

The government, warning of the prospect of a shortage, cut coal rations for homes as much as 20 per cent some time ago, and a shutdown of the mines now might result in further reductions.

The executive committee of the Mine Workers' Federation announced last night that it would press for a national minimum of $24 a week for underground adult workers and $22 for surface workers. The committee added it would present the demands at once to a national wage tribunal composed of union, employer and government representatives, if the employers declined to grant the increases.

There is no national minimum at present, scales being set by districts, but the Laborite Daily Herald said the national mine pay without overtime averages about $16.60 for underground workers and $13.40 for those on the surface.

Although the miners unions have pledged not to strike in war time, scattered walk-outs have occurred.

Some Bird Migration Facts

(By NORMAN C. SCHLICHTER in Our Dumb Animals)

At least as far back as the prophet Jeremiah, who said, "The stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming," bird migration has been a subject of interest, yet the present century has brought more knowledge to light upon the subject than all the twenty-four or five centuries from Jeremiah to the twentieth.

How migration first started and how the birds find their way are still mysteries, but most of our North American birds migrate, chiefly to South America, though some are satisfied to stop at Mexico, Central America, or the islands of the Caribbean.

Some of them, notably the orchard oriole and the yellow warbler, leave for their winter homes as early as July.

Some species make their long migratory flights by day, others at night. The night fliers frequently come to tragic ends, when, probably blinded by the artificial lights, they come in contact with such lofty objects as the Statue of Liberty, the William Penn Statue in Philadelphia, or the Washington Monument.

But many birds fly entirely too high to meet this fate. Our aviators who are interested in birds have thrown much light on the height at which different species move in migration. Nothing of this was known before aviation.

Different species travel at different levels. Swallows have been sighted as high as 3,000 feet above the earth, eagles at 10,000 feet, the European lammergeier at 24,000, while the record so far is held by wild geese, whose height of at least 27,000 feet was discovered, not by aviators, but by astronomers who found them on photographs of the sky, taken from near the top of Mt. Everest.

The golden plover and the Arctic tern are said to be our farthest travelers, the tern making its round-trip flight of 22,000 miles by easy stages; the plover choosing a non-stop flight of 2,400 miles from Nova Scotia to South America.

Migrants return to their northern homes within a day or two of the same date each year.

For fifteen years a pair of Baltimore orioles, presumably the same pair, have built a nest in my neighbor's tall poplar tree. And every year on May 10 to 11 (I note the date) they fly across the street to visit my crabapple tree and make a lovely note of color among its

Four Junior Clubs Will Play In Junior 'B' Group With Tweed Being Given Bye Into Playoffs

Belleville, Trenton, R.C.A.F., and Stirling—Marmora Combines in

12-GAME SCHEDULE

With four clubs entered the teams representing Group No. 2 in the Junior O.H.A. met at the Hume Arena last night to draft a 12-game schedule that permits each team a play-off berth. At the last minute the Tweed Juniors made application for entry into the group, but were given a bye in the event they operate. The four clubs entered the Trenton R.C.A.F. "Flyers", Belleville Juniors, Stirling-Marmora "Combines" and Trenton Town. The league will get under way on January 4th., 1944, with Trenton at Belleville.

In order to give incentive to win all possible group games, the meeting voted to permit the club finishing first in the regular schedule the right to select their opponents for the group semi-finals, with the remaining two clubs also meeting in a similar semi-final series. The representatives moved for a single home-and-home game schedule in the first round with the semi-final series being the best two-in-three series, the possible third game being allotted to the team enjoying the highest ranking in the regular schedule. In the event Tweed juniors desire entrance they will be scheduled in the group semi-final series. In the group finals, however, the series will be the best-in-five, played under the same conditions as the semi-final round with the top ranking club enjoying home ice privileges.

The referees named were:—

Trenton—Ken Davis.

Belleville—H. St. Louis.

"Combines"—Fox and Shannon.

R.C.A.F.— Padre Miaki and Mike Dziura.

The schedule adopted for group No. 2 in the Junior O.H.A. series for 1944 reads as follows:—

Jan. 4th—Trenton at Belleville.
Jan. 5th —Combines at R.C.A.F.
Jan 7th—Belleville at Trenton.
Jan. 10th—R.C.A.F. at Combines.
Jan. 12th—R.C.A.F. at Trenton.
Jan. 14th—Combines at Belleville.
Jan. 17th.—Trenton at Combines.
Jan. 18th—Belleville at R.C.A.F.
Jan. 25th—R.C.A.F. at Belleville
Jan. 28th—Combines at Trenton.
Jan. 31st. —Belleville at Combines.
Jan. 31st.—Trenton at R.C.A.F.

During the first round the civilian clubs agreed to play on the Trenton R.C.A.F. open air rink, but all semi-final and final group games must be playec on covered rinks.

The delegates convening before Convener A. G. Meagher were as follows—R.C.A.F. —P.L. Horton and Cpl. J. Pianosi; Trenton—Les Farrell and R. Taylor, Stirling-Marmora "Combines"—Ralph Neal, Wally Hilton and Harry Smith and Belleville Junior—T. J. Flurey, Wm. Dennis and Jack Doran.

Then to add color to the finale, Headman Tunney is staging two main bouts with McCready tangling with "Hard-boiled" Hannigan, who the fans want to see soundly trounced, while "Irish Jerry" Monahan may get some moral support for a change, when he tangles with "Jack the Ripper" Reeder in the other main go. The opener sends Al Dunlop against Ted Miller.

KINGSTON ARMY TEAM DEFEATED BY ST. CATHARINES

Foster for Frontenacs Performs Hat Trick by Scoring Three Goals

SCORE IS 5-4

By The Canadian Press

Toronto R.C.A.F. climbed a one-point rung out of the Senior O.H.A. cellar by virtue of a 1-1 overtime deadlock last night with the league-leading Majors at Hamilton while, in the other game of the evening, St. Catharines turned back Frontenac Army in Kingston with an eye-opening 5-4 victory to consolidate third place only two points below the soldiers.

At Hamilton, Airmen and Majors battled two periods without a score and it was not until 8.22 of the 3rd stanza that Davy, in a combined sweep with Shillington and Robertson, scored the counter for Hamilton. Three minutes later Lloyd Gronsdal of Air Force beat goalie Art Childs with a 30-foot drive to register the tieing point. They struggled through full overtime to ring up the first draw of the senior campaign.

Saints and Frontenacs were on even terms at the end of the second chapter and the visitors were two goals to the good until the last three minutes of the tilt when Foster registered his second Kingston tally of the night and Backor came back with No. 5 for St. Catharines to put the game on ice, although Foster flashed his third into the Saints' cage with seconds left to play. Fritz and Goble scored one each and Mason turned in a two-goal performance for the winners, Foster's three and Giesbrecht's one counter made up Kingston's total.

Toronto, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Although teen-aged players have suddenly scrambled by the dozen into Canada's most important hockey leagues, including the National, Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan remarks that development of teen-aged stars is not new. Tony recalls that when Victorias, one of Winnipeg's greatest teams, won the Allan Cup in 1911 the Vics were youngsters led by a great pair of 19-year-old defencemen, Corky Fowler and Les Moffatt. The rover, Charlie Belcher, and two forwards, Fred Bawlf and Francis Caldwell, each were 20 while goalie Basil Baker and winger Dicky Wickson were 22. The team's average weight was 139 pounds. "Babe Pratt was bigger than that when he was playing midget," quips Allan.

In the last two years, the citizens committee for troops in training has distributed $140,000 worth of sports equipment to camps and barracks in Ontario, as far east as Halifax and even to England. The sports service league provided $115,000 of this amount. A recent undertaking was an arrangement with the Toronto school board to have senior students make ping pong tables in manual training for use at camps.

Former Major Loop Baseball Player Favored in Tourney

By The Canadian Press

Pre-game favorite for the $5,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament, first on the schedule for the Florida winter season, is Sammy Byrd of Detroit, former major league baseball player, despite the fact he has never come closer to winning the $1,000 first prize in three tries than a $25 award for also-ran. H. H. Arnold, chairman of the tournament committee, yesterday announced more than 100 entries but added most of the big-name players had been eliminated because of the war and transportation hindrances. This situation perhaps had much to do with picking on Byrd for the one-grand reward.

The former baseballer was given a slight edge over Craig Wood, the U. S. Open champion from Mamaroneck, N.Y., and Robert Hamilton, putting specialist from Evansville, Ind.

First nomination for the 1944 Kentucky Derby was received yesterday from far-off Honolulu in the entry of Kope Kona by Miss Ruth W. Collins. With the required papers came word that the horse, with four other thoroughbreds, had already left Hawaii and were scheduled to arrive at Churchill Downs about Jan. 1. Entries do not close until February.

Tami Mauriello, New York's young contender for the duration heavyweight title, stopped Mike Alfano of Newark in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight last night in the feature match of the first St. Louis boxing show since last February.

Alfano, hopelessly beaten, was saved further punishment by referee Harry Cook who stopped the uneven bout. It was the third meeting of the two. Mauriello twice before won decisions over Alfano.

The Nanaimo Army team in the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey Leagu has a new coach in Gnr. Nick Metz, formerly of the Toronto Leafs in the N.H.L. Bill Carse, former coach, with three other players, has been transferred from Nanaimo for military duties.

Graham (Tiny) Teasdale, defenceman of the Buffalo Bisons in the days when Frank Nighbor was coach, has been appointed mentor of the Curtiss-Wright team in the frontier Senior Hockey League, it was announced last night at Fort Erie.

New York Rangers, cellar occupants of the N.H.L., yesterday announced the release of Bill Warwick to their farm club, New York Rovers of the Eastern United States Hockey League.

Shortstop Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox, American League batting champion last season, received notification at his Atlanta, Ga., home yesterday to report for duty with the U. S. Army at Camp Sheridan, Ill., Saturday.

Ensign Nile Kinnick, former all-American and chosen by The Associated Press as 1939's athlete of the year, will have his memory perpetuated at the University of Iowa by the annual award of a gold medallion to the student adjudged "most like him." Kinnick was killed last June when his Navy fighter plane crashed at sea.

NORMIE SMITH BACK WITH WINGS AFTER FIVE YEARS

Will Guard Twine for Detroit to Stop Losing Streak

PLAY MAPLE LEAFS

By The Canadian Press

Normie Smith's National Hockey League comeback with Detroit Red Wings recalls the bizarre sequence of events which led to his eclipse as a player in 1938.

In November of that year, the 35-year-old Toronto-born goalie missed a train from New York to Montreal. The incident followed a four-game losing streak for Detroit. Manager Jack Adams acted swiftly.

Imposing a $150 fine and indefinite suspension on Smith, he recalled Harvey Teno from Pittsburgh and engineered an impromptu deal which sent Smith (and a reported $15,000) to Boston Bruins for Tiny Thompson. Smith retaliated by announcing his retirement and did not resume friendly relations with Adams for three years.

Tonight, after five years, Smith returns to the nets against Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto in Thursday's only N.H.L. game. His return presumably marks an effort by Adams to check another losing streak by his champions—one which has left Detroit floundering five points behind Toronto and Chicago Black Hawks, joint tenants of third place.

Normie replaces Jimmy Franks, who was Smith's pupil for a time when he appeared at the Detroit training camp in 1936 for a tryout.

Leafs probably will be without Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, promising rookie forward, who suffered a groin injury last week.

Hamilton, Dec. 15 (CP)—Paul Martin, Liberal member of parliament for Essex East and parliamentary Secretary to Labor Minister Mitchell told the Hamilton Liberal Club last night an increase of 250,000 in trade union membership in Canada since the outbreak of war and awarding of more than a million dollars in wage bonuses by the National War Labor Board did not bear out charges that the government is against labor.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Beggar (meeting man on street) —Say, old man, can you help a brother Mason, Odd Fellow, Elk Moose, Owl, Junior, Forester or Labor Unionist?

Man—I don't belong to any of your orders, my friend. I'm sorry.

Beggar (continuing insistently) —Ah, then, can you help a fellow Methodist, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Disciple, Moravian, Baptist, Presbyterian, or Quaker?

Man—No. It's the same answer. I belong to none of those either.

Beggar (putting out his right hand)—Ah, then shake hands, partner, and assist a fellow Socialist, up-lifter, brain-truster, and boondoggler in distress.

(Ain't it the truth.)

You can always depend on hockey to make life complicated . . . Take the case of Johnny Mahaffy . . . He was a professional with the Montreal Canadiens when he joined the Army . . . As a soldier he was automatically an amateur again, so he played with Montreal Royals in the Quebec Senior League... The Army gave him a discharge, and then he discovered that he could no longer play with the Royals because, as a civilian, he was still the property of the Canadiens.... He could have become an amateur if all the N.H.L. clubs had waived on him and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had okayed him ...But the New York Rangers decided they wanted him, so he's a professional...Some fun, eh!.... With every member of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens, hockey is only a sideline...They've all got jobs and most of them are employed in defence industries where they must put in as much as 40 hours a week.

(Soldiers want sports.)

American service men stationed overseas want sports news, Bob Considine, International News Service war correspondent and former sports writer, declared recently.

Speaking at the Football Writers' Association luncheon in New York, Considine said sports news helps to lighten the long waiting period that often precedes the call to active fronts.

"I was in Liverpool when a ship with American wounded came in," he related. "Everything was quiet. Then a loud voice came from the ship, inquiring, 'Who won the World's Series?'

"After the landing, one boy from Brooklyn came up to me and said, 'You're a sports writer. Don't tell me the Dodgers didn't win the pennant'.

"I really felt I let him down when I had to tell him that the Dodgers finished third."

(This and that.)

A cable report from down Buenos Aires way says that the rivalry between neighborhood soccer football clubs has resulted in two casualties within the past two weeks...The other day the manager of a team shot and killed a 17-year-old spectator who ran onto the field with other fans during a wild game, played in part without a referee... The manager then outran the crowd ...A week before another spectator, who threatened a referee, was wounded by a club official... And we think hockey is a tough game!...They flipped a coin to decide the site of next Sunday's pro football playoff game between the Washington Redskins and New York Giants...The coin was provided by Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators...It was the same coin used to decide where the seventh game of the 1924 world series between the Giants and Senators would be played.

(Remember when—)

Lionel Conacher, now chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission and one-time "Big Train" of Canadian sport, was traded 17 years ago today to the New York Americans by the Pittsburgh Yellow-Jackets with which team he played his first professional hockey. With an outstanding hockey career he later played for Chicago and the Montreal Maroons. Conacher played junior hockey with Toronto Canoe Club in Belleville in 1922 and also played baseball here with the Toronto Hillcrests in 1923.

(Another Angle.)

Yesterday a wrestling fan asked Walt Gerow, manager of the Hume Arena, if he thought there would be many attend tonight's grappling show owing to the cold weather. "They'd come if it was a hockey match regardless as to the temperature," replied Walter, who added it was just as cold a year ago last night when the wrestlers drew their largest crowd of the year to wind-up the season. With two main bouts tonight promoter Frank Tunney is bowing out in a blaze of glory.

LESSON NO. 254.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Halt. This is the beginning of the end of the series before we come to slam bidding. Let's clean up some odds and ends. Then, we can head for the slam zones.

Take a look at this hand:

♠3
♥A K Q 9 4
♦K Q 10 6 3
♣A 4

A student writes: "I know why you show the heart suit before you name the diamond suit. But why do you advise bidding the diamonds again before rebidding the hearts?"

My answer starts with the rule for choice of suits: With different length suits, first bid the longer; with equal length suits, first bid the higher ranking.

These suits are of the same length. So, the heart suit is shown first and the diamond suit next. Up to then, however, partner must assume that each suit is four cards long.

How can I tell partner that both suits are five cards long? Not by bidding hearts again. True, that would show five hearts. But it would not show the diamonds were longer than four.

I should rebid the diamonds before rebidding the hearts. That would tell partner my diamonds were five cards long. At the same time it would admit that I also have five hearts. See how?

When I bid hearts before diamonds, I admitted the diamonds were not longer. When I rebid diamonds, I say the diamonds are five cards. If diamonds are not longer than hearts, the hearts must be five.

Do you see the purpose of the Horse Sense rules for the choice of suits. It makes for economy in the number of bids it takes to show the suit lengths. It makes for efficiency with simplicity.

In this way, too, you are able to tell your partner what you have left in your unmentioned suits. Because if you show ten red cards, you admit you have no more than three black ones.

Try that on your bazooka.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Blondie For Victory"

If you can't join the Army . . join the Bumsteads . . . in a roaring battle of laughs! Blondie enlists for the duration . . . in the timeliest, gayest and most delightful of all the "Blondie" adventures!

In Columbia's new comedy, based upon Chic Young's cartoon strip characters, Blondie has Dagwood in splints and the nation in stitches! "Blondie for Victory" opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre, with Penny Singleton again to be seen as Blondie, with Arthur Lake continuing as Dagwood and Larry Simms as "Baby Dumpling" Alexander. Stuart Erwin tops the stellar supporting cast.

"Man from Tumbleweeds"

Bill Elliott, who is starred in "The Man From Tumbleweeds," Columbia's latest Wild Bill Saunders adventure at the Capitol Theatre, buys ten-gallon hats by the dozen. So hard is the wear and tear on the Stetsons during production that Elliott used up three toppers during the course of one scene in which he had to fight a brawl with Francis Walker, the "heavy."

New Serial

Rod Cameron, leading man of Republic's new serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" which opens at the Capitol Theatre tonight and will be shown for fifteen weeks thereafter, got his first job in Hollywood at a five and ten cent store. Joan Marsh is the feminine interest, with Lionel Royce and Duncan Renaldo in supporting roles. A funny cartoon complete the big family program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Power of the Press"

Columbia's "Power of the Press" which opens next at the McCarthy theatre, is one of the first films of the year to show how the lads and gals who score the scoops on our newspapers, are willing and ready to fight fire with fire and force with force as they track down dangerous saboteurs.

Thrillingly directed by Lew Landers, this exciting story presents one blazing thrill after another as the cold white light of the free American press is turned on a new kind of enemy mob—a band of homebred Hitlerites! The cast, composed almost entirely of veteran performers, is headed by Guy Kibbee, Gloria Dickson, Lee Tracy, Otto Kruger, and Victor Jory.

Kibbee is seen in the role of a small town newspaper publisher who comes to New York to take over the job of running a big city tabloid. The city paper is controlled by Otto Kruger, a traitor who is abusing the freedom of the press by using his publication to spread treason. Assisting Kruger is that fast-talking paragon of all screen newspapermen, Lee Tracy. Tracy is just about perfect in his role as a guy whose corpuscles have been replaced by circulation figures.

The only support Kibbee receives at first comes from Miss Dickson, a secretary on his staff, who agrees with him entirely. However, after a number of hair-raising thrills involving three murders, the destruction of a shipment of war goods and a plot to frame prominent Government officials, Kibbee wins out, converts Tracy to his way of thinking and traps Kruger through a clever ruse.

"Power of the Press" is one of those pictures that should be seen by everyone.

"Kitty Foyle"

The second attraction on the double bill is "Kitty Foyle" starring Ginger Rogers as Kitty Foyle and supported by Dennis Morgan, James Craig, Eduardo Ciannelli, Ernest Cossart, Gladys Cooper, and directed by Sam Wood. Ginger Rogers brings to life Christopher Morley's "white collar girl." The screen play is based on the most daring novel ever written by a man about a woman, the "office wife" or a woman with an understanding soul —brought vividly to life by Ginger Rogers, in one of the most important roles of her career.

British Associated News completes the program.

AT THE BELLE

Leslie Howard

"Never have so many owed so much to so few," said Winston Churchill after British Spitfires and their valiant pilots had shot the Nazi Luftwaffe out of British skies. Behind that feat is the story of the first of the few—the story of R. J. Mitchell, told now at last in a glowing human drama, "Spitfire," which rightly takes its name from the man's supreme accomplishment. For Mitchell it was who designed the dangerous weapon that enabled Britain—and perhaps the world—to defy Nazi conquest.

"Spitfire," now on the Belle Theatre screen stars Leslie Howard in the role of the inventor, perhaps the first to perceive the malevolent intent of Hitler and his gangsters. The R.A.F. released David Niven from active service to play an amorous, happy-go-lucky test pilot, a part Niven performs with manly charm and infectious gaiety.

A distinguished supporting cast is headed by the English beauty, Rosmund John, in the role of Mitchell's understanding wife.

A funny Leon Errol comedy, "Jem Jams" and a clever Walt Disney colorfun cartoon, "Home Defense," completes the program.

New "Maisie" Feature Timely

Jean Rogers, lovable daughter in "The War Against Mrs. Hadley," changes her character to a crisp, dangerous plotter in M-G-M's "Swing Shift Maisie," Ann Sothern's latest adventure as the glamorous showgirl, which opens this weekend at the Belle Theatre. As Miss Sothern's love rival she has her accused of sabotage but in the end Ann wins the romantic test pilot, played by James Craig.

The story opens with Maisie in tights and spangles in vaudeville, but she soon dons overalls as a worker on an airplane assembly line. Women's part in war work is graphically shown amid comical episodes and dramatic moments.

Norman McLeod directed the picture with Connie Gilchrist and Marta Linden among the principals. Much of the background was actually filmed in a great western plane factory.

The Canadian Paramount News, a funny Merry Melodie cartoon, "Inky and Mina Bird" and a C.C.O. feature, "Tomorrow's World," precede the feature attraction. On Saturday matinee the 6th chapter of the thrilling "Batman" serial will be exhibited.

Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec 16. (AP)—If tomorrow night's Sammy Angott-Bobby Ruffin fight is anything like the Maurie Waxman-Mike Jacobs preliminary, it ought to be a honey . . . . Maurie has had Jacobs' Beach in an uproar most of this week by insisting the fight was off unless Bobby was guaranteed a tussle with Beau Jack, win, lose or draw. . . .He settled for a promise with fingers crossed. . . .Babe Holingbery and Buck Shaw, who will handle the west team in the New Year's East-West Football game, will be getting their first taste of college coaching for the season. Both represent schools that dropped football.

Observation Post.

Pacific Coast Conference Faculty Athletic representatives and graduate managers decided that all ten Conference Colleges will get their regular cuts of the Rose Bowl game receipts this season although six of them quit cold on regular season football. . . .Wonder if they could have been listening when Judge Bamham revived those 16 inactive baseball leagues at the minors' convention?

Scooped.

Probably you think the worst race horse that ever existed was the one that ran out of the money with your dough riding on him, but "Semper Avanti" tells in the "Thoroughbred Record" of a nag called Sad News that probably takes the prize. . . Running on the Texas Bush tracks some 35 years ago, Sad News slid down the scale until he ran with a $35 claiming tag on him. . . . Then he was given to a Houston newspaper, which hitched him to a paper route cart and put him on the depot run. . . The first time out he was beaten by the opposition paper, which used a Shetland pony.

AT THE CAPITOL — Penny Singleton as "Blondie," and Arthur Lake as "Dagwood" Bumstead go all-out for defence of America's right to laugh and be happy, in "Blondie for Victory," now at the Capitol. The added western, "Man From Tumbleweeds," stars Bill Elliott.

Bombings Cut Nazis' Aircraft Production

London, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Allied day and night bombing of German industry has cut the Nazis' aircraft production to the point where fighter plane output barely equals the rate of losses in air battles, it was reliably reported today.

Information available here indicated that the Germans produced about 1,250 bombers and 650 fighters in August and the same number in September, while the late summer bombing campaign undoubtedly reduced the figures still lower.

Since Oct. 1, British and American fighters and bombers have shot down more than 1,000 German planes by conservative count. The Germans are believed to have only 2,400 fighters in service now on all fronts, about two-thirds of them at home.

Nazi industry once had a monthly goal of 2,600 planes of all types, but achieved this only in July, 1942.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop and we went passed a little old lady all dressed in black holding her hand out and asking some man for money and he was shaking his head no and she was saying, I hope you may partch of thirst and famish of hunger and all your children may perish in the poorhouse.

Being a exter thin old lady with only about 2 teeth showing and some of her hair hanging down under her hat, and I said, Jimmony, pop, do you think she's a witch?

Well if she is she'd better not try any of her fancy spells and curses on me, because I'm a graduate of the College of Magicians and Sorcerers and I can mix a malediction with the best of them, pop said.

And on our way home we saw her again and she was still stopping people and asking them for money, and I said, G, pop, I think she'z going to stop you.

Little does she know who I am, pop said. Yee gods you're right, he said.

Meaning she was holding out her hand in front of him saying, just a few pennies, mister, I'm just a poor old woman, and pop saying, I know just how you feel, I've got a poor woman at home and she's explained to me just how it is.

Bad luck to you, may you end your days in rags and tatters without a sole to cast you a crumb of charity, the old lady said, and pop said, May you wake up with such a beautiful new set of teeth that nobody would dream of having pity on you, and may the income tax man find all that money you've got under your mattress.

And we kept on going and the old lady just stood there looking after pop with her mouth so wide open it showed one more tooth.

Proving nothing can probably scare you if you're not scared to scare it back.

TROPICAL PARK OPENS FOR YEAR

Miami, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP)—A sports-hungry throng of 9,517 persons gleaned enough gasoline from A-rationed fuel tanks to reach Tropical Park for the opening of Florida's winter racing season yesterday and bet an average of $48 to establish a new first day parimutuel record.

The golden flow through the wickets totalled $442,830, topping the old 1940 record by $166,752. It was nearly twice the $232,251 bet on inaugural day last year. Attendance broke no records, but approached the first day mark of 10,481 established in 1941 and far exceeded the 5,110 of last year.

A very few hundred spectators used buses to reach the nearest stop —two miles distant—and thumbed rides the rest of the way to the race track. Few walked.

One hundred days of racing, Florida's longest season by four days, are under way and track officials are optimistic. After yesterday's showing, Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the Gables Racing Association, declared he had no fears.

Boatman Sailed Around World in 30 Foot Yacht

Vito Dumas Made 20,000-Mile Journey Alone Around the World, Fought Off Dangerous Storms and Escaped Threat of War in Pacific—An Amazing Trip

Even in war time the story of the lone trip of an Argentine man who sailed around the world in a 30-foot yacht is attracting wide attention now, although little was heard of the man when the trip was under way. The story is told in an article by John W. White in The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, as follows:

Alone for a year on a 30-foot, two-masted boat, Vito Dumas, an Argentine yachtsman, has just completed a 20,300-mile voyage around the world. The disasters of the present war have produced many recent adventures, often tragic in which aviators and seamen have spent many days alone on a drifting raft or lifeboat. Dumas did it because he wanted to. It was the idea of a pleasant way to spend a year. He had changed his mind long before he got back.

Dumas did not even take an animal along to keep him company. On those days when he was not fighting for his life against the storm, he made fast the rudder and amused himself carving a figurine from a chunk of wood. Christened "Lisandro," this figurine became Dumas' sole companion on the last lap of his voyage. The lone sailor admitted as he stepped out of his boat at the end of the trip that he had had enough both of Lisandro and the sea, and that he did not want to look at any more horizons.

Vito Dumas first succumbed to the attraction of the horizon on the vast Argentine pampas where he was born. The pampas, like the sea, stretch level and unbroken until they meet the sky and Dumas often has said that there was something in the monotony of the endless furrows, the loneliness of the boundless plains and the mystery of the water. He has been sailing many years now, and always alone.

For his trip around the world, Dumas refitted an old but seaworthy hull and called it "Lehg II." He eased the "Lehg" out of the Argentine Yacht Club's port in the North Basin at Buenos Aires on June 27, 1942, in the middle of the southern hemisphere's winter. Heading down the wide River Plate, he reached the Atlantic on the following day and put into Montevideo.

On July 1, Dumas ran up his three small white sails, took a firm grip on the rudder, and set his course across the loneliest stretch of the South Atlantic, bound for Cape Town.

If he sailed out of Montevideo thinking that he could lash the rudder and let his thoughts drift with the boat, Dumas was quickly disillusioned. The "Legh II" almost immediately ran into the fierce winter storms that blow up from the Antarctic and Dumas had to stay awake day and night and exert all his skill to save his little boat from being capsized.

Dumas described this as the worst part of the whole voyage; the desperate fight to keep awake and the horror of knowing that sleep, even for five minutes, might mean destruction.

Cape Town is directly east of Montevideo and Dumas held his course as close as he could to the Thirty-fifth Parallel during the eight weeks and a day it took him to cross the 4,500 miles to his first sight of land. Both the boat and the navigator were much the worse for wear when the "Lehg II" dropped its torn sails and wearily came to rest on Aug. 24.

Dumas stayed a month in Cape Town while the boat was being repaired and restocked with provisions. He seemed to have lost his desire to be alone and was glad to accept the generous hospitality with which he was entertained.

On September 25, with the stormy September equinox safely past, Dumas set out on the longest and most dangerous lap of his lonely voyage, bound for Wellington, New Zealand 7,400 miles across the war-infested Indian and South Pacific oceans.

To avoid the war zone, Dumas headed far to the southward and when halfway across sailed for several days within 500 miles of the Antarctic Continent. Six months later, on the opposite side of the world, he again approached to within 500 miles of Antarctic land when he sailed around boisterous Cape Horn on the homeward stretch from Valparaiso to the mouth of the River Plate.

It took exactly three months for the voyage from Cape Town to New Zealand and the weather was pleasant most of the way, as October and November are spring months in these latitudes and December the first month of summer. On Christmas Day, Dumas sailed the "Lehg II" through Cook Strait and made fast to a buoy in Wellington Harbor. There had been strong winds near the polar regions and again the vessel needed new sails. Dumas needed new clothes and, apparently, human companionship. He stayed in Wellington until January 31, 1943.

When the "Lehg II" cleared from Wellington on the last day of January, Dumas was safely outside the war zone, so he set a straight course for Valparaiso, west by northwest and 5,400 miles across the Pacific. It took two months and twelve days to reach the Chilean coast and when Dumas finally put into Valparaiso Bay on April 12 he was exhausted, broke, and showed the emotional strain of his long adventure alone at sea.

Dumas remained in Valparaiso until the last day of May. In the meanwhile, the newspaper Critica of Buenos Aires raised funds to finance the last lap of the voyage home and complained bitterly that Dumas' great achievement had gone pratically unnoticed, charging that if he had been a North American the newspapers of the world would have been full of the details of his exploit.

The 2,700-mile lap from Valparaiso on the Pacific to Mar del Plata on the Atlantic probably was the most hazardous part of the whole voyage, because it took the little 30-foot vessel down around stormy Cape Town. Dumas and his friends say no yachtsman had ever before attempted rounding the Horn. Even larger vessels steam as well as sail, go through Magellan Strait rather than risk the hurricanes which legend says blow off the Horn 365 days every year.

Dumas was high-strung and emotional as he prepared to leave Valparaiso. "I know that I go to my death," he declared melodramatically, "but I shall not leave the course I set before departing from Buenos Aires last year." He got around safely, averaging 70 miles every 24 hours, and was practically home when he stopped at Mar del Plata on July 7, 37 days out of Valparaiso. He stayed at Mar del Plata for two weeks until July 28 ,and then a short sail of three days put him into the Uruguayan Yacht Club's port of Montevideo on July 31.

The lone navigator had reversed Magellan's great feat of sailing round the world. He had found the west coast of South America by sailing eastward into the Atlantic. It was 13 months to the day since he had sailed away from Montevideo and during nine of these months (273 days) he had sat alone at the rudder of the "Lehg II." He had logged 20,300 miles, averaging 79 miles a day on the first lap, 71 miles on the second, 75 on the third and 70 miles on the stormy trip around Cape Horn.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT

Size means nothing when the boys of the Royal Canadian Air Force bomber group in Britain get together to discuss bombing strategy. Here, long-legged Pilot Officer Walter F. Winning of New Glasgow, N.S., and Flight Lieut. Leslie McLeod, D.F.C., Canadian-trained Australian, enjoy a joke, probably at Hitler's expense. Winning, 22, stands six feet four and a half inches in his sox. He's known as the "Hanover Kid" from his frequent visits to the German city with the Bluenose squadron. McLeod, gunnery leader of the Iroquois squadron, is one of the few "Aussies" in the Canadian group and has become almost one hundred per cent Canadian by adoption. Trained at Winnipeg and Mossbank, he flies in Canadian Halifax bombers. — (R.C.A.F. Photo.)

Do Bees Know Color?

I have always believed that bees possess at least a rudimentary appreciation of color differences. My father-in-law, after long experience with bees, believed it, too. Recently, a series of experiments were made to test that color sense. The results seem to show that whatever color sense bees may have, the ability to distinguish red, as red, is not comprised in it. The experimenter conducted his investigation with bees in the open air and near the hives. By the aid of what is called the food-preference method, he found that one day's training was sufficient to teach many hundreds of bees to distinguish between blue and gray.

To test the insects' conception of color, he offered them a material inducement to remember that whatever was colored blue, was sweet, and, therefore, desirable and whatever was gray, although he employed thirty-two shades of it, was not sweet, and, therefore, could be of little use to them.

In the same way the bees were taught that yellow indicated sweetness. But no amount of training ever taught them that there was any difference in color between red and black. The bees were totally color blind to red.—(By Lester Banks in Our Dumb Animals.)

Why Canadian Boys Are Marrying English Girls

Fourteen Thousand Canadian Men Overseas Have Married and More Will Follow—Canadians Have a Way With Them and Most British Bachelors Are Absent

Why are so many of our Canadian boys overseas marrying English girls. A Canadian writer, Jane Anderson, who is in London, Eng., writes describing the new matrimonial front, and her article in the Montreal Standard, is as follows:

The number of Canadians in the armed forces who, since coming overseas, have taken the matrimonial plunge, this month reached a total of nearly 14,000—a figure that exceeds the number of casualties in combat. There is, furthermore, every indication that the toll will continue to mount and many a Canadian girl back home is justified in feeling the motto "absence makes the heart grow fonder" is an old bromide whose effervescence disappeared a long time ago.

"What has that English girl got that's swept my Harry off his feet" the Canadian lass cries as she reads the fatal letter in which Harry confesses he's met the answer to his bachelor's dream in some Sussex village.

Well, of course, to any seasoned observer, the answer is obvious. Harry was lonely and along came English Rose, a nice girl and lots of fun. Her family were always asking him to dinner and Rose's old man often slipped him a quid at the end of his leave. So the first thing Harry knew he was looking a preacher square in the eye and stammering "I do." Beside him Rose, cool and confident, was making her responses and then somebody threw an old shoe that had outlived its coupon value . . . In other words, Harry was one more Canadian married to English girl.

In many instances proximity has been a more potent factor than imagination in promoting romance. A large percentage of Canadians have arrived here footloose and fancy free; they're fair game for any English girl who's a bit tired of the home products. And what many Canadians at home overlook, is that after spending four, three, two or even one year in England, a soldier ceases to regard himself as a visitor. Canadians in uniform who've been here some time know their way around; they've made good friends with English families; they feel out of touch with Canada.

One Canadian officer, who now has an English wife and baby, summed it up this way: "Why wouldn't we marry English girls?" he asked, "I've been here nearly four years. I almost have to think to remember what Canada is like. When I first came over, I was stationed down on the South Coast and several of us were billeted in a private house.

"The people next door had trouble with their pipes, so we used to help them out, and in turn they did all our personal laundry. Well, we made friends with neighbors round about and at Christmas the Canadians gave a big party for all the kids in the town. After that, the place was ours. We were welcome anywhere and more than that, we felt quite at home.

"One night our outfit gave a dance and asked some WRENS stationed nearby. I danced a lot with one WREN; I liked her and eventually we were married. Now I'm back in London, we have a flat and a baby daughter, and I go home every night just as if I were selling bonds back in Montreal."

Canadians Are Different

Canadian girls who want to torment themselves over the infringement on their matrimonial prospects can consider other factors. Canadian men are as different to British men as night is to day. The later, so I'm told, is as casual in his attitude toward women as he is in most other things, and there has been, for some time a shortage of the eligible male species in Britain. In Canada, there isn't men to outnumber women four to one, and the day has long past when the word "obey" in the marriage service had anything other than a quaint significance.

The Canadian boys undoubtedly have a way with them. They also have money to spend and they're generous with it. In fact, it's my opinion that the gay spots of London would fold up if it weren't for the Canadian and American money that's poured into them. They lavish little and unaccustomed attentions on English girls; they buy them flowers at a dollar a bud; bring them candy; take them to parties; they even go on shopping sprees—an expedition that evidently makes the average Britisher quail. Contrast this behavior to the Englishman, who's a bit of a cold fish anyway—usually devoted to his dog. Remember, too, that most English bachelors are out of the country fighting and that, consequently, British girls are starved for affection. One's obvious reaction is surprise that the marriage roster is a mere 14,000.

In addition, those Englishmen who are on the spot at the moment, have the odds stacked against them. Most are working hard and are too tired or too hard up to gallivant around to parties. Then along comes a Canadian. He hasn't a care in the world; he's completely free of responsibility: he's in the best of health and full of animal spirits and he has his pay to spend. All these assets give him a certain joie de vivre that contrasts sharply to the Britisher's casual, rather weary air.

English girls, so the Canadian boys have told me, aren't any better looking than Canadian. They defintely lack the aggressiveness, the zest, the pep of the gals across the ocean. But they do have an indefintely more sophisticated attitude toward their relationship with men than is found in the average small town back in Canada. Shortage of eligible men and high income taxes have made matrimony a bit of a gamble to the English girl. Many who are anxious to marry, grab while the grabbing's good, and it's a combination of forces that catches the Canadian bachelor, hook, line and sinker.

3,000 Children

Whether these marriages will work out is unpredictable, although authorities in the Canadian Army and war services seem to be most optimistic about it. At any rate, 3,000 babies have been officially recorded to date. It's been realized for some time that the English bride will have a lot of adjusting to do when she sets sail for her husband's homeland at the end of the war. At present, the Canadian Legion War Services is dickering with the Canadian Government to promote clubs all over England where British brides can learn about Canada and absorb some idea of our way of life.

In July an experiment in this sort of education was launched in London. The Legion brought 53 English wives from all parts of the country to spend a week as guests of Canada. The girls attended lectures and saw films. Unfortunately there is over here a dearth of people qualified to give an accurate picture of Canadian life. But the Legion made a stab at it. Lord Pennett, told about the historical and political development of the country. A cook from the CWACs gave a talk on cuisine and demonstrated a typical Canadian meal. A Canadian nursing sister outlined women's status in the Dominion and happily ignored the state of affairs in Quebec. Four CWAC officers from British Columbia the prairies, the East and the Maritimes, described life in their home towns. A principal matron of the nursing service gave a resume of hospital medical and general health services. Two senior chaplains, Protestant and Catholic, described the part played by the church in Canadian life.

This somewhat academic approach to the problem evidently was a success. Legion workers tell me many a girl confessed she'd been secretly intending to keep her husband in England after the war, but that she was now looking forward to going out to Canada with him. The Legion, meanwhile, is supplying English wives with pamphlets put out by the Adult Education Association and passing around such books as "The Unknown Country," "Barometer Rising" and Leacock's history of Canada.

But to take it as a foregone conclusion that Canadians overseas are being picked off like a bunch of sitting pheasants by marriage-minded English girls is silly. Besides the 14,000 who are definitely goners, there are still hundreds of thousands of men here who show every indication of sticking it out in single blessedness for the duration.

A Word to Canadian Girls

If I might be permitted to offer advice, I'd say to Canadian girls: "Be Calm!—but write often." My own experiences have proved that our boys still yearn for the girls back home. I was never so popular in my life as the first week I reached London when lads from Canadian services almost mobbed me for news of Canada. "I come from Regina, myself." I remember one air force chap saying, "but tell me what Montreal looked like now—I passed through it on my way over."

On Busses, tubes, elevators, as soon as they hear my accent. I'm continually being stopped by eager Canadians who exclaim: "Say, are you a girl from HOME?"

So again I point out: 14,000 may have weakened but remember—there are lots of stout-hearted men left!

Prairie Dogs In Their Own Western Town

(From the Regina Leader-Post)

Down on the Frenchman river below Otter creek, about a mile from the American border, is the only prairie dog town in the British Empire. The Dominion Government has sent out men to report on it on more than one occasion, and so E. H. M. Knowles, Regina barrister, and a friend, Charles Holmes, of Dollard, both enthusiastic naturalists, decided to pay a visit to the prairie dog town.

The two men travelled by car as close to the "town" as roads allowed. Then they hiked 12 miles into the hills, past Val Marie and Masefield, until they reached the prairie dog colony. There are known to be many prairie dogs in the United States, but a colony the size of this one is a rarity in Canada.

The site of this town is not far from the original march of the Mounties west to Fort Walsh. Behind inaccessible trails and gullies, where the hills are eroded into pinnacles with fossil remains clearly imbedded in them, live the prairie dogs. That part of the country was not covered by the great glacier, and contains an unspoiled rock picture of life in earlier ages. Flora and fauna found there are different from those seen in other parts of the provinces.

* * *

It is the kingdom of cynomys ludovicianus, alias the prairie dog. Little cynomys indovicianus has multiplied profusely in this region, until the population of the prairie dog town has reached 10,000. Four pups form the average litter but families sometimes run to eight. Other inhabitants of this prairie dog region are burrowing owls.

Cynomys indovicianus is not a dog in the ordinary sense of the word. He looks like a cat-sized gopher which is in keeping with his definition as a "burrowing rodent." Average weight of a prairie dog is about three pounds and length about 14½ inches. His bark is more correctly called a squeak. His coat is reddish or greyish buff, and his tail is black-tipped. He lives on vegetation alone.

When seen by Mr. Knowles and Mr. Holmes the prairie dogs sat hunched over the mounds of earth they had thrown up at the entrance to their holes. Straight into the earth for 14 to 16 feet these holes extended and the mounds above them covered the land as far as the eye could see.

All through the area the incessant shrill barking of the dogs was heard. Their tails flicked automatically every time they barked. It was not unlikely that a few roaming coyotes prowled in the vicinity looking for food.

* * *

At any rate, the prairie dogs were nervous. Once scared down their holes, they would not appear again for hours. Prairie dogs in this town were the hardest animals he had ever stalked, Mr. Knowles said. It took great care to get to within 75 yards of them. Before he left the town, he had obtained a number of snapshots of the animals, but he had to move forward behind a brushwood blind to get close enough to them.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 19

From a drawer he took a sheet of paper the size of a newspaper page and placed it before Edith, who looked at it with eyes that grew more and more haggard. It was worse far worse, than she had feared. It was actually illustrated by pictures of her children from babyhood to their present ages; pictures she had loved and cherished, which no one but close family friends had ever possessed. They must have been obtained from someone to whom she had personally given them in the glowing pride of motherhood.

The text was an intimate study of her family life and touched on things no one but a close friend—or one who had been a close friend—could have knewn. . . Suddenly she knew who must have written it. Simon Osborne! The Uncle Simon her children adored. . . . .

"You see, Mrs. Osborne," said the editor soothingly, "there isn't a word that could be considered actionable. It is merely a simple record of family life and of a tragedy which entered into it. Sympathetically treated, I'm sure you will agree?"

"It's horrible," said Edith in a hushed tone. "It rips away the last shred of privacy that was left to us. It is as though your million readers were marching into our house and watching us eating—sleeping—brushing our teeth?"

"You think so? I am inclined to agree. As a matter of fact, that's why I bought it. Nothing pleases the public more than a good human interest story and this one is really well done."

"Mr. Snaith, I appeal to you. Don't print this story. Don't! Can't you see what it will do to my family? We've suffered so much already. We've been through such a lot. Now people are beginning to forget. This will start it all over again."

"Mrs. Osborne, I'm sorrier than I can say. Sometimes I have to do things I dislike intensely. This is one of them. I've been a newspaperman for almost twenty years, and I assure you I've never printed a story with wider appeal than this one. To kill it is impossible. I'm sorry, but I just can't do it!"

"Why the murder of my sister-in-law is not news. It is an old story."

"But a story of which the public is not likely to tire, Mrs. Osborne; and this approaches it from a new angle. There is nothing so absorbing, you know, as an unsolved murder. Most murders die on us with startling abruptness as soon as the murderer is tried and hanged. There is something final about a hanging; it leaves us with nothing more to say. But an unsolved murder—that's always a story. It offers endless grounds for speculation. The public loves it."

"Am I to understand, then, that this is not a single isolated story? Do you mean to go on raking up the scandal indefinitely?"

"Not the Sunday World, Mrs. Osborne. We'd soon lose our readers if we harped on the same string too long. No, this story will finish the case for us for a time, at least, but some other paper is sure to rehash it before long. It was a meaty murder, you know; too meaty to be dropped. Why, the man who wrote our story is writing a novel based on the case. He's calling it: 'Murder in the Family,' I'm told. I don't suppose his will be the only book the case will inspire. Unsolved murders have a way of popping up in print—again and again."

"So that even after I am dead, and my children are grown men and women, this awful business will haunt them?"

"When you die, Mrs. Osborne, the Osborne mystery will feature in your obituary notice. When one of your daughters marries, the papers will remind their readers that she is a niece of a murdered woman whose murder was never solved. If one of your sons distinguishes himself—"

"Stop! Stop!" cried Edith, ashen to the lips. "I can't bear it!"

"I am indeed sorry, Mrs. Osborne. I was trying to make you see my point. I can't kill this story. It's too full of public interest."

"Forever and ever. On and on. Always this curse on my unhappy family—"

"Unless, of course, the police discover the murderer. As I said hanging is final in more ways than one."

Mr. Snaith solemnly lit a fresh cigarette with rather more care than was necessary. He seemed lost in sad thought. At last he looked up.

"I hesitate to suggest this, but since the publicity is inevitable, there seems no reason why you shouldn't benefit in some way from it. Why don't you write me a story giving your own angle on the case? I can offer you—say — two thousand dollars—"

Edith did not answer. She only looked at him; that was all. It was enough.

"Sorry," he said uncomfortably. "Thought I'd just mention the offer."

As she left the building Edith was mocked by an array of posters on the opposite wall. With pitiless monotony they screamed:

READ
THE FAMILY THAT CANNOT FORGET
AN ABSORBING DOCUMENT
In Next Week's SUNDAY WORLD
Over 1,000,000 Readers

The posters were repeated on each of a long line of trucks ranked outside the building. The words hammered on her bram . . .

Numb, miserable, she sat in a teashop so long that the waitresses began to discuss her among themselves. "Looks as though she's seen a ghost." "Seen a ghost? Looks like a ghost herself, if you ask me!"

The pot of tea she had ordered, as an excuse for sitting down, grew stone cold, untouched . . .

• •

Lunch was over, the dishes washed and dried and for an hour no pressing duty called for Hannah's attention, so she collected the silver and began to polish it. She put all her brawn into the task. Hannah was a firm believer in elbow-grease. While she rubbed and buffeted, her mind was as busy as her tireless arms.

There was something wrong she knew. It was not merely the brooding shadow which had hung over the household for long months. That had begun to abate. This was something tense and terrible, something that had only evinced itself within the past twenty-eight hours, something that had plunged her mistress back into the gloom from which she had gradually emerged.

It had been late last night when her employer had returned from New York and gone straight to bed with a headache. There had been no need for her to say that she had a headache; it had been written in the grey pallor of her face. This morning, for the first time in many years, she had remained in bed. She had refused food and answered Hannah's anxious enquiries in dry, toneless monosyllables.

The master had been upstairs and down all morning and every time he had come down his expression had been more unhappy than before. Now he was mooning about in theg arden among his precious roses. Oh, something was wrong, there was no doubt about that!

Stephen came into the kitchen and stood by the door undecidedly, stroking his hair nervously.

"I suppose—my wife—she hasn't rung for you, Hannah? Or—or anything?"

"No, sir, she has not. And—taking a liberty—if I were you, sir, I'd let her be. She doesn't want to be disturbed."

"I—I expect you're right," he said huskily.

He went through the hall and Hannah heard him wearily mounting the stairs. She shook her head. The master's fussing and fretting was doing the mistress no good. Rub. Rub. Rub. In her abstraction Hannah put fresh polish on silver she had already shone to perfection.

What was that? It sounded like a cry. No, not a cry; it was a hoarse growl! Hannah pushed open the kitchen door and listened. The house was still—she shivered—still as the grave. She stood listening and after a time she heard dragging footsteps crossing the floor overhead. Back and forward they went two or three times, and then she heard a door opening and the steps came out to the upper floor landing.

The first Hannah saw of her employer when he started to descend the stairs was his feet. Her mouth opened and remained like that. His feet seemed to fumble their way down as though he had lost all power to guide them. They made her scalp prickle. It seemed an age before his legs followed and then his body. Hannah saw his face; his staring eyes. All the horror of Death and Disaster was in his wide, stricken eyes. His mouth was slack, as though some terrible blow had shattered it.

"Good gracious, sir, what is it? Mr. Osborne! What's wrong, sir?"

Stephen looked at her, trembling as though with the ague.

"The doctor, Hannah," he muttered hoarsely. "Go quickly . . . the doctor."

Stephen went through the kitchen, out of the house. There was something in his hand. Hannah could not see what it was. With a gasp, she darted upstairs. At the door of Edith Osborne's room she raised her hand to knock, but some power stronger than habit drove her headlong into the room.

She came to an abrupt halt at the foot of the bed. All the strength drained out of her at what she saw as she clutched at the bed-rail for support.

Hannah tried to speak, to stammer out something, but her paralyzed tongue would not utter words. As abruptly as she had entered the room, she hurried from it and clattered down the stairs. Throwing wide the front door, Hannah ran out of the house.

Hurrying along the road she was stopped by Miss Whipple, who caught her arm and stared at her with glistening eyes.

"What's wrong, Hannah? Has anything happened?"

Hannah glared like a mad woman.

"Get away, ou vulture!" she cried. "Take your hands off me! Let go!"

Tearing herself free, she ran across the road and beat a frantic tatoo on the knocker on Dr. Denham's front door.

"I want the doctor," she panted to the startled maid who opened the door. "The doctor—quick!"

The commotion brought Dr. Denham into the hall. He looked curiously at Hannah's distorted face and dishevelled hair.

"My good woman, whatever—"

"It's Mrs. Osborne, Doctor, it's Mrs. Osborne! She's very sick—perhaps dying! Oh, Doctor come quick! I'm feared she's dead."

"I'll come at once."

Dr. Denham went into his office and took a case from the corner. He hesitated, stroking his lower lip thoughtfully. Suddenly he lifted the telephone receiver.

"County police headquarters?" he said, when the call was answered. "This is Dr. Denham of Lakelawn. Inspector Burrows? I—I. The Osborne's maid is here—says Mrs. Osborne may be dying. No, she didn't say anything to suggest foul play, but her manner . . . Yes, that's what I thought. I wasn't sure, but I thought you might. You're coming at once? Very well."

The impression of something much worse than serious illness which Dr. Denham had received from Hannah, was confirmed almost as soon as he entered Edith Osborne's room. His lips tightened, his eyes grew stern.

He looked up and met Hannah's horrified gaze. "Is she—is she—"

"Go downstairs," he said quietly, "and fetch me a tablespoonful of mustard in a tumbler of lukewarm water. Hurry, woman, hurry!"

Hannah was gone before the last words were uttered. In an incredibly short time she was back with the tumbler in her hand. Dr. Denham was bending over her employer. A hypodermic syringe gleamed in his steady fingers.

"Bring hot water bottles," he said, taking the glass without looking at Hannah, "and all the blankets you can find."

For some minutes the doctor and Hannah were too busy to think. When at last the doctor stood back from the bed, Hannah clutched his arm desperately.

"Will she live? Oh, Doctor, will she live?"

"I'm afraid not. She has only about one chance in a hundred."

Hannah broke down and wept, her hoarse sobs shaking her great frame.

"For heaven's sake, don't do that!" the doctor said irritably. "Who else is in the house?"

"Only Mr. Osborne. Oh, but he went out."

"Only Mr. Osborne, eh? H'm . ." Dr. Denham took a few paces back and forwards. "You'd better go to the kitchen, Hannah. I'll call you when the police arrive."

Hannah gaped at him.

"The police!" she repeated.

"I said the police," snapped Dr. Denham huskily. "They've got to be called in in —er—cases like these. They'll be here soon."

The door opened and Stephen stood on the threshold. Dr. Denham went over to him, preventing him from coming further into the room.

"Doctor! My wife . . . will she live?"

A sob rose in Stephen's throat.

"There is nothing you can do here, Mr. Osborne," said the doctor quietly. "But you'd better remain within call. I've summoned the police."

Stephen gave him a long look and stumbled down the stairs.

Hannah sat in her kitchen, all the pulsing life gone out of her, slumped heavily in a chair like a sack dumped in a corner. The physician paced the bedroom, biting his lips, until he went downstairs to open the door when a car drew up at the gate with a squealing of brakes.

Sheriff Black came hurrying up the path, followed by Inspector Burrows and Sergeant Feathers. The Sheriff looked inquiringly at Doctor Denham.

"She isn't dead," said the doctor hoarsely. "But I'm afraid there's no hope for her. She has taken—or been given—poison. Strychnine."

"There's something else," responded Black keenly. "I can see it in your face."

"Yes. I'm afraid there is something else," agreed the doctor shakily. "Some months ago, Stephen Osborne was run down and I—I prescribed strychnine."

The Sheriff took the stairs two at a time, followed by the others. He looked at the limp form of Edith Osborne, swathed in blankets, and his expression grew grim. Inspector Burrows prowled about the bed.

Always Felt "Dead Tired" Weak, Listless, Rundown

Lost Time From Work, Suffered Stomach Troubles and Constipation, But Is Like New Person Since Taking Syntona.

There is scarcely a person who at one time or another has not suffered from functional stomach, kidney, liver or bowel disorders and the long train of symptoms that often follow. Such people suffer from gas, bloat, indigestion, nervous irritability, dizzy feelings, backache, rheumatic pains, get tired easily and feel rundown.

For example here is the experience of Mr. Elwood R. Hill, King William St., Hamilton.

"I was badly rundown and felt so miserable I had to lay off work. I seemed to have lost all my energy and, although I felt dead tired at night my nerves were so upset I couldn't sleep. There were aching pains all through my back, limbs and joints. My appetite was very poor, yet what little food I ate caused gas and heartburn, followed by belching up of hot, sour liquids. In fact, I always had a bloated, nauseated sensation in my stomach. I often had dizzy feelings and was badly constipated. Being only a young man, I knew I should be enjoying good health and couldn't figure out what was wrong.

"Finally I read in the paper how other people were being helped by Syntona, so I began taking it, too.

MR. ELWOOD R. HILL

I think it was only a matter of a few days when I noticed an improvement. The troubles with my stomach and bowels then grew less and less as I kept taking it. My appetite picked up and I began to regain my lost strength. One by one my other troubles went away, until now I am like an entirely different person. I work steadily without feeling tired or nervous, and am surprised how good I feel when I am through for the day. I think more people should know about this fine medicine."

Go to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST in Belleville, and find out how Syntona can help you, too.

$65 Rehabilitation Money Not Enough Says Toronto Bd.

Toronto, Dec. 16 (CP)—Toronto Board of Control today decided to inform Defence Minister Ralston that "the proposed rehabilitation of $65" to discharged soldiers, is inadequate.

The Board also will request the Defence Department to review all sums of money previously paid discharged soldiers and to adjust the allowance from the former amount of $35 to $65.

Controller Fred Hamilton said he considers the $65 "still not enough, but at least we should see everyone gets it."

Air Minister Power announced recently that men discharged from the services will receive $65 to purchase necessary clothes. Previously discharged men received $35.

Delegate-General Of Germany Arrives In Budapest

Ankara, Dec. 15 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Reports that Germany is bringing strong diplomatic pressure to bear to keep her uneasy Balkan satellites in line were reinforced today by a Turkish press dispatch from Budapest disclosing the arrival in the Hungarian capital of Hans Neubacher, German delegate-general to the Balkans.

The purpose of Neubacker's visit, the dispatch said, remained a secret, but it coincided with growing agitation in Budapest for the recall of Hungarian troops from the Russian front.

The Bucharest correspondent of theAnatolian news agency, meanwhile, said that Turkey's position with relation to the war had become a prime topic of discussion in the Rumanian capital and that the new Russian-Czechoslovak Mutual Assistance pact also had created a stir.

FIRE DESTROYS PLANT

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 16 —(AP)— The incendiary bomb casting plant of the Austin Bridge Company here was destroyed last night by flames from fiercely burning and exploding magnesium which cast a dazzling white glow visible to airliner pilots 225 miles distant.

The loss was reported to be several million dollars.

Despite the intensity of the heat, no injuries were reported.

Sidney Cheese and Butter Association Has Successful Yr.

Make of Cheese Totalled 253,230 Pounds—Officers Elected

3rd. Sidney — The annual meeting of the Sidney Cheese and Butter Association was held on Friday last, at the factory.

The usual lunch of buns, cheese and coffee was served at the noon hour.

The afternoon meeting followed with timely addresses by Mr. Sherriff, dairy instructor for the district; Mr. Jewell, manager of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce, and Lt. Col. Vanderwater of Foxboro, who was speaking in the interests of the Federation of Agriculture.

There was a general feeling of loss and regret, occasioned by the absence of a valued member of the association, the late Arthur Bunnett whose death occurred earlier in the year.

The business of the day was efficiently carried on by the chairman, Mr. Roy Thrasher.

There were 253,230 pounds of cheese manufactured during the season, with an average price of 49.12 per standard.

The officers elected were as follows: President, Stanley Spafford; Secretary Treasurer, Fred Westover; Directors, Cyril McMullen, Gilbert Sills, Harleigh Hamilton, Roy Thrasher, John Cook, Ernest Kells.

Before the meeting was adjourned, the milk routes were sold, and all items of business were discussed and settled.

Annual Christmas Concert

The pupils of S. S. No. 4 Sidney known as the Hogle school with Miss Hazel Detlor as teacher, presented a fine Christmas program of songs, recitations, dialogues and drills at their annual concert held at the school on the evening of Dec. 15th. Musical numbers which added greatly to the evening's entertainment were vocal solos by Mr. Wilkinson, a member of the R.C.A.F. and piano solos by the music instructor for the school, Mr. Wildman of Trenton.

The numbers presented by the pupils of the school were well received and both pupils and teacher are to be highly commended for the fine performance in music, song and dialogue. The drill by the junior girls was exceptionally well done, as was each number on the program. Recitations by little Miss Marilyn Brickman and Sandra Kenny, who are too young to attend school delighted the audience.

On behalf of the trustees, Mr. Fred Moon expressed appreciation to Miss Detlor and to all who had contributed in the presentation of the program.

The gaily lighted and well laden Christmas tree, and the appearance of Santa Claus delighted the hearts of the children.

The evening's proceeds amounted to over $17.

Mrs. Phillips of Trenton is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Allan Latta, and attended the concert held at the Hogle school on Wednesday evening.

Beef and Pork Products Glut U. S. Warehouses

New York, Dec. 16. (AP)—Stockyards and slaughterhouses in the United States now have more beef and pork than they can handle and vast quantities will spoil unless an immediate two-week meat rationing moratorium is called, says George A. Casey, Independent Meat Packers Association President.

He told a New York State Legislative Committee on Nutrition Public Hearing yesterday that stockyards could not be cleared daily because of an oversupply of hogs and that the government had asked farmers to hold back livestock from the market.

Eastern slaughterhouses, he said, are working overtime to process meat which cannot be sent abroad immediately under lend-lease because of shipping shortages and cannot be released to the public because of rationing.

Beef and pork products, he declared, are "glutting every meat warehouse east of Ohio".

Under a suspension of rationing, he added meat could be sold at regular United States office of Price Administration ceiling prices and would deal "a death blow to the black market".

23 CARS DERAILED

One of Accused Seen in Windsor Night of Robbery

Chatham, Dec. 16. (CP)—Evidence that Vernard Gates, one of five Windsor men charged with the $34,227 armed robbery of the Wheatley, Ont., branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, was in Windsor the morning of the hold-up was submitted in court today when Constable Jack Blair of the Windsor police force testified he met gates on a Windsor street about 1.30 a.m., September 10.

Gates, along with Allan Baldwin, Leo Dubroy, Peter Devlin and Franklin Smith, is charged with holding Willard Forshee, Wheatley bank manager, and his wife prisoner in their apartment late Sept. 9, as a prelude to the next morning's robbery.

Constable Blair stated he and Gates had gone to High School together and knew each other well. He said Gates approached him on Wyandotte Street and in the conversation that ensued said he was on holiday. The policemen said he could not remember Gates ever having accosted him on the street before.

Mrs. Vernard Gates testified that her husband was home the night of Sept. 9, went out about midnight and returned later in the morning.

The trial is continuing.

Polish Premier To Meet Eden

London, Dec. 16 — (CP) — Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer are expected to see Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden soon following a Polish cabinet discussion today of the new Czecho-Slovak-Soviet treaty.

Dr. Hubert Ripka, acting Czech foreign minister, told the Czecho-Slovak state council meeting that the treaty "enables other nations of central Europe and in particular the Polish nation to arrive at such a degree of co-operation with the neighboring Soviet power as distinguishes the Soviet-Czecho-Slovak relationship, a co-operation which is based upon the principle of mutual respect for their freedom and independence."

Ripka said the governments of the U.S.S.R. and Czecho-Slovakia had in mind a tri-partite pact with Poland when they provided a protocol for a third state to join the treaty signed this week in Moscow.

CHRISTMAS TREES OFFERED ON MARKET

Vendors proffering Christmas trees to brighten the corner of the living room, where Santa Claus will visit on the eve of December 24th, constituted the local market on Thursday with at least seven or eight farmers having numbers of young balsams and spruce for sale. Appearances would thus indicate there will be no shortage of Christmas trees upon which to hang Yuletide offerings despite fears earlier in the season. Prices for the trees ranged from 25 cents up to $1 according to the size and quality.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 15. (AP)—Diverse price movements continued to cloud the stock market today as Liquors exhibited further strength and scattered Rails met substantial pressure.

Whisky dividend hopes remained as a spur for the Distillers while calling off a National Railway strike and refusal of the I.C.C. to permit a Chesapeake & Ohio stock dividend helped depress carriers.

Few recoveries were in evidence near the fourth hour. Dealings were relatively slow.

Canadian stocks were irregular. Dome Mines and Distillers Seagrams added fractions. Hiram Walker was down a fraction and Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore were unchanged.

American Distilling and Park & Tilford ran up as much as five points after the opening but the former eventually slipped. Chesapeake & Ohio nose-dived but came back moderately although preferreds of Alleghany Corp., which owns about 25 per cent of C. & O., dropped three to four points.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 16. (CP) — The Gold and Industrial stocks displayed weaknesses in the early market on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the Base Metals were narrowly higher. Volume was moderate at 167,000 shares for the first three hours.

Heavy action in Upper Canada at a gain of 10 cents or more featured the gold share trade. Dome and Leitch firmed slightly while prices were down for Kerr-Addison, Malartic Gold Fields, McKenzie, Chesterville and Macassa. Lake Shore weakened 5-8 to 14. Smelters, Nickel and Pend Oreille were higher Base Metals.

Utilities were fairly strong and other industrial groups were unchanged to narrowly lower. B.C. Power A gained a point to 26 and the Winnipeg electric issues were higher.

Two issues of Federal Grain Limited, the 30,000 outstanding 6 1-2 per cent cumulative redeemable preference shares and 160,000 outstanding Class A common shares. The preference stock sold around 75.

Western Oil issues were quiet and firm.

Minerals in Ocean Helping Us Gain Victory Over Axis

Ocean Water Yields Vast Stores of Materials—Magnesium is Good Example and Every Day Tons of This Mineral, Vital in War Manufacture Are Taken from Sea

By Ross L. Holman in the "American Mercury"

The earth's most fabulous mine is the ocean. It is chock full of precious metals and chemicals for which a ration mad world is yearning. It would require only a trickle of its vast resources to break bottlenecks by the dozen and priorities by the score.

This estimate of sea wealth is not the fantasy of a crackpot dreamer, but of highly responsible chemists.

Sea water contains gold, silver, radium, iodine, calcium and many other elements. Sea weeds contain still more. The problem of getting these untapped treasures into the service of humanity is no longer one of discovery, but of chemical skill.

While it wasn't the first product to which sea water gave birth, magnesium has captured the spotlight as one vital wartime metal that the ocean raised to superabundance. Before the first World war, Germany supplied all the magnesium we needed and we needed mighty little. During that conflict the Dow Chemical company made from its Michigan salt wells the first magnesium manufactured in this country.

Up to recently this metal came from the ground, but chemists now say that it can be processed from sea water with much less effort because it eliminates the need of washing it from the dirt. The magnesium needs of World War II have pushed our pre-war production requirements into a demand of astronomical proportions. We use 180 pounds of it in the average airplane to replace 270 pounds of aluminum. Still more of it goes into star shells, signal flares, tracer bullets, incendiary bombs and what have you. Chemists estimate there are 5,700,000 tons of this metal in each of the ocean's 320,000,000 cubic miles.

Down at Freeport, Tex., Dow's plant used 300,000,000 gallons a day of gulf water to help manufacture the yearly 400,000,000 pound war and civilian demand for magnesium. That sounds like a whale of a lot of water to be strained for a little metal, but even at such rates of consumption it will be 25 years before we can use up the first cubic mile of ocean.

To get the metal out of this water requires three steps. You first mix lime water with sea water to convert its soluble magnesium salts into milk of magnesia. The milk of magnesia is then treated with acid to convert it into a kind of molten product called magnesium chloride. This is charged with electric current. This final process yields solid magnesium at one electrode and chlorine gas at the other.

Chlorine gas, by the way, is another sea water product of great potential war value. We can use it to choke the Japs in gas warfare if they start anything funny in that direction.

Salt is the cheapest and most plentiful source of sodium, chlorine and sodium carbonate. More than 3,000,000 tons of the latter are used each year in the manufacture of glass, soap and paper.

Probably the most important byproducts of salt manufacture used in the war effort are bromine and chlorine, both byproducts of the sea water magnesium plants. Bromine is employed in the manufacture of high octane gasoline. The principal military uses of chlorine, aside from war gases, are in bleaching of cotton linters to make smokeless powder and in making tetrachloride for smoke screens.

Our biggest pile of mined gold is in Fort Knox, Ky. Our largest supply of unmined gold is in the ocean. How to make the sea shake loose this metal in paying quantities has intrigued the imagination of scientists and dream chasers for many years. Using electrochemical processes somewhat like those employed in electroplating, the sea has been made to give up its gold, but as yet it costs five times as much to mine sea water for this metal as the extracted gold is worth.

Many of the ocean's chemicals are stored in the 8,000 or more species of plants that grow in the sea and vary in size from the microscopic to forest tree proportions. They are nourished by the water in which they live and in this way collect some of the sea's chemical materials that science is using and others it hopes to use.

Since the war started, the use of seaweed fertilizer in England has increased at a phenomenal rate. Imports of commercial potash have been cut, but seaweed is found to have twice as much potash per ton as barnyard manure. It also has 50 per cent more phosphoric acid, a lot of mineral salts and a small amount of nitrogen. It would be hard to find any product that more completely fills the fertilizer needs of land.

* * *

We are not only mining the sea for minerals and chemicals but we are going beneath the ocean floor for new worlds to conquer. One of the products we now find there in increasing abundance is oil. Many scientists predict that at the present rate of consumption the known supply of petroleum in this country will be exhausted in 14 years. If oil can be discovered beneath the ocean in the same recoverable quantities as in dry land areas one of our bottleneck anxieties will be eased for generations to come.

So far, our facilities for ocean drilling are sufficient only for shallow areas. If the sea is found to be a rich field for exploration it is reasonable to believe that deep water prospecting will follow. The Russians have extended their Baku oil fields far into the Caspian waters. Many profitable oil wells have been drilled off the shore of California. They were bored at the extreme end of piers, stretching in to the water. Some of them are drilled slantwise from the shore to reach oil deposits below the ocean floor.

Off the shore of Galeston bay the Standard Oil Co. has drilled several wells, in that bay the company engineers made seismograph surveys of 263,000 subocean acres. The wells were drilled from pile foundations and sunken barges at a distance of one or two miles from shore. Oil slicks have been discovered on the water as far as 100 miles from the shore, which suggests the possibility of new oil fields all over this vast unexplored area.

* * *

Another mineral found under the ocean floor is iron. This metal is mined under the sea at Newfoundland by means of a tunnel that extends two miles under the water from the shore.

Besides providing a vast storehouse of raw material for our industrial economy the sea may some day be mined for the electric power to process its own products. Harnessing the force represented by the ebb and flow of tides has long intrigued the imagination of engineers. The abandoned Passamaquoddy project in Maine was an effort in this direction. The failure thus far to bridle energy is due primarily to the fact that most authorities in the field believe a way has not yet been found to do it economically.

In every cubic mile of sea water are 160,000,000 tons of chemical elements. Included in every cube of water this size are $25,000,000 worth of gold, $60,000,000 worth of iodine, 250,000 tons of bromine, 5,700,000 tons of magnesium—and the end is not yet.

* * *

The total value of all the materials in that one cubic mile is at least $5,000,000. Multiply that by 320,000,000 and you have a staggering idea of the economic value of the world's biggest piece of undeveloped real estate. Until they can be recovered, however, sea treasures are worth no more to us than gold on the planet Mars.

LIVES AFTER FALLING 700 FEET

One of the war's most hair-raising experiences belongs to Pte. W. J. Robson, of Burlington, Ont., a Canadian paratrooper who dropped 700 feet to the ground in Britain when his parachute became entangled and lived to tell the tale. Suffering severe injuries but on the mend, Robson is pictured in his bed aboard the Canadian army hospital train carrying war casualties to their homes across Canada. The accident occurred when Robson's chute opened only far enough to make him land on one foot, thus preventing instant death. — (Canadian Army Photo.)

Housekeeping Is Big Job At Presidential Mansion

Gold Plate, Exotic Foods and Official Pomp Disappear—Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt Charged With Many Duties—Interesting Facts About White House

When you have 50 to 60 people in for dinner, with all the attendant cooking and serving problems and protocol, besides, you've got a household problem to end all domestic problems. But that's what happens constantly at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., to Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt, declares Coronet magazine. Mrs. Nesbitt keeps house for President and Mrs. President.

"Only More So"

Except as to scale, her domestic worries are not much different from the average housewife's, according to Coronet. "Just like running an ordinary house, only more so," says Mrs. Nesbitt. In the historic east room of the White House, for example, the 87½ foot parquet floor must shine like a mirror 365 days a year in spite of the fact that most grand receptions have been cancelled for the duration. Mercifully the famous gold piano had been removed to the National Museum and replaced by a more practical instrument. But the three mammoth crystal chandeliers still must be cleaned once a year, six men spending a day and a half on each.

White House Kitchen

The old White House kitchen has been divided into three glass-walled rooms with working surfaces and linen cupboards of stainless steel, several refrigerators and five dishwashers. Cooking is performed on an extensive electric stove with built-in pancake griddle. A miniature portable steam table conveys hot food to any part of the mansion. The fish-box, full of crushed ice, is well loaded these days, a drug-store size ice cream pack holds thirty gallons, an electrical unit keeps frozen food at zero. The electrically-operated stock-pot with a faucet on it recalls those ancient cook-book recipes that start off, "take half an ox . . ." The electrical food-choppers, meat grinder and batter-mixer are gigantic. But, declares Coronet, this Paul Bunyan touch makes sense. Necessarily the White House must buy chickens by the dozen just as it buys its napkins and sheets by the gross. When Mrs. Nesbitt orders the meat she usually calls the kind of big supply house that caters to hotels. Vegetables come from another supply house, canned goods from a jobber. Only pies and quick-breads are baked in White House ovens, cakes, bread, candy and ice cream being purchased from a bakery which has become the rage in Washington since it acquired White House patronage.

No Pomp Now

Before the war, the horseshoe table in sections was frequently set up to accommodate the state dining-room's maximum of one hundred and ten, the gold table service bought by President Monroe in France being used on state occasions and the food bills running at times to around $2,500 a month. Now entertaining has been cut to the official bone, the gold service is packed away and 50 or 60 people are about tops at table. But that is still plenty of people, observes Mrs. Nesbitt as she counts up White House ration points. Courses have been cut to three and game or fish substituted for meat at even the most formal dinners. A sample Sunday dinner for the Roosevelts may be shrimp cocktail, roast duck with dressing, apple sauce, squash, string beans, mashed potatoes, ice cream, cake and coffee. Such a dinner saves points—and as every housewife has to consider when planning—it's satisfying and tasty as well!

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Fleming was called to Belmont Lake on Friday owing to the illness of their daughter, Mrs. Roger Young.

Carmen Alton of Tweed Foundries was in Montreal this last week on business.

The high wind and cold snap of Friday night resulted in blowing in several windows and causing frozen pipes in some places of business.

The Ladies Adult Bible Class gave a supper on Friday night in the basement of the United Church, and was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Brownson left for their home in Seymour, Wisconsin, on Wednesday after an extended visit with relatives. Mrs. Brownson is a sister of Mrs. S. B. McGee of this place.

The Mission Band of the United Church gave its annual Christmas concert Tuesday Dec. 14 in the church parlor. There was a good attendance. The Mission Band leaders, Mrs. S. H. Connor and Mrs. Charles Porritt deserve much credit. The program of drills, choruses, pageant and solos was well received by the audience.

Girls Are More Expensive

(Metropolitan Life Bulletin)

The cost of providing a boy or girl with clothing up to age 18 in an average family of $2,500 income annually can be estimated from data issued by the national resources planning board and the U.S. bureau of labor statistics.

The figures, based on 1935-1936 prices, show that for the first two years of life the clothing budget for the baby is about $14 a year. As the youngster becomes more active, the expenditure for clothes increases and amounts to about $25 annually for a boy during the next four years. When he enters school at 6, the bill jumps about $10 a year and increases to $45 annually toward the end of the elementary school period. From age 15 up to 18, the clothing bill for the boy is about $64 a year.

For girls, the amount spent differs little from that for boys up to age 12; beyond that, however, the expenditure for girls is $10 a year more than for boys. To sum up the cost of clothing a boy up to age 18 totals, on the basis of prewar prices, $672; for a girl, the expenditures for wearing apparel are $75 higher, or $747.

EATON EMPLOYEES' WAR AUXILIARY
Oh Boy—it's from the Gang at EATON'S!

MERRY CHRISTMAS . . . . 4,485 TIMES!

4,485 members of the family . . . away from home for Christmas! That's the way we think of them . . . our Eatonians in the forces, and the Company and the Employees' War Auxiliary are combining to send a parcel to every single one.

And what a lot of planning and thought went into those parcels! . . . big, sturdy, tightly packed boxes that fairly bulge with good things . . . warm knitted comforts from the Auxiliary; the extra "trimmings" from the Company. In all of them . . . candy, nuts and gum, with a big, luscious slab of fruit cake. To the boys, razor blades and shoe laces, flints, wicks, "smokes" and the like. And, for the girls, endearingly feminine things, such as lipsticks and cleansing cream and skin balm.

It's our way of saying "Merry Christmas" to these "special" people of ours. They're wearing navy blue and khaki and air force blue now . . . flying over Berlin, and, taking towns in Italy; running the U-boat gauntlet from Halifax to Valetta; waiting for Victory in German prison camps. Some of them cook and type letters and chart operations. Some are out in Saskatchewan and Alaska and Labrador. Their jobs are different—and a long, long way from home. But they're still our "family" and, wherever they are . . . whatever they do . . .

A Merry Christmas to them all, indeed! Let us all hope we'll say it in person next year!

BERLIN LEFT REELING AFTER HEAVY ALLIED RAID

Capital Attacked By Mighty Force Of Large Bombers

Berlin's Whitehall In Wilhelmstrasse Heavily Hit Says Swiss Report

30 BOMBERS MISSING

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17 — (CP Cable) — A mighty force of British and Canadian heavy bombers attacked Berlin in great strength Thursday night and early reports today indicated the world's most-bombed city was left reeling anew under the impact of its sixth shattering blow in a month.

The attack was believed as heavy as the last major raid Dec. 2. The Air Ministry announced that more than 1,500 tons of high explosives and incendiaries were dropped from hundreds of four-engined Lancaster bombers.

Swiss reports said the Wilhelmstrasse, Berlin's Whitehall, was heavily hit.

Thirty bombers are missing. Four R.C.A.F. bombers were lost.

R.C.A.F. Squadrons Take Part

Several squadrons of R.C.A.F. bombers from the Canadian group took part in the raid. Returning Canadian airmen reported a number of engagements with Nazi night fighters and they agreed that the capital was given a staggering blow.

Among the Canadian formations were the Thunderbird and Goose squadrons.

The raid began at an unusually early hour last night to avoid moonlight.

Private information received in Stockholm said big fires were raging in Berlin. Swedish correspondents said, however, that foreign newspapermen in Berlin were forbidden from describing last night's raid.

Transport System Paralyzed

Stockholm said the information available indicated the German capital had suffered very heavily, especially in the centre area. Telephone communication between Stockholm and Berlin was irregular. Berlin's transport was reported paralyzed with streets blocked by rubble.

Launched From Britain

The sixth raid on the capital in a month was launched from Britain just after American heavy bombers returned in twilight from daylight raids on northwest Germany. U. S. headquarters did not specify the target, but the German communique said the fleets were over Heligoland Bay and "dropped a great number of high explosives and incendiary bombs on residential quarters in a number of localities in northwestern Germany" and Bremen. It acknowledged particularly heavy damage to Bremen itself, the big U-boat base which the Americans battered on Nov. 26 and 29.

With last night's attack, which came before bomb-exhausted Berliners had a chance to fall asleep, more than 15,000 tons of high explosives and incendiaries have been showered upon the blackened and shattered city.

There was no clear indication of what area of Berlin the R.A.F. concentrated on although private information reaching Sweden indicated that the central section had suffered heavily.

The Swiss radio said the foreign office district was struck, and one Berlin broadcast clung to the familiar line that the residential area had been the target.

The German high command, in its broadcast communique, acknowledged only that "considerable damage" had resulted.

Weather over Berlin prevented accurate observation of results, the Air Ministry said, but a reconnaissance plane which scouted the target later reported seeing large fires and great columns of smoke rising above the clouds.

While the heavy bombers were busy over Berlin formations of fleet R.A.F. Mosquitos stabbed at unspecified objectives in Western Germany and other British planes attacked targets in Northern France. Mines also were laid in enemy waters, the Air Ministry said.

Government Offices Hit

A German broadcast said bombs fell in Berlin's residential areas, but the Swiss radio later declared that many dropped in the previously-damaged Wilhelmstrasse section wherein lie the important Nazi government offices.

RCAF Airmen Say Capital of German Reich Received a Staggering Blow

MANY NIGHT FIGHTERS

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17 —(CP Cable)— R. C. A. F. airmen who took part with the R. A. F. in last night's mighty smash at Berlin agreed today that the German capital received a staggering blow.

"Heavy cloud made it difficult to assess with accuracy but judging from the glow I think our concentration of bombs must have done great damage to Berlin," said 20-year-old Flt. Lt. Rod Dunphy, navigation leader of the Canadian Thunderbird squadron, whose home is in Winnipeg.

Canadians told of many encounters with Nazi night fighters.

Flt. Sgt. D. R. Waddell of Sperling, Man., a bombaimer in the Thunderbird squadron, said that as he left for home he could see the glow of fires but thick clouds prevented a view of more than a reflected glare.

Area Blanketed

German night fighters dropped flares which illuminated the path for 25 miles as the Canadians were on their way in to the target, Waddell reported, adding the searchlights blanketed the area.

"There was an unusually large number of flares and the rising moon helped light up the target area above the clouds," he said. "We could plainly see a Focke-Wulf-190 which slipped across our bows from the north just as we dropped our bombs. As we dived the rear-gunner opened up on him but there wasn't a chance to see if any damage was done before he disappeared."

"If the markers were right—and judging from the bright red glow they were, as usual—then we gave Berlin another good pasting," said PO. K. A. Decker of Kitchener, Ont., Goose Squadron Bombaimer in whose crew were Squadron Navigation Leader Flt. Lt. Tommy McDougall, D. F. C., of North Bay, Ont., and Engineering Leader Flt. Lt. Eric Mulligan, D. F. C., of Sudbury, Ont.

Engine Knocked Out

The crew of one Canadian Lancaster went on to bomb Berlin after it had an engine knocked out by a Nazi fighter whose shells also holed the bomber's starboard wing and petrol tank.

Flt. Sgt. J. Przybylski of Arborg, Man., rear-gunner of the Goose squadron, damaged a Focke-Wulf 190 which attacked his Lancaster 100 miles from the target. He knocked pieces off the German's wing as the Nazi aircraft came in to attack 350 yards astern. The Focke-Wulf started to lose height and disappeared in the clouds.

Many combats and exchanges of fire were reported by PO. George Andrew of Sarnia, Ont.

Other Canadians on the raid included PO. Jimmy Bell of Drew, Ont., PO. C. E. Rodgers of Hamilton, Ont., and Flt. Sgt. Don Ryan of Tillsonburg, Ont.

INVADING TROOPS CONSOLIDATING THEIR POSITIONS

U. S. Troops Land At Arawe on New Britain And Air Force Repels Several Jap Attacks

FEW CASUALTIES

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Dec. 17. (AP)—United States troops that invaded the Arawe peninsula of New Britain Island Wednesday are consolidating their positions, while the American air force has successfully repelled several Japanese air attacks.

The announcement from Allied headquarters was the first since the bulletins yesterday telling of the landing of United States army troops on the southwest coast of Japan's main island base in the southwest Pacific.

The United States 6th Army established its hold on the Arawe peninsula with but few casualties, considering the scope of the operation.

Powerful Support.

The troops moved shoreward with powerful naval and air support, and seven hours after the first assault at dawn Wednesday, Brig.-Gen. Julian Cunningham, commander of the invading force, messaged headquarters "our objective is attained".

It was the first concerted action for the 6th Army, commanded by Lt.-Gen. Walter Krueger, and it won a strategically important position for the Allies, giving them command of the southern entrance to Vitiaz and Dampier Straits which separate New Britain from the northeast coast of New Guinea, now firmly held by the Australians.

A United States destroyer force pounded Arawe and the tiny islands at the entrance to the harbor before the First Army assault troops shoved off in force for the shore. Heavy and medium bombers added their explosives to the tons of steel thrown at the enemy.

Cut Jap Retreat Line.

Preceding the principal assault aimed at Orange Beach at the foot of the peninsula, a force slipped away from the invading fleet in rubber boats, intent on making the first beachhead at the top of the peninsula, to cut the Japanese retreat line.

But the force was met with heavy machine-gun and light cannon fire as they neared the shore, and their attack ended on a reef, with one-quarter of the force killed or wounded. These were the principal casualties of the entire operation.

Gen. Douglas McArthur, directing the operation from a small island off the north coast of New Guinea, said not a plane of the Australian and United States squadrons that supported the action was lost, nor was any of our naval or transport ships lost.

Mop Up Japanese.

The main assault troops hit the beach from their landing boats and speedily proceeded to mop up the few Japanese who attempted resistance from dugouts.

Two Valuable Convoys Saved by Relentless Assaults on U-Boats

London, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Relentless assaults by British naval and air forces against enemy U-boats threatening north Atlantic shipping recently saved "two valuable westbound convoys" from attack and resulted in destruction of two submarines, a joint Admiralty and Air Ministry communique announced today.

The communique said that the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. shared in protecting the convoys and that the U-boats were sunk by the following warships: the destroyer Duncan, the destroyer Vidette and the corvettes Loosestrife and Sunflower. The Sunflower is commanded by a Canadian, Lt.-Cmdr. J. Plomer, R.C.N.V.R., who had previously sunk three U-boats since he took over. This time she shared in destruction of one of the U-boats with the Vidette and the Duncan.

The communique said that the U-boats were prevented from launching even one attack against the two convoys. The actions began when a coastal command Liberator bomber from Wing Cmdr. A. E. Clouston's squadron spotted a surfaced submarine about fifteen miles from a convoy.

The aircraft attacked the submarine in face of considerable anti-aircraft fire, and was joined by another Liberator.

The destroyers Duncan and Vidette and the corvettes Loosestrife and Sunflower "immediately altered course towards the scene of action". The U-boat dived and the aircraft dropped a smokefloat to indicate the position.

The Duncan and Vidette attacked with depth charges. "These were followed after a brief interval by a series of deep water explosions . . . Large quantities of wreckage of German origin floated to the surface of the sea. Pieces of wood apparently from a writing desk, linings of bulkheads and locker lids were recovered by H.M.S. Duncan."

CHURCHILL WILL NEED LONG TIME FOR RECUPERATION

Expected War Cabinet Might Name Acting Leader in His Absence

HAD RESTFUL NIGHT

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Improvement in Prime Minister Churchill's general condition has been maintained, a bulletin from his bedside in the Middle East, released at 10 Downing Street, said this afternoon.

"There has been no spread in the pneumonia, and improvement in the Prime Minister's general condition has been maintained," said the bulletin. It was signed by Lord Moran, Brig. Evan Bedford and Lt.-Col. R. J. V. Pulvertaft.

Mr. Churchill, suffering from his second attack of pneumonia in 10 months, undoubtedly will require a long period for recuperation and consequently it is expected the war cabinet may name an acting leader to serve in his absence.

The first of the daily bulletins promised from his bedside somewhere in the Middle East, was issued from No. 10 Downing Street at 7 p.m. last night and reported "some improvement in his general condition" after a restful night. He is under the care of three physicians, including a heart specialist.

The Prime Minister's illness was announced yesterday morning, taking the country by complete surprise and arousing quick anxiety.

The London Press was virtually unanimous in suggesting that on his return he delegate to assistants a great portion of the tasks that have kept him up almost daily until the wee hours of the morning.

Long Convalescence Needed.

There seemed general agreement that a long convalescence was in prospect for the stricken leader despite the incredible energy still apparent in his 70th year (he observed his 69th birthday during the Teheran Conference) and the driving force that raised the British Empire from the dark days of 1940 to the dawn of a day of victory.

Prayers went up throughout the Empire for his quick recovery. The king arranged for a messenger to bring him hourly news.

The Daily Sketch devoted its entire front page to a photograph of Mr. Churchill with the caption "The man to whom so many owe so much", a few lines telling of his illness, and a quotation from Psalms 86: 15-16:

"But Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion and gracious. . . give Thy Strength unto Thy servant".

HEAVY LOSSES INFLICTED ON GERMAN FORCES

Enemy Thrown Into Retreat in Numerous Sectors of Yugoslavia

LOOTING PREVALENT

By EDWARD D. HALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17—(AP)—A spectacular defeat has been inflicted on the latest German "annihilation" offensive against Yugoslav partisans, a special war bulletin from the headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) said today.

The communique said Nazi and satellite forces everywhere had suffered defeats, and that the enemy had been thrown into retreat in numerous sectors.

Nazi forces which achieved one breakthrough into liberated territory and then embarked on a campaign of burning and looting are expending men and tanks recklessly in an effort to break the rising tide of Tito's fiercely-fighting forces, the bulletin continued.

Tito's announcement of the successes came shortly after the regular daily communique gave first details of the Nazi setback.

Cairo reports had indicated previously that Tito's forces, aided by Allied aerial blows, are engaging or are pinning down as many German divisions as are being battled by Allied armies in the Italian campaign on the other side of the Adriatic.

These specific successes were listed in Tito's war bulletin:-

Defeat of enemy forces with heavy losses in Rogatita; a large Nazi column partly destroyed and thrown into retreat in Croatia; an enemy defeat "which will considerably influence his further operations" in Western Bosnia, and heavy German losses in a battle still raging in the Livno-Duvne sector; two German columns defeated and supplies captured near Zljebovi and Rogatica in Eastern Bosnia; German evacuation of Kladanj in Central Bosnia; and the destruction of Nazi supply and communications lines in many sectors of Yugoslavia.

Outremont Police, Firemen Threaten To Go on Strike

Montreal, Dec. 17 (CP)—Policemen and firemen of neighboring residential Outremont announced today they would go on strike Dec. 25 if their demands for salaries readjustment and recognition of their affiliation to the Canadian Congress of Labor had not been granted in the interval.

Recognition of the Canadian Congress of Labor as their sole bargaining agent was granted by the Quebec Municipal Commission to Montreal policemen and firemen after a 14-hour strike early this week.

Gestapo Officer Testifies at Kharkov Of Massacre of Russians by Nazis

By EDDIE GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Dec. 17 .(AP) —Moscow newspapers today devoted two of their four pages to the Kharkov atrocity trial of German soldiers and a Russian traitor accused of murder.

Principal attention was given to the trial of Capt. William Langheld, 52, of the Gestapo who was said to have pleaded guilty to killing civilians and Russian prisoners of war.

The courtroom was packed with workers, housewives and soldiers.

The session yesterday began with questioning of Langheld by the prosecutor, Col. N. K. Dunaiev of the Justice Department. Three court-appointed Moscow lawyers represented the accused.

The Moscow Press gave this account of the trial:—

At the outset of the questioning, Langheld was asked:—

"Is it established that orders for mass extermination of innocent Soviet people were issued by the German government?"

"Yes", he answered in a firm, clear voice.

The Gestapo captain then related how ten Red army officers were killed in the Kharkov prison "to prevent their escape".

Dunajev then asked Langheld:—

"How many Soviet citizens did you kill yourself?"

"It is hard to say exactly but I think about 100," Langheld answered.

"How many were killed by the Germans in Kharkov and Kharkov Province?"

"I heard about 30,000 and about the same number in Kiev" the German's published testimony said. 'About 15000 were killed in Poltava'.

Langheld then testified how civilians and Russian army officers were kept in the same camp and given the same treatment.

RUSSIANS GAIN THE UPPER HAND WEST OF KIEV

Vatutin's Columns Enabled to Resume Drive Northwest of Radomysl

MOVE ON SMELA

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Dec. 17—(AP) — Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukraine army appeared to have gained the upper hand west of Kiev today after more than five weeks of desperate fighting against heavy German infantry and tank attacks.

Russian counter-attacks dislodged the enemy from several settlements in the Teterev River sector 55 miles west of the Ukraine capital for the second successive day yesterday, Russian communiques said, enabling Vatutin's columns to resume their drive northwest of Radomysl.

Nazi Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein's hold on that important stronghold, lying between the Korosten-Kiev and Zhitomir-Kiev main highways, now is seriously threatened by the Russian gains, dispatches indicated.

Meanwhile Gen. Ivan S. Konev's 2nd Ukraine army, 200 miles to the south, pressed its attack below captured Cherkasy toward the rail junction of Smela and repulsed fierce German counter-attacks.

Admit Counter-Attacks

(The German radio, admitting strong Russian counter-drives west of Kiev, announced at the same time that at least three Soviet offensives now were under way in White Russia, one south of Nevel, a second west of Krichev in the Mogilev area and the third southwest of Zhlobin.)

Moscow paid major attention to developments in the Kiev bulge where Vatutin apparently has broken the back of another determined sally by Von Mannstein's tanks. The fighting centred along the Teterev River, between Radomysl and Malin to the north, and the Soviet war bulletin said a German attempt to force an unnamed water barrier (probably the Teterev) was dispersed.

In the fighting above the Dnieper bend, the communique said, vanguards of Konev's army stormed forward to the outskirts of Smela under cover of a devastating artillery barrage which was slowly crumbling the defences of that important communications and supply centre.

Score Successes Against Germans In Central Italy

Are Same Troops Which Fought in Tunisia But Now Re-equipped

N.Z.'S ATTACK

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

Algiers, Dec. 17—(AP)—French troops, entering the war on the European mainland for the first time since 1940, have scored outstanding successes against the Germans in mountain fighting in central Italy, it was announced today.

The French have been in forward positions alongside British and American soldiers for some time, but their presence was not disclosed until today's communique from Allied headquarters.

They are the same troops which fought alongside the Allies in Tunisia, but since then have been completely re-equipped with uniforms, guns and materials.

Germans Surprised

Soon after moving up to the battlefront the French participated in a series of local attacks, capturing several important German hilltop positions and taking a number of prisoners, who expressed surprise at finding the French in action.

The part of the front where the French troops are in operation was not disclosed.

New Zealand troops with the 8th Army carried out a successful attack, headquarters said in its daily communique. The New Zealand 2nd Division has been previously announced as fighting in territory inland from the Adriatic to the left of the Canadians on the coast and the Indians who are on the Canadian left flank.

Canadian Sector Quiet

There was no new work today of progress of the Canadans who have been fighting yard by yard toward the port of Ortona which must be taken before the 8th Army can press northward to the more important port of Pescara.

The Germans intensified their efforts to hold off the 8th Army, throwing more and more tanks and flame-throwers into the struggle, but the New Zealanders, Indians and Canadians beat off every Nazi attempt to break their hold on the Ortona-Orsogna highway which was cut in three places by the 8th Army the previous day.

The communique said that two determined German counter-attacks were thrown back yesterday with heavy losses inflicted on the enemy.

On the western end of the front the Anglo-American 5th Army attacked the German strong point of San Pietro, north of Mignano and one of the posts guarding the road to Rome. Attacking infantry ran into a series of concrete pillboxes. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting developed.

Hints Belgium Might Enter Br. Commonwealth

London, Dec. 17 (CP) — A spokesman for the Belgian Ministry of Information has hinted that Belgium might become a member of the British Commonwealth under certain conditions. The London Daily Sketch said today.

The Sketch said it asked the spokesman about a speech made in Belfast by Antoine Delfosse, Belgian Justice and Information Minister, favoring Britain as an ensurer of European peace and declaring "we Belgians are ready to sacrifice part of our sovereignty on the altar of world peace. We ask but one thing—to be free."

"M. Delfosse might have been referring to the possibility of Belgium entering the Commonwealth" the spokesman was quoted as commenting.

Noumea, New Caledonia, Dec. 17 —(AP) — The same Free French underground movement which "permitted the Americans to land in N. "They are very capable men and their work is successful."

CURTIN WAS WORRIED BEFORE UNDERTAKING GOT UNDER WAY

Canberra, Dec. 17 — (AP)—The invasion of New Britain Island was one operation that was "very worrying" to Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia before it got under way. Herbert Morrison's Career Almost Upset With Release of Mosley

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17 — (CP) — A sidewalk phrenologist shaped Herbert Morrison's career and a one-time smirking, chest-beating, would-be dictator of Britain almost was the cause of the career's end.

When Herbert Morrison was a delivery boy in London's east end, more than 40 years ago, he spent his week's shilling allowance on an introduction to phrenology. The sidewalk seer told him he might be Britain's Prime Minister one day and Herbert Morrison has never doubted it.

His friends say the bespectacled, compact, five-feet-nine Morrison looks in a long mirror after he's finished dressing each morning and says, "Good morning, Mr. future Prime Minister."

Now, at the age of 55, holding power over Britain's 48,000,000 people as home secretary and minister of home security, he seems closer than ever to eliminating the "future" from his daily salutation, despite the clamoring and furore raised by his release of Sir Oswald Mosley, the Quisling Fascist.

Future Shuddered

The future of Morrison shuddered and rocked for two weeks after he freed Mosley from 3½ years of jail detention, through two weeks of demonstrations, mass meetings and renunciations by powerful trade unions which almost unhinged Morrison from his lifelong attachment to the labor party.

There were two vital moments for Morrison during the outcry, first when the parliamentary labor party upheld him at a private meeting by 20 votes and when the government and Morrison were upheld by an overwhelming vote of the House the next day.

If either vote had gone against him, Morrison's position in the party would have been untenable. But the consensus after his Commons speech was that, no matter what opposition to Mosley's release remained among the people, Morrison's personal stature in the party had been enlarged by the sincerity and honesty of purpose with which he handled the affair.

Stands High in Party

Labor, of course, must win the post-war election to make the phrenologist's forecast come about, but if the party wins, Morrison stands well to being its No. 1 man at the time. This, despite Mosley and the fact that not many months ago he lost his position on the party's national executive committee.

Morrison knows his own mind. He wants the party to be ready to "talk turkey" to the people after the war; solutions and plans being the "turkey" and not "theoretical doctrine," facts and figures and not generalizations.

He wants state control over industry to avoid "chaos." He wants primary schools "good enough for the sons of policemen and plutocrats alike.

J. B. Boyce Will Head Committee

Plans for setting up a committee whose responsibilities will be to arrange for comforts to be supplied to crew members of the corvette "Belleville", scheduled to be launched in the new year, are now well underway, according to Mayor Harry Rollins. No date has as yet been set for the launching of the craft which is to be named after this city, but inquiries have been made from Ottawa regarding the list of supplies which Belleville will be asked to sponsor.

Heading the committee which will look after the sponsorship of the naval craft to be named after Belleville will be Mr. J. B. Boyce, it was stated by the Mayor. Members will include Lieut. Col. P. H. Wills, Dr. James Semple, Mr. Thomas York of the Army and Navy Veterans, with Harold Bateman as secretary treasurer. It is expected also that the heads of the three city service clubs as well as the regents of the St. Julien and Argyll Chapters of the I.O.D.E. will be members of the committee.

St. Julien Chapter Reports on Ditty Bag Shipment

St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., sent to Provincial I.O.D.E. Headquarters for the Navy League, 161 ditty bags. Each Chapter member donated one or more well filled ditty bag. The Chapter furnished 145 pairs of sox for these bags.

The managers and staffs of the following donated filled bags: Zeller's Ltd., Metropolitan Stores, Woolworth Co. Ltd., Canadian Department Stores, Ltd., Lipson's Chain Store, McIntosh Bros., York Trading, Ltd., Chatterton W. I., Bethany Young People, Belleville Utilities Commission, The Knitter Bugs, St. George's Guild, Tuesday Knitting Circle and Tabernacle Church Comrade Club.

Individual donors of filled bags were: Mr. Sam Pappas and Mesdames A. Simpson, A. Bishop, E. Shortt, H. Diamond, F. G. Chamberlain, Jamieson, E. Vanner, Ramsay, Hayward, C. Moore, S. Masson, the Misses Mary Sutherland and Stewart Masson.

Money donations toward filling ditty bags were as follows: Rotary Club $125, Income Tax Office $8.50, Women's Conservative Club $10, Mesdames A. I. Bird $5, J. Legault $2, H. F. Bryson $25, J. B. Ives $5, Ed. James $5, Mr. E. Ford $5, and the misses M. Phippen $5, Maud Campbell $5, Hannah Harrison $5 and Florence Davis $2. With this money the Chapter bought contents put them in Christmas wrappings and filled bags ready for shipment, then each donor's name was written on them.

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire quota for Ontario was 8,500 ditty bags for the Navy League. This has been realized and gone well over the top.

On behalf of the sailors and merchant marine the officers and members of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. extend grateful thanks to all who so generously helped to make Christmas a little brighter for our boys who are doing so much for us all. I might add that the Chapter has sent to individual boys of the services 25 Christmas boxes.

Respectfully submitted,
J. A. Backus,
Secretary.

Germans Face Gloomy Christmas

By EDWIN SHANKE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Stockholm, Dec. 17. (AP)— Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels and his propaganda machine have begun preparing the war-weary German people for their gloomiest Christmas since 1939 by promising every child one toy—and a home-made one at that.

In a war-front atmosphere of ruins and death due to Allied air bombings, almost daily executions by Heinrich Himmler's gestapo, and country-wide shortages of every commodity, the German press is looking forward to Christmas by trying to answer the guestion "is there anything to be happy about?"

Two prominent newspapers published at opposite ends of the Reich—the Voelkischer Beobachter and the Rheinisch West-Faelische Zeitung—acknowledged the outlook is not bright.

"The times have become even more severe, more serious", they both said. "Great numbers of our women are mothers with children must spend this Christmas in changed districts among strangers. They have no homes and therefore won't be able to celebrate Christmas among their families as was their custom".

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung declared 'the hours of the Christmas feast will lack most of their outward lustre in this fifth year of the war. . . .In the cities hit by the enemy bombing terror it will be impossible to light Christmas trees in every house".

7,931 Individuals Donate 6,056 Pints Blood to Kiwanis Clinic During the Past Year

Clinic Officials Express Appreciation to All Who Assisted in the Work

81 CLINICS

The Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic of Belleville has reached the end of its year and will remain closed until the first Clinic of 1944 on January 9th, which will be a civilian clinic on a Sunday. There were 81 clinics during 1943, with 7,931 —individual donations and a total of 3,331,020 cubic centimeters, or approximately 6,056 pints of blood. This is a figure which might well be pointed to with pride, and much of the credit for its possibility is due to the airmen stationed at the various airports in the vicinity of Belleville

As the year ends, and the voluntary staffs, supplied by the women's organizations of the city, the hospital, and individual interest in the work, the officials of the Clinic wish to extend their warmest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happier New Year, and to thank them for their attendance which has made the clinic possible. At each Clinic, there are over twenty-five nurses and assistants, ten kitchen staff, two civilian doctors for Sunday clinics and medical officers from the R.C.A.F. Stations at Service Clinics during week days. Especial appreciation was expressed to those ladies who come to the Clinic before opening and prepare the rooms for the actual donations, and to those who come in after the Clinic is finished and clean up. They were described as "unsung heroes" and "without them there could be no Clinic."

Large Donations Jam

A few weeks ago an appeal was made through The Ontario Intelligencer for preserves, honey and jams, and the response was so great that it far exceeded any anticipation. Until jam and preserves were rationed, jam was bought through the various women's organizations of the city, but with the rationing order it was necessary to make other arrangements. A delay was experienced which placed the Clinic in a desperate way for these commodities and the appeal was made. As said before, the response was so great that a sufficient quantity of jam and preserves was received to carry on for a considerable period, and it has not been necessary to use the coupons granted by the government. However, when the existing supply is exhausted, the Clinic will purchase jam and another appeal will not be necessary. Other commodities essential to the conducting of the Clinics are supplied free of charge, such as Coca Cola which is donated by the Coca Cola Company of Canada, and butter, over thirty-five pounds of which is used monthly, is donated at no charge by The Belleville Creameries. The Clinic turns over their quota of butter coupons to the creamery and Mr. Robertson deliveries the butter without delay in weekly consignments. Bread and milk is bought by the women's organizations and clubs, while tea, coffee and sugar is purchased by the Clinic.

Value of Radio To Police Cars Well Proven

The success of police radio was stressed in Belleville recently by Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell, who made reference to the speedy co-operation which Belleville police afforded in the attempt to round up two men following the running gun battle between police and a bandit car when a constable was wounded in the hand.

It was only a few seconds after Belleville police broadcast the information that a stolen car was in the vicinity that the radio-equipped Belleville police car, that was on patrol at the time, was in the vicinity of the College Hill area as the result of the police broadcast.

All police cars should be equipped with radio receiving sets at least, but when the day comes that two-way police radio goes into effect in Ontario then the law-enforcing agencies will function against crime to a more successful point, suggested Traffic Officer Caldwell, who lauds the results of the Belleville police radio station CJR.

Hydro Officials Get No Action On Resolutions

Officials of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission have no power to change legislation of the system to permit future profits of the Belleville Hydro to be turned back to the city to help reduce taxes, members of the local Public Utilities Commission were told during a special trip to Toronto.

Chairman of the local commission Mr. Morley Duff, with Commissioner George Reid, Mayor Rollins and O. H. Scott, unitities manager, went to Toronto to interview Hydro heads regarding the recent resolutions passed by the commission asking that Hydro profits go back to the city but received no satisfaction.

"It was clearly pointed out to us that officials of the Ontario Hydro system are merely servants of the government which makes the laws and therefore are unable to make any change in legislation, which they had no part in forming," stated Mr. Duff to the Ontario Intelligencer upon his return to the city. "We were told that any change in legislation, which would permit Hydro profits to be returned to the city would have to come from the government."

The first resolution passed at the November meeting of the commission was "That all future profits of the Belleville Hydro be turned over to the Belleville Hydro Commission and they in turn pay same to the city treasurer for the reduction of taxes."

The second resolution passed dealt entirely with profits from the local Hydro store and asked that "all profits accumulating through the Hydro store in the city of Belleville be paid to the city treasurer to be used by the city at its discretion."

Whether or not the Belleville commission will make representation to the Ontario government in an effort to have the Hydro legislation changed that the conditions of their resolution might be met was not stated by local officials.

Prank Backfires

It may have seemed a harmless prank at the time, but little did the boy know there was a policeman observing the entire procedure below him.

Last evening a 'teen-aged lad filled with youthful energy removed a lighted lantern from an excavation on William St. and proceeded to climb a nearby Hydro pole where he hung the lantern on one of the top step hooks. As the lad viewed his handiwork with a chuckle he proceeded to descend but was he surprised when he reached the ground to hear the words—"Having lots of fun, sonny?"

Turning his head the youngster cast an amazed gaze at the face of P.C. Harold Taylor, who was patrolling at the time and had halted the police cruiser to watch the entire proceedings.

Yes, the lad reclimbed the pole, recovered the lantern and returned it to its proper position of protection over the excavation. Needless to say, the boy will not attempt such pranks in the future, if for no other reason than P.C. Taylor took the lad home and reported the incident to his parents.

CHURCHILL WILL

A Poor Patient.

Judging from the experience of the pneumonia attack that sent him to bed shortly after his Casablanca conference with President Roosevelt, his friends say virtual force would be required to keep him away from work. During the earlier attack he was described as the "world's worst patient". That time he was ill about a month.

The Prime Minister's exact whereabouts was not disclosed, but the Daily Mirror quoted the German satellite Vichy radio as saying he was ill in Cairo.

Cairo, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's illness from pneumonia, which was announced in London, came directly on top of 17 days of almost continuous international conferences in the Middle East, preceded and followed by preparatory and cleanup discussions.

The Prime Minister appeared on the verge of illness when he made his only appearance before newspaper correspondents in an off-the-record press conference Dec. 10, 4 days after his final meeting with President Roosevelt and President Ismet Inonu of Turkey.

Eyes Showed Strain

Although in good spirits and optimistic, Mr. Churchill appeared pale. His eyes clearly showed strain.

He was late arriving at this conference but once there he stood up and talked for 40 minutes. The inevitable cigar was in his hand and his voice was as clear and strong at the end as when he started.

Although the Turkish conference ended officially Dec. 6, this by no means was the end of conference pressure for the Prime Minister. The next day, he and Foreign Secretary Eden talked again with Inonu. Afterwards, he held a round of discussions apparently on mid-East affairs.

Before his first meeting with President Chiang Kai-Shek on Nov. 21 at the outset of the three historic conferences, Mr. Churchill had been working unusually late. He made part of the trip to Cairo by sea and his ship had a special crew of WRENS who handled incoming and outgoing messages of the Churchill party.

All Sorts of Weather

Thus he was almost as closely in touch with affairs as if he had been sitting in 10 Downing Street.

His travels carried him through all sorts of weather changes. From the English winter, he came into the warm Egyptian climate where he wore light summer clothes most of the time.

However, Cairo was just starting its own winter season and the days and nights were perceptibly cooler toward the end of his stay.

The air journey to and from Teheran provided still another change as the Iranian city is on a high plateau surrounded by snow-capped mountains.

Joined Discussions

After the Turkish conference, members of the combined Anglo-American general staffs continued to meet here and Mr. Churchill joined some of the discussions. He worked until past midnight many nights, seeing such men as Eden, King Peter of Yugoslavia and King George II of Greece in a windup of matters discussed at the big conferences and in behalf of British and Allied interests in the Mediterranean and Balkans.

Thus Mr. Churchill had reason to be an extremely tired man when he became ill. He is 69.

Premier King Spends His 69th Birthday at Office

Ottawa, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King spent his 69th birthday at work in his office today as hundreds of messages of greetings and congratulations arrived.

It was his first full day at his desk since he left a week ago last Sunday for a personal and business trip to the United States. Following a meeting of the War Committee of the Cabinet yesterday a few hours after his return to Ottawa a meeting of Cabinet was called for today.

No special events were planned to mark the Prime Minister's birthday.

At 11:15 a.m., E.D.T., Mr. King's office extended an invitation to newsmen to see the Prime Minister at his office at noon, immediately after the Cabinet meeting.

It was said "no startling announcement" would be made, but "that does not preclude the possibility of some announcement."

INVADING TROOPS

The Japanese air force was absent during the early stage of the landing, but put in an appearance after the troops had the area mastered.

A score of enemy divebombers finally came over to make a few ineffectual passes over the beach and drop bombs near a zigzagging destroyer.

Allied fighters dove from heavy cloud banks to drive off the attackers, shooting down two of the enemy and keeping control of the air.

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff writer

Washington, Dec. 17—(AP)—The invasion of New Britain, obviously aimed at conquest of the entire island and seizure of Rabaul, not only threatens the Japanese with the irretrievable loss of that key base but presages the first real strategic setback of the war for the Rising Sun Empire.

Coinciding as it did with President Roosevelt's return to the United States, the landing of United States forces with naval support on the bomb-swept beaches of Arawe gave fresh emphasis today to the decisions of Cairo and Teheran to shatter the military might of Germany and to strip Japan of the last vestiges of her conquered Empire.

Will Open Hole in Defences

The fall of Rabaul may not come quickly, but when it does it will open a hole 1,000 miles wide in Japan's outer defence ring, from the northern coast of New Guinea to Ponape in the Caroline islands. Strategically the Japanese will have suffered a body blow.

The implications of the long-expected landings on New Britain are enormous, and for the first time the interlocking nature of the operations in New Guinea, the Solomons and the Gilbert islands becomes readily apparent. With the eventual capture of Rabaul, they merge inevitably into a gigantic thrust pointed directly at the Philippines through a great gap in the enemy island chain.

Vastly increased air operations in that theatre can be expected in the near future.

Canadian Troops Battle Desperately For Lateral Road

By WILLIAM STEWART

With the Canadians in Italy, Dec. 15 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Despite bitter German resistance, Canadian troops continued today their foot-by-foot advance toward the Lateral Road stretching across their front to the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona.

The Germans are fighting for every trench they have dug in the black earth of the rolling, tree-dotted battle area and for every house in which they have installed machine guns. They have added parachute troops to the naturally-strong line on which they have stood for three days.

The battle rages less than two miles from the Moro river and each narrow advance is preceded by a rain of shells on the enemy positions.

The Germans are sending regular tank-supported counter-attacks across the shell-pocked road which is no-man's land and for the possession of which the battle is being fought.

The enemy still holds the town of Ortona but it is of little value to them unless they have the road.

Troops from New Brunswick (The Carleton and York Regiments) gained a few yards from San Leonardo and the Orsogna-Ortona Lateral Road but they were opposed by heavy machine-guin, mortar and shell fire.

DENIES MARRIAGE

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 17. (AP)—Albert Stanwood Murphy says he and former film star Madge Bellamy "are not now and never have been husband and wife".

Attorneys for the wealthy California lumberman filed an answer to the actress' divorce suit yesterday, denying her allegation that she and Murphy were married under Nevada's "consent clause" in April, 1941.

In San Francisco last January, the actress was accused of firing three ineffectual shots in Murphy's direction because of his alleged association with another woman. The latter subsequently was identified in the litigation as Mrs. Murphy, the former June Almy of New York.

Sup't H. M. Gain, Of C. N. Railways Has Retired

Was Trainmaster at Belleville for Some Time in Early Twenties

'WASHOUT EXPERT'

Montreal, December 16. — After forty-six years of service with the Canadian National Railways, H. M. Gain, superintendent, St. Lawrence Division, has retired under the company's pension regulations, it was announced today by R. C. Johnston, general superintendent, Montreal district. Mr. Gain's assistant, A. M. Shea, has been named to take over the duties of superintendent, the appointment being approved by F. L. C. Bond, vice-president and general manager of the National System's Central Region. The St. Lawrence Division extends from Portland, Me., to Brockville, Ont., being approximately 900 track miles.

Henry Martin Gain is a native of Lindsay, Ont., and began his railway career at the age of eighteen as a messenger with the Canadian Express Company. After working on various train routes handling express traffic, he was promoted in June, 1940, to route agent at Richmond, Que. Six years later, Mr. Gain transferred to the transportation department of the Grand Trunk railway at Montreal as a conductor, afterwards serving as a trainmaster here, Belleville, Ont., and Richmond until May, 1924, when he was named assistant superintendent in the Operating Department. He returned to Montreal in this latter capacity in December, 1927, and was appointed superintendent, St. Lawrence Division in February, 1939, from which position he now retires. Mr. Gain was well known throughout his territory and was always found on the scene where trouble had developed. In recent years, when heavy rainstorms struck in the eastern townships area, Mr. Gain was often referred to as "the washout expert" as he quickly made arrangements to replace damaged sections of line, restoring service with little delay.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Ever since the announcement of Prime Minister Churchill's illness with pneumonia yesterday, I have encountered on every hand expressions of concern and good wishes. Even young school children are discussing it and voicing hope for a speedy recovery.

I think that's worth recording here. That and the best of luck for this great leader who is carrying such a colossal load on his stocky shoulders.

Successful Landing in New Britain

So at long last, after more than a year of bloody fighting among the stinking, disease-infested jungles on the islands of the Southwest Pacific, American troops have made a successful landing on New Britain, key position in that strategic portion of the Japanese perimeter of defence.

They have without undue losses established a bridgehead at Arawe, on the southeastern coast of the big, crescent-shaped island. That means the Allies finally have forced one of the gateways of this important blockhouse. It's a grand piece of work and one that should lead to great things, but we should remember that the troops have only just got inside the gateway and that difficult operations lie ahead before the whole island in taken.

One of the most significant aspects of this new exhibition of Allied striking-power is that it emphasizes that they definitely have captured the initiative in Pacific warfare. This capture of Arawe, and other recent successes, presages the big-scale offensive which is boiling up against the enemy. Ability to embark on such an undertaking is, of course, due to great naval and air superiority in the Pacific.

Aim at Base at Rabaul

What the Allies are aiming at on New Britain is the huge base at the port of Rabaul, on the northern horn of the Crescent. This was second in importance to Japan's prize base of Truk, some 800 miles to the north, until the Allied air forces got at Rabaul and so knocked it about that the Japanese had to abandon it as a naval operating base. It still is a strong land position, however, and is guarded by a large number of troops.

Resumption of C.N.E. Depends on When Park Is Handed Back

Toronto, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Elwood A. Hughes, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, held annually here until 1942, said today that in planning resumption of the exhibition it was not a question of when the war ends but when the Department of National Defence hands the park back.

Commenting on the prediction last night of R. A. Stapells, a director of the C.N.E., that it would be two or more years after the war before the exhibition could be held again, Hughes said it seemed likely that the Department of National Defence may want to use the park and its buildings for demobilization purposes.

Retail Merchants Protest Over Turkeys

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP) — The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada today protested to the Prices Board that large manufacturers and industrial concerns are purchasing large quantities of turkeys, to be used as gifts and raffles, at prices higher than the wholesale price ceiling by which retailers are bound.

"At a time when food merchants are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain turkeys for their regular family trade," said secretary A. G. Frame, "it seems strange that the Board should encourage large industrial corporations to pay unreasonable prices for Christmas turkeys and thus add to a scarcity which already exists."

FUNERAL DIRECTOR JOINS T. C. THOMPSON

Mr. Austin W. Noyes of Hamilton, has joined the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home staff. Mr. Noyes is an experienced embalmer and funeral director and was attached to two well known funeral homes in Hamilton, being manager of the L. G. Wallace Funeral Home Limited for several years.

Mr. Noyes and his family have taken up their residence in the city.

Hen, Called 'Old Cull,' Lays Egg on Counsel Table

Los Angeles, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Harry Zacky, poultry market operator, on trial charged with violating OPA ceilings by selling a cull stewing hen at a higher price as a pullet, brought along the hen as exhibit A. Assistant City Attorney Tom Howard referred to her as "an old cull." Defence Attorneys were overjoyed when she promptly responded by laying an egg on the counsel table. It proved, they said, she was a laying pullet, not a cull. The jury will decide.

CEILING ON USED BAGS

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP)—The Prices Board last night announced an order effective immediately, establishing ceiling prices for used bags, bagging and baling material and setting out in schedules the prices at which clean, processed used bags of sound material, bagging or balling material may be sold.

LOW GRADE GAS COMING

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle told the 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Automobile Association yesterday that quality of gasoline will be lowered in the next few days but it is hoped gallonage avialable from gasoline coupons will not be reduced.

Hitler Starts Dismiss Officers

Insubordination, Negligence, Reported on East Front and in Occupied Lands

acting quickly to put down a "generals revolt" within the German army, has started dismissing a number of high-ranking officers including major generals, an informant with close underground connections in Germany said today.

This informant said that officers dismissed wholesale along the eastern front and in almost every occupied country had been accused of "insubordination" and "negligence".

Today's reports followed those of last month in Stockholm that Gen. Baron Alexander Von Falkenhausen had been dismissed as military commander of Belgium, and reports earlier this week that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has replaced Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt as anti-invasion commander of the western front.

Belgian Legation In Ottawa Raised To Embassy Status

Ottawa, Dec. 17 —(CP)— The Belgian legation in Ottawa is being raised to embassy status and Baron Silvercruys, the present minister, will become the first ambassador, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today.

Mr. King said it is not the present intention to raise Canada's mission to the Belgian government in London to embassy status.

Maj.-Gen. G. P. Vanier, former minister to France who recently was named Canada's representative to the French National Committee at Algiers, is still technically Canadian minister to the Belgian government, Mr. King said.

ASKS FOR INCREASE OF REFUGEES PERMITTED TO ENTER DOMINION

Toronto, Dec. 17. (CP) —Senator Cairine Wilson, chairman of the National Committee on Refugees, in a statement today called for an increase in the number of refugees from Nazi tyranny permitted to enter Canada.

The statement said that if Canada feels her responsibility as a democracy, she will choose the "path of mercy for the persecuted" rather than the "merely negative one of punishment for the guilty".

PREDICTS CONSERVATIVE WIN

Winnipeg, Dec. 17 — (CP)—John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, said in an interview last night that a snap Dominion general election within the next few weeks would give his party the largest group in a new parliament.

Mr. Bracken estimated the Progressive Conservatives probably would win 100 seats, the present Liberal administration 50 and the C.C.F. "perhaps 50" with the balance — 45 seats — being divided among the Bloc Populaire of Quebec, Independents and other groups.

J. Bracken Says Liberal Gov't 'On Way Out'

Winnipeg, Dec. 17 — (CP) — John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said in an address here yesterday that the "present (Dominion) government is on the way out and pretty fast."

Speaking at the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Covention, Mr. Bracken claimed his party "is going ahead by leaps and bounds" and urges representatives of Federal constituencies to do a good organizational job in preparation for a general election.

"The present government is in the habit of dropping an election on us suddenly and we must be ready for whatever happens," he said. "It might be soon."

The national leader outlined the program advocated by his party and urged his followers to bring the program before the public as an adequate alternative to the programs of the other two parties — the Liberals and C.C.F.

While the C.C.F. party was progressing quickly, Mr. Bracken expressed his belief it had reached its peak, adding:

E "...It is not good enough just to kick the C.C.F. around....they have some good things in them and some bad; the other folks have a laissez-faire program."

Mr. Bracken emphasized the Progressive Conservative party stood for rational reform but not for Socialism. He said there should be jobs at fair pay for every worker; agriculture should be given a square deal in Canada's economy and there should be security for the aged, sick, unemployed and those suffering from accidents.

Cone of Monterey Pine, 100,000 to 500,000 Years Old, Sheds Seeds

Burlingame, Calif., Dec. 17—(AP)—The cone of a Monterey pine, after lying dormant for from 100,000 to 500,000 years in an earth stratum of the Millbraey fossil pit, is opening and shedding its seeds under the warmth and moisture of an exhibition case at San Mateo Junior College. Dr. Frank M. Stanger, museum curator, said the pine cone was found in the same ancient stratum from which bones of mammoths were recovered.

ENDORSE CANDIDACY

Toronto, Dec. 17—(CP)—Toronto District Labor Council (A.F. of L.) last night endorsed candidacy of Dr. Fred Conboy for a fourth consecutive term as mayor. The council recommended against "blanket endorsation" of a list of C.C.F. candidates for the New Year's Day civic elections here submitted by Bert Leavens, General Secretary of the Ontario C.C.F.

Mr. Churchill's Illness

News that Prime Minister Churchill, who is in the Middle East, is "suffering from a patch of pneumonia" came as a surprise and shock to the wide world which has followed his course in the momentous days of the war and everywhere there is the hope that his recovery will be rapid. Latest news is that he is improving.

The great British leader has through nearly four years of war supported on his shoulders a great share of the responsibilities of the highest office given any man, representing as he does the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the vast Commonwealth of Nations and in a very real sense representing the common humanity of the world battling for the right. A man of marvellous gifts and great achievements on behalf of his country and empire and democracy, Mr. Churchill means for the world the spirit of freedom and courage and confidence. He is typical of his race to a remarkable degree. In the two wars which Germany has provoked and launched, Mr. Churchill has been one of the men who have and are having to do with the defeat of the aggressor, a man of courage and heart and intellect, the genius who represents a particularly representative race of freemen. All that freedom and the United Nations owe to this stalwart figure would be difficult to say for Churchill has been eminently fitted by birth, nature and endowments for the most exalted office in the days of greatest peril and of greatest promise of an era to be of peace without threat or menace of war.

During the war he has for the vast untold millions of citizens of free nations gone on many long and arduous duties carrying on his ample shoulders the burden of suffering humanity, one of the great band of leaders, Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin, Chiang Kai-Shek, Benes and representatives of Nazi-held Europe. He has heard the voice of the burden of humanity in its cry for security against the bandit nation.

Conferences like those at Cairo and Teheran and previous parleys are heavy tasks, freighted with a multitude of problems and the responsibility of a decision or verdict for the future of the whole world. To the United Nations leaders their peoples owe a debt that can never be repaid personally to them, except in the loyal support with which the results of their conference efforts are met by the peoples.

Many prayers will be said across the world in many lands for the speedy recovery of this great man whose outstanding qualifications and judgment and resolve have done so much for the war's successful outcome so far and will mean so much more. He has been tireless and hardworking and has never failed to throw his full energy into the war effort and the future of a secure peace.

Momentous Days

Lord Strabolgi, who is chief Labor whip in the House of Lords, said this week that the next 100 days will be as "important in the history of the world as the 100 days before Waterloo," and he also remarked that "then Napoleon met his fate and Hitler will meet his if we act bravely and swiftly."

Napoleon took a second chance at the imperialism he set up by his military power. He had in 1814 been allowed to retire to Elba in the Mediterranean on being forced to abdicate. But the next February he escaped to France and was greeted by the army and people and was soon in the field. This period was the "Hundred Days." On his escape from Elba only England and Prussia were prepared though Europe did declare war on Napoleon. Napoleon aimed to fight the armies separately. He was disastrously defeated at Waterloo, fleeing and later surrendering and being banished to St. Helena off the coast of Africa. There he died in 1821.

The result of the fall of Napoleon in 1814 was ultimately seen in June, 1815, when Napoleon was completely defeated in his attempt to stage a comeback.

The Hundred Days were momentous days. Napoleon though hopeful was apprehensive lest the Allies unite. It would seem that Napoleon's defeat was sure in 1814. But Waterloo did once for all destroy the military power of Napoleon and made certain that an end was put to his ambitions. These were throbbing days for the revived Napoleon was an inspiration to the French army and there was natural anxiety but Waterloo showed that he was doomed to defeat.

The one hundred days from now or forward from the Teheran conference will naturally be very important days for they have great opportunities. Events are moving swiftly. How far the 100 days will go towards bringing the war to an end only time can tell. A hard struggle is expected to mark the last stage of the war and the length of this period will depend upon events.

Air bombing is to play an even increased part in the demolition and tearing apart of Hitler's industrialized empire in the German cities and in the railway links and other communications.

The Allies who crushed Napoleon had not the experience of the present day United Nations with aggressors and tyranny though they had had enough. They allowed Napoleon to go to Elba and he was able to escape when he thought he saw the opportunity. They finished at Waterloo what they might have done in 1814 if Napoleon had not abdicated.

But the United Nations today won't allow any opportunity for Hitler or Nazism to try a comeback. Indeed the whole present war has been a sort of an extended 100 days in which Hitler tried to come back from the defeat of the former Kaiser and imperial Germany.

Now the powers of United Nations are gathering to strike from all sides and from above with the blows from the sky continuing with great destruction to the enemy's resources.

How many days or months this last phase of the war which will be shortened as a result of the Cairo and Teheran conferences will last must be disclosed by events, but the days are momentous and will be momentous and will decide for generations and ages the future welfare of the world. Lord Strabolgi is of the opinion that "if we act bravely and swiftly" Hitler may meet his fate in the 100 days. Whether this is too hopeful, time will tell, but the outcome is awaited in confidence. Meanwhile there can be no relaxation of the resolve of the United Peoples to continue every effort for the overthrow of Germany.

The New Trend

(Chicago Daily News)

Everywhere the Axis is on the defensive. That is the great achievement of this second year that the United States has been at war. Unconditional surrender may yet be a long way off, but it is significant that the only big question in our minds is now, how long will the war last? So far have we come from the days of defeat just after Pearl Harbor.

The tide has turned. It is now our enemies who have cause to remember Pearl Harbor.

Mileage

(Montreal Herald)

Statisticians have reckoned that President Roosevelt's most recent trip to Cairo, Teheran and the way points brings his mileage since 1932 over the 300,000 mile mark, which somebody who remembers such things contrasts with the mere 238,857 miles from the earth to the nearby moon.

This is nothing to be sneezed at. But we decline to become excited until Mrs. Roosevelt's account have been cast with equal care.

The modern majesty consists in work. What a man can do is his greatest ornament and he always consults his dignity by doing it.—Carlyle.

JUST FOLKS

THE GIFT OF WINGS

Against a thousand years of doubt,
Against the fears of all the wise,
They brought their ship, for flying, out
And from the ground began to rise.

Two brothers in one brilliant hour
Dared from the fettering earth to soar,
And prove that, given sufficient power,
The skies were man's forever more.

Today, with lapse of forty years,
Some youthful follower of Wright
In England, from our shores, appears
After a single day of flight!

They could not know that fatal day,
Who gave to man the gift of wings,
That war would swiftly find the way
To turn its use to fearful things.

God grant, when this great strife is won
And safe all flags of freedom fly,
Never again, by moon or sun,
Need youth to battle ride the sky.

War Demands Focus Attention on Ontario Iron Ore Deposits

By FRASER MACDOUGAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 17 —(CP)— The insatiable appetite of industry hungry for steel from which to fashion the tools of war has focussed attention anew on the millions of tons of iron ore in Ontario's northland.

The only province in the Dominion with a producing iron ore mine, Ontario has a second scheduled to reach production next year while two other large deposits now are being explored and developed.

The one producing mine is the new Helen at Michipicoten on the north shore of Lake Superior where a deposit estimated at more than 60,000,000 tons of siderite is being converted into sinter suitable for use in blast furnaces of both the United States and Canada at the rate of more than 400,000 tons annually.

Much Ore at Steep Rock.

At Steep Rock Lake in northwestern Ontario a hematite deposit with more than 30,000,000 tons of proven and probable ore and a further unestimated amount possible is slated for production next year, by August or earlier. At least a part of this deposit is the rich lump hematite used in steel plant open hearths to "sweeten" the pig iron which comes from the blast furnaces.

The Helen is operated by Algoma Steel Corporation of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., which also is exploring a magnetite deposit on the Goulais river 50 miles north of the Sault. Preliminary estimates by its engineers place the indicated Goulais tonnage at 70,000,000. Dr. E. S. Moore of the University of Toronto who made a survey of the area last summer says in a report to the Ontario Department of Mines that the estimate is "reasonable."

The Sherritt Gordon Mining Company is exploring two properties in the Michipicoten area—the Josephine and Ruth mines. Drilling and other work at the Josephine has indicated 2,500,000 tons of Hematite while 28,000,000 tons of siderite have been proven at the Ruth.

Costs High.

Chief stumbling block to the development of such low grade ores as siderite and magnetite has been the cost of beneficiating them to convert them for blast furnace use.

The old Helen mine was operated until 1918 when its supply of hematite was exhausted after 2,780,000 long tons were produced. Then the mine lay idle for more than 20 years because beneficiating its siderite ore was not considered economically feasible until the Ontario Government provided a bounty of two cents per metallic unit of iron—approximately $1 for earh ton of beneficiated ore. The bounty was provided for a 10-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1939.

Last year production of sintered ore from the Helen was 414,602 tons, of which 220,065 tons were shipped to the U. S. and the rest used in Algoma's own blast furnaces. Production for this year was estimated in the corporation's annual report at 450,000 tons.

Proved ore tonnage at Steep Rock is placed at 17,244,080 and probable tonnage at 14,336,,006 in a report made by engineers this year but its possible tonnage is considered to be much greater. Present plans call for production at the rate of 2,000,000 tons a year.

In winter, threshing was undertaken with might and main. It was done by hand. All day long the flail sang its song, until it was made a thing of the past by the threshing machine. First machines were little more than cylinders—the threshed straw had to be raked away . . . Before fanning-mills came into common use, grain was cleaned by putting a sheet on the ground and pouring the grain from a pail high above. The strength and direction of the wind were carefully calculated so that the chaff would blow away nicely.

To Niagara belongs the honor of housing Canada's first Agricultural Society. After the establishment of this society there was an improvement in the lot of farmers roundabout. They learned about and began to utilize many new implements that served them well as time and labor-savers.

Literary activities in Niagara kept pace with agricultural progress. The printing offices began to turn out book after book. In fact, the first books published in Upper Canada rolled off the old printing presses of the town.

As yet, however, little had been done to perfect mechanical devices that would serve as beauty aids. Life was all too serious for people to give time to the invention of "permanent wave" and other beauty parlor machines now so important. Keeping the hair "crimped" was as much as any woman could be expected to do in the way of gilding the lily, and this was an approved method: "Take a small strand of hair, wet it and pass it through the centre of a long hair-pin, then round one prong, through the centre, then over the other prong. Continue to pass it back and forth round the prongs until the pin is covered." Another popular method was to wet the hair and plait it in small plaits, leaving these tightly braided overnight.

Border-Crossing Cards Not Needed After January 1

Ottawa, Dec. 17—(CP)— Native-born Canadian citizens will not require border-crossing cards for eemporaryv visits to the United States after Jan. 1, it was learned here Thursday.

Announcement of changes in the United States regulations governing crossings of the border, which will have this effect is expected shortly.

Such persons, however, will have to produce evidence that they were born in Canada. Canadian citizens born outside Canada will still require special documents.

The loosening of the regulations affects persons crossing the border for stays of 29 days or less.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 17 — (CP) — President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to those who hate him as well as to those who love him, is the great national figure at home—the embodiment of Uncle Sam to all peoples abroad.

He has been away from the White House for more than a month and Washington has been a dull capital because of his absence.

It is true that all the world knows now where he has been and, in a general way, what he has been doing. And it would seem, regardless of the bitterness and barbs directed against him by his enemies, that Americans applaud and glory in what he has been accomplishing in his meetings with Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek.

But when this dynamic, friendly, powerful personality is missing from the American scene there is a great vacuum—in Washington at least.

White House attaches take on an attitude of abstraction and suspense. They all seem to be waiting for something to happen, and so they are. They are waiting for the chief to get safely back to his familiar place in the executive wing.

News vacuum: Newspaper men attached to the White House take advantage of these absences to take delayed holidays, have 'flu or engage in a bout with their dentists. Or they sit around and listlessly swap lies.

Cabinet heads, lacking the close contact with the chief, hold fewer press conferences and are wary about what they say when questioned.

'Flu season: According to published reports more than 100,000 in Washington and vicinity have had the 'flu in the last fortnight and judging from observation about 900,000 have spent most of their time talking and worrying about it.

Precedent shattering: Not very long ago Americans were shocked at the idea of a president in office leaving his country and they still talked about Wilson going to the peace conferences. Roosevelt has changed all that in his three terms as president, with trips to Canada, Mexico, South America, Casablanca and now Cairo and Iran. Columnist Ernest Lindley says Roosevelt has "shattered forever" the tradition that the President of the United States should not travel abroad.

REMEMBER LOT'S WIFE

According to Genesis 19, Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt because she looked back while she and her husband and their two daughters were fleeing from Sodom.

Two angels, warning Lot of the impending destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, had said to him, "look not behind thee . . . lest thou be consumed."

"But," says the Bible, "his wife looked back behind him, and she became a pillar of salt."

Lot was the son of Abraham's brother Haran, but we are not told who Lot's wife was before her marriage.

The phrase, "Remember Lot's wife," is of New, not of Old Testament origin.

Jesus, according to Luke 17:28-32, said:

"Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed. In that day, he which shall be upon the housetop, and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take it away: and he that is in the field, let him likewise not return back. Remember Lot's wife.

Josephus, in the first century, wrote: "But Lot's wife continually turning back to view the city as she went from it, and being too nicely inquisitive what would become of it, although God had forbidden her so to do, was changed into a pillar of salt; for I have seen it, and it remains at this day."

Clement of Rome, in the first century, and Irenaeus, in the second century, both attested that this pillar of salt was standing in their day.

Even at the present time credulous travellers in the Holy Land are sometimes shown what is said to be the very pillar of salt into which Lot's wife was converted.

More than one traveller has been told by local guides that if a finger or other member of the pillar is broken off it is immediately replaced by some miraculous process.

As one guide expressed it a few years ago: "You can slice off a piece from the pillar and it evaporates, and the blemish heals up."

Despite Shortages Shows in London Draw Big Crowds

By MARGARET ECKER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 17—(CP)—The star may do her biggest scene with a run in her stocking, the luscious food used in the banquet scene may be wax and some of the cast may seldom have appeared in a theatre before — but despite the hardships of war, the show goes on in London.

The play's the thing, here today, with theatre-goers offered more choice of dramatic fare than ever before. They pay higher prices and stand in longer queues to get it.

It's been a break for the producers and playwrights as well as the audiences. A play doesn't have to be particularly good to run for several months these days, with men on leave, theatre-starved Britons, Canadians and Americans fighting for the highly-taxed seats.

A serviceman who wants to take his gal to the theatre gets quite a financial jolt. Price of a single, fairly good seat is about $4.50 The curtain goes up at 6 p.m. in London now, so the play's over by nine, the night's young and there's more money to be spent, for dinner and whatever comes after.

It's no lush job, however, producing a play in Britain and the producers have risen heroically to the situation. Long-retired actors and actresses have toddled back to their dressing rooms. Persons exempt from the services, who have never appeared professionally before, are making their appearances.

Producers are allowed some extra coupons for costuming, but not enough, so wardrobe mistresses sit up nights ripping old costumes and dressing them up for the new season.

But despite it all, it's a theatre season seldom beaten on either side of the Atlantic, with more than 30 theatres in the west end of London alone packed to the doors for every performance.

St. Michael's Academy Home Economics Class Holds Afternoon Tea

On Thursday afternoon from 3.30 to 5.30 p.m., the Grade IX girls of St. Michael's Academy served afternoon tea to the mothers of the Grades IX and X students. Of special interest to mothers was the fact that all food served was prepared by these junior High School girls, who gave an excellent demonstration of the splendid training which they receive toward homemaking in their Home Economics course.

The dining-room table of the Home Economics unit was artistically arranged with a centre of roses, silver candlesticks and red candles. Miss Mary Graham poured tea. The living-room, in which the junior grades presented their program was very home-like with its illuminated Christmas tree and a variety of seasonal decorations.

The program was as follows: Chairman's introduction, by Marilyn Logue, of Grade II; folk dances by Donna Matthews, Monica Pigden, June St. Denis, Dick Lynch, Paul Whyte, John McVeigh; recitations by John Trudeau, Angela Lupennette, Ronald Muir, June St. Denis, Mary Lupennette and Vivian Cannon; solos by Helen Grant, Margaret Marchen and Bernard Mascaro; songs by Grades II and III and Christmas carols by a group of seniors.

We must all remember that our fellowship in Christ is the greatest thing in the world. Dr. Semple closed his remarks with the hope that 1944 might bring victory for God and that victory and peace might be ours.

Other Christmas carols were sung. All were very sorry to hear that Mrs. Clarence Holmes, the provincial president, was ill in the Belleville General Hospital. All wish that she may be speedily returned to health.

Miss H. Sulman delighted all with a lovely Christmas reading, "The Greatest Gift." Miss B. Jones added her thanks to Mrs. Maguire's for Dr. Semple's very fitting message. Mrs. A. Fashion Flashes

SOUTH OF THE BORDER is the home of beautifully hand-made silver jewelry, done with all the art and fantasy of Mexico. Ready for a suit lapel is a huge Mexican silver bird with eyes of jade or turquoise.

A HIT suit that is right for all but very cold weather and right the winter through in the temperate zones, is the suit with a fur lined boxy jacket. Green look makes such a suit and it is lined and tuxedoed in leopard stenciled lapin, or, in a finer version, with nutria. There is a built up skirt.

AT THE THEATRE lately we've noticed many smart women wearing long skirted dinner dresses with a covered up look. A typical dress has a sheath-slim black crepe skirt slashed at the hem and the crepe top is jet studded and jet fringe used in an all around border.

WINTER WHITE for hats is a firm favorite. Snowy ermine white hatter's plush and satin are three media used for smart little afternoon and dinner hats. A pretty calot of white hatter's plush has a trimming of tiny bows of ermine with rhinestone studded centers.

IDEAL for wear in these practical times is a topper, a reversible tuxedo type coat, smooth black woolen on one side for day and quilted black rayon velvet on the other side that is right for night with a smart black dress.

THERE'S NOTHING that suggests evening elegance so well as late. A lace blouse is a sure-fire way of dressing up a simple suit. Black lace threaded with fine silver thread in a flower stem and leaf design makes a pretty afternoon-in-evening blouse. It has long sleeves with ruffled cuffs and there is a ruffled jabot on the blouse.

The Experts Say

Ottawa, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Much time and thought is spent on the planning of the Christmas dinner while other holiday meals are often of the pot-luck variety. They should be carefully prepared too, especially when it is so easy to give them a festive touch without serving rich or extravagant foods which would be out of place this year. Here are simple suggestions from Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumer Section of the Agriculture Department.

TOAST CUPS can stand in for party shells and are more party-like than just a slice of toast for creamed dishes; they can be made ahead of time. Cut slices of fresh bread not more than ¼ inch thick. Trim the crusts and press slices into muffin tins. Brush the edges with melted butter and place in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, until crisp and brown —about 10 minutes.

APPLE WEDGES: Cut rosy apples into wedge-shaped pieces and serve them with pickles and green onions as a relish. They add color and will prove popular with your guests.

OATMEAL FRUIT CRUMBLE: Slice three cups of apples, mix with ½ cup brown sugar, and ½ teaspoon cinnamon and arrange in a shallow, greased baking dish. Mix ¼ cup sugar with ¼ cup melted, mild-flavored fat (use part butter if you have it to spare). Sift 2-3 cup all-purpose flour with ⅛ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon baking soda. Mix with 2-3 cup quick-cooking rolled oats and combine with the fat and sugar, crumbling well. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla and spread over the apples or other fruit. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for 45 minutes. Serve hot with hot milk or pudding sauce.

Two cups of other canned or cooked fruit, drained, may replace the apples in the recipe and the cooking time be reduced if cooked fruit is used.

SALAD SUGGESTIONS: Add shredded raw beets to cabbage salad . . . Sliced radishes and chopped parsley will provide the right color notes in a potato salad . . . Russian dressing, made by combining equal portions of mayonnaise and chili sauce, is delicious with cabbage or lettuce salad . . . Mould cranberry jelly in a shallow cake tin and cut with a fluted or star-shaped cutter for garnishing cold meat platters, turkey or fruit salads.

TWIXT CUP AND LIP: The place for vitamins is in the food we eat and Nutrition Services emphasizes that they must be kept in their proper place between market and table. Salad vegetables, canned tomatoes and tomato juice which have been opened should be kept closely covered and cold to retain their vitamin C.

CHRISTMAS VITAMINS: Nobody wants to think of vitamins, and minerals while enjoying a Christmas dinner but they should be there just the same, for we can't stock up on vitamins or catch up later. We need them every day, Nutritions Service says. A fruit or tomato juice cocktail as a starter will provide vitamin C. Vitamin A can be obtained from vegetables: squash, carrots, broccoli, etc. and for the B vitamins they suggest using part oatmeal or whole wheat flour in the Christmas pudding.

'Dirty' Hannigan Disqualified In Second Round of His Bout With Popular Earl McCready

Tommy Nelson, Referee, Did Not Approve of His Antics in Squared Circle

SEASON IS CLOSED

"Big Earl" McCready put an end to the ruffian reign of "Hard-boiled" Hannigan before a shivering slim crowd of about 600 ardent wrestling fans at the Hume Arena Thursday night when Promoter Frank Tunney rang down the curtain on the most successful season of professional wrestling in Belleville's grunt and groan history.

Actually it was quite evident from the outset that Hannigan had met his match in the methodical McCready. This was proven, when Hannigan attempted to take out his viciousness against Referee Tommy Nelson and was disqualified in the second round, after McCready had won the initial fall with the appliance of his famed "cradle hold".

Frankly, two or three times last night Hannigan appeared to be in agony and once used brutal strength to hurl McCready from the ring. All in all, however, the boys had to work overtime to keep warm as the mercury was well below the freezing point, but finally Hannigan groaned loudest and decided he could beat the referee easier than his opponent and that naturally proved his downfall, as "Irish Tommy" Nelson just wasn't for having too much foolhardy business.

Had McCready in Difficulty

However, early in the bout Hannigan had McCready in difficulty and as "Big Earl" lay on the mat it was apparent he was trying to remember whether he had helped Phil Lawson put out the fire, that had burned through Phil's roof yesterday, or whether he had turned off the light in the family bathroom. However, the fans were quite satisfied when Hannigan was defeated and this week's wrestling match of the century (and season) was over.

Early McCready showed he could match Hannigan's ruffian efforts and took the initial fall with a rolling cradle hold, one of those appliances that made "The Moose" a top-ranking grappler. In the second round Hannigan wasn't too keen in his attacks on McCready, but centred his attacks on the smaller man in the squared circle, who happened to be Referee Tommy Nelson. McCready twice went to Nelson's assistance and had Hannigan well on the hip before Nelson finally called it a day and disqualified Hannigan, giving McCready the fall and the bout in straight falls. Nelson was well advised in his decision as Hannigan was apparently well beaten at his own game of roughness and that ends wrestling in Belleville until the warm sun shines again next spring.

Dunlop Beat Geoffrey

In the semi-final scrap an old feud broke out that hasn't been seen in Belleville in four years when Al Dunlop and Johnny Geoffrey, the Hungarian, tangled. However, once again the vicious "Bunny" triumphed, simply because he was too much of the ruffian and his 'possum play took Johnny off guard and Dunlop won with a flying mare and press in something like 19 minutes, but it wasn't before the fans had an opportunity to exercise their vocal chords and let "Bunny" know just what they thought of his ring antics.

In the curtain-raiser the popular Ted Miller from the Trenton Airport won over "Irish Tommy" Nelson, former Canadian amateur middleweight wrestling champion. This bout proved most pleasing and was productive of speed, science and clean orthodox wrestling. Miller won following two rapid flying mares and a solid press after 17 minutes of fast clean wrestling. Adios.

THREE-WAY TIE IN SCORING RACE

Toronto, Dec. 17. (CP) —Ontario Hockey Association records today showed a three-way tie for Senior "A" League scoring leadership. Doug Runions and Johnny Conick of Hamilton Majors and Kingston Army's Red Hamill, who have battled for first place since the start of the season, are all even with 23 points each.

Tied for fourth are Dillon Brady of Hamilton and Roy Giesebrecht of Kingston with 19 points, while Scotty Mair and Joe Klukay of Toronto Navy and Kingston's Jim Peters and Red Doran lay equal claim to sixth place in the scoring parade, all having 16 points.

Joe Sadler of Toronto St. Michael's College majors this week took over top listing in the Junior "A" circuit from Johnny Ubriaco of Galt with a total of 23 points. The Galt forward dropped one point back into a second-place tie with Bob Schnurr of St. Michael's. Two Oshawa players, Bill Enzicki and Ken Smith, share fourth place with 20-point totals. Jonnny McCormick of St. Michael's is all alone in sixth with 19 points, while Stan Warecki of St. Catharines and Mirco Narduzzi of Hamilton, are deadlocked for seventh with 18.

BUFFALO BISONS IN SECOND PLACE

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons and Indianapolis Capitals battled to a 1-1 tie at Buffalo last night in the circuit's lone scheduled contest.

With 17 points collected in as many starts this season, Bisons hold second place in the eastern division behind Bears and come third in the loop. Cleveland Barons leaders of the western division—are second with 24 points, three behind Hershey.

Max Kaminsky scored for Bisons at 16:12 in the first period last night. His tally extended Buffalo's unbeaten streak to seven games.

Jack O'Hara tied the score at 18:41 in the second, driving home Rod Morrison's rebound.

U.S. Open Golf Champ Leads Field in Miami Open Tourney

By The Canadian Press

Pre-tournament favorite, Sam Byrd, the former baseball player of Detroit, could do no better than tie for eighth place yesterday in the opening round of the $5,000 Miami Open with a 72, compared with a two-under-par 68 by Craig Wood, U.S. Open golf champion for the duration who hails from Mamaroneck, N.Y., who led the classy field. Wood registered no less than eight one-putt holes. Byrd was not the only one who fell to the rear in this putting competition, however, because Gene Sarazen of Brookfield, Conn., winner of the Miami event four times, finished in a tie for 20th place.

Only one stroke behind Wood was Steve Warga, former Miami pro, while Ensign Willie Turnesa, former amateur national champion, registered a par 70 to tie with Earl Christiansen, a Miami detective. Drizzling rain and a sharp wind helped to make it literally anybody's game in the initial round.

President Branch Rickey announced yesterday at Brooklyn the Dodgers would train at Bear Mountain, N.Y., again next spring, with the players to report March 15. Six or seven scheduled exhibition games would be played at Ebbets Field against Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees commencing April 7.

Connie Mack, Jr., 31-year-old son of the Philadelphia Athletics' manager, passed his military physical examination yesterday and was ordered to report for induction at New Cumberland, Pa., Jan. 5.

W. H. Conlin's Fergus rink carried off the Wellington County curling championship without a loss in the bonspiel which concluded yesterday at Guelph. The runner-up was the Guelph entry, skipped by William Hamilton.

Second-baseman Joe Gordon of the New York Yankees announced at his Eugene, Ore., home that he was preparing to enlist in the U.S. armed forces before many weeks. Gordon, 28 and with two small children is a qualified pilot and may enter the air service.

The suspension of outfielder Lou Novikoff of the Chicago Cubs was lifted yesterday by Commissioner K. M. Landis but it was announced at Chicago a fine will be imposed on the player for winter baseball activities in California "at a later date."

Sammy Angott, recognized everywhere outside of New York as the lightweight champion of the world, steps into the ring of Madison Square Garden tonight for a 10-round go with Bobby Ruffin. Favored 2-to-5 in the betting, Angott is aiming for a tussle with Beau Jack who holds the N.B.A. lightweight crown.

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Fans are crowding to see professional, senior amateur and even junior hockey in Canada but little is heard about the juvenile, midget and bantam leagues. Yet these minor groups are the foundation for our entire hockey set-up, the factories from which come players for major hockey. The minor leagues are having their troubles too. Jack Christie, secretary of the Ontario Minor Hockey Assoc., says one difficulty is finding men to coach and direct the youngsters. Before the war, coaching was done in the smaller centres chiefly by men in their 20's, generally former players who had not been quite good enough for big-time hockey. Most of these men now are in the services.

The O.M.H.A. is carrying on, however, and this year hopes to surpass the 87 teams it operated last season. Christie says the Association is doing its bit to solve the juvenile delinquency problem. Often the league hears from youngsters who wish to play hockey but have no teams. Where possible these youngsters are banded together to form clubs within the organization.

Sometimes, however, civic authorities apparently do not realize the need for providing sport facilities for youngsters, even though such facilities are widely recognized as a major factor in prevention of juvenile delinquency.

Christie passes on these quotations from persons interested in minor hockey:

A letter from Peterboro, Ont.: —"...Am sorry to inform you that there will be no affiliation with the Association this winter owing to the fact that the city council has refused to flood the lacrosse arena. In fact it looks as if there will be no hockey in Peterboro until after the war."

A letter from Milton, Ont: "I am sorry to say that we have no rink this year as the town council saw fit to rent it to store wool."

This is not intended as criticism of authorities involved. In many Canadian centres war conditions have led to unavoidable closing of rinks. But the Peterboro and Milton examples show that youngsters are not always able to participate in Canada's favorite sport. Interest in the youngsters by citizens of these and all other centres without rinks is urgently needed.

Sydney, N.S. (CP)—Gaye Stewart formerly of the Toronto Leafs in the N.H.L., trotted out for Sydney Navy last night to score two of the Sailors' goals in their 6-3 victory over Sydney Army in the Cape Breton senior hockey league.

Forest (CP)—The arrival of Billy Taylor, formerly of the Toronto N.H.L. team, for training at Camp Ipperwash has encouraged the idea of mobilizing an army hockey team in Military District No. 1.

London—(CP)—The policy of neutrality is dead, both during and the war, J. C. Moeller, leader of the Free Danes, said in an address.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 17—(AP)—Attention U.S. football coaches: Since you'll all probably be counting heavily on freshmen next season, take a look at a few of these high school standouts of 1943 . . . . Dinkey Brown, 175-pound halfback from Greenville, Miss., apparently took the season's scoring honors. He scored 30 touchdowns and place-kicked 47 extra points for 227 points in ten games. . . . Dinkey also passed for 14 scores, two of them when his team was trailing Holy Cross 19-7 in the last quarter of the New Orleans toy bowl game. In spite of that, Thomas (Shorty) McWilliams of Meridian was named the outstanding player in the big eight conference (which has 14 teams.) Shorty also made 30 touchdowns, averaging 36 yards on each scoring run, passed for eight more, averaged about 40 yards on punts and backed up the line on defence.

The Other Foot

Among the standout place-kickers of the prep season was Bob Fidler, of Ashland, Ky., who converted 31 extra points to equal his 1942 total. He missed 23 in two years. J. C. Kennard, captain and high scorer (138 points) for Ashland, carried the ball 36 times on his team's 37 attempts in one game and scored four times. He enlisted in the Navy Air Corps to escape the college scouts.

Tough Decision

Bill Summers, the American League umpire, ran into a real puzzler this fall when a kid asked him what would be the verdict if a batsman hit a pitched ball, the ball broke in half and one piece was caught by the first baseman while the other fell in safe territory. Instead of answering offhand, Summers got a ball, wedged it firmly on a chopping block and took a whack at it with an axe. The axe cut through the cover and yarn, but when it struck the rubber core it bounced back. So Bill decided he wouldn't have to worry about that problem any more.

NORMIE SMITH WHOLE SHOW AS WINGS BEAT LEAFS

Toronto Suffers Loss of Player When Mel Hill Breaks Ankle

SCORE IS 4-1

(By The Canadian Press)

Normie Smith is back in the National Hockey League after five years absence and if his luck and his eyes hold out the 35-year-old goalkeeper will stay quite a while—even though he can only play in Detroit.

Normie was the whole show for the 9,336 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, last night as Detroit Red Wings beat the Leafs 4-1. Maybe the blonde veteran is just the medicine Wings require to shake them out of fifth place. Smith helped win the Stanley Cup for Wings in 1936 and '37.

Last night he stopped them all but Bob Davidson, who broke clear to score from 15 feet in the first period after Wings had taken a two-goal lead.

After the game it was announced Smith will not be permitted to take any more road trips with Detroit because of his position with an automotive plant. He will be available for games in Detroit.

Joe Carveth and Harold Jackson scored for Detroit in the first, Carl Liscombe in the second and Carveth again in the third.

The game cost Toronto a chance to hurdle Boston Bruins into second place and also cost them services of their star centre, Mel Hill, who suffered a broken ankle in the second period when he fell and crashed into the boards after a solo rush.

Wings presented three newcomers in addition to Smith. They called up forwards Frank (Red) Kane, Dalton (Nakina) Smith and Vic Lynn from their Indianapolis farm to replace Cully Simon and Don Grosso, both injured, and Carl Smith, returned to Indianapolis.

Sports Writers Name Count Fleet Horse of Year

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 17. (AP)— By the most top-sided margin in the eight-year history of their poll, United States sports writers today named Count Fleet "the horse of the Year" for 1943—and the Count did less work for it than any of the seven previous winners.

Although he's been on vacation for six months and had only half-dozen trips to the post in his all-victorious campaign, the Fleet came in by himself with the year's top honors in the annual poll of writers and broadcasters conducted by The Turf and Sports Digest to be published Monday in the Magazine's January issue.

Eclipsing even the sweep that hard-working Seabiscuit registered in 1938 and the "double" busy Whirlaway chalked up in '41 and '42, John D. Hertz' triple crown winner was named head man by 135 of the 143 voters, against two each for Market Wise and Slide Rule and one a-piece for thumbs up and occupying the nomination was blank on two ballots.

Occupy, winner of the Washington Park and Belmont Futurities, drew 78 first-place votes and 315 points to take the honors over Platter among the juvenile colts.

Market Wise, barely got the nod over Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up among the four-year-olds.

Hockey's Big Seven

Lorne Carr, Toronto, moved up one point to share fourth place in the National Hockey League's high-scoring list with Canadiens' Buddy O'Connor and Chicago's Doug Bentley, as a result of last night's lone game in which Detroit whipped Maple Leafs 4-1.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Wrong One

An oral examination was in progress. The professor picked upon a dumb-looking character for his first questions.

"Who signed the Magna Charta?"

No answer.

"Who was Bonnie Prince Charlie?"

No answer.

"Where were you on Monday?"

"Drinking a beer with a friend of mine."

How do you expect to pass this course if you drink beer when you should be in class?"

"I don't, sir, I only came in to fix the electric heater."

(All in readiness.)

At last the decks have been cleared and everything is in readiness for the opening of the junior O.H.A. season in the Bay of Quinte area. Some fans have been scoffing at the idea of junior hockey taking the place of intermediate or senior, but maybe these fans would like to be over in Peterborough where they have no hockey at all, not even midget. After all the juniors of today are the seniors of tomorrow and judging from the ability shown of some teen-aged kids now in the N.H.L. the big league moguls will be looking more to the juvenile ranks for their stars of the future. Reports frodm all four junior clubs in the group would indicate there is to be some keen competition before a winner is decided. Wally Hilton, coach of the Marmora-Stirling "Combines" can't see anything but victory, but quick. "We've the best from the entire Stirling-Marmora district to toss on the ice and that's saying a lot," admitted R. Neal the Combines' manager.

(No practice series.)

Although all four teams in the group—Combines, Air Force, Trenton Town and Belleville juniors will be included in group semi-finals there's every reason for the clubs to battle things out for first and second place. At the conclusion of the regular schedule the team finishing first will have the privilege of selecting whatever opposition they desire in the semi-finals, as will the second-placed club. That in itself is sufficient incentive to send the boys on their merry way simply because the higher they finish the better opportunity they will enjoy in the play-offs, so the first round is no practice series.

All teams in the group agreed to play the first round home game of Fl. Buff Horton's "Flyers" at the spacious 200-foot R.C.A.F. rink east of Trenton. It is an open air rink, contrary to O.H.A. regulations, but in the regular schedule the other clubs waved their rights. All play-off games must be played in covered rinks, however.

(Some comparisons.

Last year Trenton won the group, but "Rome" Taylor's pets have lost several of their stars, including Lesperance. Then against Dick Fitzpatrick, who booted the rubber out for Trenton last winter, may line up with the Belleville kids this season, which would be another blow to the Trenton kids' cause. Incidentally Fl. Horton promised Wednesday he would not sign junior players from No. 6 R.D., which leaves that fertile field to Trenton.

With No. 8 Manning Depot now boasting of some 800 young Canadians over at the Trenton main station, Fl. Horton and Coach Mike Dziura will have youthful aspirants from the cross sections of Canada and a powerful junior squad the Flyers should ice.

As for Belleville, well President Fluery and company are waiting for the first call for practice.

(Rinks pop up.

The open air rink at the Collegiate campus proved inviting to a number of youthful skaters on Wednesday and Thursday night. The B.C.I. rink has a splendid ice foundation and it marks the first time skating has been enjoyed on the school rink prior to the Christmas vacation. Over in Trenton the town rink opened its doors last night and a goodly crowd of skaters was on hand to enjoy the earliest skating in years. Locally the skaters have to depend on the river or bay ponds for their skating diversions.

However, directly after last night's wrestling show Hume arena employees commenced to tear down the wrestling ring and prepare the hockey cushion for flooding. As making natural ice in the Market St. rink is no great effort during seasonable weather there should be skating before Christmas here.

(Ring down curtain.)

Following nine months of 1943 professional wrestling bowed out at the Hume arena last night and tomorrow there'll be ice where the boys hauled and pulled last night. For over ten years wrestling has stood the ups and downs of sport in Belleville and last night the shivering fans went home well satisfied—they had seen their pet hate "Hard-Boiled" Hannigan well beaten by Earl McCready to ring down the curtain.

However, there was one angle the patrons did not know about. Both Jack Reeder and Jerry Monahan were down with the current epidemic of the flu'. At the last minute "Irish Johnny" Nelson, former Canadian amateur middleweight wrestling champion, who Marse Tunney is bringing along as a referee in the same manner as Jackie Forbes was introduced ten years ago, went to the mat with Ted Miller to open the show. The boys put on a stellar scientific bout devoid of roughness and it was appreciated. Nelson then came back to prove he's an official of the first water in the main bout.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 255

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Questions may come and questions may go. What is the answer you'd most like to know? Is it "can I use your Horse Sense count with a partner who uses the Culbertson count?"

I'll tell the cockeyed world you can. If partner really knows it, you can. The trouble is, many partners who claim to know it, don't.

It requires memorizing 20 combinations in the table of honor tricks for defensive winners. Some are counted with halves; some in plusses (two plusses equal a half).

To be accurate, there is also a table of 23 other combinations known as honor winners. But even Culbertson admits in his book: No attempt should be made to memorize this table.

Treat yourself to a tryout with this hand:

♠ A Q J 9 8
♥ A J 5 3
♦ K 7 4
♣ 5

In the Culbertson count you have in honor tricks; 1½ in spades; one and a plus in hearts; ½ in diamonds; a plus in clubs. These are a total of 3½ honor tricks.

For long suit values, there are two for five-card length in the spade trump suit; ½ for four-card length in the heart side suit. These 2½ and the 3½ in honor tricks total six playing tricks.

Now try it with the Horse Sense count; one for each high card and one for each short card. A high card is any ace or king or queen. A short card is each card short of three in any short suit.

You have four high cards; two aces, a king, a queen. You have two short cards in clubs. They total six tricks; exactly the number of tricks the other count would reach.

The Culbertson count is good. Be it ever so cumbersome, it works. Only it is tough to learn, hard to remember, frequently changing, and tantalizingly slow in operation.

As true as that is, if you are a Culbertson fan, you may resent my saying it. Lay that pistol down, Babe. Lay that pistol down.

Toll of 69 Dead Now Reported In Train Wreck

By RALPH L. HOWLAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lumberton, N. C., Dec. 17—(AP)—Twenty-four hours after a train disaster near here took a known toll of 69 dead and more than 50 injured, the search for more bodies went forward early today in the blue light of acetylene torches.

Red Cross and railroad officials here reported eight more bodies were believed locked in a section of a passenger car which had not been entered. Workers toiled at the wreck scene all night in freezing weather.

The toll of dead—48 servicemen and 21 civilians—was announced by Atlantic Coast Line Railroad headquarters at Wilmington. Upwards of 60 persons were injured, many seriously.

Enough of the mass of telescoped cars and twisted rails was expected to be moved today to permit resumption of normal traffic over the trunk A. C. L. lines.

Some of the dead were still unidentified. Witnesses said a few victims were so dismembered it would be difficult to establish identity.

A broken rail, A. C. L. officials said, caused the first wreck—the derailment of three coaches of the Florida-bound Tamiami West Coast champion. One person was killed in this wreck.

This was at 2:10 a.m. Five minutes later the northbound Tamiami East Coast Champion plowed into the derailed coaches of the first train.

The disaster occurred on the coldest day of the winter, in 10-degree weather, and it was two hours before some of the injured and dying could be tended.

Greyhound Racing Major Attraction In British Sport

Dog Meets Vie for Popularity With Soccer and Cricket in Greatest Wartime Sports Season

HEAVY BETTING

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Spurred by the Allied juggernaut that rolled toward victory for the right team, Britain prepared plans during 1943 for an immense peacetime sports program, while sport itself soared to its greatest wartime season.

Along proper austerity styles, sport has continued with the blessing of the nation's rulers who have always held it an integral part of warmaking. They see it as a salve to the strain of a fighting people needing relaxation and entertainment.

Football and cricket continued as the national games but at least one sport — dog-racing — threatened to displace them as a major attraction. The crowds and the wagering at both dog and horse races were enormous. A boxing boom gave Britain a world champion.

While the best brains considered post-war problems and improvements, one especially stood out as filled with Canadian interest. That called for formation of a professional national ice hockey league in Britain with a chain of arenas in every industrial centre.

Critchley Mentioned

Players undoubtedly would include scores of Canadians. Calgary's Brig.-Gen. A. C. Critchley, sport promoter here before the war, has been mentioned in connection with the plan.

Jockey Club and Football League committees are enquiring into the problems of those sports while 18 of Britain's best cricketers have been invited to conduct post-war reconstruction, including a possible "speed-up" of the game.

One of soccer's greatest peacetime opponents will be greyhound racing. Confined to one day a week at each of the 20-odd tracks, weekly attendances have approximated 500,000 in the last few months, with wagering proportionately large.

The thousands who journeyed to the five horse-race tracks in operation during the season were forced to jam into trains, walk or ride in such conveyances as bicycle and horse-carts. Millions of dollars changed hands in wagering on the season's five classics, including the Derby and the St. Leger.

New Flyweight Champ

A "King" was crowned at Glasgow when Wee Jackie Peterson became undisputed flyweight boxing champion of the world and retained his British and Empire titles by knocking out Peter Kane in just 51 seconds.

Lord's, cricket centre of the world, catered to service internationals featuring the best cricketers and replacing the test matches of pre-war days. Professional soccer, in addition to regular league matches each Saturday, featured internationals between England, Scotland and Wales, with police-limit crowds of 60,000 to 100,000 in throaty attendance.

As Allied servicemen continued to pour into these islands such Canadian and American pastimes as hockey, baseball and softball grew greatly in popularity. Ball diamonds sprang up almost overnight on age-old village greens and meadows, on training and proving grounds of the armed forces. Ice hockey, so popular throughout the country before the war, has its vortex in Canadian military and air force districts.

AT THE BELLE — Ann Sothern, star of M.G.M.'s "Swing Shift Maisie", coming to the Belle Theatre this weekend, and her new leading man, James Craig, have good reason to smile. As a new team they come through with flying honors in this romantic story pictured against a background dealing with workers in an aircraft plant.

"Spitfire"

"Never have so many owed so much to so few." Winston Churchill's famous phrase is given immortal meaning by the dramatic and factual story of Britain's fighter plane, told in "Spitfire" which is now on the Belle theatre screen. Samuel Goldwyn's presentation released by RKO Radio starring Leslie Howard and David Niven.

A clever Walt Disney cartoon and a funny Leon Errol comedy precede the feature attraction.

"Swing Shift Maisie"

Ann Sothern keeps things humming in a great airplane factory in her latest adventure as the blonde showgirl with a heart of gold in M-G-M's "Swing Shift Maisie." And keeping in time with the times, she deserts a vaudeville act to go on the assembly line. The picture opens this weekend at the Belle theatre.

Getting a job in the factory, donning overalls, and learning to be a feminine mechanic, Maisie saves pretty Jean Rogers from a suicide attempt. They become rivals for the love of a test pilot, played by James Craig, who for a time falls for Miss Rogers' charms. The latter, to get Maisie out of the way, accuses her of sabotage. Amid hectic events that follow Maisie keeps a level head and in the end there is a happy reunion for Maisie and her army-bound lover.

As Sprightly as Ever

Miss Sothern's characterization of Maisie is as sprightly as ever, but she adds a new note of inspiration by showing women's part in American war industries today. Craig plays the pilot as neatly as he did the telegraph manager in "The Human Comedy," and Miss Rogers' unaccustomed role of "heavy" is convincingly done.

A clever piece of character work is that of Connie Gilchrist as Ma Lustrogel, keeper of the aircraft workers' boarding house. John Qualen adds to the hilarity as a distressed owner of a trained dog act. The Wiere Brothers provide another worthy comedy sequence.

Norman McLeod's skilful direction misses no comedy point.

The Canadian Paramount News, a colorfun cartoon "Inky and Mina Bird" and a C.C.O. feature "Tomorrow's World" will also be exhibited. On Saturday matinee the sixth chapter of the "Batman" serial will be exhibited. Continuous performances will be presented Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

Bill Elliott

"The Man From Tumbleweeds," Columbia's newest Wild Bill Saunders adventure, now at the Capitol Theatre. Bill Elliott is again starred as the reckless gunfighter of the Old West and pretty Iris Meredith is his leading lady. Francis Walker, Stanley Brown, Dub Taylor and John Tyrrell play important roles in the new film as Wild Bill cleans up a gang of desperate bandits to the accompaniment of flying lead and thundering hooves. Joseph H. Lewis directed.

"Blondie For Victory"

Columbia's "Blondie for Victory," in which the Bumstead Family goes all-out to win the war, the laugh-packed hit is now at the Capitol Theatre. Penny Singleton again is seen as "Blondie" Bumstead, with Arthur Lake continuing as Dagwood and Larry Simms appearing as Alexander, erstwhile Baby Dumpling of the family. Stuart Erwin heads the supporting cast. Frank R. Strayer directed the new comedy.

New Serial

The new Republic serial, "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday, and will be shown each week for the next fifteen weeks, is one of the most exciting and colorful serial this go-ahead studio has yet put out.

It is strictly a modern serial, but even so, has lost none of the dash and dare-deviltry of the old time varieties, and thrill succeeds thrill as the action unfolds itself.

A funny cartoon completes the triple bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"POWER OF THE PRESS"

A new kind of thrill, a powerful kind of drama, a different kind of adventure is seen in Columbia's exciting new film, Power of the Press, which opened today at the McCarthy Theatre. Said to be one of the first wartime films to show the magnificent workings of a free press in time of emergency, Power of the Press has an all-star cast featuring such popular actors as Guy Kibbee, Gloria Dickson, Lee Track, Otto Kruger and Victor Jory. Other members of the cast include Larry Parks, Rex Williams, Frank Sully and Don Beddoe among others.

Directed by Lew Landers from a Robert D. Andrews screen play, the story is laid in metropolitan New York against a thrill-filled background of arson, murder and sabotage. In brief, the film is principally concerned with the efforts of a small town newspaper editor in his campaign against big city sabotage.

As the picture opens, Guy Kibbee, the small town editor, is called to New York to take over the management of a vicious paper which is controlled by a power-seeking traitor. Determined to clean up the paper, Kibbee meets opposition from practically everyone on the staff, and especially, Lee Tracy, managing editor. There is only one person willing to work with Kibbee and that is pretty, blonde Gloria Dickson.

The two of them try desperately to show other staff members how their paper should be tracking down a dangerous band of saboteurs. They are almost ready to throw in the towel when Tracy is dramatically made to see the light. With his help the trio succeeds in exposing Kruger, in the role of the ruthless minority owner of the paper and then goes on to smash the saboteurs.

Among the action-jammed highlights which are said to make Power of the Press such an outstanding hit are three murders, roaring riots by a frenzied mob, wholesale arson of government warehouses and blazing thrills as the lads and gals who score the scoops swoop down on home-bred Hitlerites.

2nd feature attraction presents Ginger Rogers as America's white collar girl in Christopher Morley's Kitty Foyle, with Dennis Morgan, James Craig and Gladys Cooper.

Mottistone Asks Import of Phrase 'Scope, Timing'

London, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Lord Mottistone today told the House of Lords that "a very dangerous murmur" is arising in Britain over the possibility of another Passchendaele—which he called "a bloody debacle" of the last war—as a result of any ironclad agreement which may have been reached at the Teheran and Cairo conferences as to the scope and timing of the Allied grand assault on the Axis.

"I kno full well the Prime Minister himself is bitterly opposed to putting us in a straight jacket and so preventing the master mind who will direct affairs in the critical moment in battle from acting wisely in accordance with the circumstances of the moment," he said.

Lord Mottistone, the former Maj.-Gen. J. E. B. Seely, is a distinguished soldier. He commanded Canadian cavalry in the last war.

Strabolgi's Question.

Lord Strabolgi, chief Labor whip, questioned the wisdom of the Allied unconditional-surrender policy and said that if less drastic demands were made Germany's satellites might be induced to withdraw from the war and thus shorten the conflict and save much bloodshed and destruction.

Viscount Cranborne, Dominions Secretary, replied that it would be "absolutely impossible" to depart from the unconditional-surrender policy "at this late hour."

"It would not have any advantage so far as Germany's satellites are concerned," he said, but would strike terror and despair to the hearts of our friends in Europe."

Memory of Passchendaele.

Lord Mottistone said that the reason anxiety is spreading over plans for invasion is the "remembrance of Passchendaele."

"Hundreds of thousands of people are still mourning relatives lost in that battle, in whcih their lives were bound in an iron grip by a plan agreed upon," he said.

"It was tragic and a folly and throughout the length and breadth of the land they were waiting for a word to dispel the idea there is going to be another Passchendaela.

"I know it is not true. I believe it is probably the case that the plan made is a very good one but I hope the government leader (Lord Cranborne) can tell us that what these great men (Mr. Churchill, Mr. Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin) have agreed together as to scope and timing is not the actual movement of ships, troops and airplanes at the critical hour of battle.

"Decisions of detail like that should be for the supreme command at the moment."

The battle of Passchendaele was part of the vast Allied offensive of Ypres in 1917. It was fought at great cost in casualties and ended when the Canadian 1st and 2nd divisions occupied the ruined village of Passchendaele.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 20

"No glass, Sheriff," he said meaningly.

"That isn't conclusive. She might not have used a glass. Was there a bottle on the bed or the floor, Doctor?"

"That was the first thing I looked for. There was no bottle."

The Inspector crawled under the bed and came out empty-handed.

"Nothing doing, sir.".

Sergeant Feathers was kneeling by the hearth, rummaging in the fireplace. "What are you doing, man?" demanded the sheriff.

The young sergeant silently exhibited a heap of burned paper which he had removed from the grate and placed carefully on a handkerchief.

"Might be a clue here, sheriff," he said after a significant pause. Black nodded. Then frowned.

"Can you tell me how long ago the poison was administered?"

"Not more than a few minutes before I was called in; and that was a quarter of an hour ago," said Doctor Denham. "Er—the maid tells me that only she and Mr. Osborne have been at home this afternoon."

"Oh? And where is Osborne now?"

"He was here a few minutes ago. I think he went out to the garden."

From a window Sheriff Black noticed a woman in animated conversation with the policeman he had left at the gate.

"That Whipple woman is downstairs," he said irritably. "She seems to want to come in. Run down, Feathers and find out what's on her mind."

In a few minutes Sergeant Feathers returned.

"She's been using her telescope again, sir. Says a while ago she saw Stephen Osborne diggin' a hole in the far corner of the garden and hidin' something in it".

Inspector Burrows uttered a triumphant exclamation. "I always said Osborne's our—"

"Sergeant Feathers!" interjected Black.

"Sheriff?"

"Go and dig up whatever it was he hid and bring it to me".

The ensuing ten minutes were a nightmare to Dr. Denham. A peace-loving man who abhorred violence and was kindly disposed to all his neighbors, he dreaded to think where all this was leading. He looked out of the window at the well-ordered garden Stephen Osborne had tended so lovingly; and a lump rose in his throat. Feelings of pity for the poisoned woman and her unfortunate husband were mingled in her perplexed mind.

Sergeant Feathers came back and displayed a small bottle and a glass, both of which he was handling most carefully with a spotless handkerchief.

"Strychnine, Doctor?" asked Black quietly.

The doctor sniffed the glass. "Strychnine", he agreed.

"There are fingerprints on both, Sheriff", said Sergeant Feathers. "If you'll give me a minute—"

"Go ahead".

The Sergeant dusted black powder on glass and bottle: then examined them through a magnifying glass.

"Osborne's", he said at last.

"We'd better find him quickly. You'd better come along Doctor, in case. . . .

They had not far to look. They came upon Stephen Osborne in the field behind the house, standing beside the chattering stream that wandered merrily through it. There was a razor in his hand, but they did not give him time to use it. After overpowering him, Inspector Burrows warned him that anything he said might be used in evidence at his trial.

Stephen looked at him with the eyes of a dead man.

"I did it", he said simply.

Night was falling and street lights were springing up like yellow eyes in the gathering dusk. In the sheriff's comfortable office, Dr. Denham paced the floor alone. The shrill voices of children at play floated up to him from the street below and he groaned in acute mental anguish. He lit a cigarette and threw it in the grate after a single puff. The door opened and he turned with a gasp of relief.

"Thank heaven, you've come back sheriff! I was going mad with my thoughts."

Sheriff Black, too, looked troubled. With a sigh he dropped two typewritten sheets of paper on his desk and reached for a cigarette.

"He's made a statement?"

Black nodded. "I have it here. Sit down and I'll read it to you." He picked up the papers he had dropped on the desk and read aloud:

I, Stephen Osborne, have been duly cautioned and of my own free will have elected to make this statement, which is true in every particular to the best of my knowledge and belief. After the scene at lunch on the day of the murder of my sister, I went out to the garden and walked up and down, trying to think. I was desperate. I knew my sister would not relent from her determination to cut me out of her will and I could see in store for me nothing but a lifetime of poverty and humiliation. At fifty, with no aptitude for business, I had little hope of finding a position to replace the one I had lost. I could see myself living on my children for the rest of my life. The only alternative was to kill Octavia while her will in my favor still stood.

I went into the house in search of some weapon with which to kill her and in the hall found my eldest daughter's scarf, which suggested to me the idea of strangling her. I crept into the living room and was horrified to find my daughter Ann there also. She was engrossed in a book and was unaware of my presence. I could see that she was completely oblivious to her surroundings. Had my brain been functioning properly I might have abandoned my project, but I was so filled with hatred of my sister that I could think of nothing but the thing I had come to do. After it was over, I left the room without disturbing my daughter.

Since I did this I have been desperately unhappy. Somehow or other my wife guessed the truth and of late it has been torture for me to meet her eyes, knowing that she knew. My family life has been wrecked through my action and although my wife never reproached me in words, there was in her eyes an everlasting reproach. Today I could bear it no longer. There could be no further happiness in life for her or for me, and I decided to end life for us both. I poisoned my wife with strychnine and was about to end my own existence when I was apprehended by the police.

(Signed) Stephen Osborne.

"Poor devil!" murmured the doctor sadly. "They were a charming couple, devoted to each other. The 'faithful unto death' sort. Ah, well! I—I suppose he'll hang?"

"No doubt of it!"

"Did you suspect him all along of the first murder?"

"No," the sheriff admitted, "I didn't. Confidentially, I suspected his cousin, Simon Osborne. We all had our pet theories and no two were alike. Only Burrows suspected Stephen Osborne; he did from the start."

There was a knock at the door and Sergeant Feathers put his head into the room.

"Miss Ann Osborne would like to see you, Sheriff.

"Ann Osborne? Hang it all! I can't see her now. Tell her to go home."

"I don't think she'll go, Sheriff. She's very determined.

He groaned and looked helplessly at the physician. "Doctor, you've got to help me with this. Telling the child about her father is going to be an awkward job. All right, Feathers. Show her in."

Ann entered like a whirlwind.

"I hoped I'd find you here, Doctor," she said in a dry, agonized voice. "I want to know about Mother. Hannah told me you had her removed to the County Hospital. I went there but they would not let me see her, wouldn't even tell me anything, except that she's still unconscious. Doctor, will she live?"

"I don't know, my dear. I'm afraid there isn't much hope."

Ann uttered a stricken cry and her face went a sickly white. For a moment the doctor thought that she was going to faint. She turned to Sheriff Black.

"What are you doing with my father?"

Dr. Denham stood up, moistening his lips nervously. He put a hand on the girl's arm.

"Ann, my dear, please be brave. Ann, you've got to be brave. What I am going to tell you will come as a great shock. You've got to meet it with courage. Ann, your—your—"

He could not go on. Ann looked at him with anguished but tearful eyes.

"You are trying to tell me that my father has been arrested for murder. But it's all a mistake, a terrible mistake!"

"He has made a statement, Ann," said Sheriff Black quietly, "in which he admits having killed your aunt and—and—"

"He made it up from beginning to end. Don't you see, he's doing
"To protect you!" exclaimed the this to protect me?"
sheriff.

"Ann! You don't know what you are saying!" cried the doctor.

Ann laughed harshly.

"Oh, yes, I do. I killed Aunt Octavia. Why you didn't see through me from the start, heaven only knows! My story was thin enough. I was so engrossed in my book that murder was done right under my nose and I didn't know it! How could a veteran policeman believe a tale like that for an instant? Why, it's too absurd for words! And yet, you swallowed it, hook, line and sinker!

"Do you really believe I could have settled down calmly to read in the same room with that awful old woman? After the scene she'd made a few minutes before? Oh, you can't believe that, it's too impossible.

"I did try to read. I wanted to show her how little I cared. But I could not concentrate on the book. One thought kept recurring in my brain: Aunt Octavia must not be allowed to make the new will. She must never leave the house alive. After a time I put down the book and said, very politely: 'Will you excuse me for a moment?'

"I meant to go out to the kitchen and find a knife, but I saw Dorothy's scarf lying in the hall and I decided it would do quite as well. I stole back to the living room. On tiptoe, scarcely daring to breathe, I approached from the rear chair in which Aunt Octavia was sitting—"

Now Ann was sobbing wildly, hysterically. Appalled, Sheriff Black stared at her in silence for a time, and then he said: "But this afternoon you were not in the house when your mother—"

"That was an attempt at murder I think I can see what happened. Mother knew I killed Aunt Octavia —I told her a few days ago—and the knowledge must have been too much for her. She must have tried to kill herself because she could not bear to live."

"But your father was seen burying the poison bottle! His fingerprints are all over it! He confessed—"

"Do you think father would acknowledge to the world that mother committed suicide? He would rather — a thousand times rather—be hanged!"

That night a chemistry professor at Bradbury University spent long hours in his laboratory piecing together the scraps of burned paper which Sergeant Feathers had found in the fireplace of Edith Osborne's room. He photographed them by a violet ray process; and on the prints he took from the developed plates, the writing showed up white and clear against a black background.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Industrial and Mining groups were down narrowly on Toronto Stock Market at noon and the Western Oils were even with Thursday's close. Turnover was sizeable at 215,000 shares for the first three hours.

Liquor issues ruled higher and the Foods lost ground. Other Industrials were steady. Hiram Walker gained 1¼, Distillers-Seagrams 1¼ and Canadian Industrial Alcohol A ½. In the Foods Canada Packers, Canadian Bakeries Pfd. and Canners A were lower.

Sylvanite, Pickle Crow, Upper Canada, Leitch and Wright-Hargreaves recorded minor declines. Smelters and Steep Rock were the weakest of the Base Metals. Western Oils Limited changes mainly to fractions.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Dec. 17. (AP) —Prices generally displayed further moderate improvement in today's stock market although profit taking stemmed an early upswing in the buoyant liquors.

Alcoholic issues jumped 1 to more than three points, the majority to New Year's highs, on blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares at the opening. Holders then began to cash in and, near the fourth hour, top marks were substantially reduced or converted into losses of a point or so. Dealings slackened after an active get-away.

Canadian issues were quiet, with Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines and Hiram Walker down, and Lake Shore unchanged.

Schenley and National Distillers managed to hold modest improvement while American Distilling and Canada Dry retreated.

Quotations at 2.30.

Poultry Prices Remain Firm

Toronto, Dec. 17 —(CP)— The fresh dressed poultry market maintains a firm tone, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Larger operators report increase in receipts of chicken but arrivals of fowl are light and demand for fowl is light. Demand is exceptionally good for all kinds of poultry with the exception of fowl.

Arrivals of turkeys, ducks and geese are not sufficient to take care of requirements, causing an upward revision of price for these kinds of poultry. One mixed car of geese and ducks is due to arrive from the West costing 27 cents lb. for geese, basis Grade A, heads off, and 29 cents lb. for ducks, basis Grade A. Three cars of turkeys arrived from the West and two more are due to arrive over the weekend. One of the cars on spot contains practically all Grade B birds. Others are mixed grades, reported costing ceiling prices.

Quotations.

Dealers are quoting producers and country shippers for dressed poultry:

Eight Jap Cargo Ships Sunk By U. S. Submarines

Washington, Dec. 17—(AP)—United States submarines roaming the Pacific have added eight more Japanese cargo ships to their "sighted and sunk" list. These raise the total of all Japanese vessels sunk since the start of the war to 374.

The Navy announced the new sinkings today in a communique.

With the 8th Army in Italy, Dec. 14 — (Delayed) — (AP) — His eyes twinkling, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told his men yesterday "A lot of people are taking money betting on when we get to Rome," and added: "I made £10 this morning, myself."

(He did not specify what he had put his money on, but the remark suggested he had not expected to see Rome just yet.)

Canucks Capture Village 3 Miles From Ortona

By EDWARD KENNEDY
A. P. War Correspondent

Algiers, Dec. 17 — (AP) — The British 8th Army has cut the Lateral Road between Ortona and Orsogna in three places and captured the village of Berardi, three miles from the port of Ortona. Allied headquarters announced today.

(Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent in London, said that latest dispatches showed the crossing of the road by Canadian troops put them in position to bring the heaviest pressure to bear on the port of Ortona, which the Germans are reported to be destroying, presumably prior to evacuation.)

The French-Canadian troops (the Royal 22nd of Quebec) captured Berardi which earlier this week was raided by Canadians who captured a general among 150 other prisoners and took much equipment before retiring.

Indian troops made progress in the vicinity of Orsogna, some 15 miles inland from the Adriatic, and also crossed the Ortona-Orsogna highway. Heavy fighting was reported still in progress near Orsogna.

The 8th Army's gains, made despite bad weather, were assisted by tanks, which knocked out four enemy tanks.

Canadian and Indian troops in crossing the bitterly-contested highway from Orsogna to Ortona forced the Germans into the hills, where they were being subjected to almost constant shelling. Indian troops captured 65 prisoners.

Advices from the front said Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops have taken 2,000 prisoners since the Sangro River battle began Nov. 17.

Labor Minister Plans Reforms

Toronto, Dec. 17, (CP) — The Toronto Globe and Mail in a newspage story Thursday reported that plans are being prepared by Labor Minister Daley of Ontario for "important reforms" in the Provincial Civil Service.

Listed as parts of the proposal were creation of Civil Service examinations for junior appointments: automatic salary increases throughout the service; vesting of greater authority in the Civil Service Commissioner; and improvement of the positions of Civil servants on the temporary payroll by advancement to permanent basis after a stipulated period.

The story said there is a prospect of the proposal's coming up "for final consideration" at the next Cabinet Council.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R. C. A. F. Somewhere in England, Dec. 16—(CP)—PO. E. F. G. Haddlesey of Norwood, Ont., flies with an Australian Lancaster squadron whose members think him one of the greatest guys in the world. This is why:-

Wounded through the right shoulder and manning his mid-upper guns with his left hand, Haddlesey destroyed a Nazi nightfighter and for three hours on the homeward journey said nothing of his injury while tending a wounded Aussie reargunner. His commanding officer termed it "one of the bravest actions I've ever heard of."

Haddlesey and the other gunner were wounded when their bomber was coned over a target and riddled with bullets by a nightfighter. Operating the guns with one hand, the Canadian sent a fatal burst into the enemy aircraft which was seen by the rest of the crew to go down in flames.

Weak from loss of blood, Haddlesey then made his way to the rear where he extricated the wounded gunner and administered morphia and first aid. The Lancaster limped home where an ambulance waited.

Haddlesey went to hospital where it was noticed his shoulder was streaming blood. Only when the rear gunner's wounds were dressed did he admit he had been shot. Then he collapsed.

Recently awarded the D. F. C. was WO. R. O. (Bob) Lumgair of Thornhill, Man., who compiled an enviable score from the rotating rear turret of a Lancaster bomber. A veteran of the Canadian Goose squadron at 24, Bob has just completed a hectic tour of operations with two enemy fighters to his credit.

His last "kill" came as the bomber, piloted by PO. A. R. (Pop) Crubert (5335 Durocher Ave.) Montreal, flew through heavy flak and searchlight concentration and night fighter defence belts to blast Cologne.

"We were attacked as we were going in on the target," Bob said. "Both myself and the English mid-upper gunner opened fire together. As the fighter came in it burst into flames."

Flt. Lt. K. L. Morham of St. Lambert, Que., went for a bit of an air stroll over France and raised the trainbusting score of his squadron by three. His unit, the City of Toronto, squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. R. A. Ellis, D. F. C., of Montreal West, has long been a top scorer in this type of activity with FO. Frank Hanton, D. F. C. of Kenora, Ont., one of the heaviest contributors.

Roosevelt May Give Account Of Conference

Washington, Dec. 17. (AP)—Safely back in the United States after a round of war conferences abroad, President Roosevelt today found Congress getting ready to take a Christmas vacation.

Whether a joint session will be held first to hear Mr. Roosevelt report on his momentous meeting in Cairo and Teheran probably will be decided at talks he is expected to have soon with Congressional leaders.

The President was in constant contact with the White House during his absence and presumably was kept fully informed of developments. In addition to rapid wireless messages, it became known, he exchanged information and documents with his aides here by airplane couriers, who shuttled across the Atlantic every two days and sometimes oftener.

On top of the report Mr. Roosevelt is expected to make to Congress on the Allied War Councils, the President is faced with the task of preparing his annual budget message. He also may report on the state of the Union soon after the end of the holidays.

Germans Called Pleaded Guilty

London, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Germans accused of atrocities in Kharkov during Nazi occupation of that city have been called to trial before a military tribunal of the Fourth Ukraine front and have pleaded guilty, the Moscow radio said today in a broadcast recorded by Reuters news agency.

The trial hall was crowded with hundreds of workers, including some who bore traces of German torture, the broadcast said.

"All of them awaited the hour of retribution," the announcement added. "The hour now has struck."

After the Russian Army reoccupied Kharkov Aug. 24, Moscow charged that more than 14,000 "absolutely innocent" inhabitants of the city had been slain, some being shot and others being executed in "death trap" trucks, described as hermetically sealed with the exhausts connected inside.

Employees Trek To Polling Booths

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sudbury, Ont., Dec. 17—(CP)—There was little outward flurry in this great nickel-producing area as employees of the manifold operations of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., went to the polls today in a collective bargaining vote held under order of the Ontario Labor Court.

The quiet attitude toward the vote, in which approximately 10,000 men and women are e[illegible] take part, probably results from the court order banning electioneering by either contesting party — the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) and the United Copper, Nickel Workers (Independent).

The vote stems from an application to the court by the smelter workers for certification as collective bargaining agent for the company's employees. The Independent Union — which now has a collective bargaining agreement with the company for some of its operations in this district — is intervener. Voters may mark ballots for either union or for "neither."

Year of Attacks Ended Axis Rule in N. Africa

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, Dec. 17—(CP)— It was "Mediterranean Year" in 1943 for Allied armies in North Africa and Europe. It was a year of attack, of fierce battles and of victories—a year which brought the end of the Axis in Africa and the beginning for the Allies in Europe.

In these 12 months of hard fighting from the desert through Tunisia, Sicily and Italy, British and American armies changed the course of the war in a brilliant series of successful operations.

A year ago victory in Europe seemed remote. Today they talk in London and Algiers and Naples of sound prospects for a 1944 victory.

The tremendous effort to the Red Army was a major factor but down in the Mediterranean four armies won other victories against the Germans and Italians that carved a path into the European mainland.

Now the allied force is firmly established in Italy and a vista of military possibilities lies before them. There are the boiling Balkans, southern France, Greece and eventually southern Germany itself.

Faced Big Task

At the start of this eventful and profitable year, it seemed in Tunisia that the Allies had bitten off more than they could chew. The 1st British Army was in the mountain line, but the Germans were packing in troops and it was practically a stalemate for several months in the soggy valleys and windswept passes of that forbidding country.

But the 8th Army was chugging along the Mediterranean coast from Bengazi to Tripoli, slowly but determinedly pushing Rommel's army ahead of it. It soon became evident, however, that the Germans were going to fight for Tunisia.

So the battered 1st Army had to bear the brunt as the enemy lashed out in an attempt to smash it before the 8th turned the corner at Tripoli and Mareth and started northward.

Two galliant British divisions—the 78th and the 6th armored—held the tenuous line from the Mateur valley on the north to Cusseltia on the central sector, while the American 2nd Corps was stationed on the southern sector.

Despite the defeats in the south at Sidi Bouzid and in the granite pass at Kasserine, the line held and then Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commanding the 18th army group of the 1st and 8th armies and the Americans, mounted his deadly two-way attack.

Fall of Tunisia.

The 8th broke through at Mareth and its tanks and guns and infantry flooded up the coast. The Americans pushed to El Guettar on the flank and the Germans pulled back into the Tunis-Bizerte triangle. With 15 divisions available, Alexander then descended on the trapped enemy. He feinted from the south at Enfidaville and sent his main punch down the Medjerdah River valley, breaking through in a bloody fight at Longstop hill and sweeping in on Tunis. The Americans in the north successfuly attacked down the Mateur Valley. Tunis and Bizerte fell. By May 9 it was all over and Germans poured into prison camps.

Already the Sicilian invasion had been planned. Preparations were far advanced. At Allied Headquarters in Algiers Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and his staff worked night and day on the strategic plan. Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery got his 8th Army ready. The Canadian 1st infantry division was to come from England with a Canadian army tank brigade. Gen. George Patton was to take the American 7th army in and the 45th American infantry division was to come direct from New York for the assault on Gela on Sicily's south coast.

Pantelleria was pulverized by air bombardment in a "test-tube" workout to give the North African air forces a chance to see what they could do in daylight precision bombing. They found the answer for Sicily there and the bombing of Sicily started. Airfields, towns, railways, dumps, roads and bridges were attacked. Steadily the air blitz grew.

By mid-June the invasion armada was ready to sail. The Royal Navy had the sea lanes through the Mediterranean cleared and the air forces dominated the skies. The Canadians left the United Kingdom and hundreds of ships also sailed from there carrying supplies and ammunition as well. The 45th division pulled into the Mediterranean from New York.

Attack on Sicily

On the afternoon of July 9, 2,500 ships and craft turned north from the rendezvous south of Malta. A storm blew up. Canny Sir Andrew Cunningham, directing the convoy and naval operations, watched the fleet move past the red cliffs of Malta. He gauged the sea and the wind and the tough, old seadog said the invasion would go on as scheduled, sea or no sea running.

Many a landlubber infantryman held his breath that night as he watched great waves crash against the side of his ship. But it calmed down considerably in the early morning and the little boats bobbed to the beaches.

The rest of the story is current history. The 8th got ashore easily. The Americans had a rough time at Gela fighting German tank formations and then broke away to conquer all western Sicily and go northeast to be the first into Messina. At the Simeto river bridge south of Catania the 5th and 50th divisions of the 8th Army had a terrible battle and then as the Canadians and the 78th broke around on the left flank to Mount Etna the Germans drew back to evacuate their mauled force to Italy. The Italian army folded up from the start.

On Sept. 3, with the Italian armistice already signed and delivered, the Canadians and a lone British division were ferried across the Messina straits to the beaches at Reggio and San Giovanni on the Italian mainland.

Southern Italy Taken

The pursuit of the Germans went on from there through Calabria with Allied air forces pounding the areas ahead of the 8th Army formations. It was invasion of Europe at the cheapest price. British troops landed at Taranto and southern areas of Italy were in Allied hands within a few weeks.

It wasn't all clover, however. The 5th Army, a British-American formation under American General Mark Clark went into Salerno Bay, south of Naples. The Germans were waiting on the bridgehead. There was bloody fighting for days and at times it looked as if the venture would fail.

But it didn't. Salerno Bay was saved by the fighting spirit of the 5th Army, by a terrific blitz by the Allied air forces and by the speed of the 8th Army which brought it up to the right flank in the nick of time.

The 5th and 8th, how bolstered by more division, began a methodical campaign northward through Italy, with the Royal Navy aiding it from the sea. Sardinia and Corsica were added to Allied territory and provided some useful airfields.

Tito Has Seized Initiative From Nazis in Croatia

London, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) has seized the initiative from the Germans in Croatia, the Yugoslav Liberation Army announced today, after halting the advance of heavily reinforced Nazi forces who yesterday were reported burning and looting one village after another.

The vengeful Nazis, making another of their big-scale tank-led efforts to crush the fiery patriots, were brought to halt just six days after Tito, in a dramatic appeal to his men, told them "This is the decisive hour." Tito's communique was broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

The German offensives were aimed at the Kordun and Baniya districts of Croatia. In Western Bosnia to the south, the Yugoslav announced the slaying of several hundred Germans and satellite troops near Livno and Duvno, while in Eastern Bosnia the patriots also engaged in successful operations against units of the 1st Alpenjaeger (Alpine) Division.

The Germans, striving to destroy Tito's Army before the Allies launch a possible invasion of the Balkans, were rushing reinforcements to all areas.

5TH ARMY SLOWLY CLOSING ROAD TO ROME

Pincers Movement Encircles Village Of San Pietro

Germans Now Have Only One Road of Escape As Allies Dominate Heights

CAPTURE LAGONE

By WES GALLAGHER
(Associated Press War Correspondent.)

Algiers, Dec. 18. (AP)— A 5th Army Pincers movement closed in today on the heavily-fortified village of San Pietro, seven miles northeast of Cassino, on the main highway to Rome.

American troops reached the outskirts of San Pietro, where hand-to-hand fighting continued for the second straight day as the troops dug the Germans out of their pillboxes one by one. The Allies now hold heights north, east, south and southwest of the village, a military commentator said, leaving the Germans only one road to escape.

The attack on San Pietro was co-ordinated with an assault on 1,000-foot Mount Lungo, to south of the Rome Road. Closing of the pincers would chop off a large section of the road near the entrance into the Cassino Plain.

Capture Mountain Village.

Further inland Allied troops captured Lagone, a 2,000-foot mountain village two miles west of Filignano in hard street fighting. Three German attacks northwest of Venafro were repulsed, but in Central Italy on the 5th Army front Allied positions were driven back by a fierce German mountain lunge.

Around San Pietro the enemy was barricaded in innumerable concrete pillboxes and caves and all approaches to the village were guarded with mines and booby-traps—making the progress of the 5th Army slow and costly.

Fighting on the 8th Army's end of the line near the Adriatic was equally bitter with the Germans counter-attacking and both sides using tanks. By nightfall yesterday, 13 German tanks had been turned into flaming wrecks and two had been captured intact.

New Zealand troops fought their way on to the north of the Orsogna-Ortona Road which they had crossed three days ago and it was against those units that the Germans directed theis heaviest counter-blows, particularly in the vicinity of Orsogna.

Some of the enemy's 1st Parachute Division was withdrawn from mountain positions to take part in this fighting.

Canadian Named

Allied headquarters formally named the Canadians fighting in the Adriatic end of the line, where they are closing in on the port of Ortona, as the Canadian 1st Division which took part in the Sicilian campaign and the 3½-months drive up through northern Italy.

Bad weather grounded the big bombers of the 15th strategic Air Force which on the three previous days had smashed at enemy airfields at Athens and rail facilities in the Alpin passes between Italy and Austria.

But lighter planes ranged over Yugoslavia, Albania and Italy, provoking a series of sharp sky battles in which seven enemy fighters were shot down and one Allied plane failed to return.

R. A. F. Spitfires of the Coastal Command made a sweep over Albania during which they shot down four German interceptors without loss to themselves.

American fighter-bombers attacked shipping along the Yugoslav coast and during the mission their escort took on five Messerschmitt-109s and shot down three. The aircraft strafed a merchant steamer which had previously been attacked and towed into a port on the Peljesak peninsula.

Docks Are Hit

In Western Italy American planes made a quick, destructive attack on Port Anzio, 26 miles south of Rome, scoring hits on docks, barracks and warehouses. They topped off the assault by strafing a convoy of 15 motor trucks.

Spitfires and Warhawks were active over the battle front, attacking two trains south of Ancona and destroying three Locomotives and damaging 14 cars.

A few Italian fighter planes made an attack on a German airfield at Podgorica in Yugoslavia. This was the first time the Italian Air Force had ben announced as in action on a mission of its own, although small numbers of Italian plants have flown as escorts previously.

The Air Force announced that during the Sangro river battle the tactical bomber force made 1,395 sorties in support of the 8th Army.

Child Beaten To Death Because It Screamed

Moscow, Dec. 18 — (AP)—Capt. William Lanheld, 52, of the Gestapo, a defendant being tried in a Kharkov court for murder as a war criminal, described the operations of gas truck death chambers, it was revealed today. He said he had seen Russians inside clawing at the windows as they met death.

Lanheld is being tried with other Germans and one Russian traitor under the Pledge by the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States that war criminals would be brought to justice at the scenes of their crimes and tried under local law.

After he told of how five women were executed one morning, the prosecutor asked, "And what happened to the sixth woman — the mother with the child?"

"She died during a beating," Langheld was quoted.

"And her child?"

"The child began wailing and screaming and finally a corporal killed it."

Air Training Plan Potent Factor In Ultimate Success of Allied Forces

Ottawa, Dec. 18 (CP)—To those connected with the planning and development of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, it is a "great satisfaction to know that we have helped to make easier the ultimate success of the troops on the fronts," Air Minister Power said Friday night in a statement reviewing the development of the R.C.A.F. under the plan, now entering upon its fifth year.

"It is apparent," the Minister said, "that the enemy's industrial might is reeling under the giant hammer blows of air bombardment. There is even a hint that these blows may be a decisive factor in the final victory. At the very least it now is possible to say that air bombardment has considerably weakened the enemy's military power."

Trained R.C.A.F. personnel do not constitute the entire product of the B.C.A.T.P., "but their activities alone are a striking indication of its accomplishments."

Maj. Power said the recent shift of Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, Chief of Air Staff, to the post of Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief, R.C.A.F. overseas, was tied up with Canada's constantly-growing role in the air.

The R.C.A.F. today operates all over the world—from the Aleutians to Ceylon, Russia to England, North Africa to Alaska.

Referring to the world-wide operations of the R.C.A.F., the minister said a notable feature of Canadian activity in the Aleutians campaign came to light when it was disclosed that an emergency appeal brought a fighter squadron, intact, from Ottawa to an Aleutian outpost in 48 hours.

More than 200,000 have been enlisted in the R.C.A.F., including more than 15,000 members of the women's division, since war broke out, and about 80,000 of this total have had special training in ground crew trades so that aircrew could be kept aloft.

"The C.A.T.P. was first intended to last only until March 31, 1943, but its instant success prompted the participants to extend its operation until March 31, 1945. This decision was reached early in 1943," the minister said.

"Canada will pay half the estimated cost of $1,500,000,000; Britain, Australia and New Zealand will pay the rest. Britain has already paid much of her share in the form of planes and other equipment needed to carry out the giant undertaking."

Troops Advancing Steadily in Invasion Of Japanese-Held New Britain Island

14 PLANES DOWNED

By ASAHEL BUSH
Associated Press War Correspondent

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Dec. 18—(AP)—Troops of the United States 6th Army have occupied the entire Cape Merkus peninsula in the Arawe sector of New Britain island, and are continuing to advance, headquarters announced tonight.

This gave the invasion forces which landed four days ago complete control of the three-mile neck of land flanking the Arawe harbor on the southwest coast of the big island leading toward the site of the presently-unserviceable air strip.

The peninsula, together with the off-lying Pilelo island which was overrun the first day of the attack, were described as the prime initial objectives of the sea-borne blow against Japanese occupation of New Britain, their major base in the southwest Pacific area.

"Our force near Arawe continues to expand its position," a headquarters spokesman said on the basis of developments through yesterday.

No Battleline Established

No distinct battleline has been established, the spokesman said, but Americans in intermittent combat eliminated scattered enemy resistance as it was encountered.

The Japanese were reported to have continued their air activity over the sector in an effort to hamper the gains, but there has been no indication of any damage caused. The enemy's earlier aerial retaliation was beaten off by Allied fighters.

On the second southwest Pacific land front across the Vitiaz straits, Australians pressed farther northward along the shore of the Huon peninsula of New Guinea and maintained contact with the enemy north of the Sanga river.

14 Planes Downed

United States 5th Airforce fighters which downed 14 of the Japanese bombers and fighters seeking to attack the bridgehead, patrolled the skies over Arawe today while that New Britain invasion point was cleared of enemy snipers and fortified by U. S. 6th Army troops.

On the Solomons approach to Rabaul, Admiral William F. Halsey reported 230 more sorties by planes which monopolized the skies over Bougainville, pounding its 150-mile-length with 170 tons of explosives from Buin on the south to Buka on the north.

Far to the northeast of the Solomons, 7th Army Air Force bombers raided the mid-Pacific Marshalls for the eight straight day Wednesday. The big bombers pounded the enemy airbase at Wotje atoll.

Borneo Fields Hit

Northwest of Australia, bombers made a roundtrip flight of more than 2,500 miles to hit Japanese oil refineries at Balikpapan on Borneo. Closer to Australia Beaufighters sank a 4,000-ton transport off Timor.

These air operations, from Borneo to the Marshalls, extended over an ocean arc of roughly 4,000 miles.

Italian Surrender Has Proved Of Less Value Than Hoped For

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

Algiers, Dec. 18 —(AP)— Three factors, as important, if not more so, than terrain and weather, have played a large part in the slow progress of the British 8th Army and the Anglo-American 5th Armies up the Italian boot, it appears to me after a tour of southern Italy.

They are:

1. The Italian surrender has produced far less in a military sense than had first been hoped for. The Italian armed forces have not yet proved of any great value, especially on land, and Italian guerilla activity and sabotage has been negligible.

2. This Mediterranean theatre is competing in priorities with other theatres which figure higher in Allied plans.

3. Outside of prestige there is little military value in capturing Rome. It would not be worth the tremendous cost in infantry casualties to bring the campaign to a quick end.

But despite the fact that there is little chance that the drive can be speeded up, I am convinced that the campaign has been worth the cost, for the tremendous air bases on the mainland alone.

Foggia and its 13 satellite fields offer bases from which heavy bomber forces can attack every point in southern Germany and the Balkans. The great plain, along with flat lands to the south, offer space for an unlimited number of planes, and heavy bombers are pouring steadily into this theatre.

Besides bombing Germany, Mediterranean air forces undoubtedly will be given the task of knocking Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary out of the war, or at least discouraging them from taking active part. And also they will be weakening the German airforce for defence purposes in the spring.

CAIRO-TEHERAN PARLEYS WILL GIVE PEACE-ROOSEVELT

President Says Stalin Warned Him of Plot to Get Three Leaders

BROADCASTS FRIDAY

Washington, Dec. 18 —(AP)— Peace for this generation at least may evolve from the Cairo-Teheran conferences, says President Roosevelt, back at his White House desk today after a 63-day, 25,000-mile trip that was spiced, to say the least, by a threat to his personal safety.

Mr. Roosevelt gave reporters yesterday a sketchy glimpse of his epochal meetings with Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and President Chiang Kai-Shek. He promised more detail in a world broadcast at 3 p.m. (E.D.T.) next Friday, the day before Christmas. What he doesn't say in that speech will be contained in a report to Congress later.

The President got to Washington at 9:30 a.m. yesterday, promtly met with Congressional leaders, representatives of the British, Chinese, Russian, Turkish, Iranian and Egyptian governments, and his Cabinet.

Meets With Press.

Meeting the press after this, Mr. Roosevelt, with his usual flair for the unexpected, revealed why he moved to the Russian embassy in Teheran, Iran, for his talks with Mr. Churchill and Stalin.

Stalin, he said, warned him that there was a Nazi plot afoot against all three Allied leaders. By moving, Mr. Roosevelt explained, it was possible for them to communicate without walking the streets because the British embassy was next door to the Russian headquarters. Stalin, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt would have been a pretty good haul for any Nazi terrorist, the President observed wryly.

He brushed aside any elaboration of the Cairo-Teheran announcements except to say that the talks were a success in every way and he hopes that they laid the foundation for a post-war era of peace to last through the lives of this generation. The other leaders feel this way, too, he said.

More meetings might be held, Mr. Roosevelt implied. The way to put it, he said, is that all the leaders are on call.

Enjoyed Press Conference.

The President obviously enjoyed his first press conference since his latest trip abroad.

He emphasized his Christmas Eve broadcast will be addressed primarily to the United States forces deployed throughout the world, pointing out it would actually be heard on Christmas morning in some places, due to time differences.

Asked about his personal impressions of Premier Stalin, the President said the actual fact of meeting him lived up to the highest expectations. Referring in warm phrases also to President Chiang Kai-Shek, he added that although an interpreter was required at the respective meetings with these two, everyine got along all right.

Churchill's Pulse Irregular Though Temperature Lower

London, Dec. 18 — (CP) — A statement from 10 Downing St., said today that Prime Minister Churchill's pulse has been recorded as irregular but that his temperature is subsiding.

The bulletin said the Prime Minister's pneumonia "is resolving."

The text of the statement, timed at 3:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. E.D.T.), said:

"There has been some irregularity of pulse but temperature is subsiding and pneumonia is resolving."

It was signed by Lord Moran, Brig. Evan Bedford and Lt.-Col. R. J. V. Pulvertaft.

LARGE MUNITIONS PLANT IN BERLIN BLOWN UP IN RAID

Swedish Engineer Counted 41 Fires Burning in 15-Minute Walk

AREA DEVASTATED

Stockholm, Dec. 18 (AP)—One of Berlin's largest munitions factories in suburban Babelsberg was blown up by the R.A.F.'s Thursday night raid, Karl Erikson, a Swedish engineer just returned from the Reich capital, said today.

Erikson said, "it was light as day on the streets from fires and I counted 41 in a 15-minute walk down the street. A quarter of an hour after I retired in the hotel Excelsior, which was practically untouched except that the windows were broken, a violent explosion shook Berlin. The next morning I learned the blast was at one of Berlin's largest munitions factories at Babelsberg which was destroyed by a delayed-action bomb."

Erikson, who has been installing turbines in Italy for the past four years, was passing through Berlin en route to Sweden from Genoa.

"I had experienced several British and American air raids before, but this was the worst experience in my life," he said.

"Bombs dropped unceasingly for nearly half an hour, especially around the air raid shelter near Anhalter station, where I stayed."

Big Area Devastated

He estimated the area within a radius of a third of a mile of the Anhalter station had been devastated, but said the station itself was undamaged. Also hard hit were the western suburbs of Babelsberg and Neubelsberg.

"When I left the Tempehof airfield fires were still burning in three administration offices. The personnel told me that four hangars were destroyed and parts of the field torn up by bomb craters."

He said, however, that Berliners took the raid quietly because they were growing accustomed to them.

"Fire brigades and the police were better organized than in earlier raids, according to persons I spoke to. Berliners said it was the shortest of the big attacks, yet the most violent they had experienced."

Another eyewitness said he had found Essen and Kassel harder hit than Berlin.

Genoa looks almost as bad as Berlin, Erikson continued.

"Fifteen thousand homes have been damaged at Genoa, of which 8,000 are ruined completely. In Milan, 30,000 houses have been damaged severely."

POLAND SAID AGREEABLE TO RECONCILIATION WITH RUSSIA

London, Dec. 18 — (CP) — The semi-official Polish newspaper Dziennik Polski gave a strong boost today to the Russian-Czecho-Slovak Mutual Assistance Pact recently signed in Moscow but said Poland "has so far received no invitation to participate."

The pact left the way open for a third unnamed country to join, and the newspaper's comment was interpreted as meaning that Poland would be receptive to signing after a reconciliation with Russia. There has been no diplomatic contact between Poland and Russia since the two countries broke relations last April.

YUGOSLAV TROOPS SEIZE INITIATIVE IN THREE SECTORS

Tito's Partisans Go Forward on Serb Frontier in E. Bosnia And in Croatia

HIT GERMANS HARD

London, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Yugoslav Partisan troops have gone over to the counter-offensive in three sectors, seizing the initiative after breaking the heaviest German assaults yet launched against the liberated territory, it was announced today.

Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio reported that in the Serbia-Montenegro border area his 2nd Corps was "clearing the territory of the enemy," that in Eastern Bosnia his troops were going forward in "very heavy fighting" against tanks, and that in Croatia as well, Yugoslav forces were on the offensive.

The Germans were hard hit in Montenegro, where Partisan forces were battling them to a standstill, Tito said. The Yugoslavs counted 280 dead Germans and Chetniks on the battlefield, together with many wounded, and captured a large amount of war gear, his bulletin added.

FIRST DIVISION OF CANADIANS IN SPEARHEAD

Now Identified as Heading 8th Army Drive Up the Adriatic Coast

DIVISION'S RECORD

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, Dec. 18 — (CP Cable) — The Canadian formation spearheading the drive of the British 8th Army up the Adriatic coast was identified for the first time today as the Canadian 1st Division in a dispatch from the Daily Herald's correspondent at Allied headquarters, Algiers.

The correspondent said, "Men of the Canadian 1st Division on the coastal sector are burying the Germans in 'Dead Man's Gulch.' This ravine has been the scene of the hardest fighting of the whole 8th Army's Italian campaign."

While it was obvious to Canadians here that the 1st Division was doing the fighting it had been prohibited until now to mention its number in dispatches from London until Allied headquarters formally permitted naming it.

Already Allied headquarters had named seven infantry regiments and a reconnaissance regiment of the 1st Division as being in Italy.

The division, then under command of Maj-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont., fought throughout the 38-day "model campaign" in Sicily beginning last July 10. Since then Gen. Simonds has been promoted to command a Canadian armored division. There has been no formal announcement as to what general officer succeeded him in command of the 1st Division.

Last month the division was joined in Italy by at least one other division and announcement was made that a Canadian corps had been formed there. There has been no indication yet that these fresh troops have gone into the line.

First division units which Allied headquarters has formally named as being in Italy are the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the 48th Highlanders of Canada, making up the 1st Brigade; the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada (Vancouver) and the Loyal Edmontons, making up the 2nd Brigade, the Carleton and Yorks of New Brunswick, and the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, a reconnaissance battalion. In addition the West Nova Scotias and the Royal 22nd of Quebec are known to be in Italy although they have not been formally identified. These two and the Carleton and Yorks made up the 3rd Brigade in Sicily.

Berlin Reports Terrific Battles In White Russia

Possibly Heralds Opening of Full-Scale Russ Winter Drive for Baltic

HOLD AT KIEV

London, Dec. 18—(CP)—Troops of Gen. Ivan S. Konev's 2nd Ukraine army have strengthened their encirclement of the industrial city of Kirovograd, killing 800 counter-attacking Germans, Moscow announced today as Nazi sources reported new and heavy fighting in White Russia.

Capture of Kirovograd would seriously menace the German garrison at Krivoi Rog, principle source of manganese for Germany's war machine. The Germans have held to this vital mining centre for months, hurling back repeated Red army frontal attacks.

Today's Russian communique was unusually laconic, confining itself mainly to action around Kirovograd, but Berlin reported terrific battles in White Russia, possibly heralding the opening of a full-scale Russian winter drive for the Baltic.

Dispatches from Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, meanwhile said that Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukraine army, in smashing Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein's tank offensive in the Kiev bulge, "has won a defensive victory as important as some of its offensive victories."

Fail to Achieve Breakthrough

"Although the Germans gained the important rail cities of Zhitomir and Korosten," Cassidy wrote "and the highway junction of Radomsyl is prolonged and expensive armored assaults, they failed to achieve a major breakthrough. The fighting which originally involved eight German tank divisions has now dwindled to scouting operations."

Cassidy added Vatutin still holds a wide springboard west of Kiev for further expected Russian offensives toward the Polish frontier.

Most important of the reported Soviet drives in White Russia, according to Berlin, was an attack begun last Monday in the area south of Nevel, 70 miles from the Latvian border.

Here, the German broadcasts asserted, the Red army has extended its operations west and northwest of Nevel Yeremenko was said by the Nazis to be using at least 60,000 troops bolstered by heavy tank forces in this drive toward the Baltic coast.

JAPS DECISIVELY BEATEN IN DRIVE ON RICE AREA

General Chennault Says Enemy Attempting to Extricate 10,000 Men From Area

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN
Associated Press War Correspondent

U.S. Air Headquarters in China, Dec. 17 (Delayed)—(AP)—Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force, declared today the Japanese have been "decisively defeated" in their drive into free China's rice area and now are attempting to extricate about 10,000 troops from the Tungting Lake battle area.

"The Japanese troops sustained severe losses," said Chennault whose fliers have been supporting the Chinese ground operations. He described the co-operation of the Chinese with his command as excellent.

"I believe our planes inflicted considerable casualties on the enemy in addition to holding up the withdrawal of the invaders by bombing the towns through which they passed," Chennault added.

"If their object was to loot the rice harvest we know a lot which they seized has been sunk by air attack on boats. We still are trying to prevent them getting out the rice.

"I feel very much elated that the Japanese have been decisively defeated in the Changteh operations. The campaign demonstrates again that Japanese ground troops are unable to penetrate any great distance into the interior of China.

"The greatest penetration did not exceed 100 miles from the lake and the Japanese were unable to hold their positions at that distance."

He said it had been confirmed that United States fliers supporting the Chinese operations had destroyed 31 Japanese planes, 25 of them on the ground, during the week ending yesterday.

The 14th American Air Force lost four fighters in the air and one on the ground and two medium bombers were damaged. One American airman was lost.

Allies Hoping for Favorable Weather To Complete Destruction of Industry

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The weather within the next few weeks may have a great deal to do with the length of the forthcoming Allied land assault on the German homeland.

The elements so far this fall and winter generally have favored the British and United States Air Forces based in Britain, but the time now has come when it's almost any man's guess whether conditions will permit regular full scale bombing assaults on Nazi industry.

If the weather is favorable, the big bombers can continue their series of powerhouse blows and possibly obtain much greater dividends toward the destruction of German war plants than ever before. Unfavorable flying weather would permit a Nazi industrial recuperation.

A number of German cities, it was pointed out today, now are on the borderline where repair work bulks nearly as large as productive war work and a further raid or two might push them over the line to join a number of others already in Germany's war effort debit column. A high R.A.F. officer said that in Northwest Germany alone nine cities are in this debit column and six on the edge.

The R.A.F.'s success in driving home its blows against Berlin despite the best defences the Germans can muster may be due in part to a new strategy of escorting its bombers by long-range fighters.

The Vichy radio, in a broadcast recorded today by Reuters news agency, said the bombers attacking Berlin Thursday night were flanked by R.A.F. night-fighters.

If true, these may be the fighter version of the 400-mile-per hour plywood Mosquito bombers.

FLIGHT SERGEANT REPORTED MISSING, PRISONER-OF-WAR

Reported as missing following what is believed to have been his first operational trip over Germany, Flight Sergeant Roscoe B. Doughty, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doughty, Madoc Township, is now a prisoner of war according to word received Thursday evening by his parents. He had been missing exactly four weeks.

Born in Madoc Township, Flight Sergeant Doughty enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in September, 1941, and after training at St. Hubert and Lachine, graduated as a pilot from Moncton, N.B. He went overseas in January of this year. The Lancaster bomber of which he was first pilot, was apparently forced down as other members of the crew also have been reported as prisoners of war.

One brother, Robert, lives at home assisting to operate the Doughty farm.

The name of Kresgers as the donor of ditty bags given through St. Julien Chapter was inadvertently omitted in the preparation of the list for publication. The gift by Kresge's of the filled bags is much appreciated by the Chapter.

YOUNG EVERGREENS STOLEN FROM LOT

Complaints that marauders are stealing evergreen trees from a lot south of the Marshall Road adjacent to the Exhibition Park were received by Provincial Police Friday. The young evergreens are being cut down and sold for Christmas trees. This particular section of land was planted with evergreen trees as a small reforestation project by the late Col. W. N. Ponton, a number of years ago. The trees are now of a mature growth.

BIKE RUN OVER BY MOTOR VEHICLE

A bicycle owned by Clifford Lazenby, 11 Murney Street, was knocked down and run over by a motor vehicle on Front Street, Friday. Lazenby reported the incident to police and added the motor vehicle must have backed over the bike, damaging the rear wheel. The driver did not remain at the scene or make known the damage resulting.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT LAID AFTER FRACAS

As a sequel to domestic altercations at his home at 50 George St., James Cornell was arrested Friday night on a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm to one Joseph Travers, of this city. Today Cornell was admitted to bail and his case enlarged until next week. As the result of the alleged assault Travers sustained a five-inch gash extending from below the left ear to a deep hole beneath the chin. Police were told that Travers sustained the deep laceration as the result of falling against and breaking a window glass in the home.

Travers who was attended by Dr. J. P. Buckley, later preferred the charge of assault.

Life Underwriters Hold Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Life Underwriters' Association was held at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday afternoon. Mr. Ralph B. Morden, District Manager of the Canada Life Co., and president of the Underwriters' Association was in charge of the meeting.

Membership in the Association is steadily growing from month to month and it is interesting to note that in point of numbers and recognized achievement, the Belleville Association is now one of the most progressive in the province.

Matters of vital importance to all insurance salesmen were discussed and measures taken that will further increase the leadership and influence of the Association in the community. Mr. J. J. Bruyea, District Manager of the National Life Co., introduced the guest speaker, Flight-Lieut. Rev. Father G. E. Mulligan, of the Mountain View Air Station.

Speaking from the subject "The existence of God and the practice of religion in our everyday lives," Father Mulligan, with characteristic sincerity, presented a message from which all men might profit. Speaking in behalf of the Association, Mr. J. N. Anton, manager of the Industrial Branch of the London Life Co., thanked Father Mulligan for his interesting address.

A timely innovation will be the attendance of the ladies at the regular meeting in January. These will comprise the salesmen's wives and girls from the various insurance offices in the city.

Guests attending the meeting were Mr. John Pryde, President of the Life Underwriters' Association, Kingston, Ont., and Mr. Allan Lennox of Belleville.

Wood Alcohol Drinking Party Cause of Death

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP) — One man is dead and another is in serious condition in hospital today as a result of what police termed a "wood alcohol drinking party," which sent three other persons to hospital.

Charles Latreille, 46, of Ottawa died in hospital last night before Cesaire Blais, 35, also of Ottawa, was admitted in a serious condition. The three others, Leo, Beatrice and Gilbert Meilleur also were admitted and treated for wood alcohol poisoning but they returned home after a short time.

Police said they are holding Donald Clark of Ottawa as a material witness in connection with Latreille's death.

Civic health authorities said that they will reopen their investigation of the cause of the death yesterday of Mrs. Louisa Jones, 26, a neighbor of Latreille's. Her death was at first attributed to food poisoning.

Dr. H. D. Sparks, food inspector, said he believed someone was selling wood alcohol to unsuspecting victims and that this may have been the cause of other deaths recently.

Police believe that the alcohol was stolen from a local war plant and sold to individuals. Preliminary investigation revealed that Latreille and Blais drank wood alcohol Thursday night, the police said. The Meilleur family is believed to have drank it yesterday, they added.

Turkey Offering Extremely Small On the Market

The pre-Christmas Saturday market in Belleville fell off considerably in attendance this year as compared with the throngs which have crowded the building in other years. Attendance of farmers showed a distinct decline while there appeared to be three or four buyers for every turkey and goose offered.

Inspectors of the prices board department were on the job in an effort to keep prices of fowl from soaring above the maximum figures permitted, but even with lists of prices which could be charged posted up about the market building many vendors seemed uncertain of the figure which they may legally quote.

All turkeys on the market were bought up by eager customers before ten thirty at the maximum of 45 cents for best grade rough dressed, or at 55 cents fully dressed. Gobblers were quoted at slightly lower figures, one 19½ pounder being retailed at $9.

Geese Scarce

Geese seemed rather scarce with vendors quoting up to 41 cents the pound, while vendors were heard quoting ducks at 40 cents pound. Fully dressed chickens soared decidedly in price with vendors quoting all the way from 40 to 50 cents the pound.

The offering of Christmas trees featured the outside market with several truck loads being offered at prices ranging from 50 cents to $2 each.

On the vegetable market potatoes brought the usual $2 per bag or 48 cents the peck, while carrots, turnips and beets sold at 35 cents the basket. Sauerkraut brought 15c the quart.

Eggs held steady at previous levels with first grade bringing 56c the dozen, mediums 54 cents and pullets 50 cents.

A few vendors offered apples at $3 per bushel for best grade Spies and McIntosh, while Talman Sweets and Snows sold at $2.50. Russetts were 40 cents the peck, with cooking apples ranging from $1.50 to $2 the bushel.

One load of mixed stove wood was offered at $14.50 cord.

Baltimore Paper Makes Drastic Cut In No. of Pages

Baltimore, Dec. 18 — (AP)—The Baltimore Sun, in a two-column front-page notice, told its readers yesterday that because of the "drastic curtailment of the supply of newsprint in the first quarter of 1944," it would be necessary to make "equally drastic changes in the make-up of the Sun papers."

The newsprint shortage, brought on by manpower difficulties and increased shipment of Canadian paper to Australia and Britain, will require that each issue of the Sun papers be smaller.

"The Sun frequently will contain only 14 pages, seldom more than 22," the notice said. "The Evening Sun frequently will contain only 20 pages, seldom more than 32. On Saturday it must be limited to eight pages. Condensation of the various sections of the Sunday Sun will be obligatory."

The War Today—

A Letter Asking Santa to Help Make This A Better Yuletide

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

This evening this correspondent is going to disappear for a few days from his column, but before leaving I want to hand on a Christmas message from an old friend of mine—some thoughts which may help to make this a better yuletide.

I had been thinking along the line of what the season really could mean to us, with war pressing so grimly on every side, when I received a letter from Tom Keene. Tom is editor of the Elkhart (Indiana) Daily Truth—one of those kindly, home-spun folk who count their friends by legion. His communication, as you shall see, was addressed to "Dear Santa," and it was only after he had concluded it that he appended this note by way of explanation:-

"Dear Mac: Perhaps in my old age I grow sentimental. But my son a pilot of a torpedo bomber and my son-in-law is a lieutenant of infantry in England. So forgive it, please, and accept my sincere good wishes, with the season's greetings. As ever, Tom." And here is Tom's letter:-

The Letter

"Dear Santa:-

"It would be unseemly if I should ask you this Christmas time to bring merriment into the homes of all my friends, for none of us can be wholly free from the cares, the anxieties and the sobering influences of war.

"Rather, I wish you would pour into their hearts the fragrance of boughs that bend beneath their tinseled weight, and the warmth that beckons from glowing windows, row on row.

"Make it a bit easier for all of us to bear the heavy burden of separation, and bring about an early restoration of the comradeship, affection and deep sense of security of the family circle, once complete.

"Keep safely aloft the young eagles whose strong wings carry them swiftly above the murk of stormy seas, or bear them into flaming battle high over lands where enemy forces prowl and spawn their evil brood.

"Protect them from harm and strengthen the sinews of our courageous men who wearily stand guard tonight in foxholes far afield, and make staunch and secure our gallant ships that sail the seven seas.

"Deliver from anguish and free from pain all those whose heads are pillowed on the beds of the wounded, and give them peace, and repose, and gentle dreams.

"Make us to cherish the rich traditions of a people forever on the March for Freedom, and bring us a renewal of faith in the righteousness of our common cause.

"Give us the understanding that what other men and women have endured down through the centuries we, too, can endure, and make strong our souls for the sacrifice that must be the price of Victory.

"And above all, sir, make us in all things worthy of one another, wherever we may be, and whatever our task, so that there may be true rejoicing when the hour of happy reunion is at hand.

"Tom H. Keene."

Attendance in Public Schools During November Higher Than in Same Month Last Year

Board of Education Holds Final Meeting of Year by Hearing Several Reports

APPOINTMENTS MADE

There were 83 more pupils attending Belleville Public Schools during the month of November 1943 than during the corresponding month of the previous year, according to the statistics released by Supervising Principal L. A. Kells, at the year's concluding meeting of the Board of Education last evening.

The public school enrolment in the city last month numbered 1,718 as against 1,635 for November 1942. The average attendance for the month was slightly higher also, standing at 92 per cent. Classes maintaining over the desired 95 per cent average attendance included Miss N. Wedden, King George School; Miss A. Gilmour and Mr. Wilkin, Queen Victoria and Miss O. Elson, Miss W. Leslie, Miss L. Arkils and Mr. Frederick of Queen Mary School.

Six Student Teachers.

Mr. Kells reported to the Board there are six student-teachers from the Provincial Normal Schools being accommodated in the city public schools for a stipulated period of training, which is provided by provincial statute. They are Miss Barbara Thomson, Miss Marie Chapelle, Miss Rita Chapelle, Miss Marie Redner, Miss June Crosby and Miss Wilma Judge.

In Principal Turner's report of activities at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School it was revealed that the school enjoyed an enrolment of 717 and some 15 of the 26 forms in the school reported over 95 per cent attendance for November. Term examinations began on December 9th., and terminated yesterday with the Christmas vacations going into effect on the 22nd of the month.

Nurse's Report.

The School Nurse's report submitted by Mrs. Watt revealed that one little girl from Belleville had returned from the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto in a much improved condition following a serious bone operation. The child had been provided for by the Belleville Rotary Club. Mrs. Watt also stated, there was another little girl in the city who needed such attention and her case would also be turned over to the Rotary Club for consideration.

Four pupils from public schools were referred to the Kinsmen Eye Clinic for examination and spectacles if necessary.

The School Nurse's report also revealed, that 69 home visits had been made by Mrs. Watt during November. A total of 118 First Aid treatments, 540 inspections, 40 vision tests, 12 tests for hearing and 45 defects were found and 24 corrected within the month. There were four cases of communicable diseases discovered. Some 20 cases of measles were reported and three cases of chicken pox.

Dr. M. J. Clarke, the school dentist, reported he had made 11 examinations, placed 76 fillings, completed eight extractions and given 96 treatments.

Must Undergo Examination.

Secretary Kells introduced a letter from the Department of Education stipulating that all teachers in all schools must periodically undergo examinations for tuberculosis. However, the Board pointed out that Belleville was a pioneer in this medical advancement and all local teachers had not only undergone medical examinations, but presented certificates indicating all were free of lung infections. The Belleville Board of Education was one of the first in the province to inaugurate the compulsory medical examination of teachers in this respect.

Resigns From Board.

Ross R. Stiver, who has acted as chairman for both the Property and Supplies and Advisory Vocational Committees, resigned from the Board following his successful term of office. Mr. Stiver did not chose to stand for office another term. A request from Major B. C. Sisler, second officer in Command of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) for leave of absence from the Board for a five-week period in January and February was granted. Major Sisler will be absent from the city attending a special Canadian Army Training course during that period, he explained.

Fred D. Wiggins was re-appointed school attendance officer for 1944 at the same salary as in previous years. The inaugural meeting of the Board will be held on Friday January 14th, 1944. The request of one delegation was left in abeyance.

It being the final meeting of the semester Chairman Wm. Harrison closed the meeting by personally extending to the members of the Board his grateful appreciation for the co-operation extended him and his committees by all members of the Board during the past year. The season's felicitations were passed around the board table to close the year's business as all accounts were paid.

Members of the Board present included: Chairman Wm. Harrison, C. D. Crosby, E. E. Follwell, F. G. Cushing, E. A. Geen, A. L. Hill, J. McIntosh, R. R. Stiver and B. C. Sisler.

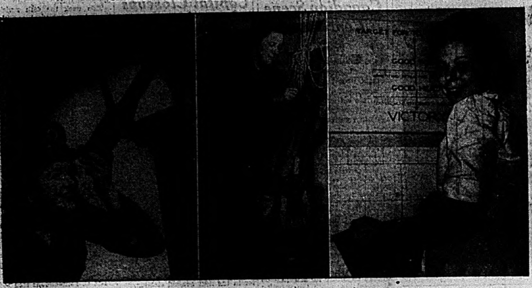
CANADA'S AIRWOMEN HELP PAVE THE WAY TO VICTORY



Women at war are using their hands and brains in countless ways to speed the victory against the forces of aggression. In the Royal Canadian Air Force, airwomen perform upwards of 50 tasks which are vital to the job of flying, both in operations overseas and at training stations across Canada. Three of those jobs are illustrated here. At the left, Airwoman Betty Roth of 10816 125th St., Edmonton, uses an alidade to determine cloud level. A clerk meteorologist at the Brantford air station, she "reads" the weather, measuring moisture and wind velocity and gathering information for predicting how flying conditions are going to be. In the centre picture, an old-fashioned saddle bench performs a new function in today's war. Leading Airwoman Constance Lynham of North Bay, Ont., perches on the bench to mend a parachute harness. Airwoman Phyllis Cuff of Midland, Ont., right, emphasizes one path to victory—through good health, which depends on right eating. She's in the R.C.A.F. School of Cookery at Guelph, Ont.—

DIAL SIGHT THROUGH THE

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

Santa Claus in all his ramifications swept down upon the Sergeants' Mess at the Armouries Friday night to deliver gifts to the children assembled. The conventional Christmas tree, gayly decorated for the occasion, added the proper atmosphere for the annual Children's Party sponsored by the sergeants and senior N.C.Os. of the 34th Battery and Argyll Light Infantry. Each member of the Mess having children was permitted to bring them, while members without children made it a point to bring either a child whose father is serving overseas or one of an ex-member of the Mess.

An impromptu program preceded the arrival of Old St. Nick, who was assisted in the distribution of gifts by R. S. N. Herb Willerton and other members of the Mess committee. Ice cream, cake and other goodies were also provided. Drum-major Jamie Clarke made the ideal Santa Claus and his early arrival caused glee and thrills among the kiddies to no end.

After a very thorough examination, the army doctor eyed the tall and very thin recruit in silence.

"Well, doctor," said the recruit at last, "how do I stand?"

"Goodness knows," replied the M.O. "It's a miracle!"

When a well-known public man visited an American camp in England recently he felt impelled to investigate military Anglo-American relations for himself.

"How do you get on with British soldiers and British people generally?" he asked a Doughboy.

The man sprang to attention.

"We like the British, sir," he replied, "and the British like us. That's our orders."

Officers and members of the 34th Battery were quite thrilled to learn of the promotion of Col. W. E. van Steenburgh, who was named Director of Artillery at Defence Headquarters in Ottawa this week. For a number of years prior to the outbreak of war Col. van Steenburgh was Commanding Officer of the 34th Battery, R. C. A. with headquarters situated on Church St. Along with a number of his officers and men from the 34th Battery, Col. van Steenburgh enlisted at the outbreak of the present conflict.

It could only happen in the Sergeants' Mess.

The other night around the cribbage table, Sergt. Ellway was bemoaning his "crib" luck to no end.

"Any one getting a 24 hand should set 'em, but quick", remarked the popular "Shorty".

You guessed it—the very next hand Sergt. Ellway counted 24.

Sergt. "Rosy" Turner, of the R. C. S. C., who has been conducting signal classes at the Armouries as a member of the A. & T. staff, was transferred to Renfrew this week. Sergt. Turner will later conduct a signalling class for the 2nd Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Trenton.

While at the Armouries here Sergt. Turner instructed both the members of the C. W. S. F., Argyll Light Infantry and 34th Battery, his entire class of sergeants now being qualified signallers.

Lieut. Harper McElrath, who recently returned to his post as signalling officer with the Argylls, will be in charge of the classes in the future. Lieut. McElrath, a veteran of the last war, has also seen signalling instructional service in the present conflict.

F/S. J. W. Sargent, of the Trenton R. C. A. F. base, is to be complimented upon the splendid Christmas edition of Trenton Station "Contact", the official publication of that unit. In three-tone coloring the "Contact" brings out the true Christmas spirit and also introduced Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, M. C. Commanding Officer of the R. C. A. F. Station at Trenton. On the Contact editorial staff is Sergt. Sam Samuels, former Belleville boy and graduate of the Belleville Collegiate. Editions of the 1943 Christmas Contact should be in ever mess throughout the district.

All of which reminds us they have a fine ladies' trumpet band at the Trenton station. The "W.D.'s" blow a lusty trumpet and will soon be seen on public parade, 'tis said.

Everybody's happy around the Armouries these days — it was "Christmas pay" for the officers and men of the 34th Battery, Argyll Light Infantry and C. W. S. F. within the week. Thursday night Capt. Les Shiels, paymaster, and Sergt. Burley were the most popular pair at the Armouries.

An inspecting party from the O. M. E. looked over all equipment at the Armouries this week and reported every piece of military equipment in the very best of condition.

Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, Commanding Officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, has been confined to his home for the past week as the result of illness. In his absence Major B. C. Sisler assumed command of the unit.

Rapidly the boys, who sustained injuries in the Sicilian or Italian campaigns are arriving home. From the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment alone this week came L. Cpl. Ross Faulkner, Frank Murray and Gerald Pointer, while WO1. McElrath Carter of the R. C. A. F., is enjoying a furlough at his home in Point Anne after completing sufficient operational flights over Germany to warrant a leave of absence home.

Major—You were absent from the parade, any explanation?

Private—Yes, sir, a mule kicked the Sergeant in the head and I had to fix it.

Major—Fix what?

Private—The mule's leg, Sir.

Just how the "Dial Sight" gets around is proven by a letter received by Mrs. B. C. Donnan, regent of the Argyll Chapter of the I. O. D. E., which also adopted the Canadian Corvette "Snowberry" sometime ago.

The letter, written by Mrs. W. H. Hirst of Wellington, reads as follows:-

Wellington, Ont.
Dec. 14th.

Dear Mrs., Donnan:-

Having read the item in the Belleville paper concerning H. M. S. Snowberry I thought perhaps you would be interested to know that at least one man from Belleville is among her crew. My husband, W. H. Hirst, has been Chief Petty Officer, E. R. A. aboard the Snowberry for at least six months, Prior to his enlistment in the Navy in Sept. 1940 he wa: patternmaker at the Belleville Sargent Lock Company for nearly ten years.

He mentioned at the time of his assignment, that the Snowberry had been adopted by the Argyll Chapter of the I. O. D. E. and was very pleased to think he was one of her crew and on a corvette adopted by his home town.

Hoping you don't mind me writing, but thought you would like to know.

Your Sincerely
Mrs. W. H. Hirst.

Ed's note—Incidentally Mrs. Hirst is a sister of Captain Geo. H. Carver, originator of the Dial Sight and at present Adjutant of the 24th Field Battery with headquarters at Gananoque.

An American Army Pilot accompanied by a member of the R.A.F. was forced to fly far off their course by a heavy high wind and sand storm which obscured the sunlight and carried the fine gritty sand into their motor. After grounding their plane in Western Asiatic territory, the natives escorted them to the headquarters of the local chief.

After examining their passports, the desert chieftain said: I see that you are a British subject?

RAF Flyer (with dignity and pride): I am, sir!

Desert Chieftain (turning to American flyer): And I see, according to your papers, that you are a subject of the United States.

American Pilot(with true democratic poise): Subject, hell! I own a part of it!

As reserve army training will be curtailed somewhat during the holiday season the "Dial Sight" will suspend operations until after the New Year.

At this time the "Dial Sight" wishes to thank all those, who have assisted in the continuance of this column. To the officers and members of the 34th Battery R. C. A., Argyll Light Infantry, C. W. S. F. members of the A. & T. staff located here and kindred military units the "Dial Sight" extends the compliments of the season—A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Battle of Changteh Pivotal Success Of Whole Strategy

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press War Correspondent

In the Chinese 9th War Area, Northern Hunan, Dec. 16 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Gen. Hsuah Yueh, Governor of Hunan and commander of this war area, said today that the battle of Changteh, while it cost 14,000 Chinese casualties against 11,000 for the apanese, was a pivotal success for the whole strategy of the United Nations in the Pacific region.

The General spoke through Lt.-Gen. Chao Tseli, his chief of staff, who interpolated explanatory remarks to Chao's resume of the struggle in which the Japanese have been thrown back on a semi-circular front.

Both generals emphasized the strategic importance of the battle for the North Hunan City, which has been turned to ruins in one of the bloodiest battles of the six-year-old Japanese war.

They beamed with satisfaction that they had been able to carry out Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's order for a victory at Changteh at all costs.

Changteh is the military gateway west of Tungting Lake and northwest of Changsha. For the Japanese it was the more inviting route to Changsha, which had been successfully defended against three southward drives in 1939, 1940 and 1941.

Mining Revival Urged for Canada

That the Canadian mining industry has been a vital factor in the Canadian war effort is fully recognized. The Dominion's contribution in essential metals and minerals has been tremendously important. In the course of making this contribution the nation's mineral deposits have been severely strained and new exploration and development have been handicapped.

The problem of post-war reconstruction looms. In any program designed to solve this problem the mineral resources of Canada will play a significant role. Mineral production is new wealth, spread over wide fields through many channels. It employs thousands of people, directly and indirectly and can be expanded enormously.

Just how this expansion can be achieved is indicated in the special issue of The Northern Miner which appeared this week. In an edition of 136 pages many phases of the Canadian mineral industry are discussed, with the emphasis on future potentialities. As a stimulus to the imagination a colored geographical map is inserted, disclosing the favorable areas in the vast Canadian pre-Cambrian Shield, extending from Labrador to the Arctic Ocean in a widely sweeping arc. Many of these areas are already productive and it is striking even to the layman how rich mineral deposits have followed the pattern here laid down. Many other areas have not been developed, some of them not even prospected.

Here is a field for that expansion which will be so desirable in the post-war period. Here is the opportunity for the prospector, the engineer, the geologist and the capitalist. Development of these areas will mean new towns, new highways, new outlets for Canadian manufactures.

The special issue deals authoritatively with such potent subjects as gold, money, international financing, power, new metal developments. Gold, for example, is the subject of an article by Stephen Leacock, the famous economist. Authorities in other fields discuss reconstruction, mining finance, Dominion and Provincial plans for reviving prospecting, new techniques in field work, new ideas for the future.

Emphasis in this edition is on the restoration of prospecting and developing activity on a nation-wide scale. The plan is laid down, the labor will be available, the governments of the country will co-operate. What is needed, it is claimed, is a new policy, based on national consciousness of the immense natural resources which lie fallow in the mineral area of the pre-Cambrian; a resurgence of enthusiasm and reliance; a revival of the pioneering spirit.

Making the Huns Take It

Airpower has been hurled at Germany in no uncertain manner, with a heavy bomb load being dropped for the sixth time in a month on Berlin, setting up great fires, destroying vast areas and crippling and smashing communications. This was not the only effort of Allied air offensive for the American bombers visited the northern part of Italy, and the southern part of Austria near the Brenner Pass to batter and snarl the railway lines and other communications.

The Nazis in Italy are between three great forces, the advancing Eighth Army of British and Canadians under General Montgomery, the Fifth Army of General Clark and the air forces of the Allies which get in behind Hitler's troops engaged in the delaying action. These airmen of the Allies are delivering paralyzing blows at the enemy.

This is rough handling for the "supermen" to receive, their communications shattered and their fronts under pressure of the advancing Allies, while even the capital of the Nazi empire of tyranny is all but wiped out. These are events that the enemy never expected to see. Hitler never could have forecast such treatment from the democracies he scorned.

They are the signs of the coming days when the potency of the Nazi power will be gone and Germany forced to her knees and stripped of her empire she seized by violence.

Proud, selfish and self-centred, Germany upheld by the evil genius of a maniacal Fuehrer would strike back with the fury of a frustrated and wounded criminal if she had power, but Germany has to take her punishment for it comes in a way she cannot prevent. Bitter and spiteful must the Nazis feel to have no weapon to keep back the winged Allies carrying the vials of wrath over Germany or to prevent that coming trial of Nazi war criminals which the Nazi offenders have to face when their edifice of tyranny is flattened and beaten with the dust.

A Few Days More

Only a few days more remain before the Christmas festival. City-dwellers and rural visitors have been eager buyers and the sight of hundreds of shoppers laden with parcels of holiday gifts or other purchases in preparation for the Yuletide season is the most familiar one. Shops are crowded daily and there are still good-sized stocks of articles to be had.

The weather though it has been more severe than usual for the past week yet has been propitious as it has served to check the spread of influenza colds and has made shopping more easy than had there been heavy snowfalls.

A vast amount of preparation in the homes, to judge by the activity of the shops, has already been made and much remains yet to be done there in the less-than-a-week period before Christmas Eve.

Four Fasting Animals

(Manchester Guardian)

The cat which survived a 41-day voyage as a stowaway without food, producing four kittens into the bargain, must certainly be a rare specimen of endurance, though the licking of cosmogene from a crated engine no doubt helped to keep the wolf from the door. But the annals of the animal world contain fasting feats even more remarkable.

Passing over the case of the Liverpool dog buried during a blitz which survived after 20 days without food or water, the first of the really notable records is that of the marine iguanas from the Galapagos Islands, which obstinately refused food for three months before giving up their hunger strike. This, however, has been beaten easily by a 25-foot python in the London zoo, which declined all food whatso ever for 18 months and was none the worse when it began eating again.

A Madagascar boa-constrictor, however, turned even this record into small beer by existing, in similar conditions, in the Paris Jardin des Plantes for four years and a month. The world's record so far is held by the blind newt, the Proteus, one specimen of which spent five years between two meals. The record for a man, by the way, is 60 days.

British Christmas

(London Times)

The Ministry of Food estimates that there will be 1,600,000 turkeys available for Christmas. Half of them will be birds reared in these islands; they will be sold at the controlled price through normal trade channels. Some 500,000 turkeys will come from Eire. A third consignment, numbering about 275,000, will come from Northern Ireland. In addition to turkeys, substantial supplies of poultry will be available, including about 500,000 fowls, geese, and ducks from Eire, and about 150,000 from Northern Ireland, the distribution of which will be controlled.

Indirect taxes are very high in Britain. It is estimated that on an annual income of $4,000, a married man with two children would pay about $400 in indirect tax, in addition to $1,600 in direct tax.

Imagination disposes of everything; it creates beauty, justice and happiness, which are everything in the world.—Pascal.

THE SCARRED BIRCH

They found a birch tree, shining in the sun,
And, being young, they tore a piece of bark,
As youth in spring and summer long has done,
Not knowing 'twould forever bear the mark.

Oldsters grown wise in ways of men and trees
Have learned these wounds of birches never heal.
Those grim black scars which every passer sees
Always the hurt of thoughtlessness reveal.

Who knows what charms our careless deeds besmirch,
What thoughtless words leave scars forevermore.
Like those which spoil the beauty of the birch,
Destroying something time will not restore?

Letter to the Editor

REPLY TO "100% BRITISH AND PROUD OF IT".

The Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,

Just a brief reply to the letter which was published in last Tuesday's edition of the paper—signed "100% British and Proud of it"—If this person, male or female would only read a few, just a few, of the books obtainable at our local library, giving a few facts, as he calls them—he would possibly be able to see a little daylight, instead of acting like the proverbial ostrich, and burying his head in the fog of propaganda that has been printed far and wide, for many years past.

Did the writer ever try to visualize the horrors which might have followed, if the German hordes had marched into the British Isles instead of Russia? And the possibility of the crowd of "Sir Oswald Mosley's who would have been waiting there, with open arms?

I cannot help but shudder when I imagine what would have been our fate on this continent—and my only reaction is a great thankfulness that there was a man who had the foresight to know what to expect of the Nazi-German and was prepared to meet the onslaught when it came.

This British "holier than thou" attitude is not very becoming in the light of the events of the past two years and a half.

I am a Canadian of two generations and just as British in ancestry. But if we are to help make this Democracy of ours function—we must be able to face constructive criticism and place credit where credit is due.

"There is none so blind as those who won't see"—

Most sincerely.
100% Canadian.

Cannon balls carried away from the battlefields of 1812-13 by homesteaders were put to a novel use in later years . . . After hefting them, the settlers eyed their souvenirs speculatively, considering how they could put these 24-pounders to work for them. Some of the more enterprising colonists were smarrt enough to rope in the ammunition for the making of mortar. Stones from which the lime was burned for mortar were broken by dropping the cannon balls on them. This mortar came in handy when bricks were laid in the more modern residences of the '20s and '30s.

Let's see how the "hired help" problem was 100 years ago Mrs. John Graves Simcoe, wife of the first lieutenant-governor of Upper Canada, bemoans in her diary the difficulty of finding good servants. Records of the beginning of the 19th century—a few years after Mrs. Simcoe's departure for England—do not reveal how much the situation had improved in the interval, but they do report that the usual wages for a servant girl were $2 a month with board.

Many a Christmas present was whipped together by agile fingers after the pedlar's pack had brought its treasures to the homesteads. Craving stick now and then—not to preraptures over jewellery and ribbons pieces of dress goods and lace. There were books, too—and books were so hard to get! So the pedlar lingered on for hours, snatching up his walk-stick now and then—not to pretend leave-taking but to call on its services as a yardstick. Usually a cunning bargainer, he did a landoffice business everywhere he went.

Warming pans, like spinning wheels and wooden bicycles, belong to the past. They were indispensable in the years preceding the introduction of central heating. Every night in the winter-time they were heated before the fire, then filled with coals or hot sand and slipped between the bedsheets. Sand was prreferred as it held its heat longer and was less dangerous to use than coal. A favorite home-prescription for the relief of pain was: sprinkle coarse brown sugar over the hot sand of the warming pan.

Four Lose Lives But U-Boat Sunk By Canadian Plane

Ottawa, Dec. 18—(CP)—An R. C. A. F. aircraft whose pilot, navigator and two front gunners lost their lives in the action sank one of two U-boats lurking in mid-Atlantic to head off a convoy and three of the surviving aircrew soon will be back in the fight.

The U-boats were sighted as the plane—a Sunderland reconnaissance aircraft—was on the last leg of a sweep. Defying the submarine's guns, Flt. Lt. Paul Sargent of Toronto, captain, sent the plane into a weaving run toward them while his front gunners-Flt. Lt. Woodward and Flt. Sgt. Needham, R. A. F.—swept their decks and a third crew member, FO. A. R. B. (Art) Bellis, D. F. C., of Victoria, manned a waist gun.

The U-boat's gun crews pumped shells and machine-gun bullets into the Sunderland as she roared over the first boat to drop depth charges.

The aircraft's gunners poured lead at the submarines as the plane again swept in to attack. The riddled plane, disregarding a hail of flax, dropped its charges and wobbled away, Needham and Woodward dead and the navigator, PO. Chesley B. Steves, of Elgin, N. B., mortally wounded.

As the plane swung away, the crew noted that the second pattern of charges had bracketted the first U-boat and she had disappeared. WO. W. F. Beals of Vernon, B. C., the radio operator, found the convoy.

Steves plotted a course for the nearest ship. A British frigate, H. M. S. Drury, picked up Bellis and two R. A. F. sergeants, Douglas Mesney and Gordon Rutherford, as water flooded into the plane's buckled fuselage.

Sargent, who skilfully piloted the Sunderland to windward of the frigate, was not one of the men saved.

Another escort vessel raced to the scene of the action as doctors worked over the plane's survivors and sank the second U-boat. Four of Sunderland's survivors are already well and away again.

Bellis and Beals were awarded the D. F. C., on recommendation of the commander-in-chief, coastal command, for displaying "courage, skill and resolution beyond praise."

Bombers from the U. S. 10th Air Force, based in India, and from the 14th, based in China, flew together for the first time Nov. 27 and ripped up rail shops and oil storage tanks in Rangoon.

Both forces joined Nov. 28 and Dec. 1 in further attacks on Rangoon.

Capital Closeups

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Amid evidence of increasing activity in the political field by all major parties, observers here point to a paragraph in a book by Hon. W. D. Herridge of Ottawa as fair warning of New Democracy's continued life and wider ambitions.

New Democracy was founded in 1939 by Maj. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington. It is represented in the House of Commons by 10 members led by John Blackmore. All are social creditors as well as New Democracy supporters.

Now Maj. Herridge, in an introduction to "What kind of revolution?" has written:—

"When war came, I allowed the New Democracy to lie fallow. That was a great mistake...once again, I think it is the business of the ordinary citizen to make sure we get this system. Therefore, once again, I make it my business. This book begins where I left off, three years ago."

Many of the politically-wise say New Democracy will again be a factor in the next general election.

New Envelopes: This department was surprised to receive a letter from the post office department in an envelope made from used mimeograph paper.

The envelopes, it seems, are made by the Dominion Printing Bureau from old postal rate forms and government publications which often become obsolete in short order. T. P. Murphy, superintendent of equipment and supplies for the post office, waxes poetic over one inter-departmental economy envelope with the front ruled so it can be separately addressed 60 times.

In Reverse: Since the start of the war the Canada Gazette has published from time to time lists of persons and firms with whom Canadians are forbidden to trade because of enemy nationality or enemy association.

This week the 46th revision to the list was published — and it removed from the list more names than it added. Spokesmen for the Secretary of State Department expect that will be the case from now on.

"It probably indicates the South American countries and the former neutrals are beginning to realize they should play ball with our side," said one official. "Authorities in those countries probably have a closer hand on the situation."

2 Negroes Charged With Murder Of Station Operator

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 18 (AP) —A first degree murder charge has been placed against two Niagara Falls negroes in connection with the alleged murder of George W. Fowler, 63, Ransomville gasoline station proprietor, detective Captain Robert C. Fitzsimmons said Friday.

The charge marks the culmination of an investigation which followed the finding of Fowler's body in the Niagara River Dec. 8.

Fitzsimmons said he obtained a signed statement from George F. Knight, 25, saying that he robbed the victim of a considerable sum of money on Oct. 30, hit him over the head with a blunt instrument, put the body in an automobile, then drove to North Grand Island bridge where he slipped the body into the river.

Mrs. Helen Fowler, 36, Fitzsimmons said, made an oral confession that she was Knight's accomplice in the crime.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

George Washington generally referred to Lafayette as his friend "Fayette."

Daniel Defoe, author of "Robinson Crusoe," was the son of a London butcher named James Foe. The author used the names Foe and Defoe indifferently until late in life. A series of letters that he wrote to one person and which are still extant are variously signed D. Foe, de Foe, and Daniel De-Foe.

John Quincy Adams observed in his diary "that in France no families were considered great but such as could number among their ancestors a marshal of France, a cardinal, or an ambassador."

American railroads are now carrying about 2,500,000 passengers and 4,000,000 tons of freight every day.

Both "helpmeet" and "helpmate," meaning a wife or husband, originated as the result of an absurd error.

Genesis 2:18 says: "And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a help meet for him." Here "help" means helper and "meet" means fit or suitable. The second clause of the verse is equivalent to, "I will make him a helper suitable for him."

"Help" and "meet" were at an early date absurdly combined, first into "help-meet" and then into "helpmeet," and taken to signify helper or companion. "Helpmeet" in turn was perverted into "helpmate" on the mistaken theory that "meet" was an erroneous form of "mate." As a result of this double error we now have two words, "helpmeet" and "helpmate," which in modern usage are used interchangeably as synonyms of wife or husband.

What is the lion's share?

Ask ten persons this question and the chances are nine of them will say that the lion's share is the greatest part or an unfairly large portion.

Strictly speaking, the lion's share is all.

The phrase alludes to Aesop's fable in which the lion went hunting with a wolf, a jackal and a fox. They jointly killed a stag and the lion commanded the other three to skin and quarter the carcass, after which the king of beasts claimed one quarter by right of his sovereignty over the animal kingdom, the second for his part in the chase, the third as his reward for acting as arbiter, and; "As for the fourth," declared the lion, "let him who dares lay a paw on it."

The true significance of the phrase, however, has been almost universally misunderstood and it may be said to have acquired the secondary meaning of nearly all or an unduly large share, particularly an excessive appropriation made by one of several persons from something in which all have an equal right or interest.

The assembly hall of St. Michael's High School on John St., was the scene of pre-Christmas festivity on Friday night, when the students of Grades XI, XII, and XIII entertained at a party in honor of the approach of the spirit of Yuletide. Decorations, in hues of red, green and white adorning the room, added the "seasonal touch" to the gay scene. Prettily wrapped gifts, tokens of the warm friendship existing among the boys and girls, were exchanged and afforded a great deal of interest and merriment. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening, no party being quite complete without that pleasant pastime. A delicious lunch, served by a number of the students, brought the affair to a close.

The girls of St. Michael's Hospitality Club and Belleville Hospitality Club were entertained on Friday night by the Air Force personnel of No. 5 Initial Training School at a jolly yuletide party held in the drill hall of the station. Christmas decorations of red, green and white were artistically arranged throughout the dance hall. Across the orchestra stage were four lighted Christmas trees, all of which added warmth and good cheer to the scene. The 5 R.D. Orchestra played pleasing melodies to the delight of the dance and music lovers. A number of novelty dances were conducted during the course of the evening. The new canteen and lounge, which have just been newly opened, were at the disposal of the dancers. Lunch was served on the small tables surrounding the dance floor at 10.30 o'clock, during which three boys in the Air Force blue staged several difficult slack wire and table and chair balancing acts.

Canadian Woman Now Accredited To U. S. Forces

By MARGARET ECKER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 18—(CP)—Mollie McGee stood on a pier at Dover and watched the armada of boats stream back from Dunkirk.

McGee was in the hospital when the wounded were brought back from Dieppe. She was at a bomber base when the boys flew home from the first big raid on Berlin. She was in London through the blitz and the great fire.

This genius for being in the right place at the right time has made Irish-eyed Mollie McGee one of Canada's best known woman reporters.

Now she's scored one more scoop by being the first Canadian woman accredited as a war correspondent to the American armed forces. No woman has yet been accredited to the Canadian Army.

Mollie represents the Toronto Globe and Mail.

It's not the fame and glory—or the smart American uniform—that Mollie's after.

"I don't want to go forward to the front line with the armed forces," she told me. "All I want to do is go and report where other women are driving, nursing, doing canteen work.

"Men and women are in this war shoulder to shoulder, so every story has a woman's side to it. There should be a woman covering every field of activity in which women are taking part."

And so, when the biggest story of the war breaks, and the Allied forces have their feet firmly planted on Western European soil again, Mollie will be there in her khaki uniform to tell the world about the part women are sure to play.

A Varied Career

The fighting, Australian-born, Irish-Canadian hasn't any doubts about women's ability in a crisis. "During the blitz in England, women workers, ambulance drivers, A. R. P. wardens stood the ordeal as well as men."

Mollie has had a career that makes a younger reporter's mouth water. Since the war started she has covered commando training, been aboard naval vessels, visited air bases, army camps, hospitals, with a good peppering of scoops to her credit.

She's always in there punching for equal breaks for newspaper women, and like most of the girls of the trade, her back-hair rises at being tethered to what she calls "a non-existent women's angle." A pugnacious grandfather who went from Ireland to Australia "with two pistols and pen after some trouble," handed down to her the spirit for this crusade.

Mollie was born in Australia but was taken to Montreal as a small girl. She studied occupational therapy at the University of Toronto.

After she graduated she was superintendent of the therapy department of the Mountain Sanitarium, Hamilton, Ont., but she was convinced that there was a place for her in newspaper work.

She got her break in 1923 when the Montreal Herald sent her to Ottawa to cover women attending the Imperial conference. Back in Montreal on the Herald she wrote a front page column, covered murders and wrote Montreal society notes for Mayfair magazine.

She went to Ottawa to be one of The Canadian Press' first woman staffers, but when, after the death of King George V, things seemed to be popping over here, she free-lanced her way to England to cover the Coronation, and later the first rumblings of war on the continent. She was in Canada during the Royal tour, returning to Britain to become a correspondent for the Globe and Mail when war started.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. Y.P.U.

The young people of Holloway St. Church met as usual on Tuesday night. A number of business matters were brought to everyone's attention by the president, Miss Marjorie Hitchons. The group was again reminded of Fireside Hour which is to be held at Rev. Dilts' residence on Sunday following the evening church service. A Christmas program has been prepared for this meeting.

Padre Payton announced that the Bible Study group is to meet at Bridge St. Church every Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The Young People and all others who wish to learn more about the Scripture, are invited to attend these gatherings.

The worship service was conducted by Miss Maude Burke and her Christian Fellowship group.

Mrs. Orr, the guest speaker for the evening, gave a fine address on "What Does Christmas Mean to Us?" Miss Marion Allen thanked Mrs. Orr for coming to give this message. An enjoyable evening then closed with taps.

1,200,000 Civilian Women Gainfully Employed Occupied in Canada

By HELEN BANNERMAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Dec. 16 (CP)—Canadian women in "battle-dress"—whether service uniform nurse's uniform, house dress, business suit or overalls—played an increaing part in the struggle toward victory in 1943.

Since June 1942, the number of women engaged directly or indirectly in war industry has increased from 120,000 to more than 260,000. Women in the armed forces numbered about 36,000 late in November.

Latest available figures show that about 1,200,000 civilian women are gainfully occupied in Canada, Mrs Rex Eaton, associate director of National Selective Service, told The Canadian Press.

"The outstanding characteristic of this year has been the successful appeal to a group of women who ordinarily would not seek employment and their acceptance of employment for full or part time," she said.

Appeals to members of the Local Council of Women and the Women's Institute during the late spring brought 11,000 women into industry immediately, to relieve a critical manpower shortage. During the past six months, 48,000 new women workers have taken employment.

Wrens Increase.

Youngest women's service to be organized to release men for active duty with the armed forces, the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, headed by Cmdr. Adelaide Sinclair of Toronto attested 3,674 officers and ratings between Aug. 29, 1942, and Nov. 15, 1943.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps, formed in September, 1941, and commanded by Lt.-Col. Joan Kennedy of Victoria, enlisted 6,679 members between Jan. 1 and Oct. 31 this year and may equal its 1942 enlistment of 7,398. At present C.W.A.C. members total more than 15,000.

Oldest of the women's auxiliary forces, the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, almost doubled its strength during 1943. Approximately 8,800 women were in air force blue last Jan. 1, while in October the number passed 15,000. Officials say they expect 16,000 members by Jan. 1.

Highlight of the year in the Women's Division was the increasing number of airwomen and officers overseas.

Commands Overseas.

Wing Officer Kathleen O. Walker of Ottawa, was promoted to her present rank—comparable to Lieutenant-Colonel—and posted overseas to take charge of all women in the R.C.A.F. bomber group. Wing Officer Willa Walker of Montreal and Ottawa was also promoted to her present rank and became Senior Women's Division Staff Officer at Air Force Headquarters. The officers are not related.

Members of the W.R.C.N.S. also were posted overseas for the first time. Twelve ratings and two officers were in the first draft to the United Kingdom, arriving early in September. Last April the Wrens sent naval writers to Washington.

Women in the nursing services totalled more than 2,414 at the end of June, with more than 1,714 in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, 276 in the R.C.A.F. nursing service and 169 in the Royal Canadian Navy nursing service. There are also about 255 Canadian nurses with the South Africa military nursing service. Thirty-seven women doctors serve with the Canadian armed forces.

Efforts of women working voluntarily toward victory were co-ordinated under direction of the women's voluntary services division of the War Services department. During the past two years 27 voluntary service centres have been established to prevent overlapping of national and local volunteer work.

Christmastide Program At Tabernacle

On December 17, the scholars and board of managers of the Tabernacle United Church school were at home to their parents and friends. The activities were planned to show the types of work being carried on by the church school and the large enthusiastic audience gave proof that the program was very much enjoyed. The program was as follows: First, the Chairman's remarks, Dr. Myers; songs by primary and beginners; next a solo by Olive Thompson and then songs by a group of boys and girls, Mr. Wynne; piano solo, Shirley Mott; reading, Phyllis Walmsley; songs by a group of girls led by Mrs. Johnston; piano solo, Shirley Taylor. The Explorer Group presented a mid-week service of which Mr. McCullough was leader. A solo was sung by Joan Wynne. Trail Rangers presented a mid-week service, the mentors being Clark James and Reg Edwards. Then followed a coronet solo by Bill Shaw, a solo by Margaret Fawkes and tableau of Christmas stories by the junior school; the C.G.I.T. girls sang carols and finally came Santa's visit.

Tradition of The Christmas Carol

Mr. V. P. Hunt, A.A.G.O., Addresses Bridge Street Church Women's Association

Appropriate for the season was the address on Friday afternoon before the Christmas meeting of the Women's Association of Bridge St. United Church, delivered by Mr. V. P. Hunt, A.A.G.O., on the Christmas carol and folk music. The appreciation of the Society was tendered the speaker.

Mr. Hunt said:

"When folk music is heard on a program, some one is almost sure to ask, 'Who wrote it?' The alswer is 'No one'. It is a folk song, and traditional, and like Topsy in Uncle Tom's Cabin, 'jes growed'. Negro spirituals are similar. Carols show the national characteristics of the people.

"The theme of the greatest number of sacred folk songs, is the Nativity. This was natural, as in the Christian Church from the earliest times, Christmas was the chief of all festivals. The Bishop of Rome, in the year 129 A.D., inaugurated the custom of celebrating the Nativity with the singing of carols. One that was never omitted, was the Angels' Song, the first of all Christmas carols, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace good will to men".

"The name carol came to us from the Latin, "Choreola' meaning to dance. Like all dances it was a religious rite and was accompanied with the singing of hymns to the deity in whose honor the choreola was being performed. Our words choir, choral, and chorus, came from choreola. Even our modern dictionaries define chorus as 'a dance in a ring'; 'a dance accompanied with singing'. However, it is long since they cut out dancing as a feature of religious worship.

Earliest Carols.

"In the Bible there is no hint of such a custom as a feature in the ritual of the Temple of the Old Testament. The earliest carols of which we have record were by Clemens Prudentius, A.D. 343-413 of the Christian Church in Spain. There is a translation of a hymn by Prudentius in our hymnals—"Of the Father's love begotten", ec.

The songs of the people were also sung on the night of the Nativity in the churches of France and England, the principal themes being "The Annunciation", "The Angels' Message", "The Birth of the Holy Babe", "The Coming of The Shepherds", "The Lullaby", and "The Flight into Egypt". All are composed around legends well known to the people. The carols used in the middle ages are numberless, for the simple-minded people adored passionately, the manger cradle of Bethlehem. They built their love into the ancient cathedrals and sang it in carols and hymns.

"Many carols were handed from the early church. They also sang many of their own making; the words more primitive and these were handed down by word of mouth. In the British Museum, there are ancient manuscripts which give us several ancient carols, such as,

"'When Christ was born of Mary free
In Bethlehem that faire citie
Angels sang with mirth and glee
In Excelsis Gloria'.

"Also:

"'Mother and Maiden
Was never non (e) as she,
Well may swich (such) a ladye
Goddes Modder be'.

Early Christians Happy.

"These early Christians seem to have been a happy crowd. There was a simplicity in their living; different from our busy life and in our modern commercialized Christmas. We scarcely take time to listen to the song of the Angels:

"'And man at war with man, hears hears not
The love song, which they bring
O hush the noise, ye men of strife
And hear the Angels sing'.

"The Advent was pictured in such familiar old songs as:

"'I saw three ships came sailing in
On Christmas Day in the morning'.

"The Lullaby was also a common theme in one of these. The Baby Christ is pictured as fretful and unwilling to go to sleep, but as yielding immediately when a tear glistens in His Mother's eye, also Mary calls on Joseph to share her blessed privilege:

"'Joseph, tender Joseph mine
Help me rock my Babe Divine'.

"There was the carol of the cherry tree bowing down, so that the Virgin might partake of its fruit.

"One of the most beautiful of the English carols is:

"'God rest ye merry gentlemen
Let nothing ye dismay', etc.

"They also pictured the Holy Birth in paintings. Also an old Austrian carol, one shepherd calls up his fellows, and suggest that they take a lamb as a gift, as it will furnishe food for the family, and the fleece will keep the Babe warm in the wintry weather in the cold stable.

"They all came from simple-minded people; but how beautiful and reverent, in their love for the Mother and the Infant Christ".

HAMILTON WHIZZERS TIE

Hamilton, Dec. 18 — (CP) — In the one scheduled match in the junior O.H.A. series here last night the local Whizzers managed to hold St. Catharines Falcons to a 4-4 tie in overtime when Gluck put the Hamiltonians on even terms with the visitors with a bare three minutes to go in regular time, no score developing in the extra play. It was 2-1 for Hamilton at the end of the first frame thanks to Nick Tomiuk's two counters, and the second period wound up with a 3-3 deadlock.

"SIGNALS" SPIN
THREADS OF COMMUNICATION
ONE OF A SERIES OF 'ACTION PICTURES' WITH CANADA'S MECHANIZED ARMY

Now that the dark spectre of possible defeat no longer looms above us, some people have a tendency to relax the tenseness of their war effort. We must not relax. We must push on with every ounce of energy we possess, till the white flag of surrender is hoisted by our enemies.

PRESIDENT

IN THE CHAOS AND CONFUSION of modern battle, how does the general staff keep its finger on the progress of armies scattered over hundreds of square miles of territory? By a combination of communication devices most of which are organized and operated by "Signals".

Tanks, infantry, reconnaissance and other advanced units keep in touch with formation headquarters by means of wireless, flares or messengers. But wireless waves can be tapped by the enemy—they may also betray the position of our forces. So important information is usually transmitted over land wires.

That is where the Signal Corps swings into action, with the right-of-way over all other traffic. A cable-laying device mounted on a truck or universal carrier spews out the telephone cable on one side of the road, often pushing forward right behind the infantry. Two smaller trucks manned by linemen follow the cable-layer and make the line secure.

By means of the network of wires with which "Signals" cover the field of operations, headquarters is able to keep in touch with the scattered units of a modern army and control them like a well-ordered machine.

RCAF Hockey Teams Banned From Major Competition After Jan. 6, 1944, Ottawa States

No Member of Air Corps Can Join a Civilian Team

7 TEAMS AFFECTED

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Directly affected by the most drastic military sports blackout since the war began, six R. C. A. F. teams shelved Allan Cup hopes today under an order banning Air Force clubs from major hockey competition after Jan. 6, 1944.

The official announcement from R.C.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa last night represented the most far-reaching move yet attempted to solve the problem of service participation in organized sport, a subject of widespread comment since the war effort moved into high gear.

In a statement, headquarters said no Air force teams will be allowed to remain in organized leagues whose champions qualify for Allan Cup playdowns. Afterwards an R.C.A.F. spokesman, stressing that "there has been too much emphasis on hockey and not enough on war," said the ruling will mean no athlete in the R.C.A.F. may join a civilian team.

Air Force teams, however, may play intramural games, in local garrison leagues and in exhibition games against teams of other armed services within the same geographical boundaries. These exhibition games must not be played more than once every two weeks.

One Junior Team

The statement vetoed the possibility of Memorial Cup competition by R.C.A.F. personnel, but there are no service teams in the junior race except Regina Navy. The six senior teams affected are Vancouver Sea Island R.C.A.F. Sea Hawks, now leading the Pacific Coast League, Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers, Toronto R.C.A.F., Montreal Alouettes and two Halifax teams, one in the Halifax city league and one in the Cape Breton League.

The Calgary R.C.A.F.-Navy team, combining players from both services, presumably would lose all R.C.A.F. members after Jan. 6.

The blackout order, which the R.C.A.F. said was taken because the service "has no time to be running down rumors of all kinds with respect to hockey and to correcting abuses wherever they may occur," rocked the foundations of senior hockey in Canada for the second time in little more than a month. It followed a tightening of the screws applied when the Army announced its "soldier-first" policy, declaring that hockey would not be allowed to interfere with routine training. Unable to muster sufficient talent under the policy, Army teams in Halifax, Montreal, Cornwall, Ont., Toronto and Regina withdrew from the hockey picture.

A Severe Blow

Loss of the R.C.A.F. teams will be an equally severe blow. Even if the ban does not presage similar action by other services, hockey will miss such National League stars as Jack Stewart, Harry Watson, Sid Abel, Scotty Cameron, Frankie Eddolls and Pete Morin of Alouettes, pre-season Allan Cup favorites; Johnny Quilty, Wingy Johnston and Lou Labovitch of Sea Hawks; Alf Pike, Bill Juzda, Wally Stanowski, Pete Langelle and Paul Platz of Winnipeg; and Ernie Dickens, Red Herron, Bud Poile, Johnny O'Flaherty, Bus Wycherly, Floyd Gronsdel, Doug McCaig and Norm Tustin, Toronto R.C.A.F.

Air Force teams promised to dominate the horizon this year, just as they did in 1942-43 when four of nine district teams qualifying for Allan Cup eliminations were R.C.A.F. teams from Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg and Ottawa. Air Force sports policy was under Sqdn. Ldr. Lionel Conacher, who since has resigned as director of sports activities.

The announcement came as a surprise to all officials reached last night.

Comes as Bombshell

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Jim Grant, manager of Toronto R. C. A. F. in the Senior "A" Ontario Hockey Association, told The Canadian Press last night that the R. C. A. F. headquarters ruling on participation of Air Force teams in organized hockey leagues comes as a bombshell to the Toronto club.

Reached at a hotel here after R. C. A. F. defeated St. Catharines Saints 7-3 in a league game. Sqdn. Ldr. Grant said the team had not been informed of the decree, which prohibits Air Force teams from playing hockey after Jan. 6, 1944, in organized leagues eligible for Allan or Memorial Cup competition.

Jim Primeau, coach of the Toronto R. C. A. F. team, now in fourth place in the five-team league, said the ruling also surprised him but that there is no alternative but to comply with the ban.

Will Continue to Function

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—W. A. Hewitt, Secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said last night he believes the association's senior "A" circuit will continue to function, despite the announcement from R.C.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa that air force teams will not be permitted to play after Jan. 6, 1944, in organized leagues eligible for Allan or Memorial Cup play-downs.

Hewitt said the ruling will force Toronto R.C.A.F. from the league, leaving it to carry on with Kingston Army Frontenacs, Toronto Navy and two civilian clubs—St. Catharines Saints and Hamilton Majors.

Expressing complete surprise at the ruling, Hewitt said he is confident "no abuses" of the spirit of R.C.A.F. participation in hockey have been committed by the Toronto R.C.A.F. team, but added he is not quarreling with any decree the R.C.A.F. decides is in the interests of the service.

The O.H.A. Secretary said he believes R.C.A.F. teams in centres like Arnprior, Exeter, Trenton, Belleville, St. Thomas and Camp Borden will not be affected by the ban.

He said these teams are not eligible for Allan or Memorial Cup playdowns.

SAMMY ANGOTT BELTED RUFFIN FOR TEN ROUNDS

One-Count Knockdown Registered Against the Winner in First Round

WANTS BEAU JACK

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—As boxing's fanciest free-style pretzelbender, Sammy Angott belted Bobby Ruffin around Madison Square Garden for the better part of 10 rounds last night.

Adding a set of new slugging tactics, Sammy came back from a first-round one-count knockdown to take the play the rest of the way and win out, six rounds to three, with one even, on The Associated Press score card, before a crowd of 11,844, who tossed $30,784 into Mike Jacobs' cash registers. The officials split up, two to one, in the balloting.

And now that he has taken care of Ruffin in the approved manner, Sammy, who holds one half of the world lightweight boxing championships, is asking for a bout with the holder of the other half. This is Beau Jack, who recently regained the New York State title "blessing" from Bobcat Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia, after dropping a decision to Ruffin.

Angott turns Slugger

Sammy Angott, the boxer, suddenly turned slugger last night and came close to being knocked out, all for $100.

It seems Sammy suddenly got the idea he carried real dynamite in his fists and he bet the "C-note" on himself to flatten Bobby Ruffin in Madison Square Garden.

As a result, he came roaring out, banging away in the opening round. One of his wild swings left him wide open, and Ruffin countered with a right hand that dropped Sammy for a one-count. That convinced Sammy, and he wasn't quite so anxious to throw his haymakers after that—even though it cost him what the boys on Jacobs' beach commonly refer to as "a yard."

TEETER KENNEDY TO REPLACE HILL ON FIRST LINE

Will Centre Line Composed of Boothman and Ingoldsby

PLAY HAWKS TWICE

By The Canadian Press

A National Hockey League freshman who celebrated his 18th birthday last week has been selected by coach Happy Day to replace injured Mel Hill as second-string pivot for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Day announced last night that Ted (Teeter) Kennedy of Port Colborne, Ont., whose smooth play has made him Toronto's leading goal producer with 10 in 18 games, will act as play-maker for George Boothman and Jack Ingoldsby for Toronto's two week-end appearances against Chicago Black Hawks, in Toronto tonight and in Chicago Sunday.

Kennedy and Boothman formerly were wings for Hill, who broke his left ankle when he crashed into the boards in a game against Detroit Red Wings at Toronto last Thursday. Hill, one of Leafs' four veterans, will be out of action at least eight weeks.

The Chicago-Toronto doubleheader marks 80 per cent of weekend activities. The two other games will be played Sunday, with Boston Bruins at Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings at New York Rangers. Detroit, now in fifth place three points behind Chicago and Toronto and four behind Boston, will introduce their third net-minder in three games in Harry Lumley of Owen Sound, Ont.

Lumley replaces Normie Smith, who came out of a five-year retirement Thursday to replace Jimmy Franks in the Detroit nets. Smith made his debut a winning one as Wings triumphed 4-1 over Leafs, but will be available to Detroit only for all home games and road games that will permit him to return to his war job Monday morning.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 18 —(CP)— Nearly three years ago Boxing Promoter John Muldoon received a letter from a young tar requesting a trial. The hopeful was Ben Duffy, from a small Yorkshire village, and he showed promise in a bout in London.

Now a petty officer in the Royal Navy, Duffy is hot stuff along bash boulevard. Only last summer he outpointed Old Nel Tarleton, 37-year-old Liverpudlian who holds the British and Empire featherweight titles. A few days ago he took a decision from the Empire bantam champion Jim Brady.

Duffy's latest fight comes up in a couple of weeks when he faces Johnny King, British bantamweight titlist making a return to the ring after three years on the high seas as an anti-aircraft gunner.

The fight will be at Manchester where King, now 31, first came into prominence 12 years ago. One of the first of the British boxing fraternity to enlist after the outbreak of war, he was a survivor from the battleship Prince of Wales when it was sunk by the Japanese off Malaya.

King has been boxing 17 years and first became champion by outpointing Dick Corbett, who lost his life during an air raid alarm several months ago in London. King later lost the championship but regained it in 1935.

Speaking of boxing, and that greatest enemy of champions—age—four of Britain's seven titleholders are 30 or more. They are Tarleton, the oldest at 37; Jock McAvoy, 35, middleweight; King, and Ernie Roderick, 30, welterweight. Of these Roderick fights fairly frequently, Tarleton has an odd contest, but McAvoy has not boxed since he lost to Freddie Mills last year.

Mills, incidentally, is 24 and holds the British and Empire light-heavyweight titles. The other champions are Lightweight Eric Boon, 23, and Jackie Paterson of Glasgow, 23-year-old basher who holds the world, British and British Empire flyweight crowns.

Only the heavyweight title remains vacant, Len Harvey resigned it at the age of 35 and the main challengers are Mills and Jack London, biggest professional in the British ring is in his 31st year.

Because of a soap shortage, Eton College laundry was unable to wash shorts and vest of 250 boys participating in the annual steeplechase which includes a water jump.

But the famous school solved the problem. It made a rule that only the first 12 competitors to reach the jump would attempt it. The rest had to detour.

Fred Cox, young winger with Tottenham Hotspurs of the Football League South, returned to the Spurs for a game with wings emblazoned on his Royal Air Force tunic. He just returned from Canada where he was trained under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. . . . Wilf Wooler, Welsh rugby international and Glamorgan cricketer, wrote home to say he is a prisoner in Tokyo. He was captured by the Japanese in Java. . . . Great little filly Herringbone, winner of this season's 1,000 Guineas and St. Leger for Lord Derby, has been retired to the stud. . . . Temperamental Nasrullah, the Aga Khan's high priced colt which failed to win any of the classics, also will go to the stud.

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Army hockey has suffered certain setbacks from criticism this year but it scored a major victory in Red Deer, Alta., this week when it announced soldiers and CWAC's will be admitted free to home games of the Red Deer team in the Alberta services hockey league. This really means something because the Red Deer team representing the A20 Canadian Army Service Corps training centre has such players as Jim Henry, Mac Colville and Jack Forsey and it plays against such former major leaguers on Calgary teams as Dave Schriner, Max Bentley, Pete Slobodian, Eddie Wares and Tommy Anderson.

The Army press release states the team executive "pointed out that the team is a morale-building and recreational venture for the troops and in no way a money-making proposition." Civilians may buy tickets to the games to help defray expenses, however. Red Deer has a small arena with natural ice and expenses are not heavy.

George MacKintosh of the Edmonton Journal comments that the Red Deer decision proves the players are not being paid to play hockey.

Another Answer:

The Army gave its hockey critics another setback this week. Some critics had wondered how it was a majority of the members of the 1943 western champions, Victoria Army, continued to play together although moved up Vancouver Island to Nanaimo. The Army announced transfer from Nanaimo of Bill Carse, Elmer Kreller, Mel Lunde and Terry Reardon. All but Reardon were with the team last season and all are outstanding players. Members of the Victoria team still playing at Nanaimo are Joffre Desilets, Sammy Kennedy, Pinky Melnyk, Julian Sawchuk, Nick Metz and Amy Dufault.

Incidentally:

Greig Warren, who died in Winnipeg this week, was one of that city's finest football and baseball players 20 years ago...Joe Jerwa, 34, former N.H.L. player, has turned out with Red Deer army hockey team ... Cornwall had enjoyed top-class senior hockey for eight years until the Cornwall army team withdrew this season. Now Cornwall must depend on intermediate hockey which drew less than $100 at the gate for its opening game this week...Gus Marker, former N.H.L. player, is officiating in the O.H.A. at Kingston.

Kenny Kilrea Being Discharged From Army Will Join Detroit

By The Canadian Press

Kenny Kilrea, youngest of four hockey-playing brothers is returning to National Hockey League competition with Detroit Red Wings, it was learned Friday night.

Kilrea is being discharged from the Canadian Army as medically unfit, and intends to leave early next week for Detroit. He enlisted in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps here in April, 1942, was stationed in Ottawa until early last month and then was posted to Barriefield, Ont., for his basic training.

His brother Hec starred with Ottawa Senators for years; Wally Kilrea, another brother, now is captain and scoring leader for Hershey Bears in the American League, and Art Kilrea, now overseas, played amateur hockey here before enlisting.

Two war workers set the pace in the second round of the $5,000 Open golf tourney at Miami yesterday, with Steve Warga, Jr., employee of an airline in Florida, taking over first place with a 139 for the 36 holes. Two strokes behind was Joe Zarhardt, on leave from a Norristown, Pa., plant. Zarhardt was two-up on Craig Wood, U. S. Open champion from Mamaroneck.

First Fiddle, a standout handicap horse owned by Mrs. Edward Mulrenan, is among the 11 entries for the second running today of the $15,000 Louisiana handicap at Fairgrounds, New Orleans. Alsab and Marriage, two stars, were last-minute withdrawals, however.

Sgt. Joe Louis, holder of the world's heavyweight crown, is scheduled to finish his exhibition tour of U.S. army camps Jan. 20, it was announced last night at Washington. He will then proceed overseas to visit various theatres of operation. His retinue includes Sugar Ray Robinson, Jackie Wilson, Bob Smith and James Edgar.

President Albert G. Kleps of Batavia, N.Y., Clippers in the Pony Baseball League, announced last night a working agreement for 1944 had been effected with the Cleveland Indians of the American League.

Frank Sargent, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, had no immediate comment at Port Arthur last night on the announcement from R.C.A.F. headquarters that Air Force teams after Jan. 6 will not participate in organized hockey leagues leading up to Allan Cup and Memorial Cup playdowns.

Sargent said he would study the Ottawa announcement and issue a statement sometime during the weekend.

ST. CATHARINES BEATEN BY RCAF

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Toronto R.C.A.F., unaware of an R.C.A.F. ruling which will end their participation in the senior "A" Ontario Hockey Association, last night defeated the third-place St. Catharines Saints 7-3 to strengthen their hold on fourth place. R.C.A.F. now trail Saints by three points.

Norman (Bud) Poile and Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty, former stars with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League who recently remustered into the R.C.A.F. from the Canadian army, sank three goals between them, Poile getting two and assisting in two others while O'Flaherty had one goal and three assists.

Other Air Force goals went to Doug McCaig, Norm Tustin, Ab Collings and Red Heron.

Red Reynolds collected two of the St. Catharines counters, the other going to Stew Mason.

Two Souvenirs Given Kingston Hall of Fame

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Authorities in charge of establishing a hockey Hall of Fame here said last night they have received an offer of two souvenirs for the Hall from F. L. Bishop, manager of a North Battleford, Sask., team which visited Japan in 1935.

Kingston said Bishop promised to send a silver seal set in cherry board by the mayor of Tokyo. The other trophy, which was not described, was presented by the Japanese Canadian Society.

It is understood one of the trophies, both of which are engraved in Japanese characters, will be selected by Kingston authorities for the Hall of Fame.

Establishment of the Hall was approved by the National Hockey League at a meeting in September. Protests against selection of Kingston as the site have been voiced by Halifax and Montreal officials.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

A co-worker gave us the "low down" about a new reporter who went to work on a weekly recently.

The editor instructed him against making direct statements in print, because the editor feared libel suits.

The first item the young reporter wrote was as follows:

"It is rumored Mrs. Otto Hushup entertained the church aid last Tuesday afternoon. The guests present were reputed to have been ladies. It is alleged that ice cream and cake were served. Mrs. Hushup claims to be the wife of a well-known merchant by that name."

(Another angle.)

According to Bill Walshe, Kingston sports scribe, the new forward pass into the centre ice area has opened out the play and made rapid scoring of goals possible. The Kingston comentator has the following to say about the manner in which the new rule is working out in the senior O.H.A. games he has witnessed: "Modern hockey with its long pass in the defence zone, makes the game more like basketball, not only in plays but also scoring. In the cage game a team generally scores in bunches and rivals usually call for a time-out. A time out by delays is also being adopted in hockey to stop rapid counting. An unusual feature of Kingston's scoring this season is that the soldiers have counted in the first two minutes of every league game."

With this new fangled long pass from the defence zone such former Belleville blue line sticklers as Pete Morgan, Gunner Arnott or Larry Goyer this business of breaking away to score goals would have been just like so much "duck soup" to those lads who took all advantage of the blue lines even in the old days.

(And why not?)

The all-time American football scoring record was engineered by the "rollickin' wrecks" from Georgia Tech against Cumberland in 1917 when the Rambling Wreck made a rambling wreck of its rival, 220 to 0. Toward the end of the game the Cumberland players were pretty well battered, as one can imagine.

A Cumberland back was hit so hard by a Georgia Tech tackler late in the final quarter that the ball squirted out of his hands. The victim called out to a team-mate despairingly: "Fall on the ball, Joe."

But Joe took one look at the onrushing horde of Tech behemoths and replied bitterly: "Fall on it yourself. I didn't make the fumble."

(Good place to be.)

The only time Johnny Longden ever saw Count Fleet run was in the movies, because the jockey has been aboard the Count in every race he has run.

(Batting champs. all.)

While the two New York teams have won 27 pennants between them since 1901, they have had only five players during that period who captured league batting championships—Larry Doyle and Bill Terry of the Giants and Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees.

Doyle gave the Big Town its first swat titlist of the present century in 1915, when he topped the circuit with a .320 average—the lowest mark ever to lead the National League. Terry copped top honors in 1930 with a mark of .401.

The Bronx Bombers were in the American League 22 seasons before they had their first batting champion, Babe Ruth setting the pace in 1924 with a .378 average. Ten years later, Lou Gehrig, of the Yanks topped the loop with .363.

Joe DiMaggio brought New York its fifth individual batting title of the century in 1939 when he led the junior loop with .381, and he repeated in 1940 with a .352 average.

(Remember when—)

Joe Louis began training for the 20th defence of his world's heavyweight boxing championship two years ago today. It was a second engagement against Buddy Baer and the result was the same as the first—knockout victory for the Brown Bomber who now does his fighting—inside the ring and out—for the United States Army.

(That's settled.)

"One of the bits of business at the recent American League meeting in New York was the official award of the pennant to the New York Yankees, therein confirming a suspicion that has been lingering since last September," writes Lewis Burton of the New York Journal-American.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 256

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Horse Sense bridge got its start from an idea suggested by my son, Don. While still in his teens, he was state champion and winner of several other titles. He knew bridge.

Said he: "Players count honor tricks and add a half for this or that to decide how many tricks they have. That's too unwieldy. There's a simpler and more efficient method."

To prove his point, he asked me to assume an opening bid of one heart when this is the responding hand:

♠A 6 3
♥A 10 5
♦J 7 5 2
♣K 7 4

Using the honor trick count, the responder has 2½ honor tricks and a half for the four card length in diamonds. These items come to three tricks.

The same result is obtained by counting one for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (short of three.) Having no short cards, this hand counts three for the high cards.

Take away a small spade and add a small club. It still has 2½ for honor tricks and ½ for four-card diamond length. But now it has ½ for four-card club length and ½ for the spade doubleton.

That total of four tricks is no different than if you counted the three high cards at one apiece and one for the short card in spades.

Take away another small spade and add another club. It still has 2½ honor tricks and ½ in diamonds. But now it has one for five-card club length and one for the spade singleton; total five tricks.

The same five tricks will be the result if you count three for the high cards and two for the two short cards in spades.

Why do they arrive at the same results? You'll laugh your head off when I tell you. It makes 50,000,000 bridge players look like saps.

Whenever you shorten a suit, you must lengthen another suit to have 13 cards. They count a half for each short and a half for each long. Count one for each short and it takes care of both.

What fools we mortals be.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spy Ships"

"Spy. Ships", Warner Bros.-First National picture coming to the Capitol Theatre next is another example of how Hollywood keeps ahead of the headlines.

"Spy Ship", which deals with fifth column sabotage in the United States, was in the making months before the FBI announced the arrest of eight German secret agents who had landed on this coast via submarine and rubber boats. It even preceded a scandal in which a famous woman flier was arrested for dealing with the enemy.

In "Spy Ship," Irene Manning plays the part of a famed aviatrix who becomes involved with Nazi agents and betrays her country by radioing secret information which leads to the sinking of American vessels. Michael Ames, insurance executive, engaged to Pam (Miss Manning's role), is the tool she uses to obtain her information about sailing dates. Maris Wrixon is the girl who eventually works with Government agents to give the betraying Irene her just deserts.

"You Can't Escape Forever"

Brenda Marshall and George Brent are the stars of Warner Bros. latest adventure comedy film, "You Can't Escape Forever," which opens next at the Capitol Theatre as the added hit. Brent plays the role of a newspaper editor who has to take over the lovelorn column when he allows his suspicions to get the better of his common sense.

Brenda is cast as a sob sister who had to undergo a similar experience when she muffed a perfect story by fainting during a supposed execution. The condemned man had been given a last-minute pardon, but she never found out. Recovering from her faint, she phones in the story of the execution just as if it had taken place. Hence she was assigned to the "Bewildered Hearts" column. Roy Chanslor wrote the original story.

The Canadian Universal news completes the big exciting prrogram.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Frontier Badman"

Vigorous action melodrama is promised in Universal's "Frontier Badman" coming next to McCarthy theatre. Produced on a large scale and featuring many well known screen performers in its cast, the exciting new picture is said to be one of the major movie thrillers of the current season.

Robert Paige, Anne Gwynne, Noah Beery, Jr., and Diana Barrymore appear in the colorful roles of old-west characters while other notables in the picture include Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine, Tex Ritter and Thomas Gomez.

The celebrrated William Farnum has one of the important parts and Lon Chaney, departing from horror characterizations, is seen as a prairie gunman. Chaney, it is reported, dominates many sequences of the picturesque film.

"Frontier Badman" which is an original screen play by Gerald Geraghty and Morgan B. Cox, delves into that roaring period of western history when Texas cattlemen drove vast herds overland along the Chisholm Trail to the markets at Abilene, Kansas. In the story, as enacted on the screen, Paige, portraying a stalwart Texan encounters and destroys a gang of swindlers which has been preying on the cattlemen. Devine and Beery Jr., are seen as his associates in the enterprise.

Outstanding performances are said to be delivered by Miss Gwynne in a romantic role and by Carrillo who portrays a gallant plainsman on the side of law and order.

Spectacular scenes of the production include a cattle stampede through the streets of Abilene and an attempted lynching by lawless mobs in the primitive settlement.

2nd feature attraction presents Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean Universal's "If I Had My Way."

In M.G.M.'s "Swing Shift Maisie," now at the Belle Theatre, Ann Sothern, star of the series, has the personable James Craig as her new leading man. He is disappointing to her at the beginning but shows his true colors as the story develops to an interesting conclusion. Jean Rogers is also featured.

AT THE BELLE

"Swing Shift Maisie"

As the effervescent Maisie, Ann Sothern finds herself in another side-splitting kettle of fish in M-G-M's "Swing Shift Maisie," which is now at the Belle Theatre. Deserting vaudeville to become a worker on the assembly line of a great airplane factory, she dons overalls, but nonetheless manages to involve herself in a series of new adventure.

Maisie lands a job in aircraft work. After she saves pretty Jean Rogers from a suicide attempt she falls in love with a handsome test pilot, James Craig. Miss Rogers wants him too. Result, Miss Rogers accuses Maisie of sabotage. Complications result, but in the end the ex-showgirl with the heart of gold wins out, and all ends happily, except for the "villainess" of the picture.

Sophisticated and Smart

Miss Sothern's characterization is sophisticated and smart. She also proves to be quite attractive in overalls. Craig plays the swashbuckling air hero convincingly and Miss Rogers handles her "heavy" role with skill. Connie Gilchrist gives an interesting characterization and provides many laughs as Ma Lustvogel, landlady in an aircraft workers' boarding house. John Qualen plays the distressed owner of a vaudeville dog act. The Wiere Brothers present a hilarious burlesque of Hitler. Outstanding also is "Butch," a cleverly trained canine pal of the heroine.

Norman McLeod directed adroitly. Unusual photography by Harry Stradling heightened the fine points of the entertaining story. The lilting musical score is by Lennie Hayton. George Haight produced for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The Canadian Paramount News, a colorfun cartoon "Inky and Mina Bird" and a C. C. O. feature "Tomorrow's World" will also be exhibited. On Saturday matinee the sixth chapter of the year's best serial, "The Batman" will be exhibited.

Falls Into Barrel And Suffocates

New Brunswick, N.J., Dec. 18—(AP)—John M. Wilkinson, 37-year-old 200-pounder, fell into a barrel while working in the attic of his home and suffocated before he was discoverd. His mother found his body, with feet and head protruding, but his legs jammed against his chest.

The accident occurred Wednesday, but Dr. William C. Wilentz, Middlesex County physician, withheld a verdict of accidental death until a post-mortem had disclosed no complications to contradict the police theory Wilkinson had been standing on a bed to reach a wire when he lost his balance and fell backward into the barrel.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Opening of the city centre of music and drama marks the launching of a new civic venture designed to provide New York citizens with plays, operas, ballet and concerts at modest prices.

The Centre opened with a concert by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra under direction of Dr. Artur Rodzinski. Music critics gave it a warm reception.

Following this was a presentation of Rachel Crothers' play, Susan and God, with Gertrude Lawrence in the star role. Next week this gives way to Sidney Kingsley's Pulitzer prize-winning play, The Patriots.

The Civic Centre has been established in the old Mecca Temple in mid-town Manhattan. It is being assisted by private subscriptions and the maximum price for seats for musical and dramatic offerings has been fixed at $1.65.

The Civic Centre has already mapped out an ambitious program for the future. It plans a week of opera, a musical revue, a performance of "Porgy and Bess" and three weeks of ballet.

Susan Scores: Miss Lawrence gave a brilliant performance as Susan in the revival of "Susan and God," a comody in which she scored a notable success in New York in 1937. The play centres about a wife whose sudden burst of spiritual enthusiasm almost disrupts the entire cast.

The stage of the Civic Centre is enormous and microphones have been installed on each side to enable the actors' voices to carry. This proved highly confusing in the opening performances, only Miss Lawrence solved the accoustic tricks. When other actors spoke, their voices appeared to come from the side of the stage.

But Miss Lawrence's vitality more than made up for any mechanical defects. She used all the stage tricks she knows to gain and hold the attention of the audience and made every gesture and inflection count.

A dud: The other latest opening, "Pillar to post," a comedy by Rose Simon Kohn dealing with the crowded housing situation around big army posts, is a complete dud.

AT THE McCARTHY — Diana Barrymore and Lon Chaney are seen together in colorful dramatic scenes of Universal's saga of the old west, "Frontier Badmen", next at the McCarthy Theatre with Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean in "If I Had My Way."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma and we went in the Zipper Tea Room and ma ordered tea and cinamin toast and I ordered Chocklit ice cream, and all of a sudden ma said, Well of all things, do you see that little girl with the yellow curls at the table with the lady wearing red gloves? Have you any idea who that little girl is? she said.

No mam, but she's pretty funny looking, I said, and ma said, Such a remark to make about the most talented child actress on the screen today. That's a little Susanna Dolly, she had the entire audience ringing wet with tears in the last picture she was in, in fact she litterly ran away with it. I think it would be too cute for words if you want over and asked her for her autograff, ma said.

Aw heck, ma, I dont even know her, I mean I never even heard of her, and I still think she's funny looking, I said. If it was Ferdy Feezle or one of the Berp brothers or somebody really funny like that I'd do it all right. Why dont you go over and ask her, ma? I said, and ma said, I'm afraid that would look a little out of place, but you're just her size and if you went and asked her it would seem just too cute for anything.

Well good night, ma, I mean gosh, I dont want to seem cute, I said, and ma said, Oh, you're just naturally shy. Suppose I give you a dime if you ask her, would that add to your courage? she said.

Sure, G, I said, and ma gave me her pencil and her little red memorandam book out of her bag and I went over and stood in front of Susanna Dolly, saying, My mother says will you please give her your autograff, please? and Susanna Dolly said, Why naturally, I'd be charmed.

Sounding as funny as she looked, and she wrote her name in ma's memorandam book and I took it back to ma, and ma said, I never saw anything look cuter, now you've got something to treasure.

Meaning she had.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 21

The professor read it and whistled softly. He put the prints in a drawer and went home to bed. In the morning Sergeant Feathers came to the laboratory and the scientist handed him the prints without comment. Feathers read them and uttered a startled exclamation.

"Good heavens! This changes everything! The sheriff must see these without delay!"

Ann and her father had been detained overnight at police headquarters. At ten o'clock that morning, Sheriff Black and Inspector Burrows held a consultation.

"I'm in favor of confronting Osborne with his daughter and making her repeat her story to him," said the inspector. "I don't believe a word of it myself, but her father is the only person who is likely to be able to put his finger on all the flaws in it. If he really murdered his sister, as I'm fully convinced, he ought to be able to disprove her story."

"What if she persists in sticking to it? Where will we be then?"

"In a fine mess," grunted Burrows. "In that case, we won't have a Chinaman's chance of convicting either. Put the father on trial and the daughter's only got to go to the stand and tell this story of hers to get him off scotfree. Put the daughter on trial and the father plays the same game with us. If we can't prove that one or the other is lying, we're sunk. Unless—" he brightened perceptibly—"unless we can prove that they were in it together."

"I can't see that angle, either," retorted the sheriff. "Oh, well, let's have 'em up."

In a few minutes Ann was ushered into the room, looking pale and worn after her night in the cell, but still very determined. Stephen was brought in almost on her heels. When he saw his daughter he started nervously.

"Ann! What are you doing here?"

She gave him a wan smile and tried to speak, but words would not come. Before Stephen could say anything further, Sheriff Black motioned them both to chairs which had been placed facing the window.

"Mr. Osborne, yesterday evening you made a voluntary statement confessing the murder of your sister and the attempted murder of your wife. Later, your daughter Ann came here of her own free will and she also made a statement, one diametrically opposed to yours. I propose to read it to you and then you can tell me exactly what you think of it."

He picked up a sheaf of papers which had been typewritten at Ann's dictation and was about to read them when there was a knock at the door. With a scowl, Inspector Burrows crossed the room and answered it.

"We can't be disturbed now," he began, then, in a changed tone, said: "Oh, that's different." He looked back over his shoulder. "It's Feathers. Says it's important."

"Tell him to come in."

Sergeant Feathers entered and handed the sheriff the two prints he had received from the chemistry professor.

"Thought you'd like to see these at once, sheriff."

Black examined the prints and a low whistle escaped him. He poured over them for some time; then he leaned forward and handed them to Stephen.

Stephen glanced at the prints and his eyes widened with horror. He dropped them, burying his face in his hands.

"Of course," murmured the sheriff, "you'd hardly need to read them, Osborne, since it was you who burned the originals."

Ann picked up the prints and read the clear white writing on one of them, which she recognized instantly as her mother's handwriting:

To the Police:

It was I who killed Octavia Osborne. I thought I could go on concealing my guilt forever, but find I cannot. It weighs too heavily on my conscience. I cannot face the public shame of a trial for murder, so I am going to end my life by means of poison which I have taken from my husband's medicine chest.

Edith Osborne

The second note was not headed but the wording left no doubt for whom it was intended. It read simply:

Forgive me, if you can. I love you all very dearly.

"I could not bear your mother to be branded a murderess," muttered Stephen Osborne brokenly. "So I destroyed the notes she left and hid the bottle. It would have been easier to die on the scaffold than live to see that."

With a cry, Ann threw her arms about him and held him tightly, sobbing bitterly.

"Oh, father, father! And I thought you—"

With a trembling hand, Stephen stroked his daughter's hair. Over her shoulder, his tragic grey eyes looked at the sheriff.

"Is there any news of my wife? Will she—will she—"

"Dr. Denham 'phoned me half an hour ago," replied Black soberly. He frowned at the prints on his desk—Edith Osborne's confession of murder—and added in a low tone: "I am afraid she will live."

"You shan't do anything to her!" cried Stephen. "She didn't know what she was doing when she wrote that confession. I killed Octavia! Do you hear? I did it!"

The desk telephone rank sharply. Sheriff Black lifted the receiver.

"Yes. . . Who? . . . What does he want? Oh, all right, send him in".

Black replaced the receiver and frowned at the Inspector.

"Simon Osborne", he said. "Now what can he want?"

In a few moments Simon entered the room. For once in his life his bearing was far from jaunty. All the bounce, the braggadocio, the unabashed swagger that usually distinguished him were missing. His unhappy face lengthened when he saw that Stephen and Ann were present.

"I—I am ashamed to face you Stephen", he stammered. "This—this ghastly affair is all my fault. I could have prevented it. Until the end of my life I shall blame myself for not preventing it. Oh, I'm a worthless old scamp, Stephen, but, believe me, if I'd only foreseen what would happen, I should have spoken out long ago. Tell me, will Edith live?"

Stephen nodded dully.

"Thank God! If she'd died, it would have been my fault".

"What on earth are you talking about?" Sheriff Black demanded.

"The editor of the Sunday World told me of Edith's visit to him. He told me what he said to her. When I read in last night's paper that she had been found dying from poison, I realized instantly what had happened. She left a note, I suppose, confessing to Octavia's murder?"

"I have it here", said the Sheriff, "but—"

"Yes, that is what she would do. That was Edith. The editor told her that there would never be any peace for her family as long as the murder remained unsolved. Edith loved her children. For them, no sacrifice was too great. So she wrote her supposed confession and tried to end her life. If I had only foreseen that this would happen—"

"Yes?" said the Sheriff, his voice grown suddenly cold. "If you had foreseen it, what would you have done?"

"I should have revealed the identity of the person who really murdered Octavia".

"Ah!"

"Yes. Almost as soon as I heard the details of the case I knew who did it. It was so obvious. There was only one person who could have done it. Edith? Stephen? Never! Neither of those two loving parents would have murdered Octavia and left their daughter in the room with the body. They would never have submitted her to the ordeal of looking up and seeing a murdered corpse a few feet from where she sat. Nor would Hannah Gale. Oh, Hannah could kill but not like that. She loves the children almost as dearly as Edith does.

"Ann? No, not Ann. She would not have committed the murder with Dorothy's scarf. Ann's too loyal for that. And her whole temperament would be opposed to murder by strangulation. Dorothy? She's too gentle for murder; in her, the capacity to hurt is wholly lacking. Young Mike could have done it, but not with a scarf—not with Dorothy's scarf. Peter? Marjory? Not they! Why should they kill Octavia? For her money? Rubbish! They don't know what money is. To them five dollars is as much as a million. Oh, the identity of the murderer was obvious!"

"Why didn't you reveal it immediately?"

"I thought I was being clever," said Simon pathetically. "You see, I'm writing a book about the case and will call it, 'Murder in the Family.' I wanted to keep the identity of the murderer to myself until the book was finished. I thought that to publicly announce my solution — simultaneously with the publication of the book—would be a magnificent publicity stunt."

Simon paused, crossed the room and opened the door.

"Come in," he said.

Miss Mimms came in. During the past months she had aged almost out of recognition. The lined, sallow face was now pitifully emaciated and yellow. She was still dressed in her usual drab clothing. Timidly she blinked about her. When she saw Stephen and Ann her eyes filled with tears. She made an uncertain move toward them, but changed her mind and wearily seated herself on the edge of a chair which Simon brought forward for her.

"You!" cried Sheriff Black, aghast. "You killed Octavia Osborne?"

"I did," she said firmly; although it was only by a supreme effort that she kept her voice from trembling.

"But why? What possible motive had you?"

"I killed her because in this new will she was going to leave me five thousand dollars a year for life."

"But the will had not been made. By killing her when you did, you prevented her from making it. You robbed yourself of the legacy."

"The legacy. . . ." Miss Mimms smiled, ever so faintly. "That was only a joke on Miss Osborne's part. A very cruel joke. You see, I have a growth. It cannot be cured. In July my doctor warned me that I had not longer than six months to live. Miss Osborne knew that. It must have amused her to tease me with a legacy I could not possibly live to enjoy."

"Good grief!" breathed the sheriff.

"It was cruel of her, wasn't it? But she was like that, you know. I misled you when you questioned me immediately after the murder. I said she was kind to me. She never was. She was cruel, terribly cruel. But I didn't dare let you see how much I hated her. Making other people suffer was the only real enjoyment she got out of life. She used to treat me like a slave. I never had a minute I could call my own.

"You'd have thought, wouldn't you, that she'd be a little easier on me after she knew that I was dying? But, no. When I was worn with fatigue, I would have to sit up half the night bathing her forehead, or reading to her. It was all put on. When she thought I was not looking she would squint sideways at me with a malevolent smirk on her face, positively gloating over my suffering.

"She was a terrible woman. Hard, bitter, wicked. I might have forgiven all that. But this final ghastly joke at my expense I could not forgive.

"Five thousand a year for life—and she knew that I was dying on my feet! When I was told, her appalling brutality made me faint and Hannah took me upstairs and made me lie down. I lay there for a long time, thinking, thinking. At half past three Hannah called me and I went downstairs.

"I noticed a beautiful silk scarf lying on a chair in the hall. I love beautiful things, although I have possessed very few. I took it down and fondled it. There were oily smears on the delicate fabric. That was a wicked shame. I wondered whether I could get the stains out with a little bottle of stuff I always carried. I was still holding the scarf in my hand when I looked through the open living-room door and saw my employer sitting there.

"There she sat. Full of her own importance. Puffed up with pride. Cruel. Her head fiercely erect, her back as stiff as a poker. I did not notice Miss Ann. Had a hundred people been in the room, I should have had eyes only for Miss Octavia.

"Then and there I decided. I crept to the back of her chair and looped the scarf about her neck. I crossed the ends and pulled them tight with a strength I never knew I had. I expected her to struggle; I was bracing myself to hang on, but she did not struggle. She gave one little jump, that was all. Before I knew it, she was dead.

"You wouldn't have thought she would die as easily as that, would you? So strong, so fierce, yet she died without a struggle.

"Then in a flash I realized what an awful thing I had done. I screamed; I could not help it. Miss Ann started up and I noticed her for the first time. I thought she must know I had done it, but she didn't. The others came running in, but no one seemed to think for a moment that it might have been me . . . .

"At first I thought I'd give myself up, but I could not bring myself to do it. I had only a few months to live. No, I could not give myself up. I decided to do that only if one of the Osbornes was arrested for the murder. Then it would be my duty to confess. I see now," she sighed "that it was my duty to confess at the beginning. I am sorry, bitterly sorry."

After Miss Mimms had finished speaking there was a long silence. The others stared in stunned bewilderment at this meek little woman in drab grey, who sat so submissively with her gloved hands folded on her lap. Miss Mimms smiled faintly.

"Please do not look so concerned, all of you," she said apologetically. "I am not going to hang."

THE END

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfast and ma said to pop, I wish I knew what to have for dinner. My meat points are at their lowest tide, and I thought we might eak out the meal with some sort of a novel side dish, she said.

Well 'hay, ma, I know the recipee of a swell war time dessert, I said. I heard Puds Simkin's mother telling it to Shorty Judge's mother, I said, and ma said, Can you imagine that, William? Remembering cooking recipees at his age, doesn't that tak the cake? she said.

It couldn't take anything more appropriate, pop said.

Meaning cake is a dessert and being a good answer, and ma said, Mrs. Simkins is suppose to be a marvellous cook, she's suppose to be one of these women who can make practically anything out of practically nothing. But still she has a tight lip reputation for never telling anybody her secrets, so I'm surprised she broke down to the extent of giving Mrs. Judge a recipee. I mean she and Mrs. Judge aren't particulilly hobnobby. What was the recipee, Benny, I wonder if you really do remember it? she said.

Sure I do, ma, I said. It was called Foxhole Fruit, and it's a cinch. All you do is cut up every kind of fruit there is, especially banannas, and then you take a whole quart of ice cream and mix it up with the fruit till you cant tell whether you're eating fruit or ice cream, I said, and pop said, By gollies it sounds rather good.

I dont see where the war time element comes in for land sakes, with ice cream as scarce as flowers in May, ma said. When did you hear all this? she said, and I said, Some time late last night, I mean I dreamed I was sitting on Puds's front steps listening. I dreamed it plain as day, I said.

Then you can dream you're eating it as plain as day, of all things forland sakes, ma said, and I said, Well jimminy, ma, you always claim you believe in dreams, and she said, Not in yours, I'm afraid.

The result being we had a vegetable salad for the side dish and rice pudding without any raisins for dessert.

238 Acres of Land Feed 100 People

(By W. L. C. in Windsor Star)

It takes 238 acres of arable land to feed 100 people. That has been worked out by scientific agriculturists.

It requires 110 acres for growing grain to provide food for the cattle, hogs and poultry that give meat and eggs and milk.

It takes 62 acres for hay for the cattle.

Another 43 acres are necessary for wheat, oats and other grains for human food.

Eight acres grow miscellaneous crops.

Five acres are put into truck crops.

Three acres for potatoes.

Three acres are for beans, peas and nuts.

Three acres are for fruits.

One acre is for sugar and syrups.

Out of every 100 calories of food, 48 calories come from livestock.

Intense Farming

Although the United States and Canada are much larger in area than Europe, the intensification of soil cultivation over there has left North America far behind in agricultural production on a percentage basis. There are 460,000,000 acres of arable land in Europe which produced twice as much food products as the 480,000,000 acres of arable land in Canada and the United States.

In Europe they grow 38 percent of the world food supply, although there is only 19 percent of the world population.

In Canada and the United States 19 percent of the world food supply is produced, although the population is only seven percent of the total world population.

In Asia the people do not do so well. There, they produce only 17 percent of the world food supply with 53 percent of the world population.

Peasants Toil

Our Canadian soldiers in Italy are seeing something of the intense agricultural efforts of the peasants. They are stricken by poverty, but they make every square inch of soil count for everything they can. Hillsides are cultivated with the productive earth being walled up to prevent its being washed down by the rains. The peasants work and fertilize their land and they watch every seed as it sprouts and grows to maturity.

As our troops go into France, Germany and other European nations they will be amazed at the intensity of farming. Over there not an acre of land can be allowed to remain unfertile. Crops are rotated and every care is given to make sure the soil will never fail its tillers.

When the men get into the Netherlands and Denmark, they will be surprised at the care given the cows. That is, if the Germans have left any of the fine cattle with their former owners on the farms.

Dutch Cows

In the Netherlands an average cow will produce 7,500 pounds of milk a year. In Greece before the war, it took eight cows to produce the same amount of milk.

In Ontario there are cows that will produce from 50 to 70 pounds of milk per day. Some cows go higher, some not so high. The world's record milk production by a single cow is 41,943 pounds in one year. That was in the United States.

The care of cows is so important. Not only is there the meat production, but the milk production is so important to health. In India, there are 28 out of every 100 cows in the world. If those cows would produce with the average Canadian cow, there would be no famine troubles in India. There would be enough milk to give everyone in India an adequate supply daily. But, the average cow in India does not give much milk.

Sacred Cows

As the cow is a sacred animal in India, no strides have been made in perfecting breeds and in bringing the milk output up to anything like a substantial amount.

There is going to be difficulty rehabilitating agriculture in Europe after the war. The Germans have been denuding the fields and they have also been destroying the cattle. The Nazis have swept into countries, seized the animals and slaughtered them for immediate food. While the natives of conquered nations have been hungry and on the verge of starvation, the Germans have been destroying the herds and plundering the crops to send food to the Reich.

There has been no encouragement to the breeding of cattle and the continuation of good strains of animals. The peasants have had to make the best of a bad situation, have been compelled to stand aside as their efforts of years have been crushed in a few raids on their farms.

Food in Canada

There is food in Canada and the United States. Our granaries are filled with wheat that makes the best bread flour in the world. There is enough grain in Western Canada to feed Europe easily. To get that over there after the war is ended will require hundreds of thousands of tons of shipping. The crop movement will be as fast as the shippers can make it, but it will require months to ship millions of bushels of wheat.

How to feed the world is going to be more than a weekend problem. If the countries would permit central authorities to instruct each area what to grow and how much to ship to this nation or that nation, some strides could be made. But, each country will be anxious to grow whatever crops it can to feed itself. That happened after the last war when the ordinary flow of agricultural products was upset by nations deciding they would prepare for another war and endeavor to make themselves self-sufficient in food products.

A balanced diet is another point. Many people eat a lot of food, but they do not eat the right meats, fats, grains and vegetables. Doctors and others may be quick to advise, but personal liberty insists on eating what the palate prefers, even if the stomach eventually rebels.

DISPOSE OF BUFFALO HERD

Durham, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP)—Labor shortage has compelled Dr. D. Brradshaw Jamieson to dispose of a herd of nine buffalo on an estate at nearby Wilder's Lake. Dr. Jamieson said insufficient fodder had been gathered to maintain the animals through the winter.

Looking for a Book

By Howard Vincent O'Brien in the Chicago Daily News.

When we were considering the purchase of a house, one of the justifications for assuming the necessary mortgage was that I would have a room of my own.

It was a large room on the top floor, and the previous occupant had fitted it with a number of bookcases and cubboards. It had only one door, and this was equipped with a good luck.

Well, that was years ago. Since then things have happened—children, for example . . . and grandchildren.

I didn't realize how much had happened until I went up Sunday to look for a book.

My "library", as I once called it, was a jungle of trunks, cardboard boxes, broken chairs, baby carriages and articles impossible to classify.

* * *

To reach the bookcase I had to move several tons of furniture, traveling bags, dollhouses, lead soldiers and other toys, discarded golf clubs, curtain stretchers, broken lamps . . . an incredible assortment of things more or less useless.

It was a long and arduous task. My progress was slow because I had to stop, occasionally, to investigate the contents of boxes and packages, some of which were rather securely tied up.

However, I had no reason to hurry. The chatelaine was in town, attending a concert, and there was nobody in the house to interfere with my researches.

Eventually, feeling like an archaeologist digging for Tut's tomb, I reached the books. But I couldn't find the particular one I wanted.

I decided it must be downstairs in the living room. And down there I decided it must be on one of the upper shelves. This necessitated a hunt for the stepladder, which I found in the basement—somewhat wobby and well spattered with paint, but better than nothing.

To use the ladder I had to move a sofa and some chairs and a bridge lamp. (The latter was moved by simply getting the ladder tangled with the lamp cord. This is a simple method, but not particularly beneficial to the lamp.)

To save space, I piled the chairs—and what was left of the lamp—on the sofa. Then I climbed up to look for my book.

It wasn't there, I remembered that down in the basement I had seen a clothesbasket filled with books to be sent to the Gray Ladies.

* * *

I had just reached the basement when I heard sounds upstairs. They were awesome sounds — a mixture of pain and rage in which I could detect my name.

The noise diminished as my consort went upstairs. Then it rose in fury as she came scampering back. You would have thought I had wrecked the house. Such language! Such threats! I cannot bring myself to repeat what was said. Among other things, I was to get no supper. This idea seemed especially pleasing to my granddaughter, who had also turned vindictive.

I was quite dignified through all the vituperation. I merely said that if I got no supper I would take everything down from the attic and pile it on the piano. I pointed out how ridiculous Brahams would look peeping through a discarded bedpan.

Then, still dignified, I went out for a walk. I hoped the neighbors couldn't hear the epithets flung after me by my women. Really, they were nothing less than female larrikins. I was shocked. Also I was quite hungry.

P.S. I found the book down at my office!

How to Travel Without Gasoline

(By Graucho Marx, In "Modern Digest")

Now, dear reader, I realize that there is nothing as cheap as advice, particularly the advice that I dish out, but if you will just sit quietly and wipe that brooding, paranoiac look off your face, I believe I can offer some suggestions that will help to alleviate your transport problems.

To begin with, I suggest that for the duration you forget about the car. Let us look around and see what can possibly take its place. The first thing that comes to my mind is Betty Grable. The second thing that comes to my mind is Betty Grable, and the third thing that comes to my mind is the horse. It is well known that a horse requires no gasoline, doesn't have to be greased and, what is more important, doesn't have to have air blown into his shoes every few days. He is content with a daily apple, a few wild oats and an occasional pat on the rump.

Or, if you are one of the lucky ones who live in cold country, you're sitting pretty. All you need is a sled, eight Eskimo dogs and a reasonable amount of snow. Unfortunately, I live in Hollywood where snow falls only in the studios and is, confidentially, cornflakes or oatmeal. Doused with cream and sugar, these are delicious cereals—they give boundless energy and are excellent substitutes for snow, but it would cost a fortune to sprinkle all the highways in California with breakfast food, and I don't think the taxpayers are in any mood for this sort of hanky-panky.

In Arabia, where the sands are hot and the Arabs are hotter, the camel is used much as we use the streetcar. This doesn't mean that they resemble each other—no indeed, there's quite a difference between a camel and a streetcar. Perhaps I'd better describe just what a camel does look like. It has four legs, two humps and a goatee. I have an uncle who answers this description; the only difference is, he has only two legs and won't kneel in a sandstorm. The Arab and his camel are inseparable. It's been said that an Arab would give up his wife rather than give up this camel. Personally I haven't got a camel, but I think it's a great idea. Camels would thrive in our climate and, inasmuch as they multiply rapidly, they would quickly help to solve our transport problem. Of course, they don't multiply as rapidly as guinea pigs, but then, who does?

All these methods failing, there is still a way of getting around. I'll admit it's a little old-fashioned and you may not even remember it. It's called walking. It's not hard to do—you just put both feet together, raise the right foot and bring it forward about one yard, then bring the left one forward, then the right and left and right and left and there you go down the street, happy as a lark, free as the air, no troubles, no cares.

They Speak Out in Britain

(From the Watertown, N. Y., Daily Times)

In that fascinating study of geographical influence on human beings it has been discovered that those who dwell on islands are very likely to be independent, resourceful and, because of the exposure of their shores to enemy dangers, alert to what is going on. During the present war we have watched these characteristics as expressed by the British people, and who can read their papers without noting especially the independence which runs through every class of Englishman?

They are not a subservant people, accepting all without murmur from higher authorities, but they wish to know why the authorities do thus and so. They follow closely every military move, and if there is failure of strategy they want to know why. If there is dissatisfaction with leaders then they are called to account. Just now these English are asking what Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has brought to pass following his talks with the Turks. And Mr. Eden will be given no rest until he makes plain whatever good results have come of his Turkish negotiations.

When the battle of North Africa was not going too well there was constant questioning and nothing would do but for Prime Minister Churchill to come forward and explain why it was that Rommel could chase all that distance across the sands, threatening the very outposts of Egypt.

There were British defenders on the Dodecanese islands of Leros in the Aegean Sea and Greek commandos had arrived to bolster the British position, yet the people have learned that the Nazis overwhelmed that force and have taken this strategic position. "Why? Why?" the British demand, and some one must come forward now and tell them.

* * *

When former Prime Minister Chamberlain sent that British force into Norway with dire results, there was the same wave of indignation which swept the people, and they rose with alacrity to demand the reason why British life was wasted.

If satisfactory explanations cannot be given Members of Parliament are heckled on the spot. The British newspapers are outspoken in their opinions, the man on the street makes it his concern, as does the charwoman sipping her afternoon tea in the home where she has gone to oblige. It may be an uncomfortable situation for the leaders, yet these correctives springing from every side allow a man to know where he stands and how he can improve his position.

The ear to the ground methods are not necessary to a British statesman. The air all about is charged so vitally with public opinion that he has no need whatever to go searching for what the people may think.

Scurry for Cover At First Signal

Stockholm, Dec. 17 (AP)—A strict censorship apparently was clamped on foreign correspondents in Berlin today, but a correspondent for Stockholm's Aftonbladet was permitted to say that Berlin was burning again following last night's smashing R.A.F. assault.

"Tremendous fires reddened the sky," he said.

Indicating that the battered capital's defences had been caught flat-footed by the first raid in two weeks, the correspondent said that a Swede who left his dinner the moment the sirens wailed had gone only a few hundred paces before the first explosions shook the city. The shelter he finally reached was shaken repeatedly although it was deep underground.

Berliners themselves showed they are no longer nonchalant about raid alarms, but scurry for cover at the first signal.

Japs Retire At Rate 9½ Miles a Day

Chungking, Dec. 17—(AP)—Japanese forces south of the Lin River, which twists eastward into Tungting Lake to split the Chinese rice area in half, were retiring under pressure at the rate of 9½ miles a day, Maj.-Gen. C. C. Tseng, Chinese Army spokesman, said at a press conference today.

Tseng predicted that the Japanese would soon be cleared from the area south of the Lin River, thus restoring to China at least half of her rice growing area.

Devise System to Speed Removal of Wounded To Hospitals

Ottawa, Dec. 17—(CP)—To speed removal of wounded Canadian soldiers to hospital, a system has been devised to put supply trucks in emergency service as ambulances, Defence Headquarters said today.

Sets of special harness are being manufactured in Canada to carry stretchers, and any three-ton army truck with 158-inch wheel base and canvas top can be converted into a temporary ambulance. The harness fastens to the tubular steel frame supporting roof and sides of the truck.

R.C.A.F. "FLYING POSTM MAN" DELIVERS THE GOODS

Pictured here before the take-off from Ottawa, the first Flying Fortress of the new Royal Canadian Air Force overseas mail service has arrived with a load of Christmas mail for soldiers, sailors and airmen in Britain and the Mediterranean areas. The newly organized mail squadron flies non-stop from Ottawa to Britain and from there to the fighting theatres in North Africa, Italy and Egypt. The upper picture shows mail bags being loaded into the side hatch of the giant Fortress for the maiden crossing. Below, with its four powerful engines turning, the plane taxies out on the runway for the take-off. Inset is Wing Commander Bruce Middleton, A.F.C., of Winnipeg and Ottawa, commanding officer of the mail squadron, who skippered the first overseas flight. — (R.C.A.F. Photos.)

3 BARNS, SHED DESTROYED

Bronte, Dec. 17—(CP)—Fire, believed of incendiary origin, last night destroyed three barns and a shed adjoining the United Church at Palermo, near this community, about 22 miles from Toronto. Some machinery was lost in the fire, which for a time endangered many of the score of houses in Palermo.

Humor in the Airways Over Europe

(By RALPH MICHAELIS in BBC Press Service)

Flying against the enemy has its humours; and there are plenty of laughs to be heard over enemy territory.

Going around the various R.A.F. airfields in the course of my work as an air correspondent, I am constantly hearing about the deeds of some fantastic joker.

For example, a Sunderland flying boat sighted a German battleship escorted by a couple of destroyers off the coast of Norway.

The battleship challenged the Sunderland with the code message "I.K." The Sunderland crew had not the faintest idea what the message meant. So the captain told them to reply—"I.K.". But this did not satisfy the German. They challenged a second time with "I.K." and—for the second time—the Sunderland replied—"I.K." Back came the methodical Germans for a third time with the challenge "I.K."

This time the Sunderland captain could not resist making the obvious reply.

"Oh, tell them nuts," he said.

And so the radio operator signalled back, "Nuts."

There was a short pause while the Germans got out their secret ciphers and started to decode this cryptic message.

"It took them exactly thirty seconds to find out the meaning of "nuts," the Captain told me, "then they let us have 'everything'."

• •

The crew of this particular Sunderland were a famous bunch of humorists.

One afternoon they were flying low over a Norwegian fjord when they spotted a couple of very fat German officers idling in a row boat.

"Let's scare the lives out of those two birds," said the Captain, and he dived towards the row boat.

As soon as the Germans spotted the Sunderland they grabbed their oars and started to row up the fjord at a tremendous pace. They had not gone far when one of them missed the water altogether with his oar and went head over heels backwards into the lap of his brother officer.

The sight of these two fat Germans trying to race the airplane up the fjord struck the gunners as so funny that they had difficulty in sighting their guns.

One of the radio operators in a night bomber group is a great practical joker. One of his jokes is to tune into a German receiving station and tell them what he thinks about them. In fact his parodies of Hitler speeches are known from Hamburg to the Ruhr, to the vast entertainment of his own crew, and the annoyance of the helpless enemy.

One night the bomber in which this radio operator was flying was caught in a cone of searchlights. Anti-aircraft shells were bursting all round, and the pilot was throwing the aircraft about in all directions in an attempt to get away from the searchlights. But he was unsuccessful. More searchlights fastened on the airplane, so that the crew had to shade their eyes from the blinding glare.

The radio operator turned the knobs on his radio set and tuned in to the German station down below. And all at once the Germans listening in their control room heard the following announcement:

"Achtung! Achtung! Germany calling! Germany calling! Here is Goering! Put out those damn lights!"

Occasionally the enemy plays a radio joke on us.

Bombers flying back to England in the dark usually contact their home radio station, when they are over the North Sea, and ask for a "fix" or a compass bearing on which to fly home.

One night a new and rather agitated navigator was unable to interpret the fix that had been sent to him and he kept asking for it to be repeated to him.

And for some time he monopolized the frequency so that nobody else could get a word in. After a while a German station came through in English. "For heaven's sake get him home," they said, "he's mucking up our frequency."

• •

The captain of a German minelayer was pulled out of the North Sea the other day by the boys on one of our sea-air rescue service launches (these are high-speed motorboats used for picking up airmen—our own or the enemy's — who have crashed or baled out into the sea) and this German captain was cursing the "incompetent English" at the top of his voice.

The boys on the launch could not understand at first what was biting him. So he told his sad story, and here it is.

Every day for months past the German skipper had taken his trawler to a certain stretch of water and there he had methodically sown his mines. And every night following his expeditions the British minesweepers had gone out and swept his mines up again. But one night the British did not go out for some reason. The methodical German, proceeding as usual with his unlawful occasions, on the following day ran into one of his own mines and blew himself up. .

Graphic Story Relates Urgent Need for Blood

The following is from "The Readers' Digest" and is in reference to the great need for services of the blood donors as a vital part of the war effort. It is the story of Edgar L. Jones who was serving with the American Field Service in North Africa when he wrote the letter and tells of the urgent need for blood donors. Local officials in connection with the blood donor clinic feel that Belleville and district men and women will appreciate more fully than ever before, the great need after reading this article.

The article he mentions, the case history of a blood donor written by Donita Ferguson, first appeared in "Vogue."

"A battle-scarred copy of the magazine containing your article turned up at our desert HQ on a day when I had been wishing that I could say thanks to blood donors everywhere.

"The final push was on, and we had been evacuating casualties since first light that morning... No one at home can imagine what war in the desert is like. None of us here wants to know. The wounded at the forward dressing station lay in the hot sun, plagued by flies and stinging gusts of sand. They were exhausted from 72 hours of fighting without sleep, but they were too much on edge to sleep with the sounds of battle so close by. They were inexpressibly thirsty and dirty, but the only water we had was a meagre pint issued daily to each of us.

"Above all these, these men needed new blood to give them strength. This they could get at the field hospital, 15 rough miles across the desert. It takes a driver about four hours to go 15 miles when he is carrying patients who involuntarily scream at each jolt of the springs. Hours of grinding through deeply-rutted sand, picking your way over boulders edging into wadies and pulling out again, all the time listening for that raspy intake of breath which means the patient is still alive, and feeling like a murderer every time there's a bad jolt. The blood stains on the bandage grow larger as the man's life seeps slowly out and stains the floor. One wonders how much longer he can hold on.

"At the field hospital every serious case goes immediately to resuscitation. Here, in a crowded tent in the desolate desert is where you come in, Miss Ferguson. Men are dying. They don't need a woman's cool touch or cheerful words or a smile. They need your blood—it alone can save them.

"Just before I read your article, I had been in a hot, dusty tent here about 50 men were being kept alive by blood alone. I stood beside a man whom I had brought in, dying, and watched new life in steady drops from a bottle above his cot, trickle down a thin tube into his arms. As the color began to return to his deadly white lips, I wanted to thank God and all blood donors for giving this man another chance to live. I was very fond of that man.

"Often we are sent on rush calls for more blood. The order may come in the middle of the night. 'Quick' the medical officer say, 'we must have more blood and I hope to God they have some left for us.' We rush off through the impossible darkness and drive many kilometers to load up with our precious cargo.

"Our great fear is always 'will there be enough blood?' It takes so much these days and the biggest battles are yet to come. Some men must have five or six pints of your strength before they have a chance to recover. They die except for your blood. In your arteries is a power to give men a second chance to live.

"On behalf of many men who have been born again through you blood donors, I express grateful thanks. Our plea is that you don't stop at two pints, or three, but that you keep it flowing till it's over, over here.

Pictures Churchill As 'Stoutly Contending With Adversary' Rather Than As Sick Man

New York, Dec. 17 — (CP) — The New York Times, in an editorial today expressing hope for speedy recovery of Prime Minister Churchill, pictured him as a man "stoutly contending with an adversary" rather than as a sick man.

"Mr. Churchill has known danger all his life," said the Times. "At 18 he was nearly killed falling from a tree. At 21 a Cuban bullet missed him by a foot. At 23 he pulled wires to get into action in Afghanistan, and at 24 he broke almost by main force into the Sudan campaign. A few years later he got himself appointed correspondent so that he could dodge Boer bullets in South Africa. At 41 he left a cabinet post to go into the trenches with the Grenadier Guards. One day he was summoned from his dugout just five minutes before a German shell destroyed it...

"He went to Egypt the other day with a temperature of 100 degrees, deriding the threat of pneumonia as he did that of German bombers."

The Herald-Tribune editorially noted that Mr. Churchill was already ill when he left London for Cairo and Teheran.

"But his burden was not one which could readily be shifted to other shoulders ... nor was Mr. Churchill likely to consult his own safety under any circumstances. In this case the goal was not incommensurate with the risks and the British Prime Minister can be certain of the understanding, sympathy and good wishes of those free peoples for whom he has been such an inspiring voice."

Aluminum Co'y Loses Appeal On Taxable Income

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal has dismissed an appeal of the Aluminum Company of Canada from a ruling by the Ontario Municipal Board which had ordered that the taxable income of the company for 1940 be increased from $9,127 to $1,811,806. Respondent was the city of Toronto.
